This year, as heretofore, the South Side Cafeteria will be run with the one purpose in mind, namely to serve clean, wholesome meals at the lowest possible prices and co-operate with school organizations.

The cafeteria staff is made up of the director, Miss Lucy Mellen, three cooks, and student help. These assistants follow standards of work to give patrons courteous and efficient service. The women who work in the cafeteria kitchen are chosen by Miss Mellen for their ability, knowledge, and health. The student help is made up of those students who desire to work in the cafeteria to earn their lunch. Miss Mellen stated that the students doing this work get valuable experience from this line of activity. The students have a definite set of working rules which they follow.

Miss Mellen plans the meals and served are soups, meats, vegetables, salads, and desserts. A large variety of sandwiches and candy is also offered.

In answer to the question of many people if the cafeteria is for students and teachers only, Miss Mellen stated that the public is invited to patronize South Side's cafeteria whenever they find it convenient to come.

This year the cafeteria kitchen has been redecorated and is quite attractive. There will also be a new member of the staff this year due to the death of Mrs. Bauer.

As the cafeteria can not be run entirely by the staff alone, the co-operation of the student body and the public is asked. Suggestions and complaints are welcome if they are brought directly to Miss Mellen. She endeavors to buy from Fort Wayne firms as much as possible.

The meals are planned to offer a variety of foods. Among the foods

Permission Needed For Use of Cafeteria

Any club desiring the use of the cafeteria is required to get permission from Miss Pittenger or Mr. Snider before asking Miss Mellen for its use. A dollar must be deposited with Miss Mellen the day preceding the affair. A club officer is responsible for the way the cafeteria is used and left. If help is desired, it may be had for thirty-five cents an hour; if not, the refreshment committee of the club is to take charge and see that it is left in perfect order. If any damage is done, the club that used the cafeteria has to pay for it. The privilege of using the cafeteria in the future may also be taken away from the club.

"I'll have mine with pickle, onion, and lettuce both," but don't ask for anything but pickle or mustard on your hamburger in the cafeteria where this famous "Wimpy-food" rates highest among the popular foods in the cafeteria. Miss Lucy Mellen, who is in charge of the cafeteria, stated that between five and six thousand hamburgers are sold monthly or two hundred fifty to three hundred daily.

As would be expected, pie is very popular dessert, especially with the boys and men. Other students prefer the chocolate puddings or gelatin desserts which are always good. Brown Giants are the most popular of all the ice creams.

Students who want to eat just a little lunch but would like something hot, usually choose some kind of soup, although all cooked vegetables are rather well liked.

Among the candies the penny malted milk balls (moth balls to some) and the Mr. Goodbar are the favorites with the students who like something sweet with their lunch.

Miss Mellen said that they will sell several kinds of bulk ice cream and, if it is as well liked as the slices or Brown Giants, they will sell it permanently.

Cafeteria Help Is Named Tentatively

Students Selected To Serve Food, Sell Candy and Sandwiches, and Do Cashier Work.

The cafeteria staff is tentatively organized. Those who have been chosen are:

Fourth period: Harold Sanders, Irma O'Brien, Ralph Ahlersmeyer, Betty Jean Calkins, Jeannette Hardisty, Maxine Ormiston, Margaret Witmer, Evelyn Klingenberg, Delores Crumrine.

Fifth period: Virginia Walling, Maxine Dunaway, Margorie Funderburg, Frieda Schubert, Wilson Byer, Nita Davis, Norman Budde, Eileen Boyer, Kathleen Smrich, Ava Ewing, Evelyn Habig, Mattie Lou Coats, Alice Jackson, Irene Kirk.

These students give their services helping to serve food at the counters, helping on dishes, selling sandwiches and candy, and doing cashier work. They are asked to serve the public in an efficient and courteous manner. The public can aid in this service by being courteous and helpful to those trying to serve them. In that case suggestions or complaints should be given to those on the staff so that the matter may be reported to Miss Mellen.

The staff is very eager to please and accommodate whenever possible. Miss Mellen hopes that South Side pupils will particularly patronize the cafeteria which is a definite part of the school.

489 Sign For School Paper In Campaign

Percentages Are Listed; Goal of 1500 Retained After the First Week.

Ruth Garrison Has Half Home Room

E. Vesey Has Lowest Book; H. R. 92 Has Only 3%; 1 More Week to Subscribe.

The circulation campaign, which was started for the South Side Times last week, has done very well. Harriet Yapp, circulation manager, has announced that the Times goal is set at 1500 subscriptions. Today there are 487 subscriptions signed for, and these were made in only one week's time. The circulation book with the largest number of subscriptions belongs to Helen Anderson with 126 subscriptions so far. The next highest number is 104, held by Ina Claire Chappell. Ruth Henline and Julia Crabbil come next, with totals of 95 and 88, respectively. The least number of subscriptions is the book of Eleanor Vesey. The percentage of subscriptions in each room ranges from fifty to three percent. Ruth Garrison, in room 56, has the highest percentage, and Helen Postor, in room 92, the lowest. Clarence Leonard Succeeds Amrhein

Comes From Chicago To Take Y. M. C. A. Post As Boys' Secretary; Other Changes.

Three new secretaries have been added to the staff of the Young Men's Christian Association. Clarence Leonard, experienced Y leader from Chicago, succeeds H. T. Amrhein as boys' work secretary. Mr. Amrhein has resigned to return to Kalamazoo where he was formerly connected with the association. Paul Wilcox, also of Chicago, will assume the duties of desk secretary in the young men's division, and will be closely affiliated with that department. He takes the place of Millard Bennett, who will leave for Butler University in the fall. Lewis Leach of White Barre, Pa., will succeed John Wilkes as swimming instructor and assistant physical director. Mr. White has joined the advertising department of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company. These appointments become effective September 1.

Allen's Amateurs Are Okay According To Times Scouts

By Virginia Greiner

With our hearts in our mouths, cold sweat breaking out on our brows, and our tongues tied in knots, we proceeded, as directed, around through the alley to the stage door of the Embold Theatre to interview the twenty-member cast of "Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonight Radio Prize Winners."

As we came upon the group, the one we couldn't help noticing was Giuseppe Natate Guglimino. Don't get scared, folks, it's really only "Little Joe Williams," the 340-pound "Ton of Melody." He was still in misery as a result of the interurban ride from Louisville, Kentucky, the night before. We asked him if he ever tried going on a diet. "Diet?" he said, "Why starve yourself if it doesn't do any good?"

Henry Busch, sixteen-year-old accordion player, stated that he had played the "Come to Me, Go from Me" as long as he could remember.

"Fog-horn Eddie," alias Eddie Noah is one of the three sensational instrumentalists from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Eddie has a second voice very similar to that of Fred Warne's "Poly." The other members of the trio are Harry Bush, who has a second voice as shrill as Eddie's is deep, and Eddie McVehil.

"Boo" is the favorite phrase of Bob Landesman, excellent mimic of Fred Allen and other famous stars. "For no particular reason at all," Bob says. Nancy Dennis and Betty Douglas, two of the three girls in the show at the time, were great pals. Nancy's friends describe her as having "dancing fingers." Betty Douglas, a clever

Miss Kelley, Invalid, Receives Services From Everybody

A short time after graduating from crutches to a cane, Miss Elizabeth Kelley, who is speedily recovering from a broken leg, was able to return to her classes last Monday. After her first day in school, she said that she felt fine—not a bit tired, but she explained, "Everybody has been waiting on me today. Miss Brown (who accompanied her on her unfortunate vacation) brought me to school, and Miss Peck carried my tray for me in the cafeteria. I don't know how I will ever get back to the old routine. Despite these helps, Miss Kelley, came in hand, "noted" up the incline on her way to the office and also walked right along up to the cafeteria. The accident happened while Miss Kelley was on a boat sailing for Europe. She was treated at hospitals in London and Hamburg and then returned to the United States on the same boat. After leaving the Lutheran Hospital where she was taken after being brought to the United States, she went to her home in Montpelier, Indiana. Better luck next year, Miss Kelley! (She intends going on the same trip again next year.)

Club Aims Given At So-Si-Y Meeting

Pep Session, Melodrama, Speakers Head First Get-Together Of Senior Triangle Group.

So-Si-Y's first meeting was held in the form of its annual pep session on Tuesday, September 10, in the Greeley Room. Prospective members especially were urged to attend this meeting in order to become acquainted with the club's purposes and aims for the semester.

Anna Bremer, the new president, called for committee reports which were given by Ruth Rietz, service chairman; Norma Clausen, social chairman; Virginia Greiner, publicity chairman; and Helen Anderson, membership chairman. Ruth Rietz announced her service committee for the semester, which includes Irene Becker, Eleanor Schremser, Mildred Rudig, Barbara Von Gunten, and Helen Doenges.

Virginia Greiner, one of So-Si-Y's delegates to Camp Yarnelle this summer, gave a resume of camp life, and Mary Kay Smith read the devotions, which consisted of the poem, "Today," by Delilah Smith.

Verna Holtman, vice-president of the club, led the members in singing various songs which the cabinet learned at Camp Yarnelle. The songs were mostly humorous, and included "1935 at So-Si-Y," "Speak to Me, Darlings," and "Hail to Thee, Oh So-Si-Y."

Melodrama Is Presented "Rhythm in X," a melodrama, was presented by the cabinet members, who took the following parts: The king, Verna Holtman; the queen, Virginia Greiner; the princess, Harriet Basford; the villain, Anna Bremer; and three loyal subjects, Ruth Rietz, Betty Rison, and Norma Clausen.

Marjorie Dancer, the new song director for the club, led the group in singing the Girl Reserve loyalty song, the Girl Reserve Quest, and "Follow the Gleam." She was assisted by Marjorie Glass, pianist.

The next meeting will be in the form of a membership party and all members attending must have paid their dues previous to coming. Betty Rison, treasurer, has announced that she will be in the front hall on Tuesday, September 24, to receive dues from members who wish to pay them.

So-Si-Y Makes Quilts

The decorations from last year's "Gingham Gallop" given by the sophomores are going to have a long and useful life this winter. The pennant-shaped banners, the huge gingham dolls, and other forms of decoration used by the sophomores, were turned over to Miss Smetley by Miss Van Gorder. The So-Si-Y girls are going to make quilt blocks of this material as one of their projects for this year.

Miss Smetley stated that the bedding would be turned over to worthy persons. Ruth Rietz is in charge of all So-Si-Y service projects for the semester.

Senior Photos To Be Taken By Jefferson

Well-Known Studio Will Start Photographing the 1936 Class for Totem.

Work Will Begin On Next Monday

Modern Style Photography To Be Featured in 1936 Book; Instructions Given.

Opening the activities of the 1936 Totem this fall, the senior pictures for the yearbook will be taken by the Jefferson Studio, photographers for this year's annual, beginning next Monday, September 16.

The Jefferson Studio, one of the best known studios for annual work, is located on the second floor of the Meyer's Drug Store building at the corner of Calhoun and Jefferson Streets. The studio is just one-half block from the Embold Theatre.

One dollar for the photograph should be paid immediately to either Dorothy Crabbil, circulation manager, or to Louis Bonisb, editor, in the Totem office below the northwest incline to the gym.

Additional portraits may be purchased from the photographer at $4.50 per dozen, $3.00 for one-half dozen, three portraits for $1.85, or $1.00 for one photograph. These prices are for size 3 by 5 prints. Other prices on other sizes may be obtained from the photographer. If a deposit of fifty cents is paid to the photographer in advance, four sittings will be taken; otherwise only two proofs will be shown. These proofs will be actual size, and are to be returned without fail within three days after their receipt.

An entirely new type of photography will be utilized in making these portraits of seniors, a modern style which will be in tune with the modern treatment planned for the book.

All pictures are to be taken by the latter part of November, so all seniors are urged by the staff to have the photograph taken immediately by the photographer. Underclassmen will be photographed individually at the school during the first month of 1936.

Four hundred seniors had photographs taken for the 1935 annual. This mark is expected to be bettered by a considerable number this year because of the greater size of the 1936 graduating class.

Travelers Present Plans For Year

First Meeting Is To Take Place Wednesday; Virginia Greiner And Mary K. Smith in Charge

A Travel Club executive meeting was held in Miss Thorne's room Friday evening. Virginia Baumgartner, president, presided.

A new and original theme was announced for the coming year. In the last few years the programs have dealt with "round-the-world projects. This year the club will travel in its native country. The theme will be, "See America First."

The first meeting of the year will be held in the Greeley Room Wednesday, September 18, with Virginia Greiner and Mary Kay Smith in charge. They plan to escort the club to Washington, D. C., for the first trip of the year.

Virginia Baumgartner also announced the program for the coming year. The club will take nine trips which are listed as follows:

Trip 2, October 2, Orleans; Trip 3, October 16, Yellow Stone Park; Trip 4, October 30, Salem, Massachusetts; Trip 5, November 13, Clifty Falls; Trip 6, November 27, Seattle, Washington; Trip 7, December 11, San Diego, California; Trip 8, January 8, Key West, Florida, and Trip 9, January 16, Bell's Skating Rink.

Travel Club is open to any member of the student body. The club dues are 25 cents a semester.

Sunshine Club Election Will Be September 17

At the first meeting of the Sunshine Club, which will be held on September 17, the new officers for the semester will be installed. They include president, Iona Schuler; vice-president, Thelma Erwin; secretary, Caroline Dirmeyer; treasurer, Frances Rygowski.

A report will be given on the Hanover convention. Delegates from the club included Caroline Dirmeyer and Betty Beyrau.

At this meeting committees will be appointed for the convention, which will be held in South Side on October 5.

Nearly three hundred delegates are expected to come from northeastern Indiana. The club is working with Mr. Snider and Miss Pittenger to make the convention a success. The schedule for convention day is as follows: meetings and speeches in the morning; lunch in the cafeteria; entertainment in the afternoon.

Cafeteria Rules Are Listed for Students

South Side students can make their school cafeteria a pleasant eating place by observing such things as:

1. Being quiet and orderly in the cafeteria.
2. Using polite table manners.
3. Performing no points of personal toilet, such as combing your hair.
4. Not turning down chairs.
5. Removing own dishes and paper to correct place.
6. Not throwing paper in the halls or on the floor.
7. In general being thoughtful and courteous of all around you.

Another Letter Is Received From James Dern, Far North

During the time James Dern was at Labrador this summer with Miss Mabel Thorne, Charles Thorne, and Emily Gardner, he corresponded with several South Side students. The following letter was received by Richard Geibert, a junior here, in August:

George's Cove, Labrador, July 28, 1935.

The swamp that we were to drain is filled each fall by heavy rains and storms. It surely is too bad we couldn't drain it. Nevertheless, we have our hands full making the gardens. One is done, but the largest one has yet to be finished. We have three gardens planted, including the new one. We have planted about 75 cabbage plants but they don't seem to be able to grow. In one of the Grenfell magazines, there was a picture of a 15-pound cabbage head, and it said a 30-pound one that had been grown in the same region. We have some green onions and some very small radishes. All the dirt, sand, and shells have to be hauled to the garden. The dirt is really muck from the swamp; the sand we carried from the hills; and the shells have to be carried about one-half mile. The shells have to be finely crushed by hand.

We have been out several times with the men when they went out to haul their traps. Once we went with them and were gone about an hour before we reached the traps, but due to a round-about way on the water, we could have walked to the traps in about half the time. The traps are about 100 feet under the surface of the water. We helped to pull the nets to land out of the edge of the boat and lay the net just so. Maybe we would get better at it if we practiced more. It surely was a fine sight to see a hundred large fish swimming right close to the boat. Then we helped to dip them into the boat. It was funny the way they tried to get out of the net. I tried to pick several up by their tails with my bare hand, but I just couldn't do it; they were too slippery. The fish have to be cleaned before the men haul in the traps again.

There is a store about four miles from here where we get some provisions. It was started over a hundred years ago. The house is that old and there is a storehouse that is over eighty years old. There is an old English church there with a graveyard. This is the only graveyard that I've seen on the Labrador. The harbor used to be the refuge of the old schooners, but now The Bright is used because it is larger. There were thirty-one of them in the harbor one day waiting for the headwind to subside. In the graveyard there is a black tombstone which belonged to an old sea captain. It has this peculiar color for a gravestone because the sea captain died "in his cups." (This refers to an old custom of predicting the outcome of a journey by the amount of settlements in his teacup. The captain went against a death warning and when he did die over the trip, consequently he was given a black tombstone.) Cape St. Francis is near the store. It is a "pile of rocks" where the compasses fail to function properly. There is an iron deposition below. Many ships have been wrecked on the rocks here.

There was a lot of ice coming up and there still is a lot left. We were delayed three days because of the ice and fog. The large pans shook the ship when they hit them. Some of the

Leaves 'n Freshies Are Swept Together In Good Old Autumn

Falling leaves, floored expressions, forsaken freshies, and finest fancies are all quaint, and quiet, but quite symbolic signs of fall. The unmistakable sign of winter's blast is again reaching out and taking possession of our fair land is something to be either looked forward to or disliked.

The entire difference in this preference would, of course, be attributed to one's personal anatomy. The icy drafts of winter, to some send thrills of sparkling pleasure wandering up and down the spine. To others, though, it gives only the unmistakable sniff and red nose. These kind, I gather, are the resisters of the work of fall.

Falling leaves, though beautiful, are perhaps the main reason why the park caretakers' lips are constantly drooping at the corners. Leaves, in themselves, are an interesting specimen of plant life, but when thought of as a reminder to all the young debs and coeds that it's time for a new fall hat, they become much more important.

This, however, applies only to the younger generation. The astounding bills which themselves to "Pop" at the end of a day of shopping, probably make him lose all faith in falling leaves and the signs for a long time. Though they may seem quite different, falling leaves and fine fall finery have a close relation.

Forsaken "freshies" are, undoubtedly, another sign of fall. It is said that one of the best reminders is a train of thought; it is to this then that we hitch our connection. Freshmen, running to classes, picking up shoes from the gymnasium floor, and vainly trying to remember locker combinations immediately remind us of the beginning of school.

The beginning of school is associated with the fall season, and thus our final connection is made. The freshmen, themselves, are not allowed to forget their station, due mostly to the significant "Hi, freshie" of the upperclassmen. This, too, is to be accepted with the fall season.

The reminders of fall may be done quietly, but they both unite in making it probably quite the most enjoyable season of the year.

Teacher Explains Accident The plaster on the ceiling over the door of Miss Oppelt's room fell down last year. Upon questioning about the cause of this event she said, "Maybe it was the thunder and lightning in the room most of the time."

James Dern

large icebergs passed right close to the ship. They make a great rumbling noise like thunder when they turn over. The natives say that it has been a wonderful year for ice. Several nights lately we have seen the North-north lights. They aren't what I expected to see. They come out of the North and go over the sky like huge searchlights. There is no color to them now, but when the frosts come they are of different colors. They fade and come out in another place. Jim.

Dramatics Classes Arranged Monday

Miss Marjorie Suter Announces Which Periods Beginners and Advanced Students Will Have.

A meeting of all students desiring to take dramatics was held in the cafeteria last Monday at 3:20 o'clock. Those eligible are boys from 9A to 12B and girls from 10B to 12A. The beginners' classes will be held on Fridays, the fourth and fifth periods, while the advanced classes will be the third, fourth, and fifth periods on Monday. The classes will begin on September 13 and 16 respectively, in the Voorhes Room.

Students who have not signed with Miss Marjorie Suter, instructor of the drama classes, may do so during these periods.

The monthly meeting of the Student Players Club will be held on October 4 in the Greeley Room. Election of officers will feature this meeting at which a program will also be presented. The program is being arranged by Helen Doenges and Margaret Crankshaw, who will act as chairmen of the meeting. Miss Suter also announced that a plaque will again be given to the Student Players Club that holds the best meetings during the coming year. Last year this plaque was won by Central's drama organization.

Clubs Have Own Bulletin Boards

Notices Must Be Signed by Advertiser of Club Before It Is Posted.

All clubs will again have their own bulletin boards on which they may post notices or announcements. These must be signed by the club adviser before they are tacked up. Boards are located in the front hall to the right of the main entrance, in the rear of the center hall, at the north end of the front hall, and at the north and south ends of the back hall.

Following are the bulletin board numbers and the club assignments:

1, Philo; 2, Stamp; 3, Latin; 4, Wranglers; 5, Junior Math; 6, French; 7, Lettermen; 8, So-Si-Y; 9, Travel; 10, Boys' Rifle; 11, So-Si-Y; 12, German.

14, Archery; 15, Junior Hi-Y; 16, Wo-Ho-Ma; 17, Airplane; 18, Math-Science; 19, Meterites; 20, What-Not; 21, Kodak; 22, U. S. A.; 23, Student Players.

24, Torch; 25, Girls' Rifle; 26, Senior Hi-Y; 27, Sunshine Juniors; 28, Pebble Pups; 29, Foremans; 30, Inter-Club Congress; 31, Radio; 32, Marionette.

Seniors Asked To Check List on Bulletin Board

The exhibit in the bulletin board which is located on the south side of the west entrance is composed of two parts.

On the left side of the board is a list of the seniors. Any senior whose name is not here is asked to notify Mr. Snider at once.

In the right case are five framed pictures of South Side seniors. Three pictures of the exterior of South Side were used in the Totem for 1935. The two pictures on the extreme right have been used in the News-Sentinel.

One is of the school exhibition last May, and the other is a picture of the three commercial champs, Alma Nitzsche, Dorothy Fathauer, and Anna Brumbaugh.

Tentative Plans For Philo Year Are Announced

Theme of Club To Be America in Literature; Fall Dance Is Planned.

Tentative plans for the fall activities of the Philaethian Literary Society were the subject of discussion at a meeting held Monday evening by the cabinet members and the faculty adviser, Miss Demaree. The officers for the following semester are: President, Ruth Adler; vice-president, Helen Anderson; secretary, Dorothy Crabbil; program chairman, Mary Martha Hobrock; pianist, Virginia Gardner; publicity chairman, Jane Loomis; and sergeant-at-arms, Rosemary Chappell.

Very interesting plans are being formed for the fall activities of Philo. Among these we find the Philo Dance, which will be held Saturday, November 9. This is the day of the Central-South Side football game. Already plans for this are being made and it is a dance which no one should miss. The other activities include a picnic and interesting programs throughout the fall term.

America in Literature The theme for the Philaethian Literary Society for the fall semester will be America in Literature. This theme was chosen in view of the fact that little attention has been given to it prior to this time. It will no doubt be to many a widening of their knowledge in literature, which is the purpose of the club.

The present members of the club extend a cordial invitation to all 10A, junior and senior girls, who have an English average of "B" or better, to become a member of the Philaethian Literary Society. It is the customary procedure to write a letter of application and give it to Miss Demaree in room 68.

The first meeting of the Philaethian Literary Society will be held Monday, September 16, in the Greeley Room. A very interesting program in the nature of a pep session has been planned. Refreshments will be served. All are invited.

Robert Rinehart Wins Scholarship

Local Graduate of '34 Is Given Three-Year $750 Scholarship Award by Depauw University.

Robert Rinehart, graduate of South Side in 1934, because of his outstanding scholastic record at Depauw during his first year, has been awarded a three-year scholarship valued at $750 to that school.

Every freshman man at Depauw whose average is over "B" and who is not already a Rector scholar receives this award. Twenty men, including Robert, received this honor this year.

While at South Side, Robert was also very active. He was elected to the National Honor Society, the highest honor which South Side can bestow on a student. He was president of the Social Science, Library, and Torch clubs; vice-president of Junior Hi-Y; a member of Senior Hi-Y; and a member of the Totem staff.

He is studying political science, and he intends to continue in this field after graduation.

Botany Instructor's Laboratory Contains Many Kinds of Plants

If you have ever been in the botany laboratory during the school term, as most every upperclassman has, you remember seeing many odd looking plants at all of the windows and an abundance of plants in the green house just off of the botany room.

Many of these plants cannot be moved very conveniently during the summer months, so they are looked after by the custodians and Mr. Elma Gould, botany instructor. However, Mr. Gould takes some of the more unusual plants home to care for personally.

An average of about fifteen to twenty minutes a day is required to tend these plants remaining at school. New plants must be continually gathered and the old ones must be watered, transplanted, cleaned, and trimmed.

The laboratory contains about sixty-five or seventy-five different kinds of plants, including many varieties of sedum, sansevieria, bryophyllum, Jerusalem cherry, sacred lily of India, cacti, ferns, water plants, and a giant rubber plant.

All of the plants are used sometime during the Botany course as illustrations of families, types of plants, types of stems, leaves, vegetation, fruits, and bulbs.

Mr. Gould proudly described a plant that Mr. Louis C. Ward, late superintendent of schools, gave to him before he died. This plant blooms only once in four years and is supposed to blossom this year. The plant now has a bulb eight inches in diameter, which has accumulated during the four years it ceased to bloom. Although Mr. Gould has never seen the flower in bloom, he believes it will be yellow and look something like a calla lily. Mr. Gould has no way of being sure that this flower will bloom; but has high hopes.

Another interesting plant included in the assortment is the Kolancho. The growth and development of this plant is of unusual interest because tiny plants form on the end of the leaves and then fall off and form new plants.

A balanced aquarium, in which the plants give off food for the fish and the fish supply the food of the plants, is also an interesting feature of the laboratory. This is a permanent feature of the "Botany lab" and is fastened to a large cement desk.

School Paper Is Judged One Of Best Scholastic Journals in World by Quill And Scroll Organization.

High Praise Given In Scoring Book

Editorials, News Coverage, Style of Writing Meet With Favor of Critics.

For the third successive year, the South Side Times has been awarded the Quill and Scroll International Honor rating. The Quill and Scroll society is an international honorary society for high school journalists with approximately eleven hundred member schools, in this and foreign countries.

The board of judges in commenting on the paper said, "You may certainly be proud of the Times. It is better than a great many community weeklies in make-up, news coverage, and quality of writing."

Although the Times did not receive a rating which was quite as high as that of last year, it scored 900 out of a possible 1,000 points. The score last year was 980.

Ten Points Judged The paper is judged on ten main points with many sub-points. The main ones are the quality of writing, selection of material, treatment of material, mechanics, proportion of students engaged in journalism, responsibilities of the staff, editorial achievements, innovations, circulation of paper, and advertising.

On many of these points, the judges made interesting comments. On the first, they agreed that the Times had a clear, concise news style and that the headlines were lively and informative. About the editorials the judges remarked, "Editorials reveal a mature perspective." They were also of the opinion that the make-up was excellent. Their final comment was that there was good general coverage of news sources throughout.

Five Ratings Given Quill and Scroll, which renders this critical service, has five ratings which a paper can achieve. They are the International Honor Rating, International First Place Award, International Second Place Award, International Third Place Award, and Fourth Place. Of these five, the Times received the highest, which is for "papers of superior achievements."

The scale which the judges followed was intended to measure the success of a school newspaper in terms of the service it rendered its school. It placed the most emphasis on content and not upon form. Its object is to permit the school to develop a type of journalism particularly suited to its needs.

Three copies of papers last spring and three of papers at least six months old were sent to the Quill and Scroll Society, which is located at Northwestern University, to be judged. From these the judges were able to obtain a fairly accurate average newspaper.

Annual Faculty Picnic Set for September 19

The annual faculty picnic will open the season's social activities at South Side this year. The picnic will be at Franke Park in the large pavilion on September 19, instead of September 20, as previously announced. Transportation will be furnished for those requiring such accommodations.

"There will be plenty to eat," promised Mr. Parks, who, with Mr. Whelan, is in charge of the affair. Other members of the committee in charge of arrangements are Miss Mott, Miss Smetley, and Miss McClosky. Other committees will be appointed in the very near future.

Leather Work Exhibited

The art classes of the Oakland Technical High School feature an unusual display of hand-painted, tooled leather cases in the exhibit case in the main lobby.

Follow Through

It is a custom among students who have a teacher for the first time to try to "get on the good side" of him or her. They dress their very best, put an elegant shine on their shoes, and even wash behind their ears. The first day they raise their hands for every question so as to assure the teacher that they are one of the smart ones in the class. When called upon, they answer in their most angelic tone of voice. They also are particularly eager to lend the teacher articles, help her in lifting things about, and they run errands very cheerfully. In other words, they do their best to make things pleasant for the teacher and their fellow students. Why is it that when they come to know the teacher better later on they fall into slouchy habits of dress and manners? Why the good start and the poor finish? When we make such a good impression at first, let's follow it through!

Country Grave Yard?

During the past few years, much has been done to make Fort Wayne a more beautiful and progressive-looking town.

Although most of the buildings on uptown Calhoun Street are and look to be of 1890 vintage, several new or renovated buildings add an attractive touch. We could not help shedding crocodile tears if an earthquake or fire would save wrecking companies the trouble of razing those architectural horrors still standing.

It is not unnatural for visitors to judge a town by its buildings. The main street which presents a clean, modern appearance creates more favorable comment than one characterized by rows of uneven, dirty, straggly buildings somewhat reminiscent of and quite as lively as a country grave yard.

Somehow, it seems to us, the appearance of a business house shouts out the personality and enterprise of the occupants. We feel sure that tenants of attractive buildings have found it false economy to save rents by locating in out-moded stores or offices.

Who Wins a War?

At a time when a European war is impending, it is timely to discuss who wins a war. As there is no such thing as a draw in war, one side obviously wins and the other loses.

The so-called winner is the one who is thought to have gained by the war, but it would be hard to name a nation that ever was better off for one.

Let's observe our own record of wars. We have been the so-called winner in every case, but with the exception of the Revolution, we have never profited by a conflict.

The Spanish-American War was a push-over, but for the millions of dollars spent, we only got the Philippines, with a costly insurrection and a lot of trouble and expense.

The World War, which we fought to "make the world safe for democracy," only caused economic consequences which resulted in a fine collection of European dictators! In addition to the thousands of men killed, we had an exhausted country and held the bag for a few paltry billions. But the billions it cost us are insignificant compared to the innumerable young men who might have been the Edisons, Gorgasses, Victor Herberts, and Alexander Graham Bells of our age—killed in action. And after every war we have suffered a depression, proportional to the size of the war.

No country is ever conquered while its people are living, for each war only instills revenge more deeply in the minds of a nation.

The truly united internationalists, the munitions makers of the world, are among the few who get the bloodstained silver lining from the black clouds of war. The countless war profiteers, with their one percent commissions on materials bought, their one thousand percent profits, and their fortunes made by starving the population with exorbitant food costs still remain, outstanding examples for ambitious young men to follow.

Win a war? It can't be done!

Carrying On

With Ruth Garrison

Well, I put key to ribbon with a prayer on my lips that I won't make too many enemies.... That's the trouble with these by-lines. Mr. Snider says that he was taming the horse, but we just laughed and laughed and laughed 'cause we knew the horse was taming him.... Did you know that Ray Ballweg plays golf? Yes, it seems that he played a few games this summer.... I don't know, I only heard that Joan Bonsib had a tennis date with Joe Bell. Don't tell me Eleanor and he are flickering.

It seems that a certain young man named Zent called up Aletha Hatfield and asked if he had played tennis with her the previous day. She told him that he must be thinking of two other people. After due apologies he said that the girl had an odd name but he knew they called her Beanie and he wanted her to play in the tennis tournament with him. I suggest that they run a hidden column every week, only if they did The Times would have to get an automatic paster.... Added sights: Mr. Flint, shirtless, telling a janitor whom he has cornered, an incredible fish story. The Makes running the Harrison Hill Drug Store. Mr. Murphy driving pigs. Louis Bonsib wearing an O. F. F. Fraternity badge. Helen Kelsey putting worms on fishhooks.

I just heard the cutest way to address your bright light—Hello, thill.... Well, it was the first time I'd ever heard it.... Have you noticed any part of V. Garton or L. Miller missing? They both were under the knife this summer.... All this notoriety—Gee, everybody will want to go to Labrador next summer.... Do people always start talking to you while you're washing your teeth?.... Dalton McAllister and Joe Bex giggling over stuff—just like a couple of feds.... Korte still burns for Kilpatrick.... Sonia Velkoff's latest pastime is writing letters—well, why not?.... B. Foust is at Fort Benjamin Harrison.... Sally Rea and Jerry Zehr twined it some this summer while they were both in town.... Don Sparkman still knows M. L. Helm's telephone number.

Am I having trouble learning my combination? You'd think I was a freshman. Marge Turner and Ina Claire Chappell thought Camp Potawatomi was all right this summer.... Don Cohan and John Bex are the only boys in the sixth period botany class—the sissies.... Billy Wilson doesn't sleep in history now that Forrester Valentine is in the class.... The funniest thing I saw last week—People trying to look in the Times barrel without anyone seeing them biting.... Dick Helm used to work in a beer parlor—that's where he got that mug?

Need some new clothes?—See Bob Storm on how to talk clothes out of your mother.... Charlie Hart, famous soda jerk, jerked one so hard that it splashed all over a lady.... Leona Menze crawling around under the table with some Central guy.... I knew something was missing around this school, but I couldn't figure out what it was until I heard Millie Hoff was in the hospital—Lots of luck, Pat.

Thumb-nail descriptions—Phyllis Geller: a little ray of sunshine; Maria Haven, a hamburger with pickles, onions, and lettuce both; Bea Craig, a cat fight under your window some night; Herb Kramer, where have you been all my life; Jane Davis, are the stars out tonight? Oscar Eggers, the top; Manuel Rothberg, the alarm on anybody's clock; Ann Winters, a car with a cut-out; Pat Gibson, five eighth periods; Jim Sweet, Walter Winchell in disguise; Charlie Geyer, Hi, toots; Dick Ake, snaps, snails, and puppy dog tails; Rene Shannen, have you got any gum, peacorn, popnuts, or candy?; Beanie Dygert, life is a song; Bud Schrom, fill 'em up again.

Wonder what the chair was doing on top of the lockers in the boys' locker room.... And the half-eaten carrot in the girls' locker room. Marj and Eleanor Paetz won't tell; but they admit that "theirs" live out of town.... Merl Norris really is an aspiring youth—His one ambition is to have a date with Bon Silene Craig—I thought that he was going steady with Jeanette Wilcox from Central. Well, I'll see you in the gym sometime.... Goodbye now.

Who's Who in South Side

Jim Dern, held to be a future football star, trained for this season by hauling things around in the icy wastes of Labrador this summer. Jim is an honor roll student, tries out for all sports, and belongs to Math-Science. Following the precedent of his brother, John, he has a stamp collection. His brother, an alumnus of South Side, is out making a reputation as a track star at Leland Stanford. Jim was awarded the Philo cup for outstanding literary work last semester. Well-liked by all his acquaintances, he is a familiar figure at South Side, due to his red sweater. Jig-saw puzzles were the most exciting thing indulged in on the Fourth of July by Jim, Emily Gardner, '35, and Charles Thorne, who worked together in Labrador this summer. If there are any firecrackers lying around, he says he is going to celebrate.

The only time the modern mother puts her foot down is when the light turns green.

The modern high school girls also use spinning wheels—four of them with rubber tires and a spare.

It is claimed that a real politician never dies—but his term expires occasionally.

It has been urged that every fly be killed directly as it is seen—that's swats wanted.

Things we wonder about—what would a Liar's Club gold medal be made of?

Sick in Bed

Down South

Home on the Range

"I Can't Remember" seems to be a most fitting melody for one senior newcomer, Marian Patterson. A pleasant smile and "How do you do?" do the trick for her, but what a time remembering names! Greeting Eddie Leitz in the hall, she stammered "Hello Ken-Bo-well, Hello!" Eddie is the name, Marian.

Despite our new gain, we rather feel that something's lacking, it being Dot Geary with her usual admirers, particularly the winning Conway. Yep, she'll soon be off for St. Mary's. One boy who manages to hide his private life is Burt Hardendorf, but somehow we feel that it won't be long now! You can't win, Burt, for the slippery sleuths will track it down.

Hilda Spangle is one of those victims who thinks the grass is greener on the other side of the fence, so off she goes to New York to meet the "Object of Her Affections," a certain Tom.

One of the bright and shining stars left for our dear old Alma Mater is Eddie Kruse. Most of us have a nickel that says he will really "shine" this year.

Just think—Dave Steger no longer stands in the steady line. A "Fishing" he did go, but now he's lost his hook, line, and sinker both. Wonder what fish in the sea will appeal to him now?

Not pink elephants, not snakes, not green-eyed monsters, (not even boys) but just plain juveniles are haunting our dear little juvenile botanists, Jean Bollman and Doris Bennett. Botany is gaining and the weaker (?) sex is losing, as it were.

Despite crushed chests, auto wrecks, and what have you, Heller and Zeig are still sticking together. They use stickem's glue maybe. Perhaps this is also the remedy tried by Ned Henslee and Maria Haven.

In the Army Now

We have an army sweetheart in our midst. Has anyone noticed the handsome army badge D. Crabill is sporting these days? That gal really gets around.

And then there is the little net Jackie Hench put in a letter to Mary Kay Connell. It read: "I need more love and kisses." What we need and what we get is often two different things.

More newcomers! This one is just for one period of art work. Georgianna Dewald joins South Side students every seventh period. We just guess nobody will be putting up many objections.

Mary Ellen Woods has quite a time when it comes to her two Bobs. She has gotten to the point where she calls them Bob I and Bob II.

Little Barby Noble goes for Paul Gerry of C. C. in an awfully big way. Ah we. We guess everyone's young once.

We hear that Fran Bohl is still crazy for Dot Golden, but Goldie says

There was a guy named Shakespeare

Who took a great delight
 In making people puzzle out
 The things that he would write.
 He was a famous author;
 But boy, how he did rate!
 For writers now must use plain words,
 Or else be critic bait!

TRAMP, TRAMP—If anyone misses Bob Bacon or Virginia Vesey, they're probably still thumbing their way in from Waynedale. How'd they get there?—Why ask us?

DICKIE BIRD—If you crave pure devilment on Halloween, page little Dickie Helm, who once tied Jo-Anne Smith's front and back doors together with the "Smythes" clothes line. Result: John Grandy had to leave by a window!

YUM, YUM—We see Bob Gargett is another of these one-handed drivers. But we don't blame him. We like ice cream cones, too!

RUBBERNECK?—We hear that Warren Zelt, who prefers South Side to Concordia, ruined large portions of his complexion in a fall from a moving bike. Tsh, tsh, Warren. You should watch the road instead of the girls perambulating on the sidewalk.

SMOOTHIE?—We see our "blushing blond," (quoting the Totem) Grace Nelson has gone sophisticated and curled her hair. Now she'll have to carry an identification card so people will recognize her!

If "Life is a Song," we pity numerous crooners.

Well, after all, Oscar, even football stars must start at the bottom of the heap.

RAH! RAH!—Just think—soon we'll be back watching our ambitious gridirers bumping heads with the equally ambitious men of other teams. We remember our first football game was seen out at North Side under the floodlights (also a pouring rain). Then there were several times when every one who had foresight went around under blankets. Brrrrr! But we enjoy the stuff anyway.

It had better be good, after all those boys spent large portions of their summer up at Camp Crosey. Just think! All that time just to practice endless weeks after school, and then finally, play in a few games! An orchid to the boys!

she's through. Time will tell!

Betty Anne Schaaf is considered one of the luckiest girls in South Side. Isn't Gord the mainstay of the whole team? No wonder she is the object of the green-eyed monster!

Rex Knorr will be plenty worried this coming winter, having left his girl to go to New Mexico. We have reason to know that Betty will be having one swell time. That's it, Betty—give them a break.

Keeping Up Appearances

By Helen Kelsey

The first day of school was marked by a varied selection of costumes. Margaret Foellinger chose a two-piece dress of gay plaid gingham. The square neckline is accentuated by a small white pique collar, backed with a larger brown pique collar. Brown pique buttons hold the corners of the collars. The brown pique is also carried out in the large square belt buckle. The shirt is made with a single box pleat in the front and a kick pleat in the back.

Julia Crabill may also be identified by a two-piece dress. Julia selected Scotch plaid seersucker. The small round neckline is bounded by a Buster Brown collar. Individuality is added by the pleated sleeve set in a square armhole. The wrist-length blouse is fastened in a fascinating manner with bright red buttons down the front.

Miss Nellie Covatt, a member of the faculty in the commercial department, greeted her pupils on the first day of school in a peach-colored crepe dress with a small black check. The dress was fashioned after the popular shirt-waist lines. The roll collar is caught by a kerchief. The kerchief is of black crepe with the two unhemmed edges fringed. The front of the blouse is buttoned by large black buttons that are tied on with strips of the dress goods. The four patch pockets are made with a box pleat in each one. On to the deep yolk the blouse is set with two pleats in front and one in back. Each sleeve has a pleat in it.

Betty Rose Lehman could not be missed in her blue serge suit. The jacket is fitted to the waist line by means of small metal buttons. The lower part of the jacket that falls to the hips is slightly flaired. Red plaid taffeta is used for the blouse. A gathered stand-up collar gives a very smart effect.

Another shirtwaist dress was worn by Dorothy Scheele on the opening day. The frock was of blue silk seersucker. An unusual feature was the long sleeves. The fullness was allowed by scherring at the shoulder. Large patch pockets, that seem to be quite the thing, are on the front of the skirt.

Ruth Adler, attired in a brown and white pique dress, made a charming picture. A round brown and white collar gives a very tailored effect. The raglan sleeves have small white bands for cuffs. The large white buttons down the front add a delightful touch.

Publications Mogul Began

Life Work With $17,000,000

The greatest newspaper syndicate in the United States is owned and controlled by one man. It is composed of twenty-five daily papers and has a total circulation of more than four and one-half million, in addition to the circulation of non-Hearst papers throughout the country which subscribe to "Today," a column written by his subordinate, Arthur Brisbane. One-ninth of the total newspaper circulation in this country is controlled directly by William Randolph Hearst. However, managing this huge syndicate is only one of his many and varied activities. He owns magazines, radio stations, movie companies, newsreels, and many other concerns.

William Randolph Hearst was born in San Francisco in 1863, the son of U. S. Senator George Hearst. He attended Harvard University, where he became greatly interested in the lives of Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson. While Hearst was still young his father died, leaving him a San Francisco newspaper and seventeen million dollars, starting him on his long and eventful career.

In 1895, after an epic battle with Pulitzer, following his entrance in the New York newspaper field, he won success in that field. That same year the Cuban Revolution broke out, and Hearst wildly drummed up war sentiment for the Cubans. With blaring headlines and sensational stories, he fanned public opinion into fierce emotional heat. Two years later, he began using a new type of journalism, filling his papers with large photographs and headlines, coarse stories, and sex and crime stories.

The war finally broke out in 1898, after the Maine was sunk, an occurrence given much publicity by Hearst. He then had the cheek to offer a ship to the navy if he could go as captain, and being refused, chartered his own fleet. He actually appeared under fire at El Caney with a "straw hat with a bright ribbon on his head, a revolver at his belt, and a pencil and notebook in his hand." The high point came, however, when he sent an order to his European representative to sink a block ship in the Suez Canal to prevent the passage of the Spanish fleet.

Hay, the Secretary of State, made a treaty with England in 1900 which would have forbidden us to fortify the Panama Canal. A barrage of patriotic rage stirred up by Hearst overwhelmed the unhappy secretary. The treaty collapsed.

Hearst strongly opposed McKinley in the election of 1900. The terrible climax came after McKinley was elected and Hearst's New York Morning Journal conveyed the warning that the bullet of a Kentucky assassin was "—speeding here, to stretch McKinley on his bier."

Six months later McKinley was killed. The people, shocked by the tragedy, turned upon Hearst as an object for their revenge. "It was doubtful," says a biographer of Mr. Hearst, "if any American ever faced a wilder storm of abuse." Throughout the nation, he was burned in effigy.

After the McKinley storm subsided, Hearst, not yet out of his thirties, turned his ambitions to politics. He allied with Tammany and obtained a seat in Congress.

His next serious effort was for nothing less than the Democratic presidential nomination in 1904. He converted his newspapers and their staffs into a political machine. He was not nominated, but was a close runner-up. In 1906, he ran for mayor of New York City, independent of Tammany, and was defeated. He re-allied with Tammany in 1906 and entered into a whirlwind campaign for the governorship of New York State. He denounced bossism, corruption, and corporations, although he was said to be connected with all of these. It looked so much that he would be elected, that Elihu Root was sent in by the opposing party to revive the McKinley assassination scandal. Hearst was defeated.

Three years later, he ran for mayor of New York and was defeated again. Later, after realizing he could not elect himself, he succeeded in electing Mr. Hylan, his puppet candidate for mayor.

In 1912, he again thought of the Democratic presidential nomination, but turned his efforts to defeating Wilson, nearly doing it.

When the World War broke out, he continued his policy of extreme nationalism, as he had for twenty years. Bitterly hating England, he then was thought by the people to be pro-German, and again a terrific storm of public protest broke upon him. It became almost a crime in some communities to buy a Hearst paper. He was about to be destroyed by the monster of patriotism he helped to build.

However, he stopped just in time and, doubling in his tracks, began supporting the war. His circulation returned and he was safe for a while.

In 1919, Al Smith sought to remove Hearst from New York politics, and though not successful, he was later. This didn't bother Hearst much, because by then he no longer cared. The terms of a secret sea power pact between France and England were obtained and published by Hearst's Universal News Service in 1929. Later on, he was not allowed to enter France because of this. It provoked him to write one of the most slashing, sardonic arraignments of a nation ever written. Hearst had come out on top, for it made the French look silly in the eyes of the world.

Secrets to Seventeens

Looking one's best is a very important thing in the life of each boy and girl. Generally, a girl takes care to look her best each day—at school, at games, at parties, and on most every occasion. However, there are a lot of boys who think they need not comb their hair, keep their pants neat looking, and wear shoes that tell how well-kept they are. Did you ever stop to think that your clothes reveal your character? Well, they do—very much so—even if you are too stubborn to realize it! If you're careless in your appearance, ten chances to one, you're careless in most every other respect.

Everyone knows that the careless people are usually the lazy people; and certainly, you don't want to have the reputation of being lazy! We don't mean to say that there are no girls who need to take heed of this bit of advice, because there are plenty of girls who are just as careless as some boys.

You don't have to have beautiful clothes to look chic and neat. Usually the simplest dress is the most becoming to a schoolgirl; and certainly, a boy doesn't have to have ritzy clothes to look nice. Care for your clothes—Hang them up when you're not wearing them. Don't throw them in a heap upon the floor. Make it a point to see that your own clothes, however simple they may be, are just as trim-looking as they can be. Keep your hair combed, your clothes pressed, your shoes cleaned, and all such things as these. You will find that it isn't a bit hard to appear just as neat and clean-looking as any other student in the school.

The Worms Turn! Freshmen Remove Sophomore Shoes

Oh, the humiliation of it! 'Twas not that our shoes were torn from out quivering limbs—nooo. 'Twas not that they were taken in brutal hands and cast far—far into the depths of the gymnasium—nooo. 'Twas not that we were compelled to sink down onto the floor with the common freshies amid jeers and cheers to retrieve those battered objects—nooo.

But that we sophomores were taken for freshmen!

Oh, I beat my head upon the ground; in utter agony I rend the hairs from my head; I don sackcloth and itchy trousers and I pour ashes upon my cranium and sand into my shoes. I bemoan the fact that I have a memory. These horrible thoughts roll back like a huge black tidal wave.

A bunch of over-grown wide-eyed freshies apparently wanting to have a little fun themselves converged upon us peace-loving sophomores. In the rear lurked the brains (?) of the riot, the juniors and seniors goading, cajoling, forcing the innocent freshies to do the dirty work (?) while they sat back in gluttonous satisfaction. Taking hold of us cautiously, but with ever-increasing firmness, they began the process of leather-removing. The sophomores rose in a body, and did orate unto them using the wisdom and stirring words gifted only to the sophomores. Though taken quite aback at this display, the green ones again came on inspired by the taunts of the upperclassmen. We submitted indignantly after a short and futile struggle to the removal of our sandals and their heaveance thereof.

Having completed their foul play, the freshies retired hastily, many inwardly repenting of their despicable actions. They retired swiftly while we called down our wrath upon them. May their consciences be forever haunted by this contemptible sin, this unforgettable wickedness, this vile crime which they have committed.

Girl Reserves Hold Meeting At YW Camp

Plans Made for This Year; Officers Are Elected; Rings Will Be Awarded.

Camp Yarnelle, Winona Lake, was the scene of the annual Girl Reserve setting-up conference held September 7 and 8. This conference, which is held by the Girl Reserves every year, plans the activities of all the Girl Reserve Clubs for the year.

Representatives from Polar-Y, Central Triangle, Central Friendship, U. S. A., So-Si-Y, and Wheatley Center clubs attended. Those attending from So-Si-Y are Virginia Greiner, Anna Bremer, Ruth Reitz, Verna Holtman, Harriet Basford, Betty Rison, Norma Clauser, Miss Smeltz, and Miss Pitenger.

At the meetings held during the conference, the girls decided to hold a fall picnic, a Halloween party and a Christmas party, to which all Girl Reserves will be invited.

Officers Are Elected

At the election of officers the following girls were elected: Marybelle Gallmeyer, president; Anne Tucker, vice-president; Verna Holtman, treasurer; and Alice Kolman, secretary.

One of the most important matters decided on was in regard to the recipients of the Girl Reserve rings. It was decided that rings will be awarded only to deserving Girl Reserves. Those girls desiring rings are to let their adviser know sometime during October.

Starting in November, these girls will attend meetings to be held at the Y. W. C. A. The rings will then be awarded to these girls at the Spring Banquet.

At the Sunday morning services, Miss Lampton, the new Y director, gave a very lovely talk on fairies.

Boating, hiking, and swimming were enjoyed by all the girls.

Minier Elected 1500 Club Head

Times General Manager To Direct Honorary Journalism Group; Aides Are Selected.

Bryce Minier, general manager of The South Side Times, was elected president of 1500 Club last Friday at its first meeting of the term. Other officers elected are Harriett Yapp, vice-president; Ruth Garrison, secretary; and Jim Sweet, treasurer.

The meeting was held in room 16 immediately after the Times staff meeting. No activities of the club for this semester were decided on, except the potluck, which is held every year. The 1500 Club is an honorary journalism society composed of members of the Times staff who have earned 1500 points or more by work on the Times. Writing stories and editorials, soliciting ads, reading proof, folding papers, getting subscriptions, and holding major staff positions are a few of the things for which points are obtained.

Dave Steger Is Elected As Head of Wranglers

Dave Steger, at the first meeting of the Wrangler's Club held in the Greeley Room on Monday, September 9, was elected president of the organization. Gwendolyn Horn will serve with Dave as vice-president, Doris Bennett as secretary, and Dick Strausser as treasurer. The positions of sergeant-at-arms are to be filled by Thomas Jaenicke and Clifford Schrom respectively.

Miss Dorothy Benner, the club's adviser, presided at the meeting and announced that the second meeting would be the usual annual weiner bake at Vesey's to which guests and Wrangler members are invited. As usual, it is expected to be a jolly time for everyone. The Wrangler members will be asked to serve on various committees for the affair.

This year is expected to be a fine one for the debaters' club. The programs are expected to be the most enjoyable that it has ever had, as the club members and officers show a great deal of enthusiasm.

Some Are Content, Others Aren't Keen About Our Teachers

The faculty we have with us this semester seems to be well-liked. From the various reports collected, the students appear to be well pleased with their instructors. After many weary ramblings around our stately halls, we secured the following views as voiced by our colleagues:

Bernadine Mitchell—They seem pretty cheerful now but you can't tell what they will be like later on.

Nona Fiske—I like them all. (One very satisfied little gal.)

Margaret Crankshaw—They are just fair. (Rather skeptical, eh?)

Jack Feller—I don't know them. (Must be a freshman.)

Faith Clark—They are all okay, so far.

Jeanette Braun—Only know one, but I think they're all okay.

Mary Anne Park—I got just about what I wanted, so I guess it's okay.

Audrey Jefferies—They suit me swell. I think we will get along fine.

Anna Bremer—I don't know yet, but if they live up to their reputations I fear for myself. (She need have no fears.)

Clarence Helmsing—All my teachers are okay.

Rosalyn Gale—I think the teachers I have this year will be very interesting. (All the teachers are interesting.)

Marcella Tieman—My teachers are all very, very, very nice. (Another very, very, very satisfied senior.)

Philatelists Meet Next Wednesday

First Meeting of Fall Semester Will Be Held September 18; Homer Miller Is President.

Officers of Philatelic Society are planning to give pupils interested in stamps some new and peppy entertainment during the fall semester. Homer Miller, Stamp Club president, will call the executive board together either Thursday or Friday to make the final arrangements.

The first Stamp Club meeting will be held Wednesday, September 18, at 3:30 p. m. in the Voorhees Room. The meetings will continue during the semester on every other Wednesday afternoon.

The club is open to any boy or girl interested in stamps. The following officers for the fall semester are: Homer Miller, president; John Thacker, vice-president; Dalton McAllister, secretary; Fisher Rehner, treasurer; John Jackson, sergeant-at-arms. Miss Pauline Van Gorder is the club adviser.

Many '35 Graduates Obtain Employment

Many 1935 graduates have been fortunate in securing employment during the past summer. Although many are working during the summer only, several have secured permanent positions.

Several girls have secured positions at the Lincoln Life Insurance Company. Among these are Alma Nitzsche, Anna Brumbaugh, and Dorothy Fathauer. Eileen Hall and Alvena Greber are employed at Wolf and Dessauer's. International Harvester has given employment to Elgrain Stump and James Bundy. Clarice Fyock is working at the Martha Washington Ice Cream store, while Risher Hall is working at the Tompkins Ice Cream company.

Mary Osborne, Violet Wittmer, and Sue Cameron are employed at the Kolman Case Company. Charlene Davis is working for Woolworth's. Frank Montgomery and Dick Russell have secured positions at the First National Bank. Ned Hackney and Herbert Meyers are managing refreshment stands at Franke and Memorial Park respectively. Paul Randall worked at Patterson-Fletcher's, and Bob Faust has been working for the Frank Dry Goods Company.

Wayne Bender

Ursula Morton, Wayne Bender, and John Bremer were general managers last year when The Times won 960 points out of a possible 1000 in the Quill and Scroll international contest. South Side received the highest possible rating in the contest for papers of the world for the third consecutive year.

Freshmen's Candid Opinions Are Favorable To South Side

"Freddie and Flossie" Freshman really think South Side is "pretty swell," or so they told the inquiring reporter on the day they entered this "labyrinth" known as South Side.

After a few bashful blushes they proudly gave their opinions of South Side. The following quotations were given when asked what they thought of their new school:

Dorothy Bloemker: "It's swell."

Margaret Croft: "I think it's a pretty large school with a lot of nice pupils."

George Hoerner (outside the door of the freshman meeting): "It's okay, but I wish I could get inside there!"

Ruth Kaiser: "I like it lots better than any other school I've ever gone to. It's much more exciting!"

Roy Erwin: "Not bad!"

LaVern Engelbrecht: "It's swell!"

Billy Peters: "It's all right."

Mildred Franz: "It's a fine school and I'm glad that I can go to it."

Bill Doehrmann: "I'll be glad to go back tomorrow."

Helen Harlan: "I like to remember my first day at South Side because it's like the song, 'It's Easy to Remember and So Hard to Forget!'"

Ralph Hollmsmeyer: "It's okay."

Dorothy Lehbrecht: "I like it because all my rooms are on one end and anyway, I won't get lost."

Betty Jaebker: "Grand, if you don't get lost!"

Adelheid Scheele: "The best high school."

Emily Gardner Is Extension Winner

Graduate Last June Announced As Recipient of $100 Award From Indiana U. Center Here.

Emily Gardner, prominent 1935 graduate, has been announced as the winner of a $100 scholarship to the Indiana University Extension Center. The scholarship provides for two-thirds of the tuition of the freshman year at the extension. She will enroll for her freshman year on September 16.

While a student at South Side, Emily was elected to the National Honor Society and was a member of the four-year honor roll. She was also prominent in the activities of Meterites, G. A. A., Student Players, German Club, Philo, Glee Club, So-Si-Y, and Marionettes, of which club she served as secretary.

After commencement, Emily went to the Grenfell mission at George's Cove, Labrador, with Miss Mabel Thorne, Charles Thorne, and Jim Dorn. All of South Side, where she assisted in the teaching at the mission. She returned to her home only a short time ago.

One other South Side graduate was awarded a scholarship to the extension center. She is Catherine Hirschman, whose scholarship was announced previous to Emily's.

Art Club to Show Colony Paintings

Miss Erma Dochterman To Head Organization; Parties, Teas, Dance Will Also Be Planned.

This year is expected to be a big year for the Art Club, under the direction of Miss Erma Dochterman as faculty adviser.

This club is open to anyone who enjoys beauty even if he is not an art student. It is a club for both boys and girls.

A very interesting program is being planned for this semester. One of the first features will be an exhibition of artist's paintings from the Little Art Colony in northern Minnesota where Miss Dochterman spent the greater part of her summer vacation. This exhibit will include interesting features such as, talks by various speakers, exhibits by well-known artists, and the showing of students' work.

There will also be the usual art parties, dances and teas. The adviser stated that she hopes it will be possible for the Art Club to put on a play.

"Where's that airplane going?"
"To a desert island."

"What are they going to do when they get there? There's no one there."
"Turn around and go back."

"Why is that Eskimo talking so excitedly to the other Eskimos?"
"He's telling them about Miss Smeltz. She just visited Greenland."

"Lookit those men standing outside that restaurant. Are they hungry?"
"No. They're announcing the baseball scores."

New South Side Teachers Are All Pleased with School

South Siders have had the honor of welcoming three new teachers into their school this year. Each of these new instructors predicts that he will like South Side very well.

Miss Pocock, who previously taught in the Washington grade school, is our new English teacher. Although she is not very well acquainted with the present group of South Siders, she is not a stranger to our school, having been graduated from South Side in the class of 1926. She stated that on the very first day of this semester, she noticed how very polite the student body of South Side tried to be. She said that South Side is quite a bit larger than Washington School, therefore being a trifle noisier. However, she has found that her classes are not crowded, and she expects to know everyone in them soon.

"Pop" Tudor, as he is called by his friends, said that he thinks South Side seems very well organized, both the students and the activities about the school. He said that during the first few days of school, most of the freshmen seemed to know what it was all about, according to the few who lost their way among these halls. He mentioned that all of his classes are of a pretty fair size, the largest being a group of forty-two. Mr. Tudor is South Side's athletic equipment manager. He teaches social science also.

Come up and see "Maudie" in her "Borass" Corner called The "Maudie" Shop for Collegiates and High-schoolers.

"Jo" with "Chu-Chu"

Swanson before she leaves for "Michigan" and get the low-down on what you should wear to be "Smooth"

And last, but not least, our already good friend, Burl Friddle, says that he knows he is going to enjoy South Side. Mr. Friddle taught at Washington High School in Washington, Indiana, for the past ten years. The student body of South Side is approximately four times as large as that of the Washington High School. However, he asserted that when one comes right down to facts, there isn't much difference between the schools, other than the size.

Mr. Friddle said that he, having known various men in Fort Wayne, is not altogether a stranger here. Among some of his old acquaintances are Murray Mendenhall, coach at Central; Lundy Welborn, South Side's football coach; Mr. McClure, and Doc King, who awards the King trophy each year. He stated that he had played against Coach Mendenhall at DePauw University many years ago.

Keep up the good work, South Siders! Don't let our new teachers (and our other ones) be disappointed. Show them that each boy in South Side can behave as a prince, and each girl as a princess.

U. S. A. Will Meet

The U. S. A. will hold their first meeting this afternoon in the Greeley Room. All new 9B girls are especially invited to attend, and all freshman and sophomore girls are eligible for membership.

Accepts Position With Utility Company

Miss Marie Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Butler, 2906 Thompson Avenue, has accepted a secretarial position in the Fort Wayne office of the Northern Indiana Public Service Company.

Miss Butler graduated from South Side High School in 1934. She was a member of the National Honor Society. She went on with her education at International College, in Fort Wayne, and graduated in August from the Private Secretarial department as one of the top-ranking students in her class.

All Health Cards Must Be In Before Initial Game To Avoid Penalties.

Briner Announces Monday Meeting

Complete List of All Intramural Sports and Their Points Given Is Listed.

"Signing up for tag football and cross country must be taken care of by 3:20, Tuesday, September 17," recently stated Mr. Louis Briner, intramural head. "Pupils who wish to make up a tag football team may come to my office and get a team card. After this team card is filled out and all the team members have health cards in, the team will be properly certified," continued Mr. Briner.

A cross country meeting, in which the practice schedule and previous time records will be discussed, is to be held Monday evening, September 16, at 8:30 in Mr. Briner's office. Although Tuesday will be the deadline for anyone wanting to sign up, everyone interested in cross country should be at the meeting Monday night.

Tag football captains are requested to attend a meeting in Mr. Briner's office Tuesday evening at 8:30. At the meeting rules and regulations for tag football will be discussed. A warning will also be issued to the captains to the effect that unless every boy on the tag football squads has his health card in by the time the first game is played, the team or teams that has an athlete on it who does not have a health card and drop the person or persons that does not have card in Mr. Briner's office.

As there have been a considerable number of boys inquiring about the number of points they may receive for different sports, Mr. Briner has decided to announce the number of points that will be given for every intramural sport throughout the winter.

Mr. Davis, athletic manager, is again in charge of the sale of season tickets.

Pigskin Passes

The Archers open their football campaign this Saturday when they journey to Toledo to tackle Woodward. Woodward, you remember, was the team who last year completely demoralized the South Side defense with a group of sleeper passes which really did catch the Archers asleep, and which paved the way to a 27 to 0 victory for the Toledo city champs. We hope that this year's game is not a repetition of what happened last year.

Jim Phelps, sophomore backfield man, who was used as a varsity quarterback during the training period at Camp Crosley, will probably be unable to play until mid-season or later. On the last day of camp, Jim received what was then believed merely a superficial bruise, but the superficial bruise turned out to be so bad that Jim has been confined to his bed ever since returning home. Ben Woodhull and Fred Meyers have been doing the quarterback work in his absence.

The Detroit Lions, who proved a constant source of aid to the hopeful gridders at Camp Crosley, were almost swamped when the Lions' team pictures were distributed among the campers for the nominal cost of one thin dime (postpaid). It seemed that everyone in camp who bought a picture had along with it a desire to obtain the signatures of the thirty-odd Lions. This practice was immediately indulged in by most of the populace of the camp, and there was a concerted rush for the Lions' quarters. Therefore, the Lions spent two bad days signing pictures and inviting writer's cramp, and as the last few pictures were disposed of, several of the Lions made some uncomplimentary as well as unpublishable comments about the practice of signing pictures. The majority of the campers were, however, successful in their quest for autographs.

Instead of playing the usual eight games this year, the Green and White will take the field for nine contests, the only open date in evidence preceding the Central Catholic tilt. The usual open date before the Central game has vanished, and the Archers will tangle in two tough games before Central, meeting North Side and Columbia City on successive Saturdays before the Central game. The Tiger fray this year has been relegated to the second last game on the schedule, the Archers winding up their season at Howe.

The right half position on the Archer squad this year is wide open and a large group have their eyes on this spot. At the beginning of football at Camp Crosley, Coach Lundy Welborn announced that this position was waiting for the fellow who showed himself to be the best blocking back. The right half also runs the ball on reverses and thus must have talent as a ball carrier as well. At the present time Chuck Benz and Ed Kruse are leading the aspirants for this position.

Briner's Intramural Sports Had 1414 Boy Participants

During his six years here, Louis Briner has become well liked by everyone, not only personally, but for the many big things he has done in the physical education department. He has been on the South Side faculty since 1929 as physical instructor and intramural sports head.

Concerning some interesting facts of his life, Mr. Briner states that he was born in Garrett and was graduated from high school in that city. Incidentally, Coach Nick Denes, who brought the Corbin team here, was one of his classmates in Garrett High School. Mr. Briner spent only twelve years of his life in this district, Ohio and Chicago occupying much of his time.

After receiving his A.B. degree at Indiana University, he took his B. S. degree in education. When he finished one year of practice teaching in Bloomington High School, he came to this school.

Sports have always interested Mr. Briner, who spent much time and was most proficient in baseball. On this game he played as catcher, and was an excellent batter. While in college, he put the shot and played a very good brand of football. Furthermore, he played intramural basketball on a team of which three became all-state players. In his semi-professional football career, he played for a year at Tiffin, Ohio, and two years with the Garrett Elks.

In his first year as instructor in South Side, Mr. Briner established in this city intramural sports which have since been growing by leaps and bounds. Last year, the biggest so far, 1414 students were enlisted in that division. Basketball is by far the most popular intramural sport, with tag football, volleyball, and softball coming next. In respect to this year's enrollment in intramural sports, Mr. Briner said that this should be a very important year.

Season Tickets Go On Sale by Rooms

Eight Purchased by Members Of Home Room 10; Total May Be Reduced by New System.

A good response has been shown by the students of South Side at the special price of $2.50 given on season tickets this year. A different system is being followed this year. Instead of the tickets being sold in the home rooms only, a card was filled out in the home room and signed by the teacher. This in turn was taken to Mr. Davis' office where the ticket is to be purchased.

On last Friday the pupils of the study hall and rooms 2 to 20 were allowed to buy their tickets. Twenty-two persons filled out their blue cards and stood patiently in line awaiting their turn to purchase tickets. Eight of these twenty-two were from room 10. This was the largest sale for any individual home room thus far. During the eighth period Monday, thirty-five more tickets were sold to the students of rooms 22 to 40, raising the total to fifty-seven. Unlike Friday, two home rooms tied for first place honors, rooms 24 and 36 both compiling a total of six sales.

Although the sales so far have been satisfactory, the total sold at the reduced rate of $2.50 this year will undoubtedly not come near reaching the very high mark of five hundred sold last year at the low cash price of $2. With two-thirds of the rooms yet to buy tickets, the total is expected to rise to somewhere between one hundred seventy-five to two hundred.

Seven adults who wish to see all of South Side's football and basketball games have also purchased their season tickets.

G. A. A. Flashes

Betty Williams has been playing tennis all summer. She should be right in form for our tennis tournament. Good luck, Betty.

Bruised shins are now in order, with hockey starting for the upperclassmen. Of course, that brings back memories of Edna Disler's bad tumble last year. But this year, she informed us, she is just "tarin" to go.

Freshies, have you signed up for speedball? It is a very good plan to read the charts and books on this game in the gym office.

With Marge Hower as our G. A. A. president, we have a rip-roaring year coming up. Marge is one of our best all around athletes, and is a very popular senior.

Barbara Raymond really had a birthday last Friday. Of course, she received the customary warming, and a group of G. A. A. members sang the traditional song to her in the gym.

Freshies, the G. A. A. scrapbook is in the gym office on the table. You can go in at any time and read up on the activities of the organization.

The student leaders are (we hope) checking up on their speedball and tennis rules. Your duties are important, and you can bear the responsibilities easily if you get in and work along with everyone else.

Red Meets Lima At Home Tonight

North Side Is Expected To Beat Ohio Team After Good Showing Made Against Corbin, Ky.

North Side's gridders, before an overflow crowd of 4,000 fans that crowded into the Redskin bleachers, Friday night, proved beyond a doubt in spite of their line of yearlings, the pre-season predictions that they would be a major contender for the city crown, as they went to defeat at the hand of the highly-sung Corbin Redhounds by a score of 13 to 6.

North Side opened the scoring in the first period when they moved from their own twenty-five yard line to score on a pass over the goal line from their opponents' five yard marker. Cronkrite featured in this advance.

The fans were treated to some very clever ball carrying on the part of Ellison, stellar quarterback of the visitors, whose sparkling returns of punts paved the way for the Corbin scoring opportunities. The majority of Corbin's plays were aimed at North Side's weak forward wall.

Corbin hit pay dirt early in the second quarter after Poorman's fumble gave them a scoring opportunity. Ellison went over standing up from the two yard line. Forward passes aided the visitors in their drive to the four yard stripe where the third quarter ended. On the fourth down Hodge went through left tackle for the score. Brazil made good his attempted conversion.

This coming Friday night the North Side Redskins will tangle with South of Lima under the floodlights of the North Side Athletic Field. Due to the showing the Redskins made against the tough Corbin Redhounds last Friday, a large crowd is expected.

Bicycle Permits Necessary

Approximately one hundred boys and six girls have taken out bicycle permits. This is not nearly as many as was expected. Nearly two hundred rode their bicycles last year. Nevertheless, the stalls are still crowded, for there is only about one-third the amount of room there should be. For this reason persons who ride bicycles are asked to take all precautions and to watch out for the other fellow.

Boys who still contemplate getting permits are requested to get them as soon as possible.

Fifteen Pupils Perfect

In a recent compass test given at the Commerce High School, Springfield, Massachusetts, fifteen pupils had perfect papers.

South Side Stars Use Summer For Various Work, Activities

Variety seems to be the only word which would correctly summarize the activities of the athletes of South Side during the past summer vacation. In revealing their activities during the summer almost all of the fellows indicated that they had continued to remain active in athletics of some sort.

Jim Ellenwood got himself in excellent condition for football this fall by putting in long hard hours each day packing trucks into box cars at the International Harvester. Jim put in plenty of weight and muscle. He brought his vacation to a conclusion by attending the football camp at Lake Piquanoe.

Joe Close, one of the outstanding prospects for the center position of this season's net squad, spent his summer working in the office of a steel mill. He also found time to visit the nearby lake region with Lake Papaweechie as his favorite.

Bud Lee, Gordon Parmalee, and Fred Ostermeyer spent their vacations as members of the staff at Camp Crosley. Here the fellows got in the peak of condition for the gridiron season and received many valuable instructions from the pros who were attending the camp.

Fredrick Meyers, diminutive quarterback prospect, spent his summer at the Turners Country Club. Fred Nye, one of the outstanding candidates for a line position, found his love for the lakes too great to overcome and so he spent his entire vacation in fishing and swimming at Indiana's lake region.

Carl Hall, Archer net sharpshooter, played ball on the American Legion nine of this city and spent some of his time in the beautiful city of Muncie. John Hines likewise found his love of basketball too great to overcome and he spent his time around the Harrison Hill playground snagging flies and hitting the apple. Norris seems to be the only one to find his happiness in the great outdoors. He was in our rural district spending his entire vacation put where the tall corn grows.

Pressmen Kept Busy Throughout Summer

While most of South Side's students and teachers were on vacations resting for the coming year, three men worked continually in the building. No matter how hot the weather, they labored nearly every day excepting, of course, Saturday and Sunday. These three hard-working men are Fred Schwartz, Charlie Nelson, and Verne Ireland, the School Press crew. Examples of their work are: Booklets and perforated papers for the library, season tickets, tickets for school dances, absence slips, graphs for classrooms, yearbook and school paper receipts, library cards, grade cards, tickets for school plays, courses of study and Central's and North Side's school papers as well as The Times. All printed material used in the public schools is printed in the press room here.

Archers To Open Gridiron Season at Toledo Saturday

Green Seeks Revenge On Polar Bears

Return Engagement Gives Welbornites Chance To Revenge 27-0 Beating.

Strength Shows In Local Eleven

Lundy More Hopeful As Practice Begins To Whip Squad Into Fair Form.

South Side's grid squad will open their 1935 season Saturday when they travel to Toledo to meet Woodward of that city. The Archers have been working hard in the past weeks and are hoping to give their opponents a stiff battle.

The team will have an added incentive to win this game, inasmuch as they are out to avenge the 27 to 0 shellacking the Polar Bears administered last year. In last year's engagement, the Toledo outfit did all their scoring against the Archer reserves, as Coach Welborn was saving his regulars for the next week's central game. The present Archer varsity is composed almost entirely of those reserves who were beaten last time.

Thus the team will have an opportunity to show what a year of coaching and practice has done for them. Coach Welborn appeared more optimistic this week than he did a short time ago. He broke down far enough to admit that he might have a team by the time the city series games are played. He also expressed the belief that his squad can give the Polar Bears a battle Saturday.

Little is known about the strength of the Toledo team; however, it is believed that they have not been too hard hit by graduation. The man who did that fine job of kicking and passing for the Buckeyes in the Archer game last year will be back and ready to stop the Green again.

Archers Are Improving

South Side's squad has been coming along slowly but surely during recent practice sessions. The loss of Phelps, who will be out of action for some time with an infected heel, has necessitated a reorganization of the backfield. Bud Lee is slated to change from halfback to fullback, while Phelps' position at fullback. Gordon Parmelee and Bud Feichter will handle the left half duties. Ed Kruse and Benz will play at the other halfback post. Either Fred Meyers or Ken Woodhull will call the signals.

The Archers will present a fairly strong and heavy line to the Buckeyes. Jim Ellenwood, All-City tackle, has been shifted to right end. Norris and Don Faux will see action at the other wing. Fred Nye will be back to take his place at right tackle. Herman Makey has been looking good in practice at left tackle. The guards appear the weakest spots in the line. Bennett and Ken Miller will see action at the left guard, while Jim Derr and Bill Willson take care of the other side. The center post will be one of the strongest for the Green. Fred Ostermeyer, a veteran with a wealth of experience, is back. Bob Miller, who has come along fast, will be ready to step into his shoes at any time.

Bud Lee will do the place-kicking and punting this year. Allen Faux will attempt to take Ed Ginn's place as dropkicker. Lee and Parmelee are expected to share the passing burden.

Tigers of Central Will Battle Riley

Blue Team Will Play Friday Night at League Park Field; Showed Power at Bluffton.

Central's Tigers are slated to meet Riley of South Bend in the second game of their 1935 grid season Friday night at League Park.

Riley is expected to provide plenty of opposition for the Blue. However, Central continues to display the form they showed against Bluffton last week, they have an excellent chance of winning.

Central gave an impressive showing in swamping Bluffton under an avalanche of six touchdowns. Even then, the down-town outfit played a good part of the time with reserve men in the lineup. The final score was 36 to 0.

The Tigers scored twice each in the first, second, and fourth periods. Five of these six touchdowns were made by runs around the right end. The other was scored on a pass play. None of the extra-point attempts was successful. Larimer pushed over two touchdowns, while Charleton, Grimmer, Miller, and L. Sitko scored once each.

Rules of Popular Game Explained

Speedball Includes Combination Soccer, Basketball, Football; Is Favorite Freshman Sport.

The fundamentals of speedball include a combination of football, basketball, and soccer. It is played out-of-doors on a field the size of a hockey or soccer field. Regular football posts are used in scoring.

The players are similar to those in a hockey or soccer lineup. There are eleven in all; five forwards, three halfbacks, two fullbacks, and one goal-keeper. The ball used is somewhat smaller than a basketball and a little larger than a soccer ball. The game is played by kicking and throwing the ball.

Scoring is in the form of touchdowns, field goals, and drop kicks. The first is made by throwing the ball into the end zone, an area marked by a line six feet from the goal line. A field goal is made by kicking the ball from the playing area between the goal posts. A drop kick is made by dropping the ball onto the toe for a kick over the crossbars between the posts. Scoring is done by the forwards or halfbacks, who form the offense of the team. The defensive has fullbacks and a goal keeper, who always remains near her own goal, while the attackers advance toward the opponents' goal.

Violations Are Listed
The fouls and violations consist of the following: 1. a rough play, 2. any personal contact, 3. overguarding as in basketball, 4. technical, 5. unsportsmanlike conduct, 6. delaying the game, etc.; violations, 1. carrying the ball, 2. touching a ground ball. Penalties are: 1. penalty kick (chance to kick free goal), 2. free kick. Playing privileges include: 1. catching and throwing a fly ball, 2. the kick up (picking up ball with feet in order to throw it), 3. the overhead juggle, 4. jump ball, etc.

The game is particularly desirable because: 1. it requires very little equipment, 2. it is good for fall weather, 3. it is adaptable to any size playing field, 4. it can be used for a large number of people, 5. there are few rules to learn, 6. it combines knowledge of basketball and football, both of which are familiar to most people, 7. it has an advantage over soccer in that one may use the arms in throwing the ball.

The game was originated at the University of Michigan in 1918 and has spread in popularity since that time in colleges, high schools and elementary schools all over the country. It is popular among boys and girls all over the United States.

Monday Will Start Girls Hockey Play

Practice Sessions Will Be Held Among Teams Chosen Last Wednesday; Many Compete.

Plans for the inauguration of the hockey season for the G. A. A. and gym-class members are now being completed by the girls' gym instructors. According to the present plans, the various teams will have their initial practice sessions on Monday. The teams for the coming season were chosen last Wednesday.

Field hockey is rapidly becoming a very popular sport among high school and college students. This popularity may be attributed to several conditions. The game calls for a large number of players, thus giving an opportunity to obtain the exercise they need. The equipment is also very inexpensive.

As the game is played at South Side, there are eleven players on each team, consisting of fullbacks, halfbacks, forwards, and a goal keeper. The game is played on a field fifty feet wide and one hundred feet long. The field is divided into quarters with a five-yard alley extending along each side of the field.

The striking circle has a radius of fifteen feet from the goal post. In scoring a goal, the ball must be shot from the striking circle. Scoring requires speed and coordination by all members of the offensive squad and alertness on the part of the defensive aggregation.

Last season's championship honors went to the Senior 2 team which defeated a team of fellow-classmates by a score of 11 to 1.

Legion Team Has Outstanding Year

Local Ball Players Beat Ossian, Ligonier To Become District Champs; Students Take Part.

Each year the members of the local posts of the American Legion attempt to further the cause of our nation's pastime by sponsoring a baseball nine composed of youths between the ages of nine and seventeen. For the past several seasons the Fort Wayne team has been one of the outstanding junior nine in this region. The team is generally composed almost entirely of students of South Side High School.

During the past season the Legion nine won the district championship by white-washing Ossian 10 to 0 and handing Ligonier a 16 to 8 setback. However, they were not so successful in the regional tourney held at Terre Haute, where an aggregation from that city put them out of the running with a 6 to 1 defeat. The Legion team had a season record of twelve victories in fifteen starts. Much improvement is expected to be shown in the team next season when almost all the players from this year's squad will return.

Carl Hall Outstanding
This season all but three of the squad were students at South Side. Carl Hall, a member of the Archer basketball squad, was one of the outstanding batsmen. His teammate, Don Lauer also showed his wares with the hickory. Ray Speaker earned himself the title of being the most consistent man at the plate. Bob Feichter served well in his capacity as relief pitcher to James Saxton of Central Catholic, who took over the pitching burden.

Dick Woehr and Robert Woehr, a brother combination, showed promises of following in the footsteps of their father, Andy Woehr. Other fellows from South Side who saw action throughout the season are Charles Hall, Stan Meyer, Don Wiley, Bob Bolyard, M. Cornell of Concordia, and Louis Marcotte of Central Catholic.

Much of the team's success was due to the excellent management of the nine by Henry Neukam. Most of the knowledge of the game which the players possess was taught them by Manager Neukam.

Medical Examinations Begins
Dr. W. W. Duemling has started the annual physical examinations this year. They began last Monday, September 9. Athletic students were examined first and all South Side students are being examined in alphabetical order. All physical defects are being carefully checked. Examinations will be given every morning, beginning the first period, until all students are examined. Teeth, ears, heart, and feet are examined.

Burl Friddle, New Net Coach, Adapts Himself To School

"I first wish to express my gratitude to Mr. McClure for the excellent spirit of co-operation which he has shown in order to aid me in producing a good quintet for the coming season," stated Mr. Burl Friddle when interviewed this week. Mr. Friddle has just taken over his duties as gym instructor and basketball coach at South Side.

Burl, as he is known to his friends, is an enthusiastic talker, eager to receive all the information that he can obtain. He readily answers all questions to the best of his ability. He has already gained a great host of friends in South Side, and his jovial spirit promises to cause him to become one of the best-liked coaches in this vicinity.

In reviewing his past coaching experience, Mr. Friddle emphasized the fact that he likes to work teams up gradually and is not set on any special system of play, but rather is in favor of adapting the system of play to the material he has to work with. He, however, indicated that he favored the use of a man-to-man defense. At Washington, where he had coached for the past ten years, he took his squads to the Butler Fieldhouse five times and captured the coveted title in 1930. On two other occasions he met with tough breaks that deprived him of having two other state champions.

Burl is well acquainted with many of the coaches in and near Fort Wayne. He is a very good friend of Paul White, New Haven basketball coach. He also is acquainted with Coach Nulf from North Side. Coach Mendenhall is also a very good friend of his. Murray and Burl will resume a rivalry which started over a decade ago. At that time Murray was a member of the DePauw five, which opposed the quintet of Franklin College, of which Burl was a member. Mr. Friddle made numerous acquaintances with athletic coaches in this part of the state while he was a participant in the North Central Basketball Clinic, held each year to instruct coaches on new rules and to give them a knowledge of new equipment.

Freshmen Hear Principal, Dean At Meeting

Miss Patterson, Mr. Briner, Bryce Minier Speak To New Students of School.

Mr. Snider and Miss Pittenger were the principal speakers at the freshman meeting held Wednesday, September 4, in the Study Hall.

Mr. Snider emphasized the fact that the time has come when the members of the incoming class must forget their childish pranks. He said that for the first few days the faculty will be lenient with the freshmen. Mr. Snider also gave several important rules that must be followed. Among the rules brought out by Mr. Snider were: that personal illness and death in the family were the only legal excuses for absences; that students are not to leave the building at any time except during lunch hour; also that books are to be kept in proper lockers; and finally, that students are not to be in halls during classes without a pink slip.

At the conclusion of Mr. Snider's talk Miss Pittenger was introduced to the freshman class. She explained that if anything is lost or found it is to be reported to the office.

Bryce Minier, general manager of the Times, urged the students to subscribe for the Times.

Miss Patterson and Mr. Briner explained the various phases of the physical education work.

Marionette Club Meets Thursday

Puppeteers Hold First Meeting September 14; Fall Election Of Officers To Take Place.

Marionette Club's first regular meeting of the semester will be held next Thursday evening, September 19, at 8:20. Members and prospective members are asked to come to room 140 for the first part of the meeting; from there the party will go to the club's workroom and begin plans for the semester's work.

Anyone in South Side who is interested in learning about marionettes and puppets is invited to the meeting, especially incoming freshmen. Boys in particular are in demand because of their manual training and artistic talents.

The main business of the first meeting will be to elect new officers for the semester. Outgoing officers are: president, John Bex; vice-president, George McIntire; secretary, Mary Anne Fark; and treasurer, Eliza Bess Lucas.

Marionette Club's main activity is the staging of a Christmas play which, it is hoped, will come to be looked upon as an annual affair. Last year the club produced Charles Dickens' immortal piece of work, "The Christmas Carol."

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

Betty Gross, a pupil of Miss Miller's general history 2 class, gave a very interesting talk last Monday on the geography of England.

In Mr. Sterner's freshman English class, Teddy Confer was the first pupil to give a book report.

Miss Ley boasts a large group of pupils this year, since 191 are in her classes.

Chicago is represented in Miss Perkins' French 3 class by Mary Robbins.

Miss Patterson reports (above all things) that her freshmen were so unusually bright that she had no complaints to make.

Mr. Gould told us that he found some of his students trying to draw air bubbles under a microscope. But he refused to tell their names.

Miss Smith's dancing classes did not have their gym clothes ready; so they danced in street clothes and in their stocking feet.

Three of Mrs. Welty's freshmen got lost the first day and came back to school during the day. They then asked her to direct them to their next class. This also happened to Miss Edith Crowe.

In a roundabout way, we found out a very unusual incident in the life of our own Mr. Tudor. It seems that he fell asleep one day in history. A boy came up to the desk and asked him a question. He was so shocked that he fell out of his chair.

It seems the beginners have taken up French by the size of Miss Perkins' classes. Her first and second period classes have 22 and 27 pupils, respectively.

Howard Miller, 9B, was the first pupil of all of Miss Kiefer's English classes to give a book report this semester.

Dick Helm, a pupil of Miss Kiefer's English 8 class, gave a very well-planned synopsis of "Beowulf" in connection with the study of Anglo-Saxon period of literature.

In Miss Benner's classes speeches of introduction have been given in which all members have been introduced. Following the speeches, the members gave a speech about themselves including recent incidents, personal illusions, and their aims and ambitions for the future. The best speeches were given by Leona Menze, Helen Flaig, Gwen Horn, Selma Liff, and Ada Baumgardner.

So the Senior Sophisticates Dutifully Go To Classes

So now we're seniors! Only four years ago it was when we came to South Side as uncivilized as any member of the class of 1939. In our three previous years here we have acquired all the polish and sophistication (ahem) becoming the dignity of our position.

When we were freshmen, we wished we were sophs so we could throw shoes away, too; when we were sophs we yearned to be juniors so we could worry about prom dates and formals; when we were juniors we looked forward to being seniors and graduation; (we still do) and now that we're grown up and are in this enviable position—well, seniors, how about it? What are our feelings, if any?

There's only one thing wrong with being a big lordly senior and that's the fact that no matter how lordly and sophisticated we happen to be, they still make us study. Not that we dislike to study or any such thing—oh, goodness, no!

For some seniors there is Vergil or trig or civics or chemistry to worry about, but for others the program runs about like this: 8:05 and the bell rings, admonishing us to please wake up and snap to attention. Off to home room, where we subscribe to the South Side Times and elect chairmen and secretaries. 8:15 and to shorthand, learning to write curlycues and do-dads at the rate of one hundred a minute—they're supposed to be words, at any rate. 9:15, when we jump from the frying pan into the fire, or in senior English, typing. There we struggle with transcriptions and ten-minute tests, and plunking the old digests into the right cubby-holes for another hour. 10:15 and to room S, where we valiantly study about weeds and their values and otherwise, which begin in earnest at 11:15. You guessed it, botany; and oh, what a study! 12:15 at last! The morning's gone pretty fast, hasn't it? Maybe it's because it's Thursday and the week is almost over. Now we can go to the "caf" and devour some luscious Wimpys. A few minutes later find us carrying on to the gym where we can merrily watch our youngsters, the freshmen, being tormented by the sophs.

When the bell rings again at 1:15, we drag our weary selves to English to imbibe some of Burke's ideas on conciliation with America or the advantages of unity, coherence, and emphasis in topic sentences. 2:15! Won't be long now, so we trip to business English to take our beloved weekly spelling test and hope to get somewhere between ninety and fifty out of one hundred words correct. At last, 3:15! The day's over—but not for some. There are those ambitious persons who appreciate the value of club contacts, and, if it is the correct night, go to meetings and learn of literature, or sports, or travel, or pulling little dolls around on strings, or writing stuff like this to break everyone's heart, and ruin everyone's eyes, and spoil everyone's disposition so they can't even concentrate on their Latin or civics or, etc., etc. (If you're asking us, we think we deserve at least a "thank you" for the last-mentioned service to humanity, or are you all human?)

Shakespearean Part Was Ably Portrayed By Margaret Gross

A talented member of the freshman class spent part of her summer vacation in preparing for the feminine lead in Miss Elizabeth Baldwin's recent open-air production, "Twelfth Night," by Shakespeare.

She is Margaret Gross, and the part which she successfully portrayed was that of Viola.

The play was given at Miss Baldwin's home on the Huntington road on August 13, 14, and 16.

Other South Siders who took part in the play are: George Simminger, Kenneth Scott, Franklin Tooker, Hugh Scott, and John Brown. Elizabeth and Miriam Lickert, and Paul Randall furnished the music.

Margaret is one of our 9A freshmen, having graduated from Harrison Hill last January where she played the part of Portia in the courtroom scene from the "Merchant of Venice," which was given at the graduation exercises.

Other performances which she has been in are: "Midsummer Night's Dream," in which she was Titania and which was also given by Miss Baldwin; and the Old Fort Players' production of "Bird's Christmas Carol," in which she was Carol.

Margaret is a member of Meterites.

Miss Paxton Is Jr. Math Speaker

New Major Officers Are Introduced and Election of Other Officers Also Takes Place.

The Junior Math Club held its first business meeting of the term Tuesday in the Voohees Room. The meeting was brought to order by Beulah Horst-meyer, former president of the club, who then introduced their new president, Nora Mae Bradbury. Then Marian Roehrs, former secretary of the club, introduced the new secretary, Helen Cox. The new officers having taken their places, the meeting proceeded.

Election of other officers was held. The result of this election was as follows: Vice-president, Allen Garrison; treasurer, Alvina Coop; sergeant-at-arms, Clarence Helmsing; and representative for the Inter-Club Congress, Bernadette Shearer.

Since the program was not completely planned, Miss Paxton, faculty adviser, gave a talk on her trip to Mexico. She brought several articles to demonstrate her talk. A few of them were an Aztec calendar, a set of Mexican dishes, several small statues, some snapshots of Mexico, and a plaque.

Metal Club Organized
In the University High School, Oakland, California, the girls of the Metal Club organized for the purpose of teaching girls to make rings, bracelets, and other novelties.

Finds 314 Books Of Library Gone

Miss Shoup Asks Pupils To Return Any Volumes They May Have; New Books Are Added.

A complete inventory of all books in the library has just been taken by Miss Shoup. This inventory was the first of its kind in three years. In all, 314 books were found missing. All of these books have disappeared during the last three years.

Although a few of these books were properly recorded when taken out, no record has been kept of 263 books which were taken out of the library without being checked out. Most of the missing books are public speaking books, but quite a few are English 6 books.

A special plea is made to students who have taken out such books to return them, since it handicaps students of public speaking when they cannot find books dealing with modern questions, such as the following: "Single Six-Year Term for President," "Recognition of Soviet Russia," "Kansas Court of Industrial Relation," "Selected Articles on Compulsory Insurance," "Capital and Labor," "Five-Day Week," "Jury System," "Darrow Debate on Capital Punishment," and "Selected Articles on Capital Punishment."

Miss Shoup has expressed the hope that more care will be taken in checking out the new books than has been shown in the past.

Miss Emma Shoup, librarian, has announced that a number of new library books have been received. Most of these are English and book list books, although a few are commercial, science, and public speaking books.

Following is a list of the new publications:

"The Business Man's English"—Bartholomew and Hurlbut.
"Modern Short Stories"—F. H. Law.

"Representative One-Act Plays by American Authors"—M. G. Mayorga.
"One-Act Plays"—Clark and Cook.
"Introduction to Business"—Reed and Morgan.

"Short Plays of Various Types".
"Immigration"—H. E. Fairchild.
"The Fort Wayne Code of 1931".
"Citizens Organizations and the Civic Training of Youth"—B. L. Pierce.

"Book of Stories"—E. H. Obeare.
"Modern Short Stories"—Margaret Ashmun.
"Strange Animals I Have Known"—Dr. R. L. Ditmars.
"Creative Writing of Verse"—H. A. Miller, Jr.

"Notable Short Stories of Today"—E. Van B. Knickerbocker.
"Verse of Our Day"—Gordon and King.

"Plays Old and New"—S. B. Finney.
"The Challenge to Liberty"—Herbert Hoover.
"Anthology of World Poetry"—M. Van Doren.

"Secret Service Operative No. 13"—Chambers.
"One Act Plays by Modern Authors"—H. L. Cohen.
"I Went to Pitt College"—Gilfillan.
"The Open Door at Home"—C. A. Beard.

"General Business Science"—Jones and Bertschi.

Smeltzleys Dress As Bears To Get Neptune's Degrees

Miss Eleanor Smeltzley and her sister, Mary Catherine, who have just returned from a deluxe cruise of two months to the Northern Wonderland and Russia, have added two shining new "diplomas" to their various other college diplomas and certificates.

Not many people who have graduated from college have been compelled to dress as polar bears to receive their diplomas, but Miss Smeltzley and her sister were compelled to dress as polar bears for the ceremony of crossing the Arctic Circle, over which King Neptune, with his long beard made from ship's rope, and his shining trident, presided. After the ceremony, they were presented with the "diplomas" which show that they have been initiated into the Northland Wonders. Several years ago these same teachers received diplomas when they crossed the Equator on one of their many cruises to farthestmost parts of the world.

From New York they sailed to Iceland, where they found the oldest functionary parliament in the world. Then they went on to Hamarfest, Norway, the farthest north of any town on earth; and then on to North Cape, where they viewed the Midnight Sun. They said that it was the most beautiful sight that they had ever seen.

Ruth Bryan Owen, our American Ambassador, came down to the boat and greeted Miss Smeltzley and her sister at Copenhagen, Denmark. As she had met them on previous visits to Fort Wayne, she personally invited them to tea, but their schedule forbade their staying so long. After their stop at Copenhagen, they went on to Helsinki, the capital of Finland; and then on to Russia, where they stayed five days. Their guide in Leningrad, Russia, was a brilliant, well-educated Jewess, whom they discovered to be Stalin's private interpreter and instructor of all other guides in Moscow. They then visited Hamburg, which was the home of their ship; and then they went to Berlin, the capital of Germany, the most beautiful capital in all Europe.

While on shipboard, the Smeltzleys participated in many boat functions, one night taking part in the "State Night" program which was held in the formal dining room. Besides Miss Smeltzley and her sister, there were fourteen Hoosiers present to perform a stunt. The social director had special programs planned daily. Band concerts, bridge games, and swimming and dancing parties were also held. While Miss Eleanor Smeltzley was in Russia she obtained a collection of flags, stamps, and coins. Her collection of stamps dates back to the beginning of the organization of the government until the present day. She also brought a copy of the Moscow paper to give to Miss Harvey.

Seven To Talk At Convention October 17, 18

Many Well-Known Educators To Address Northeastern Instructors Here.

Chairmen of the respective sections for the Northeastern Indiana Teachers Association convention, which will be held at the Shrine Auditorium on October 17 and 18, have announced that seven nationally-known educators will be the featured speakers.

The convention has been organized so that there will be three general sessions and about 30 sectional meetings in downtown auditoriums. Approximately three thousand teachers will be in attendance.

The address in the oral English and speech section will be given by Dr. Roscoe Gilmore Stott, director of the Stott School of Speech, Cincinnati, Ohio, on Thursday, October 17, at 2:30 o'clock. His topic will be "Speech for Leadership." Mr. Jack Wainwright will direct a stringed trio which will provide the music. Miss Dorothy Benner is chairman of this section and is assisted by Miss Bertha Thornberg, of Columbia City, and Byford B. Cox, of Claypool.

Dr. Martens To Speak
"Experiences in Living for Retarded Children" will be the topic of the address of Dr. Elise H. Martens, senior specialist in the education of exceptional children, Bureau of Education, U. S. Dept. of Interior, Washington, for the special education section on Friday, October 18, at 10:15 a. m. This meeting, of which Miss Flora Wilber, director of the bureau of research and measurement in the Fort Wayne schools, is chairman, will be held at the Jefferson School. An activity demonstration will be presented by the pupils of the Jefferson Vocational School. Miss Wilber is assisted in arrangements by John R. Parrish of Decatur, Dale R. Parrish of Decatur, and Florine Michaud of this city.

Dr. Ralph V. D. Magoffin, of New York University, will speak before the Latin section on "Orchaeological and Pictorial Sidelights on High School Latin." This meeting will be held October 17, at 2:30 p. m. at the Little Art Theatre. Under the direction of will be given by pupils of South Side Miss Gertrude Oppelt, a Latin Day High School. Mrs. Bernice Hillgas of Huntington, and Miss Bessie Bower of Kendallville are in charge of the session.

Speech By Prof. Owens
The science-mathematics section of the convention will hear Prof. Thurston Owens, professor of electrical engineering, Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, Ohio. This meeting will be held on October 18 at 10:15 o'clock.

Prof. Ralph C. Corley, of the biochemistry department, Purdue University, will speak at the same session on "Living Tissue, the Master Chemist." A demonstration on "The Phenomena of Fluorescence" will be given by Prof. S. D. Summers of the Tri-State College. Arrangements are being made by A. V. Flint of South Side, and R. T. Schooley of Auburn, Indiana, Case School of Applied Science.

Archer Harpists To Play
The home economics sectional meeting will have as its speaker Miss Frances L. Swain, director of household arts in the Chicago public schools. She will speak on Friday, October 18, at 10:15 a. m. at the Anthony Hotel ballroom. Mrs. Archer harpists will provide the music. Following this a luncheon will be served at the Chatterbox. Clella Gottschalk is in charge of this section and is assisted by Hester C. Little of Columbia City, and Retta Kimmell of Albion.

At the industrial arts section on Thursday, October 17, at 1:15 p. m. in the assembly room of the Court House, Prof. Justus Rising, head of the engineering drawing department of Purdue University, will talk on "Recent Developments in Visual Education." Preceding the lecture, directions will be given about a tour of the plant of the Joslyn Manufacturing and Supply Company, which is scheduled for October 18, at 10:15 a. m. Allen G. Cleaver of Central High School, is chairman of the section, assisted by Freeman Kiefer of Huntington, and W. G. Woodcox of Garrett.

Miss Mary Pocock Notices Many Changes in South Side

"Yes, South Side has changed a great deal since I was a student here," stated Miss Mary Pocock, new English instructor this semester, as she sat in the library recalling her high school days here.

"The library was upstairs where the Greeley Room is now, and the Greeley Room was down stairs, occupying the same spot that the library now uses. The present Voorhees Room was simply room 65, for 'art classes.' Miss Pocock went on. 'When I started here as a freshman, the building was just being completed and the carpenters were still at their work. Of course, the building has aged somewhat since then.'

The new teacher went on to relate that a large number of the present instructors were employed at South Side while she was a student here. Mr. R. C. Harris was the principal, but Miss Pittenger was dean at the time. Crowded halls and classes were a thing unknown, as only about one-half of the present total of 1,109 attended school in this building.

Lockers Are Different

The administration offices on the second floor were quite different from the present lay-out, according to Miss Pocock. Mr. Null had no office, for the room now occupied by the English department head now was, until about 1927, the dispensary. Other more recent innovations since Miss Pocock's student days are locker combinations

"Only One Standard School Pin And Ring," States Mr. Snider

"We have tried to keep only one ring or pin at South Side, because if we change our plan and have class rings or pins every year the students will naturally feel that they have to buy them, and do not believe that the greater part of them can afford this unnecessary expense," stated Mr. R. Nelson Snider, when interviewed concerning the official standing of class rings or pins.

"Officially, there is no such thing as a class ring or pin at South Side, and as far as I am concerned there will remain only the standard ring. I consider class rings and pins unnecessary expenditures," further stated Mr. Snider.

The present ring and pin were made official in 1930 when various designs were submitted, and a committee selected it as the pattern for our school ring and pin.

Reduction Is Offered

When Robert Koerber Jr., manager of Koerber's Jewelry Store, which sells the South Side rings and pins, was interviewed, he stressed the fact that rings and pins can be purchased ten percent cheaper when bought in a quantity of six or more, than when ordered separately. When specified, Mr. Koerber will hold the orders until six come in so that this reduction may be obtained.

The rings and pins can be ordered at the office through Mr. Snider. A down payment of $1.00 on the pins and $2.00 on the rings must be made when ordered and the balance is collected when the ring is delivered. Because the order must be placed at the factory and the rings or pins made, they will not be delivered until three or four weeks after ordered. Initials will be engraved on the articles without extra charge, if desired.

Archer Emblem on Ring

The Archer emblem and the front entrance of the school are on each side of the ring, and the words South Side High School and two S's are on the face of the ring.

The quantity price, that is when bought with six or more articles, for the ten-karat gold ring is $7.35, and

Class Election Set For Next Tuesday

Everyone Is To Vote for Choice
Of Class Officers; Later, Final Election Planned To Be Held.

The preliminary elections for class officers will be held next Tuesday in the home rooms. Next Tuesday everyone will vote for his selection of his classmates for president, vice-president, secretary, and three for the social council.

These ballots will be tabulated in the office and the nominations announced. Then, in several weeks, the finals will be held. There will be no election for the freshmen due to the fact that they are new and have not become well enough acquainted with each other. Also they have no class functions for which it would be necessary to have officers.

Many Spring Duties

The duties of the officers come mostly in the spring, when the social gatherings are held. To the seniors come the task of managing the senior dance, its decorations, and selling of bids. The juniors must arrange for the Junior Prom and banquet. At the banquet the class president makes a speech, after which the other officers follow him and talk to the juniors. A class party constitutes the main function of the sophomore party. They usually have something very novel, and the officers must originate the idea.

Present Officers Listed

The present class officers are, seniors: President, Fred Nye; vice-president, Dorothy Crabb; secretary, Marjorie Cartwright; and social council, Harriett Yapp, Gwendolyn Horn, and Robert Adams. The junior officers are: President, Jerry Zehr; vice-president, Don Sparkman; secretary, Grace Nelson; and social council, Jean Creighton, Virginia Fathauer, and Miles Porter. There are no sophomore officers, because, when these officers were elected, the sophomore class was known as "Freshies."

Attended Oberlin College

Miss Pocock is the first graduate of South Side to receive an appointment as instructor here. She was graduated in 1926, and received her A.B. degree from Oberlin College, majoring in Latin and German. That she is an English teacher, she says, "just happened." She was employed by the Washington School to teach English and physical education. She held this position for five years, and during that time became so interested in teaching English that she decided to work for her Master's degree. She still has several summers to work for this degree at Chicago University.

Teacher Honored

Miss Pauline Van Gorder

Included in the list of the thirteen recent initiates into the Pi Lambda Theta, women's national educational fraternity, was Miss Pauline Van Gorder, social science teacher at South Side. She was pledged soon after she returned this summer to Indiana University where she received her Master's Degree. This is considered quite an honor because only a small number of senior class members are initiated.

Mr. Snider added that Baber's Jewelry Store also handle the official school rings and pins.

Turtle Derby Set For September 22

Money Derived Will Be Used For the Sponsoring of Civic Activities for Ensuing Year.

Approximately two hundred entries have been accepted for the Turtle Derby which will be sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce on September 22, at League Park.

The money derived will be spent for the sponsoring of civic activities for the ensuing year.

Prizes of $5, $3, and $2 will be given the first, second, and third winners of the individual contests. Final prizes of $50, $25, $15, and $10 will be given for the winners of the final races.

Mayor Harry Baals will start the race and act as judge. Many other city officials and city dignitaries will also serve as judges.

Complimentary tickets for high school students can be obtained at Kern's Watch Shop, Maumee Oil Company, and Goodrich Tire Company.

Last year the three prizes were won by General Tires, Maumee Paint Company, and Colonial Oil Company respectively.

Four-in-one Cards Filled By Students

Many Important Queries Asked
On Blanks for Home Rooms
And Miss Pittenger's Record.

The four-in-one cards which were passed to each home room member Wednesday morning, contain many important questions.

The card written for Miss Pittenger and the home room are made up of the following points: Name of pupil and locker number; school entered from; address; birth place; age and telephone; parents address; nationalities of parents; number in family.

The remainder of the card consists of questions concerning the course, which are as follows: What trade are you preparing for; what college are you going to attend; are you employed? If so, where?

Parents name, home room, and grade, mark the beginning of the third and fourth cards. On these the questions asked are, phone number; place of birth; program of pupil; list of brothers and sisters in school.

On the back are spaces for the pupil to fill in the name of the clubs to which he belongs and the office which he holds. Also for the number of points he has earned if the club issues such.

Former Pupil Here Sends Miss Harvey Letter and Annual

Three or four years ago, Edward Hornick, a junior, left South Side as a sophomore and moved with his parents to live out of town. They settled at Portsmouth, Ohio, where his father resumed his business. Ed was graduated from Harrison Hill and entered South Side January 26, 1931.

Hornick entered a high school in Portsmouth and became active in many of the high school activities by selecting journalism as a hobby. One of the best positions Hornick held during his senior year was editor of the school's yearbook, "The Trojan."

"This last year, my final one at high school, I sweated most of my time over dummy sheets and the other diverse duties of the yearbook editor. The result is the 'Trojan 1935,'" writes Hornick in a recent letter wrote to Miss Harvey. He also wrote, "The paper, edited by the junior class, is a mite compared to the 'Times'."

Heard Over WGL

Betty Rose Wolf, a June graduate, is being heard over WGL every Monday night. She has appeared on the Dramatic Club series for several weeks and usually takes the role of the leading lady in these performances. She enjoys her work very much and hopes to further her dramatic ability by attending a school of elocution in the near future to prepare for teaching dramatics.

Miss Wolf is also a member of the Old Fort Players.

Totem Drive To Commence September 30

Annual Subscription Campaign Will Be in Charge
Of Twelve Senior Pupils.

Louis Bonsib, editor of the 1936 Totem, recently announced that the campaign for Totem subscriptions will be begun Monday, September 30, and continue through the first two weeks of October. Dorothy Crabb, circulation manager of the Totem, will head the campaign, assisted by eleven assistant circulation managers, who are, Mary Martha Hobrock, Ruth Adler, Maxine Roth, Margaret Dickmeyer, Marjorie Cartwright, Margaret Crankshaw, Miriam McIntyre, Betty Rose Lehman, Ruth Rose, Bob Haruff, and Dick Busch. Because of extensive arrangements and novel ideas to be executed in this campaign, the Totem staff hopes this campaign will be one of the most successful ever launched.

Approximately forty seniors have already had pictures taken for the yearbook. All senior pictures must be taken by the middle of November. Seniors should pay a dollar to either Dorothy Crabb or Louis Bonsib at the Totem office immediately. The pictures are being taken at the Jefferson Studio, which is situated on the second floor of Meyer's Drug Store at Calhoun and Jefferson streets.

Underclassmen pictures will be taken in January. The pictures of various members of the senior class will be displayed in the front hall in the covered showcase to show the new style of photography of the 1936 Totem pictures. An extremely dark background has been chosen to give richness and tone to the photographs.

A senior meeting was held in the gym this week for the purpose of receiving applications for the various positions on the Totem staff. The members of the staff will be announced next week.

Sea Scout Ship Announces Plans

Club Officers for the Year Are Chosen; First Class Scouts
Are Eligible for Membership.

The Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, which sponsors the Sea Scout Ship Typhoon, has announced that the following officers will continue to serve during the next registration year: Skipper Henry Wahl, commander, assisted by the mates, Paul Perry, Ernest Simpson, and Herb Horman, former South Side students, and the crew leaders, William Merchant and Paul Merkert.

The ship is composed of first-class Boy Scouts who have reached the minimum age of fifteen and wish to continue their scouting activities in a marine course.

Vacancies caused by members going to college or failing to re-register must be filled. Any boy having the necessary qualifications, who desires to join the ship is requested to see any of the following members: Ralph Jones, William Korte, or Herbert Nitzsche.

Any boy who wishes to visit a ship meeting is welcome at the headquarters on Wall Street on Wednesday evenings.

The summer program of the ship included a cruise on Lake Michigan on board the yacht Albatross, an eighty-mile canoe trip on St. Joe River, week-end canoe trips at Lake Wawasee with a snipe and sail-rigged canoes, and a duck party for all the members and their parents at the headquarters.

The coming year's outdoor activities will include some sailing canoe trips and weiner bakes in the fall, and ice-boating, skiing, skating, tobogganing, and hikes in the winter. All these will be carried on in an organized fashion under the supervision of the officers.

Farsighted Freshies Inspect Their School Before First Days

Some farsighted members of the incoming greenhorn tribe entered the portals of our dear old Alma Mater a few weeks before school started to become acquainted with its corridors and individualistic inclines. To locate the office, the gym, and the study hall were among the highlights of their tour through the home of the Archers.

The most important object of their visit was to find where the rooms were located so they could nonchalantly walk to their classes the first day, and wouldn't lose their way in this labyrinth, or shyly peek at the numbers above the doors.

Following is a list of those freshmen who were seen around school: Helen Banks, June Enoch, Beverly Ann Griffith, Margery Rapp, Anna Lou Kowalski, Beatrice Craig, Korn Bohne, Frederick Peters, Marion Ehle, Nadine Nueller, Marjorie Wallace, Robert Bolyard, Charles Hall, Janice Cross, Janice Dyer, Bernadette Shearer, Marjorie Stratton, Wilma Carrier, Billy Peters, Betty Jaebker, Warren Schuler, and Norma Hitzeman.

Mr. Gould's Blossoms Are First in Contest

Mr. Gould, teacher of botany here at South Side, has demonstrated his competency as a horticulturist. In a flower show held recently in Fort Wayne, Mr. Gould entered blossoms from each of two of his prize peony plants. Both won first prize.

The blossoms of one plant were deep red in color, while those of the other were white. They were entered in the unnamed class, and were grown in Mr. Gould's garden at his home.

He also helped a lady build a rock garden which was awarded a first prize.

Seniors, Sophomores Latin Students Have Reading Preferences

When asked which books were asked for the most in the library, Miss Emma Shoup immediately said that they were the freshman reading books. After that, she said that the home reading books were the most-used books in the library.

She said that the seniors seem to prefer "The Bent Twig," "So Big," and "Silas Marner" to others. The sophomores like "Hound of the Baskervilles," "Jack Ballister's Fortune," and "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." The freshmen seem to have no preference, which was shown by the fact that very few books were on the freshmen shelves. This shows also that freshmen books are very much in demand. She said, though, that fiction did have a slight edge on non-fiction.

The Latin students prefer such books as "On Land and Sea With Caesar," "The Perilous Seat," "The Standard Bearer," "With Caesar's Legions," and "The Unwilling Vestal." The most called-for magazines are "The Popular Mechanics," "American Boy," "National Geographic," and "Nature."

Archer Stickers Sold by Lettermen

Athletic Group Are in Charge Of Sale of South Side Emblems in Home Rooms, Hall.

Although the Lettermen's Club has had no meetings because of football practice, they are going ahead with club activities. During the past week, they have been selling South Side Archer windshield stickers through the home rooms and in the hall the fifth period. These are just like the standard sticker except that the green ink is somewhat darker.

A special meeting of the club will be held on October 4 at which time outside speakers will feature the meeting. All boys interested in athletics will be invited.

Later in the season they will have their annual dance and pep session. Fred Nye is president of this group, Bud Lee is vice-president, and Joe Close is secretary-treasurer. Mr. Verne Flint is the faculty adviser.

Washington Trip Is Travel Subject

Virginia Griener and Mary Kay
Smith Tell About Red Cross
Convention at Capital City.

The first meeting of Travel Club was held in the Greeley Room Wednesday, September 18. The club discussed joining G. A. A. in staging a vaudeville. They also decided whether each member should receive a club pin or whether it be given to just the outstanding members.

As the club is affiliated with the Junior Red Cross, the topic was discussed at the first meeting. Virginia Griener and Mary Kay Smith gave informal talks on their trip to Washington last spring. The club followed the two delegates through some very strange and peculiar situations.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served, which consisted of stick candy.

The next meeting will be held in the Greeley Room October 2, with Virginia Baumgartner presiding.

First French Club Meeting Is Held

Decide This Semester's Theme;
Constitution of Club Is Read;
Several French Games Played.

Famous French cities and their industries was decided upon as this semester's theme for the French Club at the first regular meeting, which was held on Thursday, September 12, in the Voorhees Room, with Theo Scheurenberg presiding as temporary chairman.

During the short business meeting, the constitution of the club was read and the point system discussed. The chairman appointed Anna Bremer as temporary secretary and Lillian Gable as temporary program chairman until the officers are elected.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, several French games were played.

All students who have had at least one semester's work in French are cordially invited to attend the next meeting of the club.

Our Constitution Celebrates 148th Anniversary of Birth

On September 17, the soul of our government, the Constitution of the United States, was 148 years old. Through all these years it has served as the nucleus of a truly great nation. This famous document was executed on September 17, 1787, in Philadelphia.

Since then it has made our lives secure, guaranteed our rights, established justice for all men, and provided for our common defense as a nation.

Radio Talks Given
In observing Constitution Day, we commemorate the real beginning of our modern government. Observance of this historic event in American history was inaugurated about a score of years ago by the Sons of the American Revolution, and each year has seen the movement grow stronger. Today, most of the patriotic and civic organizations throughout the United States support the national observance. American Constitution Day is often considered to be a day in American Education Week. There have been, and are, many ways of celebrating Constitution Day. On the Constitution Day of November 16, 1926, for Final Free Paper Given.

"The subscription campaign which has been carried on in behalf of the South Side Times will be extended until all previous records have been smashed," stated Miss Rowena Harvey, publication adviser. It was announced previously that the campaign would end today.

A total of about 790 subscriptions had been reached on Tuesday evening. This total falls short about 700 of the goal set for this semester, which was announced as 1500.

Ruth Garrison, Times agent for room 56, still leads in the number of subscriptions for home rooms. Other leaders and their totals are: Helen Anderson, 21; Maxine Mariotte, 19; Bernadette Dygert, 19; Leona Menze, 18; Eleanor Vesey, 18; Ruth Fritz, 18; and Barbara Scheele, 17.

Every student in South Side who has not yet subscribed, is urged to sign up for the paper in order to receive all the issues. This issue is the first of the regular papers, so non-subscribers will not have the privilege of receiving free issues this semester.

Following is a list of home rooms, their percentages, and their agents:

Wrangler Weiner Bake Is Planned

Oratorical Club To Hold Annual Get-Together, September 23; Many Events To Take Place.

Wranglers annual get-acquainted weiner bake is scheduled this year for September 23. All fellow Wranglers and those who intend to become members are invited and are asked to sign up in Room 178 by Friday, September 20. The fee this year has been set at a quarter.

Various committees have been appointed in order to make the weiner bake a success. Tom Jaenicke, chairman of the arrangements, is to be assisted by Delbert Leininger, Richard Strausser, Dave Steger, and Phil Green. The refreshments committee, headed by Bon Silene Craig, includes Vera Ellinger, Betty Ann Schaaf, Dorothy Crabbell, Bernadette Dyert, and Dortha Tobianski. Entertainment will be provided with Cliff Schrom directing, and aided by Rayola Morton, Mildred Foellinger, Bernadette Dyert, Jean Bollman, Maxine Rippe, Maxine Howard, Irene Marshall, and Gwendolyn Horn.

Program Is Announced

A tentative program has been announced for the debaters' club. October 21 will see another annual affair, for the potluck and initiation will be held on that date. On November 4 is the special Armistice Day contest; December 2 the Declaration contest; December 30 the usual Christmas play will be presented to the entire school.

Officers will be elected January 13, and they will take charge of the annual Wranglers dance given after the North Side-South Side game on February 8. A second potluck and initiation will be held on February 24. On March 9 Wranglers will hold an oratorical contest, followed on March 23 by the annual debate. May 4 marks the usual banquet, and again on May 18 an election of officers will be carried on. Several days throughout the year are left open for outside speakers and various other programs which appeal to the members.

Wranglers Club is expected this year to outdo itself in every way. A very large membership is anticipated by Miss Dorothy Benner, the club's adviser, and by the old members.

Meeting Is Held Of Times Agents

Assembly To Inspire Circulation Heads To Work for as Many Subscriptions As Is Possible.

A meeting of the Times agents was held Thursday, September 12, in room 24, for the purpose of inspiring the room agents to get many subscriptions during Times Week, which is the week of September 16. Harriett Yapp, circulation manager of the Times, spoke, telling the agents about a contest which was held Times Day, Monday, the 16. The agent obtaining the greatest number of subscriptions on this day received a prize.

John Bex, business manager, gave a pep talk which included additional information concerning Times Day. He also revealed that he actually lowered himself to bet a quarter with Miss Harvey that the percentage of South Siders subscribing to the Times would surpass the percentage of North Side students subscribing to the Northernner, North Side's school newspaper.

Helen Anderson, assistant circulation manager, suggested that each room agent call every student in his home room and talk to him about subscribing to the Times. Various agents were called upon to give suggestions in relation to making the campaign a success.

At the close of the meeting of Tuesday, September 4, the agents who attended each received a candy bar. The agents attending the Thursday meeting also received a candy bar.

Wo-Ho-Ma Will Hold First Meeting Today

The Wo-Ho-Ma Club, under the supervision of Miss Rehorst, will hold its first meeting today in the Greeley Room. Miss Pittenger is to be the guest speaker.

The president of the club, Faith Clark, will discuss the club's point system. During this meeting, the club songs will be sung with Alvina Gerber as accompanist. The Wo-Ho-Ma Club project this year will be the study of America's great women. The officers of the club are Faith Clark, president; Dortha Tobianski, vice-president; and Audrey Jefferies, secretary-treasurer.

Friday, the 13, Affects Students In Various and Sundry Ways

Another Friday has come and gone—But was it just an ordinary one—No, of course not. It was Superstition's Holiday, namely Friday the Thirteenth—the day when all the hobgoblins of the world of evil are supposed to turn loose on us helpless mortals.

This week the news has been full of some of the happenings of this un-reputable day. They range from the story of the Anti-Superstitions Club which meets every Friday the Thirteenth and whose president was the thirteenth child in her family, to the negro who after being arrested for chicken stealing on that dreaded Friday plead for postponement of his trial because of the day and that the number of cars that brought him and several other of the thieves to the station was thirteen. (The sympathetic (?) judge said that he would postpone the trial for thirteen days but that the negro would remain in jail all those days.)

But what happened to the members of our school on that fateful day? The answers to this query as gathered by our man Friday (no pun intended) are below.

C. Worden—I knocked the top out of my condenser.

G. Dill—I rode out to the New Haven Street Pair in a car and it seemed that there were about thirteen people on the top of me.

B. Noble—I ate cheese crackers. Bonsilene Craig—I dropped some money in Mr. Wilson's civics class and about had everyone in hysterics.

Virgil Duncan—I lost three pencils. C. Kearns, M. Rohrer—We didn't get our lessons and the next day had a test.

C. Hart—I had to give an impromptu speech.

Luther Precise—I had to shave an extra time. (Whata man.)

M. K. Connel—To my humiliation I had my shoes thrown out on the gym floor.

Bob Bacon—Our car had a flat tire. C. Dirmeyer—I broke three cover glasses in botany and spilled some iodine on my dress.

Fountain Pen Exchange Is Sanctioned by Office

Most of South Side's two thousand students are busily scratching and cleaning out their lockers looking for old, worn out fountain pens. These seemingly ambitious people, however, are working for their own good; for they intend to take advantage of the unusual offer given all South Side students.

The offer follows: Exchange your old, worn out, broken fountain pens for a good one without cost. Gather up your old pens, two or more, put them in an envelope, print your name, school, and room number plainly. Hand to your teacher and in a few days you will receive a good pen free. These pens have new points with heavy gold plate and the holders are in black and assorted colors. They are guaranteed for one year. Pens that are now in use are not wanted. Only discarded pens are wanted for exchange.

Note—Seal envelope before turning in. This offer is sanctioned by the office.

Meterite Club Meets First on September 17

The regular meeting of the Meterite club which was to have been held Friday, September 6, was postponed until September 17, because of the inability of Miss Susan Peck, club adviser, to be present.

The meeting, which will be held in the Greeley Room, will be open to all freshmen and sophomore girls with an average of "B" or more in English, and a special welcome is extended to the new freshmen. A program chairman, a social chairman, and committees for the potluck will be appointed.

An explanation of the point system, and the selection of the Inter-Club Congress representative as well as the planning of the semester's program, will be other highlights of the meeting.

Job's Daughters Skate At Bell's, September 25

The fall activities of Job's Daughters will begin with a skating party at Bell's Skating Rink, Wednesday, September 25, at 8 o'clock. The chairman for the affair is Harriet Schaffer, assisted by Mildred Foellinger. The finance committee is aiding with the plans, headed by Betty Lyons. Assisting her are Helen Anderson, Vera Louise Kruger, and Eileen Rose Mense. Tickets for the party may be obtained from any member of the organization.

Plans are being completed for a dance to be given Saturday, October 19. Maxine Rippe as chairman, and Winifred DeWeese as assistant chairman, are being assisted by the following committees: tickets, Betty Lyons, chairman; Betty Wermuth at South Side High School, Betty Westfield at North Side High School, Beatrice Schuster at Central, and Eleanor Cupp at International Business College; hall, George Anna Martin and Maxine Mariotte; orchestra, Vera Mosel and Helen Kelsey; post-ers, Marjorie Hagerfeldt and Mildred Miller; decorations, Mary Ann Mayland, Betty Roberts, Mary Jane Michaels, and LaVon Cook; and publicity, Rayola Morton.

Social Science Meets For First Time Friday

The first meeting of the Social Science Club will be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. Due to a mix-up in dates, it was announced in the morning bulletin that this meeting would be held on September 13, instead of September 20.

This meeting will be devoted to the organization of the club, and new members will be given an explanation of its purpose.

To become a member of Social Science, one must be a junior or senior and belong to not more than three clubs. Mr. Wilburn Wilson is the faculty adviser. Officers for this term are: Robert Adams, president; John Bex, vice-president; and Manuel Rothberg, secretary.

German Club Makes Plans for Semester

Introduction of the new officers by Miss Clara Schmidt, German Club adviser, opened the activities for another year. These officers, elected at the close of last semester, are: president, Eric Beyer; vice-president, Verna Holtman; secretary, Lorraine Meyer; and treasurer, Betty Muntzing.

Plans for this semester's program were discussed. A varied program consisting of speakers, films of German cities, studies of composers (their lives, compositions, and examples of their music), and parties were decided upon by the members.

The first party will be a weiner and marshmallow bake to be held September 25 at Poster Park. Don Vetter, Herbert Kramer, Betty Muntzing, and Harriet Basford make up the committee appointed in charge. Another party will be held at Christmas, and a picnic will be enjoyed at the close of the spring semester.

As the first speaker, Miss Smeltzley will address the club on October 9, telling about her trip on a German ocean liner and her visit to Hamburg and Berlin.

Meterites Hold Informal Meeting

New Officers of Club Are Introduced; Joan Bonsib Is Winner of Acquaintance Contest.

The first meeting of the Meterite Club was held on Tuesday, September 17, at 3:20 p. m. in the Greeley Room. To begin the meeting, Betty Pugh, president of the club, introduced the club adviser, Miss Susan Peck, and the officers, which include: Phyllis Geller, vice-president; Ruth Baade, secretary; Ann Peters, treasurer; Ruth Henline, social chairman; Lila Patton, publicity chairman; and Lillian Grenzhauser, program chairman.

Skating Party Planned

Preceding a short business meeting, Miss Peck made several announcements concerning the club. During the business meeting, many of the outstanding events which will be sponsored by the club during this semester were discussed, among which was the semi-annual skating party, which is to be held at Bell's Rink. Various committees were named to aid in the organization and success of this party.

The members also discussed whether or not the Meterites should take part in the coming G. A. A. vaudeville.

Identification Cards Signed

Identification cards were signed and turned in by each member, both new and old, belonging or wishing to belong to the club.

The meeting was then turned over to the program chairman. Each old member of the club took a partner who was a new member, and they, in turn, introduced one another. A few minutes were taken in order that each girl might get acquainted individually with every other member of the club she did not already know. A contest was then held to see which girl could name and distinguish the most members. Joan Bonsib, naming and distinguishing twenty-three out of the twenty-six members, received the prize.

All freshman and 10B girls are urged to join the Meterite Club. To be eligible, a girl must have and maintain a B average in English. The dues are twenty-five cents a semester.

Jack Horn Is To Be Junior Math Speaker

Jack Horn will give an interesting talk on "Mathematics in Nature" at the next meeting of Junior Math Club, which will be held next Tuesday in the Voorhees Room. The committee in charge of this meeting is comprised of Jack Horn, Grace Collins, Frances Craig, Max Spencer, and Allen Garrison.

A meeting of the executive committee was held last Thursday in Miss Paxton's room. The subjects for the various meetings of the semester were chosen, and plans for a Halloween and a Christmas party were discussed. Plans for this semester's programs have not been completed.

Most Subscriptions Gained First Day By Eleanor Vesey

"Have you subscribed to the Times? No, well will you do it from me right now?" By subscribing today, you will not only be getting a good paper but also be helping me in a contest that the circulation staff is conducting. If I get a few more, I'll have more than anyone."

This was just a part of the sales talk with which most of us were confronted on the first day of this semester. Although the subscription campaign is still in full swing, one could not avoid running into these subscription hunters with every move which was made.

At the end of the day, Eleanor Vesey came through as the winner with forty-two flames "signed on the dotted line." Betty Wolf, who was ahead until late in the afternoon, came in a close second with thirty-nine subscriptions. Ruth Garrison and Joan Bonsib tied for third place with thirty-one subscriptions each. One dollar was given to Eleanor as a reward for her efforts.

To Create Character Is Purpose of Hi-Y's

There are three clubs at South Side which, while being distinctly separate groups, nevertheless are bound together in activities and purpose, "To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character." These clubs are the Torch Club, the Junior Hi-Y, and the Senior Hi-Y.

The Torch Club, an organization for freshmen and sophomores is the younger version of the Hi-Y's. It has progressed steadily and this year hopes to develop still further under the supervision of Mr. Earl Sterner.

The Junior Hi-Y accepts any third-year pupil into its membership. Last year, aided by Mr. Ward O. Gilbert as faculty adviser, Mr. E. K. Ackerman and Mr. Harold F. Amrhein as Y. M. C. A. advisers, was a successful one in the eyes of the club. Perhaps the most outstanding activity of the organization was helping to officiate at the Hi-Y Older Boys' Conference held in December. Social activities in the form of a skating party at Bell's Rink in the fall, and a Mother-Son Banquet in the spring climaxed the year's functions.

The Senior Hi-Y, open to all seniors, has built up and maintained a consistent membership under the advisement of Mr. Dwight Shirey and Mr. Fred Gilbert. Through this membership they have carried out a successful program. Club members held the majority of the committee posts of the Northern Indiana Hi-Y Conference held in November. They also sponsored a skating party at Bell's Rink and they watch the gates at athletic contests.

Students are urged to affiliate themselves with the club for which they are eligible.

Issues Of Times Discussion Topic

Bryce Minier and Other Major Staff Members Address Session of Workers on Paper.

"The first two issues of The Times were very good despite several setbacks," stated Bryce Minier, our genial general manager, at the Times staff meeting held last Friday evening. Bryce also sent out an urgent appeal for copy readers and writers, who, it seems, are slightly on the decline.

Jim Sweet, editor, said he wanted many good columns this year and cautioned his staff to get their stories in on time or things would happen. He further stated that his greatest wish was for people to stop reading the proof and discussing the scandals before The Times is issued.

Norman Buck, present sports editor, stated that any boys or girls who wished to become sports writers should get in touch with him immediately.

Miss Rowena Harvey, Times faculty adviser, opened her little speech by verifying Bryce's first statement. She continued her talk by stating that due to some people's utter disregard for the appearance of the Times room, special permits would be given pupils who desired to work there during school hours. Miss Harvey concluded her talk by saying that with proper co-operation of both major and minor staff members the Times would continue to be a success.

About $2,550 Received From Sale of Books

The sale of books, both used and new, was large this year. Mr. Hull received about $2,300 which was taken in for new books, which were sold at actual cost. All this money went back to the pupils who owned the books. The money taken for used books has totaled approximately $250.

More English books were sold than any other kind. Mr. Snider said that more second-hand Social Science and Mathematics books could have been sold if they had had them. Mr. Snider also made the statement that the second-hand book sale would be carried on differently next semester. At the end of this semester, the school will purchase used books from students who wish to sell them. This will get rid of most of the work which must be done under the present arrangement.

Pupils Take Marksmanship

The R. O. T. C. corps at University High School, Oakland, California, will take up marksmanship this semester. All members of the unit must take complete training. New rifles have been supplied this semester.

Two New Members Added To 1500 Club

Two new members, Dalton McAllister and Lois Wyneken, have been added to the 1500 Club, and Mary Ann Fark has been advanced in rank. McAllister, a sophomore, proved himself worthy of this honor by the fine columns he has written. Freshman Fantasy, which was read by many last year, was written by Dalton. This year he is writing editorial liners, which require much hard work.

Lois Wyneken, a junior, started working on the Times when she was a sophomore. Only through hard work has she accomplished a task which is the aim of many students.

Her first job on the staff was as a reporter, and also classroom reporter. Through hard work she has been given the honor of star reporter and also assistant news editor.

Mary Ann Fark, a star reporter, has advanced from a bronze pin to a silver pin. All of her 3,000 points were gained by writing since she joined the staff a year ago.

Fairer Sex Ambitious

Two of the fairer sex of the Lincoln High School in Tacoma, Washington, showed their classmates what real ambition is. They were found one Friday noon by some "Lincoln News" reporters busily weeding a small garden plot which contained parsley, chives and mint. These garden plants are used by the foods classes.

Central Tigers Defeat Columbia City Eleven

Tomorrow night the Central Tigers will play the Elkhart Blue Blazers at League Park. Both teams are intense rivals, and since the teams are strong both on defense and offense, the game should prove to be interesting and exciting.

Last Saturday Central defeated Columbia City, 18 to 0, for its third win of the season. The reserves played all but two minutes of the game. Central opened the scoring in the first period when Bob Brown skirted right end, the Tigers' favorite touchdown spot, for six points.

The Blue scored twice more in the second quarter. After a steady drive down the field, Miller plunged through the line for a touchdown. Shortly afterward, Stanislawski tossed a long pass to Virgil Riddle which was good for 55 yards. The Tigers failed to convert any of their three attempts at the extra point.

South Side Earns Itself Name Graveyard of Coaches, Umpires

"Here in this building of golden brick, those loyal sportsmen of the past finally find a rendezvous of peace and tranquility. No longer do they bear the sting of a royal boogie nor are they subjected to the criticism of an alumnus or a student not agreeing with their choice of players."

These will probably be the words which will be put down in the history of our southern institution in describing those beasts of burden, those coaches and referees who are now members of the South Side faculty. Some have retired while others still continue on. Thus South Side is earning for itself the title of "graveyard of coaches and umpires."

Makey Is Dean

Mr. Herman Makey holds the exalted position of dean in this fraternity. Coach Herman Makey led the athletes of Eaton High School for a period of three years from 1914 to 1917. According to his description of his coaching, one would think that he did not fare so well. However, whatever he lacks in coaching skill he surely supplies in his knowledge of English. Mr. Makey also worked in the net umpiring game on the Paoli and French Lick circuit.

Next in line comes Coach Ward Gilbert. Mr. Gilbert has been active in sports all of his life. His coaching career started in Winter Haven, Florida, in 1914 and 1915 where he coached basketball and baseball. His net quintet never lost a game during the entire season and captured the state title. He then returned to the Hoosier domains and coached the Kokomo Kats from 1919 to 1921. Once again he led another team to a state title.

Coach Until 1927

Coming to South Side in 1922, he took over the coaching responsibilities and led his 1922 eleven through an undefeated season. The next season his team dropped only two games. From then on he devoted his coaching activities to basketball and in 1924 he took his quintet to the Butler Fieldhouse. He continued to coach until 1927 taking his five through the sectional tournament every year but one. Ward still does some refereeing and has about thirty tilts to referee during the coming season.

Mr. Windmiller likewise has formerly been a coach. He spent his first three years in Geneva and then moved to Ossian for a like number of years. He ended his coaching career for the time being with two more years at Oxford. Mr. Windmiller engages in a stiff officiating schedule each year and has about fifty tilts ahead of him this coming season.

Briner Intramural Supervisor

Mr. Briner has limited his coaching activities to the intramural work he carries on in South Side. However he is active each year as an official and is planning his schedule for the coming season.

Coach "Pop" Tudor is best known to South Side fans as the tutor of the Harrison Hill five, which swept through the ranks of the junior high schools last year and captured the city championship. However, Mr. Tudor's coaching career started back in 1923 when he led the Stilesville quintet which captured the sectional tournament that year. In the intervening years between 1924 and 1928, he led the Plainfield Quakers on their net campaigns. "Pop" also is an umpire and has a thirty game schedule made for this season.

Most Recent Member

"Smiling" Jake McClure was the most recent of the South Side faculty to quit the ranks of active coaches. Mac coached at Garrett before he started his coaching career at South Side in 1928 and took his five to the state tourney. Since then he has continued to turn out teams of a very fine caliber. "Mac" has been officiating for several years and will be active this season.

Coach Lundy Welborn is another of South Side's faculty members who engages in coaching and umpiring. He has built some of the best elevens in this state. He also served as coach of the Concordia basketball quintet some years ago. Lundy officiates basketball every year and will resume his whistle-toting this season.

The newest addition to South Side's fraternity is Burl Friddle. Mr. Friddle has put in ten years as coach of the Washington Hatchets during which time he turned out five state title contestants and one state championship five. Burl likewise does some officiating.

Kleet Kleeners

James Ellenwood, who is one of our best players on this year's football team, has played varsity football for the past four years. In his first year on the varsity, he played center. In his second and third years he played tackle, making all-city both years. This year Lundy has decided that he is needed most at end position. Jim is what you would call an all-around athlete. He has played varsity basketball for the past three years, and is going to be one of our strongest players this year. He is also out for track, in which he has proven himself to be a very valuable member.

Jim has received honors for which he worked very hard. In his second and third years he made all-city tackle and also received honorable mention from the state. He was selected to the National Athletic Society.

He attended James H. Smart grade school where he was very active in both football and track. Jim hopes to attend college, but hasn't decided which one he will go to as yet.

Teacher and Students Talk at Sports Parley

The G. A. A. held a special freshmen meeting in the gymnasium on September 11. Miss Alice Patterson pointed out the importance of reading the bulletins every day and also explained the swimming schedule.

Marjorie Hower, president of the organization, was then introduced to the group, along with the other officers. She explained the point system, and showed the G. A. A. plaque to them. She emphasized the fact that only one girl receives the honor every year of having her name put on it.

Leona Menze and Marjorie Cartwright also urged the freshmen to participate in all the sports. Miss Gretchen Smith was then introduced to the group. She also urged the freshmen to start right out in speedball and tennis in their endeavor to earn their numerals and letter.

Marjorie next introduced the letter girls and student leaders to the group. The meeting was then adjourned.

It seemed that the National Amateur Tennis Tournament this year was comprised of nothing but upsets in the late stages of play. Little Bryan "Betsy" Grant started it all off when he went out and proceeded to hand Don Budge, Californian and baby of the Davis Cup team, a grand trimming, sending the much-favored Budge back to the showers with a four-set defeat tacked on him.

By virtue of his surprise win over Budge, Grant was expected to advance to the finals over Sidney Wood, but again the dope bucket was upset when Wood, for no apparent reason, outstayed Grant and waded into the finals by beating the tiny Atlantian in straight sets, in one of the most tedious matches ever seen in tournament play, the players standing, and sometimes for more than half an hour, merely lobbing the ball back and forth.

Of course, the big upset was provided when Wilmer Allison of Texas played far over his head and set Fred Perry, the greatest amateur tennis player in the world, down in straight sets. Perry showed he had grit and was a real sport when in the first set he dived headlong after a ball and landed heavily, injuring himself. Perry made no mention of the injury, and played the match out without a word. In the finals, Allison, still displaying his superior form, had little trouble in disposing of Wood.

The Chicago Cubs, the St. Louis Cardinals, and the New York Giants are still in the throes of one of the most exciting pennant races ever known in the National League. As the teams round the turn and head into the stretch, the Detroit Tigers are still wondering who it is going to be that will answer the cry of "play ball" as the teams tangle in the first game of the 1935 World Series at Navin Field.

At the present time, the Cubs are hanging tenaciously onto a two-game lead and have been fattening their percentage while the Giants and Cards have been cutting each other's throats at St. Louis. The Cubs have been victorious in 20 of their last 24 contests, riding high on some of the finest pitching seen this year in the National League, with French, Warneke, Lee, and Root taking their turn on the mound and turning in one impressive victory after another.

If the Cubs' pitching can hold up in the forthcoming series with the Giants and then with the Cards in a five-game series which winds up the season, the Cubs will coast into a pennant. As the season draws nearer to its conclusion, the Cub-Cardinal series at the end of the season begins to take on more and more importance and the eyes of all the sports world will probably be concentrated on St. Louis during those five games.

The night of September 24 the Brown Bomber and the Playboy will touch gloves and go at it, the Brown Bomber, Joe Louis; the Playboy, Max Baer; the winner, we wonder. Speculation is running high and the negro's stock reached a new high when sparring partners pushed Max Baer all over the ring in a recent exhibition bout before 3,000 disappointed fans. Although Maxie's hands seemed well improved and he was getting his right hand across consistently, his stamina was awful to behold and he landed one punch to his sparring mate's ten. Louis continued to batter sparring partners and unless he eases up a little bit on his sparring mates, he's going to have to confine his workouts to shadow boxing.

Irish Gridders Play Central September 28

Central Catholic Has No Scheduled For This Week; Ties in Portland Clash.

Coach Bill Barrett's Irish gridders from Central Catholic will be idle during the next two weeks as far as actually engaging in competition. However, they will be far from idle, since they will be hard at work preparing for their initial appearance in the city series competition against the Central Tigers on September 28. Coach Barrett hopes to whip his charges into a formidable eleven which can hold its own against the onslaughts of the Mendenhall eleven.

Central Catholic's Irish were again held to a scoreless tie last Friday afternoon in a clash with the Portland Panthers at League Park. Penalties due to blunders cost the Irish this game. Twice as they were seriously threatening to score, they were penalized, halting their threat. In the first quarter the Irish had the Panthers on the run and Cal Mudd, halfback, charged the wing and was not pulled down till he reached the three-yard line. However, the ball was called back and the Irish were penalized for holding. Another time in the last stages of the game the Irish ran the ball down to the five-yard line from a poor punt by Portland's, but again they were penalized, and this ceased their threat to score.

Portland appeared in Irish territory several times, but each time they failed to score. The Panthers flashed the better attack, having completed ten out of eighteen, while the Irish only completed five out of sixteen.

The new red flags for speedball look rather suspicious. Keep your eyes open if you want a good laugh.

Virginia Menze surely looked good in her match with Patti Pfeiffer. From the result, 6-1, 6-0, she looks like a very good contender for class champion.

Norma Clauser is of the opinion that the senior hockey team is the best ever. Come on, juniors, we'll show her.

The freshmen girls were given a very good reception by G. A. A. In a special meeting, they were introduced to the executives, letter girls, and student leaders.

Those new speedballs are very handy. We surely appreciate them.

Winfred Locker wielded her hockey stick quite deftly in the first scrimmage game. With a little more practice, she will be an obstacle in every forward's path.

Enita Snively's surprise birthday party went off with a bang. But was Marge Hower embarrassed? Ask her about it.

Intramural Gossip

Tag football is swinging out with a big start. With one more day to go for handing in team cards twelve teams have signed up and are raring to get started. A good deal of competition has been presented, and as a result many good games are promised.

Twenty-one athletes have signed up for cross country and have been training hard and earnestly for the last week. If the good work is kept up, present cross country records will be broken.

The winner of the tennis tournament, which is expected to start next week, will receive a medal of which he may be very proud. The medal will be awarded by The Scholastic, The National High School Weekly. On receiving this award, the champion will send his name to New York headquarters where it will be listed with all the other high school tennis champion names. This honor is well worth working for.

Boys who have participated in practically every intramural activity offered by South Side, and are back this year to heap up more honors, are: Gaylord Stalter, Joe Close, Theron King, Elmer Cochran, Richard Brown, Herbert Schmidt, Bud Lepper, Victor Seewald, and Walter Voight.

Attention, freshmen! If you want questions answered or discussed in this column, please address your questions to the Intramural Sports Editor and drop them in the Times box at the west end of the study hall.

Rifle Club Girls Hold Fall Semester Election

The Girls' Rifle Club held its first meeting of the term in Room 92 Thursday, September 11. An election of officers was held with Miss Delaney, the club adviser, presiding. The new officers elected are: Roseanne Certia, secretary; Anita Catlett, treasurer; Elizabeth Linhart, range officer; Jane Loomis, Inter-Club Congress representative. Miss Delaney explained to the new girls the rules and regulations of the club. She also announced that the annual outdoor shoot and chili supper would comprise the social activities of the club for the year.

Redskin Eleven Vanquishes Lima

North Side Is Victor by 25-0; To Invade Goshen Territory In Second Tilt of This Year.

North Side's gridders will make their first foreign invasion of the season Saturday when they travel to Goshen to stack up their wares against the onslaughts of the Goshen eleven.

These teams battled to a tie last season and the Redskins hope to get an advantage over their opponents in this tilt. Goshen is reported to have an outfit with much experience and one of the best teams turned out in that city in several years. The Nulmen were cheered by the excellent showing they made in their clash with Lima last week, and they hope to chain up another one in the win column over the week end.

The Nulmen scored their initial victory of the season last Friday night in a tilt with South of Lima under the floodlights at the northern gridiron. The Redskins handed the visiting Buckeye opposition a decisive 25 to 0 setback. In this encounter, the Redskins displayed much aggressiveness and an offensive attack. Two of the North Side markers were the result of their offensive attack while the other two touchdowns were the result of the recovery of fumbles. On the initial kickoff of the tilt, Joe Schumm gave an exhibition of the form he displayed last season as he spun through the entire Lima outfit on an eighty-nine yard dash for the goal. Again in the second quarter Schumm was a factor in scoring the second Redskin marker when he heaved a pass to Lieberum for a thirty-two yard advance and a touchdown. Lieberum's kick for the extra point was good. A recovered Lima fumble paved the way for the third touchdown late in the second period.

The Nulm gridders gained possession of the pigskin deep in the Buckeye territory, and Poorman plugged for the marker. Again in the third quarter the Nulmen captured a fumble deep in Lima territory, and a pass from Boedeker to Schumm put the ball over the goal line.

Archers' First Home Game Is Saturday With Van Wert

Buckeye Squad Plays Archers Here Saturday

Tilt Was First Scheduled To Be Played At Football Stadium in Van Wert, O.

Progress Is Made On New Material

Green Victory Is Predicted; Strong Line Is Probable For South Side's Eleven.

The Van Wert eleven will be the South Side gridders' first opponents in the home stretch of seven games which will start Saturday afternoon in our stadium. The honey eleven is expected to come out on top.

The Kelly Klads got off to a better start in the Woodward game than was anticipated because of their heavy loss of veterans and lack of experience in playing as a squad. They are predicted to conquer the Buckeye eleven and to have a winning season.

With the hard work cut out for the team this week, they are expected to go into the game with full strength. Although the boys are in good shape and are doped to win the game, it should not be considered a walkaway, as the Buckeye's promise to be good, strong opposition and a good battle for victory.

Van Wert Original Scene

The game was originally scheduled to be played at Van Wert; but the Buckeye's stadium will not be completed by Saturday; so the game has been transferred to our stadium.

South Side's squad has been coming along slowly but surely during the recent practice sessions. The loss of Jim Phelps, who will be out of action for some time with an infected heel, has necessitated a reorganization of the backfield. Bud Lee is slated to change from halfback to fill Phelps' position at fullback. Gordon Parmelee and Bud Feichter will share the left half duties. Ed Kruse and Benz will play at the other halfback post. Either Fred Meyers or Ben Woodhull will call the signals.

Strong Line Predicted

The Archers will present a fairly strong and heavy line to the Buckeyes. Jim Ellenwood, All-City tackle, has been shifted to right end. Norris and Ed Faux will see action at the other wing. Fred Nye will be back to take his place at right tackle. The guards appear the weakest spots in the line. Bennett and Ken Miller will see action at the left guard, while James Dorn and Bill Willson take care of the other side. The center post will be one of the strongest for the Green. Fred Ostermeyer, a veteran with a wealth of experience, is back. Bob Miller, who has come along fast, will be ready to step in his shoes at any time.

Bud Lee will do the place-kicking and punting this year. Allen Faux will attempt to take Ed Ginn's place as dropkicker. Lee and Parmelee are expected to share the passing burden.

Twelve Teams Signed For Tag Football Game

Within the last week many participants have signed up for intramural sports. If cards keep coming into Mr. Briner's office as rapidly as they have been for the last few days, the intramural department will be kept very busy.

Tag football will be a well-represented sport this year, as twelve teams signed up in the first few days. Many more teams are expected to turn out the first of next week as football is the most popular sport of the semester. Competition will probably start Monday.

The latter part of next week will find the courts filled with those interested in tennis competition. Tennis has always been a favorite sport with enthusiastic players, and the fact that a medal will be awarded again this year by The Scholastic, the National High School Weekly, to the tennis player winning the official high school championship tournament, will make the competition very keen.

Up to this time there are twenty-one participants running in the cross country course. As this is a rather small number, Mr. Briner would like more athletes to report for this sport.

Hockey Meeting Is Held On Friday

Captains and Teams for Girls' Sport Are Chosen at Gathering in Handball Court.

The first hockey meeting took place in the handball court on September 11. Captains and teams were elected after which a special meeting was held for the sophomores. At this meeting, the game was explained to them by Miss Alice Patterson.

Captains and their teams are as follows: Senior 1, Hower, captain; Allen, Ayres, Braun, Busse, Clay, Dygert, Franz, D. Miller, Rohrer, Rindchen, Rison, Winkler, Yoder, Adler, Roubesh, Becker, Shremser, Hickman, Rudig, Clauser, Park, Baumgartner, Crabill, and Shaffer.

Junior 1: Captain, Margaret Ruhl; Aldridge, Beyrau, Eysenberg, Garrison, Gould, McPherson, Scheele, Schuelke, Stalhut, Wilkins, Krauss, Ruhl, Winkler, Van Gunten, Valentine, Fundenberg, and Bond.

Junior 2: Captain, Edna Disler; Barrows, Berning, Baumgartner, Coburn, Dush, Ehlinger, Foltz, Harnish, Knight, Kilpatrick, Millberg, Snavely, Steinbarger, Close, Kruse, Wells, Konnell, and Disler.

Junior 3: Captain, Menze; Closs, Goegelein, Heimecke, Lee, Meyer, Phillips, Rehm, Scheele, Schultz, Springer, Wallace, Zaegel, Clark, Meyer, and Shepler.

Sophomore 1: Captain, Eisenacher; Affolder, Crago, Duffy, Ellenwood, Esser, Pequinot, Rindchen, Seifert, Steinbarger, Telley, William, and Diehm.

Sophomore 2: Captain, B. Raymond; Beck, Davenport, Farker, Libby, Lortz, Moring, Persing, Peters, Rarick, Short, Weseloh, Coats, and Staley.

Sophomore 3: Captain, Franke; Addington, Buecking, Gingham, Hartman, Kennedy, LeFever, McGinley, Moore, Morrison, Niemeyer, Zimmerman, and Hagib.

Sophomore 4: Captain, Meese; Blauvelt, Broderick, Crum, Crumrine, Griffith, Hockensmith, McGinnity, Parter, Redding, Roe, Walker, and Wilson.

The Archers threw up a tough defense against Toledo last week. With more practice and experience, the Green should present a tough outfit to score against when they meet their city series opponents.

That puts the pressure on the backfield. South Side will be tough to score against, but how will South Side score? The backfield looks only fair at the present time. They made but three first downs against Woodward and failed to get inside their ten-yard line.

If Jim Phelps, big sophomore quarterback who is out of action because of an infection in his heel, returns to the squad soon, he will save Lundy a gray hair or two. Fred Meyers started against Woodward. Benny Woodhull then tried Phelps' position for a while. In the final quarter even Gordon Parmelee, regular left half, called signals. The latter two have no experience. Meyers has the brains but not the brawn. He's a small man to play safety.

412 Pupils Buy Season Tickets For All Games

61 Adult Tickets Are Sold; $1,030 Has Been Taken In; Prices Are Slightly More.

Special prices on all season tickets this year are responsible for the large number of sales. The new prices are $2.50 cash for either student or adult passes, different from last year's prices in that the cash price was two dollars, prevailing only the first week. This year, in order to get their tickets, students had cards filled out by their home room teachers and presented them to Mr. Davis in his new office under the incline to the cafeteria.

By last Monday night, 412 students out of the school, after filling out their cards, dared the rush and spent their time waiting their turn to purchase the tickets that will enable them to see all of South Side's home football and basketball games, except the one with Van Wert. This game was originally scheduled to be played at Van Wert, but was switched to the local stadium because of a late completion of the new gridiron at Van Wert.

Sale of Season Tickets
The sales of student tickets up to Monday night brought the total of $1,030 into the coffers of the athletic department. This amount is compared with the $1,046 netted in one week last year when the tickets were on sale at two dollars cash, a difference of fifty cents from the present price. Last year, 523 tickets were sold at the cash price, 111 more than those sold the first seven days this year. Both students and adults may yet purchase their season tickets for $2.50, a remarkable bargain for six football and thirteen basketball games. Football books may be bought separately for $1.00.

At the last count, 61 thrifty adults wishing to see South Side's adult program, purchased their season tickets at the price of $2.50.

The installment plan for buying tickets for $3.00, paid in easy payments, went into effect last Monday with the sale of six season books. This method of buying the tickets will probably be popular again this year since the payments are so simple.

Hockey Practice Held

The first hockey practice of the season, in which all of the sophomore, junior, and senior teams participated, was held Friday. The general rules and principles of the game were reviewed. Dribbling the ball, stopping it with one or both feet, and gripping the stick correctly, were some of the important factors which were reviewed for the benefit of the sophomores. After this, the sophomores were drilled in forward lines and practiced dribbling the ball down the field.

Scrimmage games then took place between Junior 1 and 2 teams, and between Senior 1 and Junior 3 squads.

Green Shows Strong Defense, Ties Polar Bears in Opener

Showing a great deal of defensive strength, South Side's grid-ders opened their 1935 season Saturday by holding Woodward of Toledo to a scoreless tie.

Thus the Archers gained revenge in some measure for the 27-to-0 defeat they suffered last year at the hands of the Polar Bears. Woodward's tying the Green made them the only Toledo high school team that failed to win its opening game this year.

South Side's defense faltered in the first few minutes of the game, allowing four first downs in that time. However, the Green settled down after that, allowing only one more first down, and that on a pass called complete for interference. Meanwhile the Archer offense showed a little more strength than was expected, but made only one scoring threat. The Green gathered three first downs.

South Side attempted four passes, completing two of them. One was good for eighteen yards; the other netted ten. Meanwhile, Woodward filled the air with passes in a futile attempt to score. The Green covered up well and allowed only four to be completed out of eleven attempts. One of these was allowed for interference with the receiver.

The Archers were penalized a total of fifty yards. They were set back fifteen of these for being off-sides three times. The Buckeyes lost only twenty yards, being penalized once for holding and once for being off-sides.

South Side and Woodward each fumbled twice; however, the Archers lost both of theirs while Woodward recovered their two.

Bud Lee kicked off to Toledo. Immediately the Buckeyes started the only real drive of the game. By a series of lateral passes and running plays they gained four first downs, carrying the ball from their own 35-yard line to South Side's three. At this point, the Buckeyes tried a plunge, a lateral, a pass, and another plunge, all of which put the ball on the Green's one-foot line and gave South Side possession of the ball on downs. The Archers then punted out of danger.

Early in the second quarter, Woodward went deep into Green territory but was stopped when Bud Lee intercepted a pass on his own 11-yard stripe.

In the third quarter, South Side made its only real scoring threat. Parmelee caught a pass from Lee which placed the ball on the 28-yard marker. Benz then went off left tackle to the 13-yard line. After several plays failed to gain, Lee attempted a place-kick, but it was too low.

Woodward attempted two field goals in the final period, but both were short. They then filled the air with passes, but these also failed. South Side got possession of the ball near the close of the game and wasted away the remaining time on line plunges.

Loud Speaker System Planned For Stadium

It is being planned to have a loud speaker system installed in the stadium. The speaker would be used to inform the spectators as to the number of downs, yards to go, reason for penalty, yards penalized and type of play. It can be used in track to call off the events and time. It is being hoped that it will be installed for Saturday's game.

First Meeting Of Philo Year Held Monday

Installation of Officers Features Business of Day; Short Program Presented.

At the first meeting of the Philaethian Literary Society, which was held Monday at 3:30 in the Greeley Room, the newly elected officers for the semester were installed. The installation was performed by the sergeant-at-arms Rosemary Chappell.

The newly installed officers are: President, Ruth Adler; vice-president, Helen Anderson; secretary, Dorothy Crabb; treasurer, Betty Rose Lehman; program chairman, Mary Martha Hobrock; sergeant-at-arms, Rosemary Chappell; pianist, Virginia Gardner; and publicity, Jane Loomis. Also the newly appointed music leader, Helen Flaig, and yell leader, Maxine Mariotte, were given due honors.

Ruth Adler Presides
Following the installation the president, Ruth Adler, presided at the business meeting. Cards were filled out and plans were discussed for the Philo Dance, which will be held November 9, after the Central-South Side football game. This is one of the high spots in the activities of the Philaethian Literary Society.

The officers were introduced and each made a speech. Miss Demaree explained the duties of each position. It was announced that all those desiring to purchase the Philaethian pin should place their order immediately with Miss Demaree in room 68, or Ruth Adler.

Membership Drive Started
A membership drive is under way, headed by Verna Holtman and Helen Anderson. The two teams are the white and gold, respectively. The membership drive is already well under way and closes at midnight October 13. The losing team then has to entertain the winners at a Halloween party on October 28.

Following the business meeting the program was turned over to Mary Martha Hobrock. Songs were sung which were led by Helen Flaig, Maxine Mariotte, led the yells and Selma Liff favored the club with a reading.

Betty Rose Lehman gave a speech telling the purposes of Philo and Helen Anderson gave a speech telling the history of Philo.

It was at this time announced that there would be some plays given this semester.

Refreshments concluded the meeting. They consisted of fudge served on doilies of white and gold, the club colors.

"Stray Roads" Is Theme of So-Si-Y

Poem by Helen Welshiemi To Be Subject Semester's Program; Membership Meet Next

"Stray Roads" is the theme around which So-Si-Y's program will be centered this semester. It was announced by the members of the club's cabinet. The theme was suggested by the poem written by Helen Welshiemi:

"Stray roads lead to women—
Those with fearless eyes
Are the only pilgrims
Who find Paradise."

The program chosen for the entire semester is as follows:

September 24—Membership party.
October 8—Service program.
October 22—Faculty tea.
November 5—Crafts display, initiation.
November 19—World Fellowship program.
December 3—Women's interests in Fort Wayne.
December 31—Christmas party.
January 14—Installation—History of Women's Styles.

The next meeting, a membership party, will be built around the theme, "Starting Point." Norma Clauser, social chairman; Connie Schultz, and Ruth Bornuth, her committee, have arranged a program which will consist of both vocal and instrumental music, games, and specialty dances. A welcome to incoming members will be given by Anna Bremer, president; and a response will be given by Connie Schultz, one of the new members.

Societas Romana Has First Meeting Today
Societas Romana, or Latin Club, will hold its first meeting of the year today, September 19, after school, in the Voores Room. It will be an organization meeting to plan the programs for the year.

"Mythology" has been chosen for the theme to be used throughout the year. The names of well-known gods and goddesses will be used as subjects on which each meeting will be based. The following is a list of the year's program:

October, Jupiter; November, Juno; December, Minerva; January, Apollo; February, Venus; March, Mars; April, Diana; May, Mercury.

All Latin students who are taking or have taken Latin at some time are invited to join Societas Romana. The officers for this year are: Virginia Gardner, president; Virginia Greiner, vice-president; and Constance Haag, secretary-treasurer.

The 9B's of Miss Van Gorder are working on time study budgets and learning how to study each of their subjects.

In Miss Van Gorder's occupation class Aletha Davis, Hazel Perry, Joan Unter, and Robert Hageman put drawings of manners of the periods on the board.

In Miss Mary Crowe's class in U. S. history I they are studying the period of exploration. Friday their first map was handed in. It showed old European and Asiatic trade routes, and ancient explorers.

Interesting trips and vacation times are being told in Miss Oppel's home room. The first of this series was related by James Dera, who told of his trip to Labrador.

The occupation's classes are studying methods of work used in medieval times, and the manners of medieval times.

Miss Rinehart has in one of her classes a former Valparaiso girl, Marian Patterson.

One English class of Miss Rinehart has 35 members.

Miss Van Gorder has a large class of 37 crowded in her room.

In a recent test given by Mr. Rothart to his Latin 3 class, the following students received a grade of 90 or above: Joe Bell, June Haeger, Leslie Johnson, Helen Cox, Jack Horn, and Robert Weil.

Mr. Murphy's 12A economics classes are very well equipped with books for reference. These classes have at their disposal thirty-five copies of Klein and Calvin's Economics, thirty copies of Thompson's Economics, and a new dictionary.

Marjory Paetz has made the first book report in Mr. Makey's English classes.

Mr. Gould's botany 7 classes are busily engaged in mounting and pressing weeds.

In the recent election held in Miss Hodgson's home room, the results were as follows: Richard Rastetter, president; Sally Rea, secretary; William Schaefer, Don Sinish, Margery and Margaret Ruhl, program committee. The following program topics have been selected: Biographies of Present-Day Men, Vacations, Hobbies, Proverbs, Current Events, Book Reports, and Modern Inventions. The first speaker will be Dorothea Tobianski.

Miss Edith Crowe's health classes certainly had fun taking their own pulses. Of course, it was embarrassing to Mary Langfeldt to have her pulse found for her. Pulse beats ranged per minute from 60-96.

Mr. Burl Friddle came to the wrong place altogether in his quest for soda. It seems that our coach had indignation, and he came to the girls' gymnasium office for the remedy.

Marjorie Dancer sent Miss Benner's period 6 public speaking class into gales of laughter with her impromptu speech on chicken houses (where, she said, chickens live); while Norman Theye nearly caused a riot with his impromptu talk on lipstick which takes an hour to get off.

Mr. J. H. McClure read up on Wheaties, according to his P. G. class, because he gave quite an interesting speech on them.

In a recent literature test given by Miss Emma Kiefer, the following people received 95 or above: Wayne Bennett, Jose Marie Leming, Alvin Snively, and Barbara Uran.

Ned Hensley, a pupil of Miss Hazel Miller's sixth period United States history 2 class, gave a very interesting account of Marco Polo's travels in the Orient.

In Miss Hazel Miller's second period United States history 1 class, Bob Hall gave an interesting talk on the Aztec Calendar.

In Mr. Earl Sterner's 9B English class, Teddy Confer has earned four points in outside reading. Robert Jones and Dick Gardner have each reported on one book.

In room 138, Margaret Crankshaw was elected chairman; Vincent Cook, Vandetta Clay, and Don Cohagen are the social committee. Because of their interest in vocations, this room has sent to Washington for a pamphlet on this subject.

The door of room 14 stuck recently and Mr. Whelan called the janitor, who, with a crow-bar and hammer, took the door off, so that his home room could begin.

Earl Hopstetter caused a lot of excitement in Miss Crissie Mott's home room when he asked to be excused to take the lead out of his back. No, he wasn't shot on the run, he only leaned against the lead pencil which was held by the girl in back of him.

Evelyn Hienne and Betty Muntzinger made 100 percent on a Latin 1 test given by Mr. Martin Rothert. Harry Dime, Thelma Piefer, Martha Zelt, and Juanita Wolford made grades from 90 percent to 100 percent.

Dr. George W. Allison Talks To Assemblage on Constitution

"About a century and half ago a document was written and it is this document by which our country is still being governed. Therefore it is altogether fitting that our first assembly should be held to celebrate the writing of our Constitution," said Mr.

Snider as he introduced Dr. George W. Allison of the First Presbyterian Church addressed the student body in commemoration of Constitution week. His topic was, "Why We Should Celebrate Constitution Day."

Dr. Allison said that the first report he heard about South Side was that it had a school paper but he explained that if the Times would be distributed in Europe, it would have to be censored first. This is just one of the advantages of our Constitution.

To be snatched away by secret police and to be held in a secret prison without a trial because they were heard speaking against the government, was a common occurrence in Europe and it was because of these things that our forefathers decided that United States should have a different government. Europeans have to "take their laws and like them" while the people of United States make their laws and repeal them if they do not approve of them.

"Men have fought for our Constitution; therefore we must live to preserve it and pass it on to the future generations." In closing, Dr. Allison said he wished to promote curiosity among the students so that they will look in their history books and learn more about our American government.

The band under the direction of Mr. Jack Wainwright, played Radio Waves, Kilties, Japanese Sunset, The School Song, and Shrine of Liberty.

Room 18 Furnishes Flaunting Sights for Ye Olde Reporters

Frills and furbelows, hitherto unknown in the sacred precincts of Room 18, now clamor for the attention and approval of the bustling scribes who rush in and out that revered and hallowed door.

The blackboards flaunt bold green and white headings (on which Ralph Jones has been seen working) which designate them as being dedicated to the high-and-mighties, i.e., "Sir Boss," "Copy Editor," and "Managing Editor." Less flagrant, but still in evidence, is a board headed "Reporters?" A real "purty" work of art is in relief on the west side. It is a stunning work in red and blue entitled "Circulation Ratings" and consists of crossbars filled in with names and numbers.

A border extending completely around the room, of Times' awards is a really imposing addition to the decorations.

Last, but not least, are the desk tops! Their bright and shining surfaces, reported to be due to our esteemed "Sir Boss" and other staff members and a lowly bucket of varnish, are capable of returning perfect reflections as the eternally shiny noses of some of our more outstanding sub-debs after a strenuous hour over a typewriter.

Wins Scholarship

Garland Eickmeyer

Garland Eickmeyer, '35 grad, was recently awarded one of the two Pennsylvania Railroad Scholarships awarded annually to sons of employees. It is a national award valued at $3,200. Garland also won the Purdue special merit scholarship which pays his tuition at that school.

Latest News of Millie Hoff's Recovery Given by Reporter

News of the school's latest appendix operation was received direct from the bedside of charming Mildred Hoff, South Side junior. Clad in blue crepe pajamas, a good luck bracelet on her arm, and her manner entirely carefree and happy, she appeared eager to give out all the "inside" information.

Following an exciting ride in the ambulance at 3 o'clock in the morning (only she didn't think so then) the now-absent "member" was removed early Tuesday morning, September 3. During her week's stay in the hospital she managed to get her first ride in a wheel chair. She liked it.

Sketched Hospital Patients
She spent some of her time in the hospital making sketches of people. She made one of the man across the hall. He had a broken arm, and evidently resembled the man on the flying trapeze. He, unfortunately, got the sketch.

She spends most of her time at home listening to police calls and reading fairy stories, she says. Her educational matter is "Film Folk," "Screen Romances," and "Judge." Of course, she gets all her meals in bed, and thinks there's nothing like real solid comfort.

Her feelings may be described like the sky, all blue, or a bicycle, too tired. She did say, though, "I don't even feel as if I've lost anything." However, she's anxious to come to school and intends to work very hard to make up for lost time.

Her tastes as to music on the radio run to nearly everything except hill billy music and yodelers. While I was there, some man kept yelling something like W9WRX and then added something about pickles, sugar, and vinegar. She was amused; I was confused.

Has Varied Diet
Whenever she's exasperated, she makes a loud popping noise in her mouth. I guess you'd call it her way of expressing it. Operations are usually considered something to talk about; however, her philosophy is, "If you want something to tell your grandchildren, don't pick an appendix operation. They're too common."

Her diet consisted of tea, broth, and orange juice the first four days, and then for variation, orange juice, broth, and tea. She gets more staple things now, however. She wouldn't eat until I either left or else ate something with her, so I left. Imagine that.

Miss Paxton Tours Mexico And Reports What She Saw

"Mexico is often spoken of as a foreign country at our door," stated Miss Paxton, who teaches algebra and geometry in South Side. During her two weeks' sojourn in Mexico City, she resided at the Geneva Hotel, which is an American hotel. While at the hotel she observed that mostly Mexicans were employed in the service. They all spoke Spanish and many spoke English as well.

One of the most interesting things that she noticed were the Mexican homes in the old residential quarter of the city. All of the homes had wrought iron gates. The walls of the houses were very close to the sidewalk. Most of the homes had two floors. On the first floor, all windows were covered by wrought iron bars. The second floor windows were very large and some of them had balconies.

While in the city, Miss Paxton also visited the National Palace where the President of Mexico has his office and reading room. At this time, there were ten or twelve of his countrymen waiting to see him. The president does not reside in the palace as many of the rulers and viceroys of Mexico did. He lives in the residential district of the city.

Climate Is Moderate
Mexico City is 7,000 feet high, but the climate is like that of the temperate zone although it is in the tropics. The temperature is never higher than 71 degrees or lower than 48 degrees.

It rains every day during the summer months although you don't notice it after it is over because the rain evaporates and sinks in the ground so quickly. Mexico City has a population of 15,000,000, but 10,000,000 of this amount are Mexican Indians. The Mexican coat-of-arms is an eagle sitting on a cactus clasping a serpent in its talons.

Every stage of living is seen both in and near Mexico City. In the countryside, many wooden huts are still in evidence. Here, too, are the Mexican Indians. They live in adobe and grass huts. The Indian women wear shawls or robes on their heads. The men wear blankets which serve as raincoats, furcoats, and sleeping garments. These blankets are called serapes. The women wash their clothes on stones in streams and lay them on the grass to dry.

The Mexican markets were also of interest. The wares were displayed by spreading them out on the sidewalk. Here corn, flowers, cacti, vegetables, pigs, and chickens were seen in abundance. The century cactus is the source of many products. It grows for three years and then the pith is taken from it and allowed to dry for three more years. By this time, a liquid has developed which contains worms. The liquid is to drink, and the worms are fried and eaten. Rope and mats are made from the leaves of the century cactus.

Burros are the chief method of travel in Mexico City although some trucks are used in the city. These burros also carry silver ore down the mountain sides and pigs, alfalfa, sticks, and wood to the markets.

Pyramids are also found in Mexico. They are very similar to those of Egypt. The Pyramid of the Sun has a large dais as the largest pyramid in Egypt, but it is not as high. The archaeologists are making more excavations in Mexico and hope to learn more about the ancient peoples of Mexico.

As mementoes of her trip, Miss Paxton brought back with her a collection of plates, statues, tiles, snapshots, and an Aztec calendar.

Minier, Schrom, Nye Are Senior Head Candidates

Zehr, White, Dern Chosen As Contenders in Junior Contest for President.

Election Will Be On Next Tuesday

Sophomores Pick Vogelsang Thackery, Hines Choices To Lead Class for Year.

Final Class Election Set for Next Tuesday

"Final class elections will be held Tuesday morning in the home rooms," stated Mr. E. Nelson Snider. At this time each student will vote for one of the persons nominated in his class for president, secretary, and treasurer, and for three members of the Social Council. The results will be published in the next issue of The Times.

Fred Nye, Clifford Schrom, and Bryce Minier were nominated for the presiding office of the senior class; Jerry Zehr, Eleanor White, and James Dern were nominated to lead the junior class; and the sophomore class nominated John Hines, John Thackery, and Richard Vogelsang for president in the primary elections held Tuesday in all home rooms.

Other nominations in the senior class are vice-president: Dorothy Crabill, Helen Anderson, and Dave Stegner; secretary: Ruth Adler, Marjorie Cartwright, and Harriet Yapp. Nominations for social council are Robert Adams, Betty Rose Lehman, Maxine Roth, Virginia Griener, Norman Buck, Robert Harruff, Bernadette Dygert, Anna Bremer, and Dick Helm.

Members of the junior class chose Leona Menze, Victor Nussbaum, and Ned Hensle for vice-president; and Grace Nelson, Virginia Fathauer, and Miles Porter for secretary. Jean Creighton, Wilbur Leicher, Richard Dent, Sue Wallace, Jean Bollman, Robert Storm, Helen Kelsey, Louis Squires, and Don Sparkman were chosen as nominees for the social council of the junior class.

In their primary election the sophomore class nominated Martha Zelt, Julia Crabill, and Joan Kennedy for vice-president; and Paul McConnell, Kathleen Witmer, and Elizabeth Gross for secretary. The sophomore nominations for social council were Dalton McAllister, Robert Martin, Joan Bonish, Marjorie Turner, Clifford Zeig, Barbara Raymond, James Roth, Betty Garton, and Franklin Fyock.

"The freshman class does not have officers because the members are not well enough acquainted with each other to know which of their class would make good officers," stated Mr. R. Nelson Snider.

Every student of South Side voted for one student in their class for president, one for vice-president, one for secretary, and three for social council. The votes were tabulated first in home rooms, and the results were sent to the office, where the final results were tabulated and the nominees named.

Two Get 3,000 Points, Receive Times Award

Maxine Mariotte and Georgiana Martin through hard and faithful work on The South Side Times have earned a total of three thousand points, which makes them recipients of the silver pin given by The Times.

Tea Dance Postponed

The tea dance which was originally scheduled to be held last Friday has been postponed indefinitely to some time in October, until the school orchestra is ready to play for it. This orchestra is to be made up of students in the music department, and is under the direction of Mr. Wainwright. It will play at all future tea dances.

Ruhl Twins Get in Movies For Identical Resemblance

"You ought to be in pictures" and like phrases can no longer be sung at two of South Side's inseparables, the Ruhl twins, Margaret and Marjorie Ruhl are quite identical, and some people, in order to avoid embarrassment, simply yell, "Hi, Twinnie."

A letter received direct from Albuquerque, New Mexico, from a former South Side student, Paul Witte, informed the girls that some snaps of them had been run in a news reel in one of their local theatres. Margaret and Marjorie contemplated going down there to see themselves, and then again they thought it would be cheaper to just look in the mirror, and they did. Another South Sider informed them that he had seen their pictures in the news reel at the Capitol Theatre, recently. However, they missed that, too. Oh gee! It all began with the invitation to the Twin Convention, which, by the way, was the fourth national one.

Convention at Warsaw

Margaret and Marjorie, along with Joyce and Jo Ann Swayne, a pair of North Side twins, went to the convention together. They took their parents with them, or rather, their parents took them, or something, and managed to find a really good time, in fact doubly good.

Prizes were awarded to the youngest set of twins, the oldest set of twins, identical girl twins under 12 years, identical boy twins under 12

G. A. A. Plans Club Vaudeville In November

Clubs Are Urged To Aid; Some Have Volunteered To Compete For Prizes.

Prizes Are Offered For Superior Acts

Yearly Performance Possible If Show Is Success; Co-operation Asked of All.

Plans for the G. A. A. Vaudeville are getting under way, but not all of the clubs have enlisted yet.

Mr. Jack Wainwright, head of the music department, has promised his aid in the musical part of the project. If possible, both the boys' and girls' Glee Clubs will present separate acts.

The Social Science, Travel, and Math-Science clubs stated that they would participate in the vaudeville and would help in any way possible. These clubs will appoint their own committees to take charge of their respective acts.

The Lettermen's Club was very anxious to participate in this vaudeville, but the boys will still be in training and, as they cannot keep late hours, they will probably be unable to take part.

The G. A. A. will also present an act, but it will not be in line for a prize, as theirs is the club that is sponsoring the vaudeville.

There will be prizes of ten dollars, seven dollars, and three dollars for the best acts. An admission will be charged that will cover the money for the prizes. The exact date of the performance will be decided after all the clubs have reported, although it will probably take place in November. The place will also be decided later.

If all the clubs will participate, whether they are large or small, this project ought to be a big success. Nothing of this sort has even been presented in South Side before, although the school has had minstrel shows, plays and exhibitions.

If this project is a success, the G. A. A. hopes to make it an annual affair. With the co-operation of the faculty and students, it will surely prove successful.

"Blazing the Trail" Is So-Si-Y Theme

"By-Paths of Services" To Be Subject of Next Meet; City-Wide Wiener Bake Announced

"Blazing the Trail" was the theme of So-Si-Y's semi-annual membership party which was held on Tuesday evening in the Greeley Room.

Anna Bremer, president of the club, gave a welcome to the new members, and Connie Schultz, a new member, gave the response. Georgiana Jane Jones, popular accordionist and also a new member, played "The Silver Moon Waltz," "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 5," by Brahms, "What's the Reason I'm Not Pleased?" and "In a Little Gypsy Tea Room."

Reading Is Given

Barbara Von Gunten, another new club member, gave a humorous reading, "The Street Scale." Marjorie Donier, accompanied by Marjorie Glass, the piano, sang "Rhythm and Romance" and "The Simple Things in Life."

After the regular program, the various program committees gave impromptu stunts, which included songs, skits, and imitations. Norma Clauser was in charge of the entire program.

Philo Topic Is Literary Work Of Our Colonies

Topic of Next Meet Monday, Sept. 30, To Have Theme "America in Literature."

Potluck Is Given At Last Meeting

Subjects for Fall Meets Are Made; Plans for Party, Plays, Dances in Progress.

"America in Literature" was decided upon as the theme for the semester by the officers and Miss Demaree, the faculty adviser of the Philaethian Literary Society, at a meeting held Wednesday evening, September 20, at the apartment of the president, Ruth Adler.

The business meeting was preceded by a potluck supper. The officers present were Ruth Adler, president; Helen Anderson, vice-president; Dorothy Crabill, secretary; Betty Rose Lehman, treasurer; Mary Martha Hobrock, program chairman; Virginia Gardner, pianist, and Jane Loomis, publicity chairman.

Topics To Be Reviewed

At the next meeting of the Philaethian Literary Society, which will be on September 30, the first topic under the theme, America in Literature, will be reviewed by Mary Michals, Margaret Crankshaw, and Mary Martha Hobrock. This topic will be "Colonial Literature" and will be dealt with in two phases, "Literary Activities in the Virginia Colony" and "Literary Activities in the Plymouth Colony."

Other topics to be presented at later meetings will be "Revolutionary Literature," "The New York Group," and "The New England Group." The first of these will be reviewed by Clarence Rudy, Ruth Roudsack, and Geneva Shearer. The New York Group will be discussed by Ann Abbott, Helen Doenges, and Selma Liff. The last review will be given by Verna Holtman, Gwen Horn, and Maxine Howard.

Membership Drive Announced

The Philaethian Halloween party will be October 28. This will also be the initiation of the new members. In the membership drive, which is under way the gold team is leading. This team is captained by Helen Anderson and the White team by Verna Holtman. The campaign closes at midnight October 13. The losing team must then entertain the winners at the Halloween party.

The Philaethian quartet is under the direction of Helen Flaig.

The Philaethian quartet under the direction of Helen Flaig is already under way. Many interesting plans have been made for the Phila Dance to be held November 9, the day of the South Side-Central football game.

This evening there will be a meeting in room 68 of all those who are interested in taking part or assisting in some plays to be given this fall. The first of these will be "Seven to One," a very humorous college play. The next play under consideration will probably be "No Men Wanted," also a comedy. Everyone cannot participate in every play but it will try to be arranged so that everyone will have their chance in at least one.

Dante and Tegner Meterite Subjects

Famous Italian, Swedish Poets' Works and Lives to Comprise Club Meeting September 31.

A Meterite meeting will be held on Tuesday, September 31, in the Greeley Room. The interesting program has been planned for this meeting. It will consist of a discussion of the works and biographies of Dante, Italian poet, and Tegner, Swedish poet. Some musical numbers will also be given by the members of the Meterite Club. After the program, various games will be played.

A meeting of the Meterite officers was held Tuesday, September 24, in room 60. The officers for this semester include: Betty Pugh, president; Phyllis Geller, vice-president; Ruth Baade, secretary; Ann Peters, treasurer; Ruth Henline, social chairman; Lillas Patton, publicity chairman; and Lillian Gunzenhouser, program chairman. All freshmen and 10B girls are urged to join the Meterite Club, which is a literary organization. To be eligible, a girl must have and maintain a B average in English. The dues are twenty-five cents a semester.

Language Classes Sometimes Make Humorous Errors

One would be surprised at the small but humorous mistakes that happen in the different language departments. The other day, Miss Woodward was telling her 9B Latin students about the peculiar bath towel the Romans used. They were amazed at hearing that the Romans rubbed their bodies with oil. After exercising, the oil and the dust that had collected were scraped off with a bronze strigil that looked like a curved knife.

Jerry Zehr, one of our prominent juniors now taking French I, was supposed to write "there is" in French on the blackboard. The French spelling is "viola," while Jerry wrote "Viola," a girl's name, instead. Another student of Miss Perkins wrote "est" instead of "et" for the French spelling of "and." This made the phrase mean "father is mother" instead of "father and mother."

Wiener Bake Is Wrangler Event

Speech Club Holds Outing for Guests, Members at Vesey's Last Monday, September 23.

Wranglers annual social gathering in the form of a wiener bake for guests and members of the club was held at Vesey's on Monday, September 23. The evening's entertainment consisted mainly of the bake and a few games and songs. Gwendolyn Horn, vice-president, explained and directed the various games in which everyone participated, including the club's adviser, Dorothy Benner.

Sunshiners Make Convention Plans

Membership Campaign Still On; All Girls Planning To Be Members Are Urged To Come.

All girls who are planning to become members of the Sunshine Club are urged to be present at its next meeting, which will be held next Tuesday, September 31.

Complete plans for the Sunshine Club Convention will be made at this time. The Club will also decide what they want to do in regard to the stunt show to be put on by the G. A. A.

Girls who have been appointed chairmen of committees for the convention are: Lunch, Betty Beyrau; check room, Dorothea Tobianski; guides, Francine Shepler; reception, Hazel Noll; conferences, Valeria Martin.

The membership campaign is still in full swing, and any girl who is not a member of U. S. A. or So-Si-Y is eligible to enter the Sunshine Club.

The Misses Edith and Mary Crowe are the faculty advisers for the club.

U.S.A. Will Hold Membership Party

Only Those Who Have Paid Dues Will Be Admitted To Social Today; Program Is Planned.

U. S. A. will hold a meeting in the form of a membership party this afternoon, in the Greeley Room at 3:20 o'clock.

Only paid members will be admitted. They will receive invitations by paying in rooms 34 or 62. The theme of the party is a radio broadcast.

The chairmen for committees are: Velma Connett, invitations; Kathryn McGinnittie, refreshments; and Barbara Raymond, entertainment.

Campaign For Subscriptions Will Continue

Home Room Agents Turn in Total Sum of 200 Since Beginning of School Term

Everyone Asked To Subscribe Now

Leona Menze, Kenneth Warren Agents Agents Room 36, Library Have Most.

Studes of Room 140 Promised Ice Cream

Last week, in the absence of Miss Dorothy A. Magley, Mr. R. Nelson Snider acted as home room teacher for room 140. Mr. Snider promised the home room members that he would buy them all Brown Giants if their Times subscription total was perfect. Vera Mosel, room agent for room 140, reports that seventeen of the twenty members have subscribed; and that with the other three members having promised to do so soon, Mr. Snider's promise will have to be carried out.

"About two hundred Times subscriptions have been turned in by home room agents since Tuesday, September 17," stated Miss Rowena Harvey, faculty adviser of the Times, last Monday evening.

The subscription campaign will continue until previous years' records have been shattered. Every one who can possibly do so, is again urged to subscribe to the country's best high school paper.

Total Subscriptions Listed

Leona Menze and Kenneth Warren, agents for rooms 36 and 113, have turned in the most subscriptions to date. Their totals are announced as twenty-five each. Four home rooms have totals of twenty-two subscriptions. Their agents are Dorothy Crabill, Helen Anderson, Ruth Garrison, and Eleanor Vesey.

Book four, which is in charge of Assistant Circulation Manager Helen Anderson, has reported a total of 202 subscriptions. Other book totals are Book one, in charge of Julia Crabill, 177; Book 2, in charge of Ina Claire Chappell, 175; Book 5, in charge of Ruth Henline, 167; and Book 3, in charge of Eleanor Vesey, 152.

Dorothy Crabill has been appointed the circulation manager for the 1936 Totem. She is in charge of the campaign.

Math-Science Will Hear Talk By Mr. Gould

"Trees of Indiana" Topic Of Scheduled Speech; Officers To Be Inducted.

An illustrated lecture on "The Trees of Indiana" will be given by Mr. Elma Gould at the first meeting of the Math-Science Club tomorrow evening in the Greeley room.

A few general facts about trees will be given by him before he shows the slides which he is obtaining from the state university. The beauty and importance of trees in nature with studies of leaves, buds, barks, and flowers, and with special emphasis upon the ingenious flowers and fruits of the trees will be pointed out by Mr. Gould with the aid of these slides.

To Join in Vaudeville

John Bex, president; Ruth Adler, vice-president; Helen Anderson, secretary; and Dave Sherman, treasurer, will be installed into their respective offices.

Following the business meeting, games will be played and taffy apples will be served as the refreshments.

At a special meeting of the officers, it was decided that Math-Science would have an act in the G. A. A. vaudeville. John Bex appointed Ruth Garrison chairman of the committee to plan this act. This committee, which has already had several meetings, consists of Evelyn Kruse, Mildred Foellinger, Ruth Adler, Dick Helm, Bob Harruff, Selma Liff, and Don Sinish.

Schedule Is Announced

The following program for the year has been planned: October 25, Halloween party; November 8, outside speaker on Fort Wayne Waterworks, student speaker on mathematics; December 6, talk on calendars by Miss Paxton, and demonstration in physics; January 3, a student talk on geology and student talk on mathematics, election of officers, and recognition services.

J. E. Welch, 83, Has Seen Nearly All Archer Home Tilts

By Leona Menze

A small, smiling, hale and happy man of 83 years can truthfully boast that he has witnessed nearly every home game of South Side since the school began. This admirable record is held by J. E. Welch, living at his son's home at 2727 Oliver Street. Mr.

Welch is small in stature and has twinkling, friendly eyes.

Sitting comfortably in an "easy" chair, feet stretched out before him, and giving out no hint of self-consciousness, he appeared ready and willing to talk. He was born in 1852 in Lagrange County, and will be 83 years old this November. According to his own words, "I've never felt better in my life." He has been ill only a few times in his life. His most serious illness was pneumonia about four years ago.

However, he remarked scornfully, "It didn't last long." He moved to Fort Wayne in 1913, and got his first job at Weissner Park. He can talk of days when the South Side building was going up, and he loves it. He worked until he was 77 years of age and then retired.

Has Followed Basketball

First interest was aroused because of a former South Side pupil, and his granddaughter, Mervyn Welch, now Mrs. Boerger, and also Jane Welch, now Mrs. Beerman. He also had a niece and nephew in school, Jack and Dorothy Welch. Ever since their first game, he has remained loyal to South Side teams.

He has followed every South Side basketball game, and every football game as long as the weather permitted. He has made it a yearly practice of buying a season ticket book and has never wasted a basketball ticket and only a few football ones. He is generally interested in all athletic activities and follows them faithfully.

An earlier interest in athletics is attributed perhaps to that he also played basketball, years and years ago. These were the days when there were no coaches, and players had only their own merits and courage to carry them on. There is, undoubtedly, a tremendous change for the better in athletics since that time, he thinks.

Amplifying System In Stadium To Be Used Saturday

To Announce Plays In Tilt With Maroon

Newly-Installed Unit To Be Used At All Grid Games, Track Meets If A Success.

Speaker System First In Vicinity

South Side Stadium Now on Same Level With Modern College Athletic Fields.

In connection with the policy of the South Side athletic department for constant improvement, a new speaker system has been installed in the stadium for use beginning with the game Saturday against Mishawaka. The new system will be used at all football games and all track events.

The speaker system is the first one to be installed in any high school stadium in this vicinity. It will do much toward placing the Archer gridiron on a par with some college stadiums in respect to equipment.

Fool-Proof Outfit
In constructing the new system, the athletic department has endeavored to secure a fool-proof outfit. All wiring within the stadium has been laid underground in a semi-circle around the south end of the field. Three speakers have been placed on each sideline. These speakers, which were formerly used next to the scoreboard in the gymnasium, have been set up on poles to minimize the danger of their being broken.

A socket, into which the microphone connection will be made, has been set into the ground on the sideline at the fifty-yard mark. A lapel microphone is to be connected with fifty yards of flexible wire in order that the announcer may travel the entire length of the field.

Cost Is $400
The announcer will give all details of the game which the fans cannot see from the stands. He will have an assistant to help in getting the information. When a peculiar case arises the announcer will explain the play for the benefit of those possessing only a meagre knowledge of the rules. Since the new system will also be used to report the downs, yardage, and time to play, the scoreboard at the north end of the stadium will be used only for the score.

The amplifier will be kept in the janitor's room under the west side of the gym. All expenses for the new system, which was set up by the Radio Research Laboratories of Fort Wayne, will be paid by the athletic department of South Side. The cost of the system was approximately four hundred dollars.

Columbia City Coach Is N. E. I. C. President

The Northeastern Indiana High School Athletic conference held its annual meeting last Monday at Central High School. H. R. Smiley of Columbia City, was elected president of the organization at this meeting. Other officers selected are J. B. Good of Hartford City, vice-president, and W. Guy Brown of Decatur, secretary-treasurer. All three leaders are principals of the high schools in their respective cities.

The N. E. I. C. is comprised of nine schools, the three high schools in this city, Columbia City, Kendallville, Decatur, Auburn, Bluffton, and Hartford City. Garrett dropped out of the conference last spring and has not yet been replaced.

Trophies for the 1934-35 season were awarded at this time. The awards were made as follows: Football, Decatur; basketball, South Side and Central, tie; track, North Side; baseball, Hartford City; tennis, singles and doubles, Central; golf, South Side.

Archers Outplay Van Wert Saturday To Win Easily 26-0

South Side's gridders opened up a powerful offense in the second half of their game against Van Wert Saturday, scoring four touchdowns and two extra points to win by a score of 26 to 0. The Archers, in showing their unexpectedly tough offensive, gave a welcome treat to the crowd of fans who witnessed the first home tilt of the season.

The Archers outplayed their opponents in nearly every department. The Green gained 295 yards from scrimmage; the Buckeyes advanced only 71 yards. South Side chalked up the grand total of fifteen first downs; their opponents made only four. Van Wert threw nine passes, completing four for 31 yards. Two of these passes were intercepted by South Side, one being good for a touchdown. South Side tossed ten passes. Two of these were completed and one more was called complete for interference with the receiver. These three gained a total of 47 yards for the Archers.

Van Wert fumbled twice, losing the ball both times. South Side fumbled once but recovered.

Fumbles Prevent Scoring
South Side had one chance to score in the first period. The Green recovered a Van Wert fumble on the Ohio 48-yard line. Parmelee threw a pass which was called incomplete for interference with the receiver on the 40-yard line. Benz then went 13 yards for a first down. Parmelee, Lee, and Benz lugged the ball to the 14 for another first down. On the next play, an attempted pass lost fourteen yards. The Green was unable to make this up, losing the ball on downs. Van Wert punted out of danger as the quarter ended.

The Archers had another and better scoring opportunity in the second period. After a lengthy exchange of punts in midfield, South Side gained possession of the ball on the Ohio 47-yard mark. After three plays, Benz got away for nine yards and a first down. On the next play Feichter went off tackle and was away for a touchdown when he slipped twelve yards from the goal. Two plays gained nine yards, leaving three to go for a touchdown and one for a first down. However, the Ohio defense rose to the occasion, stopped the thrust, and punted out. Allen Faux attempted a field goal, but was unsuccessful. Van Wert again took the ball and stalled away the remaining time.

Fireworks in Second Half
South Side finally broke into the scoring column after a seventy-yard march down the field. They received the kick-off on their own 33. Feichter tossed a pass to Ellenwood which was good for twenty-four yards. Hosier went around end and Feichter off-tackle for two more first downs. Feichter then went around right end for a touchdown. Lee's placekick was good for the extra point. Shortly afterward, Nye recovered a fumble on Van Wert's 38-yard stripe. Feichter tossed a pass to Meyers on the twenty and then swept around right end to the nine-yard line. Benz then scored through the center of the line standing up. Lee's placekick was again perfect. The end of the third period found the Archers in possession of the ball on the 14-yard stripe.

At the beginning of the final quarter, Hines attempted a place kick, which was blocked and recovered by the Buckeyes on their 47. Ohio began throwing passes and completed two for a first down. Ed Kruse then intercepted a pass on the 40-yard line and ran for another touchdown. The kick for extra point was low. The Buckeyes again began tossing passes and travelled to South Side's 40-yard line, the closest they came to the goal during the game. Ed Kruse again intercepted a pass to break up the offense.

Archers Seek Win, Avenge Former Defeat

Week-End Game Will Open Long List of Home Tilts Scheduled for Gridmen.

Team Has Hopes To Take Cavemen

Lineup Will Probably Include Ostermeyer, Wilson, Nye, Parmalee, Meyers.

South Side's grid squad will tackle the Mishawaka Cavemen Saturday afternoon in the second of a long list of home games scheduled for this season. The game will start at 2:30 p. m. When the Archers meet the Cavemen Saturday, they will have a double incentive to win. The Green will have an opportunity to gain revenge for the 13-to-7 defeat which the Ma- rion handed them last year after three of the Archers' backfield were injured. By winning, South Side can keep their undefeated record clean for this year.

Mishawaka Outfit Tough
Mishawaka usually has an outfit tough enough to provide the Archers with a mighty interesting afternoon and this season's squad is expected to prove no exception. However, if the Kellyklads can keep up the good work they displayed against Van Wert last week, especially on the offensive, they may be able to take the Cavemen into camp.

Coach Welborn has put his charges through touch practice sessions this week as well as giving them skill practice. Consequently, the Green should have some of the rough edges polished off.

Starting Lineup Unknown
The starting lineup for the game is unknown at present, but it is probable that it will consist of Ostermeyer in the center position, Wilson and Bennett at guards, Nye and Makey occupying the tackle positions. D. Faux and Ellenwood as ends, Meyers or Woodhull at quarterback, Feichter or Parmalee in left halfback, Benz or Kruse right halfback, and Lee in the fullback position.

Three Games Open G. A. A. Hockey Season

The official G. A. A. hockey season started last Friday, with the scrimmage game between Sophomore 1 and 2. Eleanor Rarick played a fast game for Sophomore 2, and hit the ball between the posts two times for the total scoring for her team. Sophomore 1 did not score. At four o'clock, Sophomore 4 defeated Sophomore 3, 4 to 2. The upper bracket of the tournament opened when Junior 1 and 2 played at 4:30. Junior 2 came through the winner with three goals. The unusually good play of Winifred Locker as center halfback prevented any more goals from being made. Enita Snaveley and Edna Disler played good, fast games for Junior 2.

"The Choice of Them All"

Archer opponents, beware! South Side's grid machine gave full warning of their power when they swamped Van Wert last Saturday.

Some idea of the strength the Green showed last week may be gained from a few statistics. The Archers gained from scrimmage over four times as much ground as their opponents. South Side gained nearly three hundred yards; Van Wert, less than seventy-five. The Green made fifteen first downs; the Buckeyes four. On two occasions the Kelly Klads staged seventy-yard marches, both of these ending in touchdowns.

The whole team played a bang-up game, fighting all the way. However, the backfield provided the biggest surprises; the line was expected to be good.

Bud Feichter's performance was the biggest surprise of all. He showed a lot of driving power and worked hard all the while he was in the game. He made several first downs and scored one of the touchdowns.

Ed Kruse's pass defense was also a standout. He broke up two Van Wert offenses by intercepting passes. One of these he ran back half the length of the field for a touchdown.

Bud Lee had three chances to convert the point after touchdown and made good on all three. However, on one occasion a South Side player was off-side, voiding the kick.

Central's victory over Elkhart marked the first game in which the Tigers have converted an extra point. So far they have cashed in on two out of about fifteen chances after touchdown.

G. A. A. Office Changed
Until this summer the G. A. A. club room was located where the new book store now is, under the front middle incline. This room was also used for storing part of the G. A. A. equipment. All committees and gym office girls used the room for their various assignments. The G. A. A. is now storing equipment in the room under the bleachers and in a small storeroom by the handball court.

Intramural Net Tournery Starts; Medal Is Prize

Semi-Annual Tennis Games Begin; Not Too Late To Enter; Deadline Friday.

"Intramural tennis begins its official season tonight," stated Mr. Briner at the first tennis meeting this fall, held last Monday after school. At this time Mr. Briner explained the point system used in this sport and also the medal awarded for the 1935 tennis champion. Those who signed up were paired off for competition. This first group of players were to play and report the results to Mr. Briner by Wednesday evening. It was also added that any others wishing to participate in tennis must sign up by Friday of this week.

Eighteen players signed up the first night and were to play in whatever courts they desired. Foster and Weiser Parks being the favorites.

Scholastic, the National High School Weekly, will again award a medal to the tennis player in South Side who wins the official high school championship tournament. This medal may be inspected by anyone interested, and may be found in Mr. Briner's office.

The names of those who signed the first evening follow: Bob Schaaf, Gene Cassidy, Victor Nussbaum, Orr, Schelp, Bailey, Bostic, Miller, Leonard Weinraub, Earl Hofstetter, Joe Bell, Jackson, Osborn, Armstrong, Hubert Klopfenstein, Lehman, Norman Buck, and Dalton McAllister.

Several South Side Pigskin Toters State Opinion on Chances

The opinions of the team on this year's prospects all seemed to lead to the same point. They all think South Side will have a tough squad this year. After the results of the Woodward and Van Wert games probably the student body is inclined to agree with them. Although the team lacks experience, it has proved itself to be strong both on the defensive and on the offensive. Some of the player's personal opinions are expressed by the following:

Fred Nye expressed his opinion by saying: Fair enough.
Wayne Bennett: Fine bunch of boys, good chance this season.
Merl Norris: If we keep up the good work, we are sure to be a winner.
Fred Ostermeyer: We have some good material, all they need is experience.
Harold Benz: Pretty tough.
Bud Feichter: Get out and battle. We will win the city championship.
Bill Wilson: Should be tough.
Herman Makey: We're going to do pretty good, from the looks of things.
Bud Lee: Not bad.

French Club Topic To Be Marseilles

French Games To Be Played; Program Is Part of Theme; New Members Are Invited.

Marseilles is the topic of the French Club meeting to be held at 3:20 o'clock this afternoon in the Voorhees room. The city is noted for its shipping and is the first one to be studied in connection with the club's theme, "Famous French cities and their industries." Members of the program committee will tell those present interesting facts about the customs, foods, history, population, and about other industries for which Marseilles is famous.

Lillian Gable, temporary program chairman, has as her committee for this meeting Mildred Rudig and Virginia Wood. They have planned several French games in addition to the rest of the program.

All pupils who have had at least one semester's work in French and who have had a grade of B or above are cordially invited to attend this meeting. To become a member of the club, one must attend three meetings and not be absent from any future meetings without a good excuse. Miss Olive B. Perkins is faculty adviser for the club, and Theo Schurenberg is acting as temporary chairman until the officers for this term are elected.

Wo-Ho-Mas Hold Important Meeting

New Officers in Charge; Club To Be Member of National Association; Explain System.

The first meeting of Wo-Ho-Ma Club was held on September 19, at 3:30 o'clock in the Greeley Room. The meeting was in charge of the new officers, who are: President, Faith Clark; vice-president, Dorothea Tobianski; secretary-treasurer, Audrey Jeffries.

The project to be taken up this semester is "Prominent Women of America." Helen Clark will review the "Life of Jane Adams" at the next meeting. The point system was also explained.

It was announced that the club will become a member of the national association.

Jack Geiger, '35 Grad, Subscribes To Times

Even after they have left their Alma Mater, South Side students usually retain a conviction that the Times is "the" high school newspaper and continue to subscribe to it, a precedent that is followed by Jack Geiger, who has already sent his subscription to Miss Harvey.

Jack, a June graduate, joined the United States Army just after school was out, and is now stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. He belongs to Company B and is a member of the band there. In his recent communication he stated that he likes Army life very well.

While he was at South Side, Jack was a member of the music department, was also prominent in art, and a chief helper in Booster Club.

Nine Students Leave During Initial Weeks

Even though South Side started only three weeks ago, nine students have already left this school to work, to go to other local schools, or even to go out of the city. Most of the students who have left are freshmen or sophomores. Janis Steele has gone to Elmhurst, Peggy Ann Daily to Central, Alleen Dorrell to Indianapolis, Rollin Mason to work, Richard Nelson to Central, Alec Coleman to Central, Florence Anderson to work, Theodore Deck to Central Catholic, and Bill Bender to Detroit.

Class Room News

Several club reports were given in the second, third, and fourth period classes of Miss Pauline Van Gorder Thursday, September 19. The reports were given by two or three representatives from each club.

The principle idea of the talks was to interest 9B boys and girls in the clubs in which they are eligible. The talks were very interesting, and altogether gave the pupils an insight into each club.

Each talk was based on the purpose of the respective club, and its general activities. The dues and place of meeting were also mentioned. At the end of the talks, the pupils had the privilege of asking questions concerning the clubs.

The speakers are Vivian Woods, Ellen Meese, Eldora Buesking, U. S. A.; Francine Shepler, Betty Jane Snyder, Ellen Dirmeyer, Sunshine; Fredrick Prange, Pebble Pups; Marian Roehrs, Junior-Math; Ruth Henline, Betty Pugh, Ruth Baade, Meterites; Georgianna Jacobs, Art Club; Leona Menze, Harriet Basford, Wilma Butler, Travel Club; Elizabeth Linhart, Maxine Borchert, Betty Rayl, Rifle Club; Marjorie Hower, Ruth Berning, Barbara Raymonds, G. A. A.; William Hebermehl, Radio Club; Mary Ann Fark, John Bex, Ruth Eysenberg, Marjorie Club; Faith Clark, Wo-Ho-Ma.

In a recent vocabulary test, the following pupils in Miss Schmidt's German 1 classes received a grade of 100 percent: Donald Carrier, James Derr, Dixie Hanna, Eleanor Kneller, Rosemary Lehman, Herbert Rodermund, Harold Fremont, Walter Prange, Betty Tuerschan, and Olive Zahn.

In Mr. Gilbert's second period health class, Kenny Miller was asked one of the advantages of fishing as a form of recreation. He said for one thing it taught you to be patient. (Maybe he has had experience).

Mr. Gilbert kindly informed one of his health classes that if they wanted to get rid of any money just to drop it on the floor, because he would sweep after school.

The officers of Miss Thorne's freshman home room were elected as follows: Paul Herrman, president, and Annabelle Heckler, secretary.

Mr. Sidell gave to his seventh period general civics class a very well thought out test. The average of the first test was 94, the second, 83.

In Miss Kelley's home room the following people were elected for officers: Glen Helm, president; Ruth Gerber, secretary. Ruth is also chairman of the program committee with John Hines and Betty Gross assisting her.

Dick Woodity, Max Hower, Robert Weil, Kenneth Allway, and James Phelps have made fifteen points for outside reading in Miss Hemmer's English classes.

Election of officers was held in Miss Smeltzley's home room, and the following were elected: President, Herman Spillner; vice-president, Geraldine Schaefer; secretary, Mildred Shepler, and chairman of social committee, Ruth Seifert, assisted by Eric Seibt, Doreen Russell, and Paul Sivits.

Senior Hi-Y Plans Future Activities

Contest for Semester Is Started; Fred Nye, Morgan Harrison Elected as Team Captains.

Many interesting activities for the semester were planned by the Senior Hi-Y at a meeting held Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Some of the activities for the semester include potlucks, discussions, and many interesting speakers, some of which are from our school.

A potluck was planned for next week's meeting, with Coach Friddle as the speaker. The program committee, consisting of Morgan Harrison, Bob Miller, and Ned Henslee, is planning a good time for everybody.

The club was divided into two factions with Fred Nye and Morgan Harrison as captains. A contest between the two groups, lasting all semester, will be held. The losers will give a party for the winners the week before school closes. The club once more extends a welcome to all senior boys and urges them to join as soon as possible so as to participate in all its activities.

Seniors Hear Talks On Totem and Elections

Mr. Snider requested the presence of all South Side seniors at a meeting in the gymnasium Monday morning, September 21, at which time he talked to them about the senior election of class officers and the Totem, which these 1936 class members are to issue.

Concerning the class election which took place Tuesday, Mr. Snider announced that each student of the class should vote for one person for president, one for vice-president, one for secretary, and three for the social council. The three students of the class having the highest vote for president, vice-president, and secretary, and the nine having the highest vote for social council will be put on the final ballot for next week, he announced.

Upon being introduced by the principal, Louis Bonisb, editor of the Totem, talked to his fellow classmates telling them that there is some sort of a job for everyone who wishes to work on the Totem. Louis then introduced the circulation manager, David Crabb, who said that she knew that the Totem would be a fine one and that she hoped the circulation of it would be great. Mr. Snider had the last word by giving the seniors a pep talk which ended the meeting.

Pebble Pups To Begin Reorganization Soon

"Complete reorganization of the Pebble Pups is necessary," stated Mr. Whelan, faculty adviser. Nearly all the members of this club graduated last spring.

Anyone who is interested in the different kinds of rocks and precious stones is invited to attend the next meeting.

In past years pupils have found this club very interesting, and Mr. Whelan hopes that the new members will find it as interesting. At the first meeting Jack Hargans talked on different types of rocks.

Left-Over Totems Are To Be Sold

It has been announced that for the small sum of twenty-five cents each, students can purchase Totems of the years 1934, 32, 31, 29, 27, and 25. If you have missed or failed to buy a Totem for these years, buy it at the Totem office now. At such a small price there will be a large demand for them, so buy yours early.

Collectors of Weeds Must Pay Penalty For Their Errors

Did you ever mistake the leaf of an elm tree for a weed? Or find that you were grasping in your hand a spray of poison ivy? These are only two of the crucial moments experienced by some of our earnest weed collectors. These "earnest collectors" are members of Mr. Gould's first, second, fourth, and seventh period botany 1 classes, each of whom has to make a collection of at least twelve weeds as a requisite to pass the course. After this requisite has been assembled, a student may gather as many more as he likes, and his grade will be accordingly raised. Most of the pupils collected more than the necessary amount and one girl turned in seventy-five.

Students Mount Plants
After they had been gathered, the students pressed the weeds and prepared them for mounting at home. They were given boards and labels with which to mount the weeds at school. A number of mounted and labeled weeds posted in the botany room served as identifications for those assembled by students. If this failed to aid, Mr. Gould identified them.

The group of mounted weeds will be studied by the classes until they have thoroughly mastered the names and appearance of the weeds, at which time they will be given a test on them.

Weeds Valuable in Medicines
Mr. Gould stated that, although many people think that weeds are of no value, they really have many uses. The foremost of these is, of course, the value of weeds in making medicines. Another use is to make the soil fertile and to make humus. Weeds prevent erosion of the soil and scattering by the wind. They help to hold the snow on the ground in the winter, thus giving the soil water. The recent dust storms in the West were a result of the absence of weeds; if there had been weeds, the dust could not have been blown about by the wind.

Definitions Are Given
Several definitions of a weed have been formulated, but the most common are the following:
1. A weed is a plant out of place.
2. A weed is a plant whose virtues have not yet been discovered.
3. A weed is a plant which contests with man for the possession of the soil.
The worst weeds are those which multiply most rapidly. A few of this class are the Purslane, Speedwell, Yellow Foxtail, Crab-grass, and Pigweed.

Library To Have Painting For Room

"Through the Looking Glass" Is Title; Picture Work of Miss Jeanette Waughtell, Artist.

"Through the Looking Glass," a mural done as one of the FERA projects and presented to the Fort Wayne public library for the children's room, has been included in the exhibit of art work done by unemployed artists in the state. The exhibit opened September 15 at the John Herron Art Institute in Indianapolis. The picture, which is the work of Miss Jeanette Waughtell, a graduate of the John Herron Art School, whose experience has been chiefly in the field of children's art, is particularly fitted for a children's library. Colorfully and symbolically it represents Alice, a dainty miss in a blue dress and crisp white apron, crossing a threshold and beckoning other children to follow her. She is about to step into the magic realm of literature, where before her is Aladdin and his wonderful lamp with which he has conjured up a geni. Grouped around him are the mad hatter, one of King Arthur's knights, Cinderella, and many other famous characters in children's literature. The painting is done in brilliant oils, and its framework is of black and yellow.

Display Story Pictures
Sixty pieces, the work of thirty-five artists, are included in this two-weeks display. Federal funds backed the Emergency Relief Administration artists in sponsoring and producing the work, which consists of nine water colors, six murals, two statues, three frescoes, twenty-eight oils, a set of drawings, and one of wood blocks. Five members of the famous Brown County Artists' Colony engaged in the work, and artists from approximately twenty other counties took part.

"Through the Looking Glass" will be sent to Fort Wayne where it will be placed permanently when the Indianapolis exhibition has closed.

Teacher Heads Campaign
The membership drive of the Civic theatre was led by Miss Marjorie Suter, who sold the greatest number of memberships. Miss Suter is instructor of dramatics in the Fort Wayne high schools.

Library Initiates Hold Parade On Rudisill Boulevard Tuesday

Strolling down Rudisill Boulevard on Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock, was Popeye, the Sailor Man, (really Selma Liff, one of the Library Club initiates, in disguise). Ruth Berning, dressed as a little girl and dragging her toys, was seen escorting her boy friend, Don Sinish, who was dressed as a baby carrying a bottle and ringing an alarm clock at the top of its voice.

"Wuxtra! Wuxtra!" Something awful must have happened—but no, it was Evelyn Kruse on her way to the library Weiner lake. Following her with his hair in pigtails was Arlin Greiser. Reckon as how this next one could be none other than good old Mammy Yokum La Von Cook. "Wanna buy a duck?" inquired James Geiger as Joe Penner, dragging the aforementioned duck behind him. Next your reporter spied two little boys dressed in short pants, one of them carrying a teddy bear. They were Bob Gargett and Bill Hebermehl. Ah! another comic strip character, Little Orphan Annie Rosemarie Lehman wearing oodles and oodles of lipstick.

Another boy, no a girl, Phyllis Barrows in overalls. Did you ever see a girl wearing lipstick for eyebrow shadow and vice versa? Well, Gerry Valentin did, and right on Rudisill. Hazel Kuttler was also seen on that busy thoroughfare wearing a kiddie's dress and anklets. At the rear of this comical parade was Einstein's Ghost (Richard Gebert) explaining to the world in general his theory of relativity. Upon arrival at the park, the initiates were swatted about like flies with huge paddles by the old members of the organization, who include Vera Ellinger, Martha Franz, Maxine Marjotte, Bill Fries, George Anna Martin, Helen Potter, Jo Anne Smith, and Sonia Volkoff. Green and silver finger-nail polish was placed on the initiates hands to stay there a week, these being the club colors.

"Events" Is Theme Of Social Science

Times Column Again Taken Over; Members To Co-operate With G. A. A. for Vaudeville.

Social Science Club held its first meeting of the semester on Friday evening, September 19, at 7:30 o'clock in the Greeley Room. Bob Adams, president, was in charge of the meeting with the aid of the other officers, who are: John Bex, vice-president; Manuel Rothberg, secretary, and Bryce Minier, sergeant-at-arms.

Plans for the semester were discussed, and it was decided that the club would again take charge of the current events column in The Times. The theme of the meetings will be current events, and several speakers will be asked to discuss worthwhile problems. It was also decided that the Social Science members would co-operate with the G. A. A. in producing their vaudeville to be given on November 16.

District Convention of Sunshine Club Meets Here Saturday

Nye, Zehr, Hines Named To Lead Student Activities

Crabill, Adler, Greiner, Adams, Helm Senior Choices For Lower Class Offices.

Henslee, Fathauer Next Two Juniors

Julia Crabill, McConnell, Joan Bonsib, Raymond, Roth Other Sophs Named.

Three boys of athletic ability, Fred Nye, Jerry Zehr, and John Hines, were elected to the presiding offices of the senior, junior, and sophomore classes respectively in the final class elections held in the home rooms Tuesday.

Fred Nye is a varsity football player, a prominent member of Letterman's Club, and acted as president of his class during his junior year. Jerry Zehr, who also was president of his class last year, is an outstanding swimmer, an athlete, and a member of Wranglers.

The sophomore president, John Hines, is a member of the football and basketball teams, and a participant in intramural sports.

The seniors chose as their vice-president Dorothy Crabill, who is circulation manager of the Totem, secretary of Philo Club, a past president of U. S. A., and member of Wranglers and Philatelic Club, and a G. A. A. letter girl. The senior secretary is Ruth Adler. She is also very active, president of Philo, vice-president of Math-Science, an outstanding public speaker, and a member of G. A. A., So-Si-Y, and the Times and Totem staffs.

The senior social council consists of Virginia Greiner, an outstanding Booster member as chairman; Robert Adams, president of Social Science; and Dick Helm, make-up editor of the Times.

Other junior officers are vice-president, Ned Henslee; secretary, Virginia Fathauer; and social council, Jean Creighton, chairman; Richard Dent, and Robert Storm. Ned Henslee spends much time participating in intramural sports and Virginia Fathauer is a former vice-president and secretary of U. S. A., a member of Philo and a member of the honor roll.

Julia Crabill, who is president of U. S. A., and an assistant circulation manager of the Times staff, was chosen vice-president of the sophomore class. Paul McConnell, a member of Wranglers and drama classes, was elected secretary. Joan Bonsib, Barbara Raymond, and James Roth, as chairman, comprise the social council. Votes were made by ballots, containing the names of all the nominees for the respective classes, in the home rooms.

Miss Smeltzley To Speak on "Berlin"

"German Cities" Term's Theme; German Club's Wiener Roast Takes Place at Foster Park.

In keeping with the German Club theme of this semester, "German Cities," Miss Eleanor Smeltzley, who recently visited Berlin and other European cities, is scheduled to speak on that famous German capital on October 9.

New members who were accepted for admittance to the club are Violet Garton, Irene Dicke, Janice Dyer, Pauline Oetting, Helen Faux, and Tom Sellers.

Little rays of sunshine supervised by Mamma Sun herself decided to make a picture. A "moving" picture. Yes indeed, and the rays began to collect. Oh! What a bright glow it made; think of it, over 700 rays of sunshine all gathered together in Fort Wayne to do justice to Sunshine creed.

The picture was to be a mammoth, quaint, merry-maker.

In it were to be all the funniest and merriest South Side Sunshiners and even Sunshiners from way down South on the Wabash. Yes the picture was going to cover a lot of territory (not meant for the girls). The idea of the picture was to be very carefully worked out by those two bright colors of the rainbow, the Misses Edith and Mary Crowe.

The Sunshine project, "Build Well" was to be expressed quite simply in the building up of the picture and as it progressed through to the finish.

The lead was ably taken by South Side's amusing entertainer, Iona Schuler. Betty Beyran and Dorothea Tobianski, popular mimics, were slated for the assisting roles. Caroline Dirmeyer, Thelma Erwin, and Frances Rygowski rolled through the film as the "Tripping Trio."

Lead Upper Classes

Fred Nye

Jerry Zehr

Fred Nye and Jerry Zehr were elected new presidents for the senior and junior classes, respectively, in the class elections held Tuesday. Both boys are veterans at their positions, having served as presidents of their classes last year.

Marionette Club Election October 3

Members Decide to Concentrate Efforts on Christmas Production; New Members Join.

Marionette Club's first meeting of the semester, which was held Thursday, September 19, in room 140; was featured by the nomination of officers for the term's activities. The new officers will be chosen at the next meeting, October 3. The offices of secretary and of treasurer were combined into that of secretary-treasurer.

It was decided that no move will be taken to prepare a skit for the G. A. A. Vod-Vil, which is to be held on November 15. The club will concentrate its efforts entirely on the annual Christmas play, which probably will be given just before the vacation period begins.

New members who were accepted for admittance to the club are Violet Garton, Irene Dicke, Janice Dyer, Pauline Oetting, Helen Faux, and Tom Sellers.

Present officers are: president, John Bex; vice-president, Gergetta McIntire; secretary, Mary Anne Park; treasurer, Eliza Bess Lucas; and Inter-Club Congress representative, Kenneth Scott. These officers will relinquish their positions at the next meeting.

Students To Dance

The students of Great Falls High School, Great Falls, Montana, will participate in a snake dance which will form at the courthouse.

Mystery Completes Picture

The picture contained a bit of mystery and this was promptly provided by the ghosts of What-Not and Sunshine Juniors. It progressed beautifully. Representatives from all over the state did most of the chorus work and several others also took leads.

A feature in the picture was the combined singing of "My Sunshine Girl." The Sunshine Club of South Side stood in front of the chorus and gestured with the words as the rest sang. Everything was well except that everyone except Dorothy Zaegel was out of time—but no one noticed that—much.

The picture ended majestically and sincerely and all the amateur actors were quite pleased with themselves—and so was everyone else. The contribute to the Riley fund and they do provide a great deal of merriment—may they live on—these rays of sunshine.

Back-to-School Night Will Be On October 14

Annual Membership Campaign of Parent-Teacher Association To Be Held.

The seventh Back-to-School Night, sponsored by the South Side Parent-Teacher Association, is scheduled for Monday evening, October 14. On this evening the parents of all South Side students are invited to come to school and to visit all of the classes attended by their children during the day. The classes will be ten minutes in length, and the parents will go through the same routine of classes as the boys and girls do during the day.

The annual membership drive made by the Parent-Teacher Association will be held on the same evening. Although the P.T.A. hopes to enlist all the parents in their drive, the parents are urged to attend on this evening whether or not they pay their membership dues. The dues are 25 cents for one member, or 35 cents for both the father and mother, and the dues will be collected during the home room periods of the Back-to-School program.

It is hoped that the membership in the P.T.A. will be increased this year, although South Side High School has the largest P.T.A. in the state. The school officials and officers of the P.T.A. have expressed their sincere hope that the parents of all the students will attend this event. This occasion will afford a timely opportunity for parents to become acquainted with the teachers of South Side, and to appreciate the curriculum offered to the students.

An outstanding event of the meeting will be the serving of lunch in the cafeteria during the fourth and fifth periods. Parents are urged to remember this.

Students are requested to copy their daily programs for their parents, to insure a minimum of confusion. The time schedule is as follows: Home Room, 7:39-7:45; period 1, 7:50-8:00; period 2, 8:05-8:15; period 3, 8:20-8:30; period 4, 8:35-8:45; period 5, 8:50-9:00; period 6, 9:05-9:15; period 7, 9:20-9:30.

Meterites Discuss Plans for Skating

Next Meeting To Be Membership Party; Reports on Tegner Dante Given at Last Meeting.

The members of the Meterite Club held a meeting on Tuesday, October 1, at 3:30 o'clock in the Greeley Room.

During the business meeting the plans for the coming skating party were discussed; the date, transportation, and the like being decided. The reports from the various committees concerning the skating party were given. Betty Lee Wilson is chairman of the poster committee, and Ruth Henline is chairman of the ways and means committee for the party.

The semi-annual Meterite theatre party was also discussed. Phyllis Culver, who is in charge of the party, gave a report concerning the various shows which are to be shown in Fort Wayne in the near future. The members of the club have decided to hold their theatre party on Tuesday afternoon, October 8. They plan to see "Top Hat" which will be shown at the Embassy Theatre next week.

A Meterite membership party will be held one week from this Tuesday, which is October 15. Only paid members may attend.

The new freshman members of Meterites were then presented to the club.

Dues were paid by many of the members at that time.

During the program for this meeting the biography of Tegner, the Swedish poet, was given by Helen Cox. Joan Bonsib gave a talk on biography of Dante, the Italian poet. A report on Dante's works was given by Martha Zelt.

History of Marseilles Is French Club Topic

Marseilles, famous French seaport, was the topic of the French Club meeting, which was held last Thursday in the Voorhees Room.

During the short business meeting which preceded the program, Theo Schurenberg, acting chairman, announced that the date of the skating party had been changed from October 18 to November 30. The members also voted against taking part in the G. A. A. stunt show.

Lillian Gable, temporary program chairman, introduced Mildred Rudig, who told of the perfume industry of Marseilles. She also told a few points about Monte Carlo, its industries and products.

Virginia Wood was next on the program telling of the history of Marseilles and its founding by the Greeks nearly six hundred years before Christ.

The club members then sang several French songs accompanied at the piano by Miss Olive B. Perkins. French games were played.

Rifle Club Organizes

In Squads at Practice

The Girls' Rifle Club met Wednesday night after school at the rifle range. This was the first meeting of the term at which any target practice was held. The new girls were given instructions by Miss Delaney, the club adviser. The members were divided into squads of four each when they practiced. There was an excellent attendance at this first meeting.

Began Unit Here

Miss Beulah Rinehart

Miss Beulah Rinehart is the former adviser of the Sunshine Club. It was then called the What-Not Club. She organized this society in April of 1932. She was its adviser for two years.

Paul Krauss To Speak To Social Science

Meeting To Be October 10; Attendance To Include Members, Special Guests.

The next meeting of the Social Science Club will be held Thursday, October 10, at 2:45 o'clock in the Band Room. Dr. Paul H. Krauss, who is pastor of the Trinity English Lutheran Church, will be the guest speaker.

Dr. Krauss will give a discussion concerning the economic and political aspects of the Italian-Ethiopian conflict. He is noted as a speaker and a keen observer of political science; he also speaks on governments and the different movements prevalent in Europe, and is also noted for his speeches and talks on Germany. Dr. Krauss has traveled with the Ministerial Association.

The members of the Social Science Club and a limited number of guests will attend the meeting. The theme of the club this year will be topics of current interest and their relationship to the social orders. Discussion of the underlying causes of the current topics will be held. The club plans to have some person well-versed in these topics to speak at each meeting.

The officers of the Social Science Club are Robert Adams, president; John Bex, vice-president; Manuel Rothberg, secretary-treasurer; Bryce Minier, sergeant-at-arms; Mildred Foellinger, Interclub Congress Representative.

Mr. Wilburn Wilson and Miss Eleanor Smeltzley are the faculty advisers of the organization.

Booster Club Meets Success at Beginning

The concessions committee of the Booster Club assisted by Miss Mary Pocock, Miss Rowena Harvey, and Miss Nellie Covatt has started the season out with great success.

The total returns of the two games have amounted to about $125, 2,500 sales having been made of Candy, gum, taffy, apples, Coca Cola, and orange crush feature the concessions sold.

Mayor Harry Baals Greets Sunshine Girls

Mayor Harry Baals

I am happy on this occasion of your annual convention to extend to you officially a most cordial welcome to our city. Fort Wayne is naturally proud of its industrial and commercial enterprises, its parks and playgrounds and public utilities which is evidence of its progressiveness, but we are more proud of the youth of our community, state and nation, who through such organizations as the Sunshine Club are building character and morale which cannot be purchased with money.

I hope that you will have a most successful convention, and that our visitors will carry back home expressions of Fort Wayne's hospitality which reflects a genuine appreciation of the human and spiritual values of life existing in our community.

Again I bid you welcome to Fort Wayne, and wish you a most successful convention.

Respectfully yours,
H. W. BAALS,
Mayor

Totem Sales Drive Meets With Success

Opening Days of Campaign Results in 100 Subscriptions; Staff Aids Named.

Totem Staff Still Open To Applicants

The Totem staff will not be announced this week, as there have been too many applicants for jobs, and they have not yet been straightened out. Louis Bonsib, editor, announces, however, if anyone still wishes to get a job, he may apply at the Totem office until Friday of this week. The Totem drive is now on, and every senior is expected to procure two subscriptions besides his own. If he is not on a team, he may get subscription blanks at the Totem office.

Approximately one hundred students subscribed to the Totem during the first three days of the campaign which will continue until Wednesday, October 16. The seniors should subscribe from the salesmen who have been assigned to their home rooms. These salesmen will be in these home rooms today and tomorrow.

The price of the 1936 Totem is two dollars. If you wish to subscribe, you may pay for your book on the installment plan, in which case you pay twenty-five cents as a down payment and pay the remaining amount before April 15, 1936. If you subscribe to the Totem during the campaign, your name will be inscribed in silver on your book free of charge.

Many signs have been posted on various bulletin boards around the school which advertise the 1936 Totem. Signs have been placed in each home room also.

The complete Totem staff will be announced next week. It was impossible to announce it this week because of the great number of applications which were received. All positions are not filled as yet. There are many chances left to help in the making of the 1936 book. Seniors may make applications for positions on the staff until Friday of this week.

Each senior of South Side must sell at least two Totems beside his own this year. Subscription blanks may be obtained in the Totem office by those seniors who wish to sell Totems and are not already on one of the teams.

Senior pictures must be taken by October 15. Underclassmen pictures will be taken in about a month.

A bulletin was read in the home rooms yesterday which was written by Mr. Snider. This bulletin told of the plans, the campaign, and other points of interest concerning the 1936 Totem.

Pebble Pups Planning Rock-Collecting Jaunt

Rock-forming minerals were discussed and shown at the meeting of Pebble Pups last week. It was planned that the next meeting would be a rock-collecting excursion to Foster Park to help students taking physical geography 1 in making their rock collections. As there were only four pupils present at the meeting, Mr. Whelan has announced that the club may be discontinued unless there are more members. The next meeting will be held on October 10.

Rock-forming minerals were discussed and shown at the meeting of Pebble Pups last week. It was planned that the next meeting would be a rock-collecting excursion to Foster Park to help students taking physical geography 1 in making their rock collections. As there were only four pupils present at the meeting, Mr. Whelan has announced that the club may be discontinued unless there are more members. The next meeting will be held on October 10.

State Dean Plans To Report On District Assembly; Classes To Be Conducted.

General Session Is To Begin at 9:30

Greetings To Delegates Will Be Given by Mayor Baals, Dean, P. White, I. Schuler.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal, will be the main speaker at the general session of the second Indiana district Sunshine convention which is to be held here this Saturday. Mr. Snider's talk will stress the ideals of girls; and, in particular, those of the Sunshine members.

The general session will begin at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning in the study hall. The invocation will be given by the Rev. Reno M. Tacoma, pastor of the Emanuel Baptist Church. Greetings to the delegates will be extended by Mayor Harry W. Baals; Mr. Paul White, principal of New Haven High School; Iona Schuler, president of South Side's Sunshine chapter; Miss Martha M. Pittenger; and Mr. Snider. Mrs. C. E. Sandefur, the Indiana Sunshine dean, will give a report on the last district convention.

A business session which will be conducted by Miss Gertrude Wahl, district Sunshine dean, will follow the general session. Music for both major meetings will be furnished by the school music department.

Various discussion groups will meet simultaneously in different rooms in the building following the business meeting. Doris Garrison, a South Side graduate of 1934, will preside at a club service group meeting in the Greeley Room; Peggy Newell, '34, will act as chairman of the money-raising unit in the Voorhees room; Melba Scherer, '35, will head a social meeting group in the library; and Miss Pittenger will direct a sponsors' meeting in room 52. Willodean Scherer, '34, will preside at another general session in the study hall at the same time the other meetings are being held.

At noon, a luncheon for all delegates will be served in the cafeteria, and at one o'clock the New Haven Sunshine Society will present a one-hour entertainment in the study hall. At 2 o'clock the entire group will witness the South Side-Peru football game in the stadium.

Officers of the second Indiana Sunshine district are Mrs. Sandefur, state dean; Miss Gertrude Wahl, district dean; Miss Kathleen Purvis, state treasurer; and Miss Hazel Cagle, treasurer of the James Whitcomb Riley fund.

The Sunshine societies which are represented in the second district are those of Sharpsville, Concord Township, Atlanta, North Manchester, Millersburg, Prairie Township, Chubbuck, Huntington, South Whitley, Washington Center, Cicero, Arcadia, Fulton, Bluffton, Decatur, Converse, Van Buren, Goldsmith, Gray City, Fort Wayne, Kempton, Larwill, New Haven, New Paris, Tipton, Wabash, Warren, Windfall, Akron, and Sidney.

Miss Beulah Rinehart, an English instructor here, was the founder of South Side's Sunshine chapter. The Misses Edith and Mary Crowe are the present faculty advisers, Miss Rinehart having been chosen chosen program adviser of So-Si-Y.

Co-sponsors for the convention are the South Side Sunshine Club and the New Haven Sunshine Club of the New Haven High School. The officers of the South Side club are president, Iona Schuler; vice-president, Thelma Erwin; secretary, Caroline Dirmeyer; treasurer, Frances Pygowski; sergeant-at-arms, Dorothy Zaegel. The officers of the New Haven club are president, Kathleen Purvis; vice-president, Clara Beyer; secretary, Betty Bruggeman; treasurer, Lillian Jackmeyer; and publicity chairman, Carolyn Levy.

The clubs have been working on plans for this convention for many months. This is the first convention that has been held either at Fort Wayne or New Haven and every possible thing is being done to make the conference a success.

"My Sunshine Girl," the new state Sunshine song, will be used at this convention, instead of "My Sunshine Pal" which was formerly the official state song.

Mrs. C. E. Sandefur, State Sunshine Dean, Suggests Plans

In a letter to the Sunshine sponsors and members, Mrs. C. E. Sandefur, state Sunshine dean, suggested new programs, and told of plans for the coming year.

She said that the programs for the year's study were made out by the district deans and herself, and were sent to each chapter in the state.

This was done because all the chapters would be working on the same program, and would, therefore, be more unified. If any chapter had some other program in mind, they were not required to use the suggested program.

Mrs. Sandefur stated that a new state song was selected at the convention last spring. It is entitled "My Sunshine Girl." The former state song, "Sunshine Pal," is, however, still recognized.

During the state teachers' meeting at Indianapolis, there will be a breakfast for sponsors of Sunshine chapters.

Mrs. Sandefur further told of the resignation of Miss Cagle and Miss Luse as district deans, but said that one new dean had been elected, and that another would be elected at the convention.

The dean ended her letter by inviting any Sunshine girl to write to her at any time, and to ask for any help that was needed. She sent her good wishes to each sponsor and member.

Just like sweaters, wisecracks wear out, so don't parade them around till everyone gets bored to death. Make up an original one once in awhile and use it till all the gang knows it and then, make up a newer one.

Times Drive Officially Ends For Semester

983 Subscriptions Gained; Helen Anderson Has 27; Other Totals Are Listed.

"Although the last few straggling subscriptions are still coming in, the 1934 Times subscription campaign is officially ended," stated Harriett Yapp, circulation manager of the school paper. A total of nine hundred eighty-three subscriptions, or a gain of less than one hundred since last week, is reported by the circulation head.

Helen Anderson, Times agent for room 178, leads the campaign with a total of twenty-seven subscriptions. She is closely followed by Kenneth Warren and Leona Menze, agents for the library and room 36, with totals of twenty-six initial payments each recorded. Dorothy Crabill, of room 138, has a total of 25 subscriptions; and Eleanor Vesey of room 30, has reported that 24 members of her class have signed for the paper.

Circulation book four, headed by circulation assistant Helen Anderson, leads the five divisions with a total of two hundred thirty-one subscriptions. Next in line are books one and two, headed by Julia Crabill and Ina Claire Chappell, with totals of one hundred ninety-five subscriptions each; book five, headed by Ruth Henline, with one hundred eighty-eight promissory notes signed, and book three, headed by Eleanor Vesey, with one hundred seventy-four subscriptions.

A wiener roast for all Times agents with room totals of seventy percent or above, will be given by the 1500 Club tomorrow evening at Franke Park. Bryce Minier, newly elected president of the club, is in charge of the arrangements for the affair. If room agents are in doubt as to their percentages, they may consult the assistant circulation manager whose book contains their room information. Students are asked to begin paying the balances of their promissory notes, which are due in full on Friday, November 1.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider Extends His Welcome

R. Nelson Snider

All South Siders are happy that our Sunshine Club can serve as host to the clubs of this district, and we are particularly pleased to work in conjunction with the New Haven group.

I hope that all guests will find this meeting as profitable as our girls have found the planning for it. May you go home filled with new enthusiasm for the ideals which guide your organization.

Respectfully,
R. NELSON SNIDER.

Junior Math Plans Halloween Party

Theme of Year Is "The Use of Mathematics"; Jack Horn Gives Very Interesting Talk.

Plans for a Halloween party to be held Friday, November 1, in the Greeley Room and for a Christmas party to be held December 17, in the Voorhees Room, were revealed in a report of the executive committee which was given by Allen Garrison at a recent meeting of the Junior Math Club. The theme of the year, "The Use of Mathematics," was announced.

Roll was called, and new members were asked to sign up. It was announced that the dues of ten cents might be paid at the next meeting. The meeting was then turned over to the program committee. An interesting talk on Mathematics in Nature was given by Jack Horn. This was mainly about geometry forms found in nature. Games and puzzles were presented by Frances Craig and Grace Collins. After these plans were discussed for a wiener bake. The committee chosen for the wiener bake consists of Robert Weil, Jesse Freeman, Bernadette Shearer, Allen Garrison, Ray Racine, and Mildred Mitchell.

The G. A. A. vaudeville project was discussed, and the executive committee was asked to attend to it.

"By-Paths of Service" Is Theme of So-Si-Y

"By-Paths of Service" will be So-Si-Y's service meeting theme for next Tuesday evening, October 8. The theme is a part of the semester's program, "Stray Roads."

Devotions, to consist of the story of Dorcas from the Bible, will be read by one of the members of the service committee, which is in charge of the meeting. "Entire Consolation," by William J. Kirkpatrick, will be sung by an octette composed of So-Si-Y members; and group singing will also be included in the program. Several specialty dances by members of the girls' gym department will also be given. After the program, the members will hem towels as a part of the club's service projects.

Miss Eleanor Smeltz, service adviser for the club, will be the faculty member in charge of the meeting. Ruth Reitz, chairman; Eleanor Schremser, Irene Becker, Mildred Rudig, Dorothy Roudeshush, Helen Doenges, and Barbara Von Gunten comprise the service committee which is responsible for the program and service projects.

Senior Hi-Y Boys Hear Burl Friddle

Mr. Leonard Is Also Speaker at Plan Splash, Skate Parties. Potluck Held at Y. M. C. A.;

The South Side Senior Hi-Y held a potluck at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening, September 26. Mr. Burl Friddle was the chief speaker, introduced by Dick Dochterman.

Mr. Friddle recalled some of his experiences while he was president of the first Hi-Y at Franklin. One of his funniest was the time he went to a formal dance and forgot to change his tan shoes, much to his embarrassment. Mr. Friddle showed his willingness to work with the boys and is being considered as a possible adviser along with Mr. Ward Gilbert.

The next speaker to be introduced was Mr. Leonard, boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who praised the Hi-Y very highly, saying it was one of the best he had ever seen. He also commended them on the fine support given them by Mr. Snider and Mr. Abbott. He further suggested a boys' retreat at Camp Potowatomie sometime in the future.

Suggestions for splash parties met with great approval by the boys. The date for the skating party was set at November 27. There were about twenty boys present and plenty of food for all. Next week there will be a general discussion of plans for the rest of the year.

Slogan Is Desired By National Group

League of Women Voters Heads Anti-Spoils System Campaign; Give Many Suggestions

A slogan is wanted by the League of Women Voters to use in awakening the public to the need of trained personnel in government.

Several examples of slogans are: Abraham Lincoln, once pointing out to a friend the eager multitude of office seekers who thronged the White House, said:

"There you see something which, in the course of time, will become a greater danger to the republic than the rebellion itself."

Charles W. Elliott stated, "Civil service reform is so fundamental that all other reforms must rest on it."

William Howard Taft advised, "If we selected employees according to the length of their noses, it would be better than the 'spoils system.'"

Senators Suggest Slogans
Senator Joseph O'Mahoney said, "Principles, not patronage, have always constituted the living force of our political system."

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg commented, "The parties themselves will be the stronger in whatever degree they awaken to the realization that the best service is, in the long run, the best politics."

Following is a list of slogan suggestions: "The spoils system spoils government." "Principles, not patronage." "Skills, not spoils." "Select the best by test for efficient government." "Is 'Spoilsman despoil democracy?'" "There are no deserving Republicans or deserving Democrats, but only a deserving public."

Prizes To Be Awarded
All slogans must be in the mail by midnight, October 15, 1935.

Several prizes are to be awarded. These include: A national first prize, $25; national second prize, $10; Indiana prize, $10.

Following is a list of the rules of this contest: One person may send as many slogans as he or she wishes. Slogans should be typed on a piece of plain paper and placed in a plain envelope. This unmarked envelope should be enclosed in a large mailing envelope with the name and address of the contestant on it, and sent to "Slogan Contest Editor," Indiana League of Women Voters, 706 Illinois Building, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Judges Are Named
Each entry will be given a number, which will be placed on the inside plain envelope. This number with the name of the contestant will be filed in a book. The judges will be unaware of the identity of the contestants.

Your slogan will automatically be entered in the National League of Women Voters' contest, which closes October 31, 1935.

The judges in the contest are Mrs. Thor G. Wesenberg, Butler University professor; Mr. Hal Keating, advertising man; and Mr. Frank Dailey, attorney.

Boys Offer Services
Collecting Slips Daily

Among the students of South Side who deserve some recognition for services rendered, are the boys who collect absence slips twice daily.

The slips, containing the names of the absent persons from each room, are collected during the home room period in the morning, and during the seventh period in the afternoon.

The boys collecting the slips during the home room period are Miles Frisinger, H. R. 56, and Bob Hall, H. R. 10. They take the slips from the doors of each room during the last five minutes of the period.

Don Sinish collects the slips during the seventh period. He has a study period then and uses the last ten minutes of the period for taking slips.

Superintendent Sends Message To Delegates

Merle J. Abbott

There is no greater pleasure than that of having the sun look in upon your home. The sunshine brings the smiles and happy exchanges that come with happy spirits.

Today we have youth and sunshine as our guests and thus a double measure of happiness.

We wish you not a cloud, but every pleasure as our guests. We wish to be worthy hosts. And when you go to your several homes take just a little larger measure to your friends. We intend that your stay shall be attended with every ray of sunshine we can bestow.

Sincerely,
MERLE J. ABBETT.

Amateur Program Given by U. S. A.

Novel Entertainment Is Feature At Meeting; Urge Members to Attend Reserve Wiener Bake.

A novel amateur hour was carried out by the members of the U. S. A. Club at their last meeting, which was held in the Greeley room on Thursday, September 26. The atmosphere of an amateur broadcast was furnished by an arrangement of several screens and a radio. Old members of the club, appearing under the names of some of the unsuspecting new members, gave exhibitions of varying talents.

One of the features of the amateur program was a piano solo played by Vivian Woods. Julia Crabill and Vivian Woods executed a tap dance; next Mary Beth LeFevre gave a reading. Barbara Raymond played a popular number on her ukulele, and Eldora Bueksing rounded out the program with a reading.

Following the amateur hour refreshments which were Dixie cups, were served to the group. Following the refreshments, the girls played various games.

At the business meeting just preceding the entertainment, cards were filled out for the dean and club adviser. A special announcement was made that all members were urged to attend the wiener bake that was to be held on September 30, for all the high school Girl Reserves in Fort Wayne.

Chumps Defeat Hawkers 19-0 In I-M Football

Initial Game of Season Played in Red League; Both Weights Listed.

Intramural tag football started Friday evening on the south field with two heavyweight teams, the Hawkers and the Chumps, playing the first game. The Chumps defeated the Hawkers by running up a score of 19-0.

Willis Mertens made the outstanding run of the evening when he ran the ball for sixty-five yards, scoring a touchdown. Victor Seewald and Walter Voight made the other two goals for the victorious Chumps. Voight also converted the only kick that was good.

The score of this game seems to show evidence of a one-sided affair. This is not true, however, because the Hawkers made several scoring threats, but lacked the punch needed to put the ball over the goal line.

The Hawkers' defeat does not mean that they are out of the running in tag football. A round-robin tournament is in process, which means that the Hawkers will get a chance to play every other team in their league.

There are two heavyweight leagues, four teams in a league, and one lightweight league. The winner of each heavyweight league will play one another in a series of three games to decide the heavyweight championship. As there is only one lightweight league the best two teams will play one another in a series of games to decide the championship.

Leagues Are Named
The leagues, teams, and their captains are as follows:

Heavyweight—Blue League
Chumps—Allen.
Hawkers—Hinton.
Black Hawks—Brown.
Stars—Bopp.
Heavyweight—Red League
Goons—Evers.
Stooges—Blanks.
Archers—Stalter.
Potters—Buck.
Lightweight League
Spartans—Nusbaum.
Yanks—Orr.
Cats—Goshorn.

Central Conquers Irish Easily, 40-0

Central Catholic Eleven Taken Into Camp by Tigers in First City Series Game of Season.

In the first city series game of the season, Central's rampaging Tigers made it five in a row, when they thoroughly trounced the Irish from Central Catholic by the astounding score of 40 to 0.

Central Catholic made but one serious threat at the blue goal, taking the ball to their opponent's seven-yard line, but the Barrettmen lacked the necessary punch to put the pigskin over the goal line. They also made numerous other invasions into blue territory, but failed to convert them into points.

The Tigers lost no time taking the lead. C. C. won the toss-up and chose to receive. After receiving the kickoff, the Irish tried two running plays, and, failing to gain, punted to Larimer, Central's diminutive power house, who returned the kick 40 yards to the Irish 35-yard line. It was only a matter of time till the ball was over the Irish goal line. Louis Sitko made a good try for the extra point.

The Barrettmen made their bid for a score a few minutes later, when Romary made a beautiful kick to the Blue 10-yard line and then took possession of the ball when Bourne fumbled on the first play. The Irish gained three yards on the play, and then lost possession of the ball when they threw two incomplete passes. Central then punted out of danger. Shortly after, Bourne intercepted an Irish pass, and ran 60 yards for another touchdown. This time Sitko's attempt at the extra point was again short. Central made its third touchdown midway in the third quarter. Featuring this point was Larimer, Central's right half back. Sitko's attempt at the extra point was wide.

At the beginning of the second half Central marched to the Irish 7-yard line to lose the ball on a fumble, but came back a few minutes later to push over another marker. Central Catholic blocked Sitko's attempt at the extra point. At the start of the final period, Central's reserve backs plowed through C. C.'s line and secondary for their fifth touchdown of the evening. The final score of the game came in the closing minutes of the game with Stanisewski carrying the ball on a double reverse from the 32-yard line, Altekuse converting the extra point.

Carry Archers Hopes

—Courtesy News-Sentinel

Bud Feichter, Jim Phelps, Gordon Parmelee, and Fred Meyers, pictured above, are expected to have a large share in the backfield duties of the Archer eleven this fall. All except Phelps, out with an infected heel, saw action both against Van Wert and Mishawaka.

Last Week In Girls Tennis Tournament Is Nearly Completed

This week will be the last week for tennis for the girls. The doubles have all been played and the winners acclaimed, but the singles are not going as well.

Beatrice Schieber and Lillian Winkler won from Rowena Bevington and Aldena Disler.
A very thrilling set was that won by Leona Menze and Margaret Ruhl. They played against Winnie Locker and Marjory Ruhl.
Helen Blauvelt and Betty Eisenacher won their sets from Martha Ann Bacon and Phyllis Culver to capture the sophomore title.

Anna Kowalski and Marjory Rapp captured the freshman title after defeating a number of doubles combinations.
In the senior singles Lillian Hockmeyer won from Helen Doenges 6-1, 6-2 in the semi-finals and Bernadette Dygert beat Beatrice Schieber 6-3, 6-0. In the finals Bernadette Dygert won from Lillian Hockmeyer 6-2, 6-1.

In the junior singles Margaret Ruhl beat her sister Marjory 6-2, 6-0, and Betty Harnish beat Geraldine Dush. The finals in this division have not yet been played.
Helen Blauvelt beat Dorothy Elfer, 6-1, 6-1 in sophomore singles. Betty Eisenacher beat Dolores Pequignot 6-2, 4-6, 6-2.

The freshman singles are only to the quarter-finals. Virginia Menze beat Dorothy Bender in two thrilling sets 6-4 and 7-5. Beatrice Craig beat Nadine Mueller in the most thrilling sets of all, 6-3, and 9-7. Marjory Stratton beat Dorothy Molin, 8-6 and 6-3. Peggy Foster was defeated by Helen Foster 6-1, 6-1.

Basketball Practice Draws Large Number

Last year's members of the basketball squad, both varsity and reserve, started basketball practice the second week after school started. The boys did not do much playing, as they developed their legs and wind by running. Last week and this week there was a larger turnout, with Burl Friddle, coach, having the boys practice going under the basket, running through plays, blocking, and working the ball in.

G.A.A. Class Tennis Tournaments Continue

Girl Net Champs To Be Crowned Soon; Early Rounds in Single, Double Competition Played.

G. A. A. tennis tournament affairs are somewhat of a mix-up this week. Some of the tournaments have been all played, some are in semi-finals, and others are just in the quarter finals.

The senior single tournament is between Lillian Hockmeyer and Bernadette Dygert. This game promises to be very good, as both girls are good players.

Opponents Are Named
In the junior tournament, Margery Ruhl has to play her sister, Margaret and Betty Harnish will oppose Geraldine Deish.

In the sophomore singles, Betty Eisenacher will play Dolores Pequignot, and the winner of this game will play Helen Blauvelt.

In the freshman tournament there are more games yet to be played because there were more participants. Bernice Bender will play Virginia Menze, Beatrice Craig vs. Marjorie Stratton, Imogene Fabian vs. Pauline Molin and Virginia Porter vs. Reva Foster.

Winners Are Announced
Rowena Bevington and Aldena Disler won the senior doubles over Beatrice Schieber and Lillian Winkler.
In the junior doubles, Winnie Locker and Marjorie Ruhl will play Leona Menze and Margaret Ruhl. This game promises to be the best of any of the tournaments.

Helen Blauvelt and Betty Eisenacher won over Martha Ann Bacon and Phyllis Culver for the sophomore doubles title.

In the freshman doubles, Betty Showalter and Betty Neel will play Anna Kowalski and Marjory Rapp.

Three Games Played As Hockey Continues

G. A. A.'s hockey season advanced in its routine last Wednesday when Junior 3, led by Leona Menze, was defeated by the seniors, led by Marjorie Hower. Betty Schultz scored the one goal for the Juniors, while Norma Clausner, Marjorie Hower, and Mary Ann Park each contributed a goal for the seniors.

At 4:00, Sophomore 2, led by Barbara Raymond, and Soph 4, led by Helen Meese, played to the tie score of 3-3. Eleanor Rarick did the total scoring for her team by making two goals in the first half and one in the second. Vera Walker made two goals and Loretta Weikert one for Sophomore 2. At 4:30, Junior 3 played their second game of the day and beat Junior 1, led by Margaret Ruhl, by the slim score of 1-0. Louise Phillips scored the lone goal for her team. Winifred Locker's play as center half back for Junior 1 was outstanding.

New Yardage Markers Adorn Archer Gridiron

All who attended the Archer-Van Wert football game may have noticed that the grid field was adorned with newly-painted yard markers. The lettering, black on a white background, was plain and easy to read.

The new markers were made under the direction of Herman Spillner by members of Friday's art classes. In each of the six art classes of Friday, two or three boys, interested in football, were sent to the football room each period. One fellow would block the numbers while his capable co-workers utilized their artistic ability by wielding the paint brushes.

Football Schedule Posted
We have a new sign of this year's football schedule on the southwest corner of the stadium. This sign was printed by the Duwan Sign Company. Mr. Davis wrote out the print for it, and the Boosters Club paid $27 for the material and printing. Each week the Duwan Sign Company changes the last printed line of the sign, which tells the next home game scheduled.

An excellent contrast between managers was drawn in the recent Cub, Giant series, which the Cubs swept in grand style. The contrasting pilots are Charley Grimm of the Cubs and Bill Terry of the Giants. Grimm reminded one throughout of a child that has received all and a little more of his expected Christmas presents. Grimm was in evidence all the time with a huge ear-to-ear grin, and he made a practice of jibing with his players and at times even going to the extreme of snoring some choice jest with an umpire. Coaching at third, Grimm was ready with a slap on the back and an infectious laugh with every Cub player who reached the hot corner (and there were plenty of them). Grimm was the true picture of optimism and good-heartedness.

Terry was just the opposite. If anyone had said "boo" to Terry, he probably would have throttled him with a bat. At his post on first base, the giant manager's growling proved a constant source of trouble to everyone. Terry pulled his crowning achievement when he stalked off the field in disgust in the middle of a game in which his highly touted Giants were making a terrible trimming from the rolisomes Cubs. After contrasting the managers you won't have to go much farther to find out why it was that the Giants took four straight licksings from the Cubs.

The Big Ten this year is going to find three teams, Ohio State, Illinois, and Minnesota fighting for the top berth. Ohio State has the edge as nine of last year's first time are returning, and there are a good many capable replacements for the two positions vacated by the graduation of Regis Monahan and Buzz Wetzel. Frances Schmidt, starting his second year as coach at the Buckeye school, should have a ball club that will bowl over all its opponents with a tremendous display of man power, as well as a deceptive passing attack. Ohio State should live up to all expectations set for them this year.

Wily Bob Zuppke at Illinois will again feature deception in his attack, which will center around Les Lindberg, stellar performing back for the past two years. Zuppke, who startled his opponents last year with a miscellaneous variety of forward and lateral passes, has a squad composed almost entirely of veterans. Frank Froshauer and Jack Benyon will be the hardest men to replace, but Zuppke seems to have a real find in a diminutive sophomore named Henry, who will take over Benyon's quarterback post. The Illini seem to be definitely pointing for the second Saturday in October when Zuppke will lead his forces to Los Angeles, California, to tangle with the pets of the moving picture stars, the University of Southern California.

At the present time Bernie Bierman, coach of the Gophers from Minnesota, is waiting with bated breath to find out whether or not Ed Widseth and Julie Alfonso, two of his best veterans, are going to pass tests to enable them to retain their eligibility. The Minnesota powerhouse suffered from graduation and if Widseth and Alfonso were to be declared ineligible, it would be a pretty stiff blow for the Gophers. Minnesota's backfield material is plentiful, and Bierman is doing most of his worrying about the line. Provided with a formidable forward wall, Minnesota would be just about the toughest team in the conference to beat.

Lynn Waldorf, who is starting his first year at Northwestern, will turn out the dark horse team this year. Waldorf has an excellent bunch of sophomores to work with; and these, coupled with six of the returning varsity of last year, should put the Wildcats right back in the running again. Don Heap, a sophomore backfield find, has looked especially good, and he has Cruise and Swisher, varsity halfbacks, worrying plenty about their jobs. If the sophomores come through, Northwestern will be right up at the top.

Eighty Frosh Girls To Play Speedball

Captain and Teams Are Elected At First Meeting of Term For G. A. A. Freshman Sport.

Approximately eighty freshman girls attended the first speedball meeting of the year, held on Monday, September 16. After election of captains and teams the rules and fundamentals of the game were explained to the group by Miss Smith. They then assembled outside on the field and practiced kicking, dribbling, and passing the ball.

The list of captains and their teams are as follows: Team I—Captain Frieda Schubert, Gwendolyn Roberts, Ruth Lyben, Mary Lampton, Betty Showalter, Josephine Carrier, Margaret Null, Margaret Wittmer, Beatrice Craig, Lily Kensler, Betty Daniels, Imogene Wright, Anna Marie Hausmann, and Norma Byer; Team II—Captain Lois Rea, Bernice Bender, Mildred Berry, Dorothy Bloemker, Geraldine Fabian, Reva Foster, Mildred Franz, Lorraine Iba, Pauline Oetting, Miriam Oberkiser, Virginia Porter, and Adelheid Scheele; Team III—Captain Marjorie Wallace, Nadine Mueller, Mary Louise Sanders, Betty Neel, Donna Dennis, Thelma Robertson, Jeanette Warren, Jean Siebold, Imogene Fabian, Evelyn Weber, Mary Jane Rison, Della Rauner, Dorothy Ringenberg, and Esther Selzer; Team IV—Captain Velma Connett, Beth Ellen Chadwick, Hazel Perry, Beverly Bond, Edith Allen, Patty Lyman, Virginia Menze, Katherine Boyce, Mary Snavely, Lavern Reed, Patty Pfeiffer, and Evelyn Kruse; Team V—Captain Beverly Ann Griffith, June Enoch, Margery Rapp, Mary Lou Moffat, Helen Banks, Joan Brady, Peggy Bacon, Rosella Koehler, Anna Lou Kowalski, Ethel Koch, Dorothy Lou Braun, Marcella Brackman, and Laura Lloyd; Team VI—Captain Pauline Molin, Betty Crum, Marjorie Shelper, Marcia Steir, Norma Martin, Sadonna Neith, Betty Minneker, Maxine Pelz, Mary Jane Kelley, Doris Havis, and Marcile Passe.

Fifty Girls Attend First Dancing Club Meeting

Approximately fifty girls attended the first meeting of the newly organized Dancing Club, which was held last Thursday afternoon in the handball court. The type of dancing was discussed. The work will chiefly follow the general plan of the present dancing classes, but will be more highly specialized, and will include theory and various types and general backgrounds.

It was decided, that because of the large number of participants, the next meeting, which will be held tonight after school, would be in the form of a try-out. All those who did not attend the first meeting and would like to try out, are also invited to come in after school for try-outs. The girls are asked to come dressed in their gym suits. Miss Patterson also stated that it might be possible to divide the group into two sections. Further notices pertaining to the classes will be posted on the bulletin board.

1500 Club Members To Hold Wiener Bake

1500 Club will be the host at a wiener bake to be held Friday night at 6:30 o'clock in Foster Park. All room agents having a percent of 70 will be the guests. John Bex, Betty Wolf, and Helen Kelley comprise the food committee. There will also be committees for the fire and entertainment. The refreshments will consist of wieners and buns, marshmallows, cream puffs, potato chips, and coca cola.

Many Studes Have Various Opinions On World Series

"Who is going to win the World Series?" may be termed the question of the week, for men, women, and children unite in taking interest in this timely question. Doctors, lawyers, teachers, and students were asked this interrogation. Some of South Side's students and teachers give their answer concerning this event to take place between the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs.

When queried, Lundy Welborn answered, "It's an easy victory for the Cubs."

Ward Gilbert, a former professional baseball player of fame, "Chicago will take out a victory, but it will be hard." Burl Friddle: "I think Chicago will win, but it still will be hard."

Jorgan Harrison: "Tigers will win four out of five."

John Bex: "I have 25 cents on the Cubs."

Fred Nye: "The Cubs will probably win, but it will be hard."

Fred Ostermeyer: "I disagree with Fred, I think Detroit will make it easily."

Bud Lee: "The Cubs ought to take it in a breeze."

Redskins To Meet Irish Friday Night

Evenly Matched Squads of North Side and C. C. To Tangle Under Floodlights at N. S.

North Side will tangle with the Central Catholic Irish for their first city series game under the floodlights of the northern field Friday night. Both teams are evenly matched, and it is expected to be a hard fought game throughout.

Playing on a wet, slippery field, due to a heavy downpour of rain during the game, North Side chalked up another victory by defeating the Auburn Red Devils in a 19-7 triumph.

The Redskins had the game in the bag in the first quarter as Don Shits recovered a blocked punt on the Red Devils one-yard line. This was pushed over the line for the score. Shits also made good the extra point on a place kick.

Again later in the same period, the Redskins added another touchdown to their score when a 35-yard pass from Shumm to Shits placed the ball on the Auburn 12-yard stripe. On the second down, Poorman swept the right end to the goal.

In the third period, the Redskins chalked up their final score and then shortly after that Myers of Auburn crashed through the Redskins line for a 64 yard run to a touchdown.

Archers To Face Peru Saturday On Southern Gridiron

Tiger Eleven, Veteran Team, To Give Battle

Green Practice Hard, Hope To Repeat Last Year's Win, But Expect Trouble.

Amplifying System Again To Be Used

Improvements Include Two New Speakers; Sunshine Delegates Admitted Free.

Peru's Tigers will travel to Fort Wayne Saturday afternoon to meet South Side's gridders in the Archers' second scheduled home game of the season. The game is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p. m.

South Side's 18-0 loss to Mishawaka last week-end had the effect of making the Green all the more determined in their efforts. Consequently, the Archers have been putting in some stiff practice sessions this week, and have high hopes of repeating last year's 20-0 triumph over the Circus City eleven.

Game To Be Toss-up
However, the Tigers apparently will be no set-up for the Green Wave, as they were last season. They served fair warning recently by defeating Muncie, always a strong outfit, by a score of 6 to 0. Peru has a veteran team composed almost entirely of juniors. These players worked together all last season and are expected to give the Green something of a battle.

The speaker system, which was inaugurated last week, will again be in use. However, better results are expected Saturday, because of improvements being made this week. Eight speakers will be used instead of the six used at the last game.

Delegates Admitted Free
All delegates to the Sunshine Club convention to be held this week-end will be admitted free to the game, Ora M. Davis, athletic manager, has announced.

Coach Welborn is not absolutely sure as to his starting lineup, but it will probably include Ostermeyer at center, Wilson and Bennett at guards, Nye and Makey at tackles, D. Faux and Ellenwood at ends, Meyers or Woodhull at quarter, Parmelee or Feichter at left halfback, Benz or Kruse at the other half, and Lee at full.

Net Tourney Goes Into Third Round

Thirteen of Original Thirty-Six Entrants Left in Running; Play in Light, Heavy Rounds.

Only thirteen of the original thirty-six tennis players remain in the boys' tennis fall tournament. Many of the participants of this popular sport are in their second and third rounds of competition.

Many of the players in the heavy-weight division were going into the third round of competition Monday night. In this round Joe Bell will play Hubert Klopfenstein, Bell having won his match in the second round with Earl Hostetter by forfeit and Klopfenstein having won over Osborn. Vic Seawald and Bud Cochrane play in the third round also, the former beating Norman Buck by forfeit, and the latter beating League. Allen and Erlie had not reported the results of their match, but the winner will play in the second round with Shidler, who defeated Kirkpatrick. Another match in the second round is that between Will, who beat Becker, and Eichler, winner over Dent.

The only tennis players in the light-weights who had progressed to the third round by last Monday are Schuch and Scheiner. Schuch had defeated Nussbaum, and Miller lost to Schelper in the second round. Playing in the second round are Reeves, who won his match with Morton, and Hargan, the winner in his match with Holmsing. Garrison, having defeated Knight, draws a bye in the same round.

Play Only Three Tag Grid Games

Stooges, Spartans, Potters Are Victorious; Rain Causes All Other Games To Be Postponed

Only three intramural tag football games were played last week on the south field, the other scheduled games being postponed because of rain.

The first game between the Stooges and the Goons, which was played on Wednesday evening, was won by the Stooges, the score being 25-6. Papai and Elliott, the Stooges' stars, played a fast game of football. However, the scoring was pretty evenly divided. Elliott, Papai, Seemeyer, and Bell each crossing the goal line. Papai ran the ball over for the only try after touchdown that was successful. Byers scored the lone touchdown for the Goons.

The second game, which was played Friday evening, was rather one-sided, the Spartans winning over the Yanks by a score of 27-0. Nussbaum was high scorer with two touchdowns. Gidley and Spencer followed with one goal apiece. Garrison and Hickman divided the points after touchdown.

The Potters, playing the same evening, easily defeated the Goons by a score of 20-0. Minier led the scoring honors with two touchdowns. Helped by the fine blocking of Scott, he was able to break loose for an eighty-five yard run for one of his touchdowns. Bell scored the other touchdown by running two yards after receiving a pass from Buck on the Goons' ten-yard line.

Above we see an Archer back evading a would-be Mishawaka tackler. This scene, however, was not repeated very often in the game Saturday, as Mishawaka proved tough enough on both offensive and defensive to trim South Side 18 to 0.

To Change Amplifying System Temporarily

For next Saturday's game with Peru the speaker system now being used in the stadium, will be replaced. The Electro-Acoustic Products Company, subsidiary of Magnavox, will put in the new system free of charge. This, of course, will be just for the one day.

If the present speakers are of the same type, the wiring will not have to be changed, but otherwise it will. It is highly improbable that the present system will be changed, because the speakers and amplifiers alone would cost approximately $300. The plan for this new system would be to have four speakers on each side of the stadium instead of the present three.

Hinton, Reeves Golf Champs In Intramural

Take Heavy, Lightweight Titles; Ballweg, Theye, Siple, Hawkins Are Leaders.

Abe Hinton and Ed Reeves are the winners of the annual South Side intramural golf tourney, in the heavy-weight and lightweight divisions respectively. Ray Ballweg tied with Bud Theye for second place in the heavies, and Bob Hawkins and Bill Siple took second and third, respectively, in the lights. As in former years, the tournament took place at the Municipal Golf Links, in Foster Park.

Low scores of the tourney are: 79 by Hinton, 86's by Theye and Ballweg, in the heavies; 95 by Reeves, 101 by Hawkins, and 102 by Siple in the lightweights. The participants in the tourney follow: Bob Tapping, Red Stone, D. Dickmeyer, Theye, Ballweg, and Hinton, heavies; Bob Schaaf, Siple, Hawkins, and Reeves, lights. Harold Schmidt was the supervisor for the competitors.

The individual scores are as follows:

Heavyweights
	In	Out
Bud Theye	44	42
Ray Ballweg	45	41
Bob Tapping	51	48
Red Stone	50	51
Abe Hinton	37	42
D. Dickmeyer	46	48

Lightweights
	In	Out
Bob Hawkins	48	53
Ed Reeves	50	45
Bill Siple	53	49
Bob Schaaf	62	61

South Side Stadium To Receive Press Booths This Week

It is said that the South Side stadium with all its latest in field equipment can be compared with Stag Field, Yale Bowl, Michigan Bowl and numerous other modern college fields and stadiums.

Not satisfied with the addition of a speaking system, Ora Davis, head of the athletic department, has announced that there will be two press booths of the latest type not unlike those used in college gridirons built at the center on top of the west side of the stadium, to take care of the sport scribes from the Times, News-Sentinel, Journal-Gazette, and visiting scribes.

Mr. Davis stated that plans for it were being rushed so that the press boxes may be used in Saturday's game with Peru.

Mishawaka Eleven, Too Much For Archers, Trim Green 18-0

Due to a wild second quarter in which the Maroon invaders from Mishawaka punched over three touchdowns, South Side went down to ignominious defeat last Saturday by the score of 18 to 0, their first setback this season.

The Archers relied almost wholly on a passing attack that didn't materialize, and that was bottled up all afternoon by a fast charging Mishawaka line and an alert backfield. With few exceptions, the South Side running plays were smeared, and the passes were hurried or batted down by a defense that was continually on its toes.

Only once during the game did the South Side attack begin to click, and that was late in the third quarter. The Archers marched to the Mishawaka five yard line, starting from their own forty and by means of their reverses, working nicely, coupled with one good pass from Lee to Benz, they moved fifty-five yards to a first down and goal to go on the Mishawaka five-yard line. But the punch was lacking, and Mishawaka took the ball on downs and kicked out of danger.

South Side kicked off, and after Mishawaka had been forced to punt, the Archers immediately made known their plan of attack, Lee passing on the first series of downs. But this availed them not, and Lee was forced to return the punt. After two sizeable gains, South Side received the first break of the game and promptly proceeded to make nothing of it, when Makey recovered a Mishawaka fumble on the Maroon's 33-yard line.

At this point Lee proceeded to throw three consecutive incomplete passes, and the break did South Side no more good than it did Mishawaka harm. Lee was rushed so badly on these passes that he hardly had time to look for receivers, let alone get the ball to them. When Lee punted and Mishawaka found themselves deep in their own territory, they kicked immediately, Woodhull obligingly fumbled, and the Maroons recovered on their own 35-yard line.

Mishawaka then began to move and when the quarter ended, the pigskin was resting on the Archers' 24-yard line, and South Side was digging in their cleats in an attempt to stop the onrushing Maroons. They did stop them long enough to take the ball on downs, but Lee, also willing to oblige, fumbled a lateral pass, and South Side was once more on the defensive on their own 32-yard line.

This time Mishawaka was not to be stopped and after Foster had carried the ball to the five-yard line on a beautiful off-tackle smash, Peters plunged over for the score. Nicolini, Substitutions: South Side—Meyers, Norris, Benz, K. Miller, Dern, Parmelee. Mishawaka—Sargeant, Palmer, Mestach, Stanley, Holland, Bozengo.

Sunshine Club Organized As What-Not Girls

Beginning Was in 1932 With Misses Beulah Rinehart, Pearl Rehorth, Advisers.

In 1932, a group of girls with their adviser, Miss Beulah Rinehart, began an organization which they called "The What-Not Club." Miss Rinehart's purpose in launching this club was to help the girls live better lives and to impress upon them the importance of fine ideals. In November, 1932, Miss Pearl Rehorth came to the assistance of Miss Rinehart in the advising of the club.

On November 19, 1932, Miss Pittenger and Miss Rinehart with a group of the What-Not girls went to a Sunshine Convention at Huntington, Indiana. Among these girls were Betty Mauk, president; Louise Frost, Kathleen Hire, and Jeanette Warner. Nineteen girls from North Manchester came to Fort Wayne to initiate the girls of South Side into the State Sunshine organization, in October, 1932. These girls were Bernice Crowl, Mary Shively, Lois Pottinger, Frieda Wright, Marguerite Weston, Marjorie Huter, Imogene Grassnickle, Marie Lantieri, Ruthanna Shultz, Mary Louise Rank, Margaret Brunges, Ruby Searer, Pauline Ross, Winifred Brubaker, Mable Wiemer, and Betty Lou Yoder.

Only junior and senior girls were eligible for membership in the What-Not Club. During the second semester of 1933, Miss Mary Crowe helped Miss Rinehart advise the club.

Sunshine Juniors Organized
In 1933 a club called the Sunshine Juniors was organized. Miss Edith Crowe was the adviser. This club was initiated into the State Sunshine Society by the What-Not Club.

The Sunshine Juniors were made up of the freshmen and sophomore girls of South Side. The officers of this organization were: Thelma Erwin, president; Iona Schuler, vice-president; Hazel Noll, secretary.

A convention held at North Manchester, Indiana, on April 7, 1933, was attended by a large delegation from the club. Miss Sanders, state dean of the Sunshine Clubs, was the principal speaker at the meeting.

Two Clubs Merge
In 1934 the What-Not Club and the Sunshine Juniors of South Side were combined to form the Sunshine Club. The advisers of this organization are the Misses Mary and Edith Crowe.

The officers for the past semester were: Caroline Dirmeyer, president; Betty Beyran, vice-president; Dorothea Tobianski, secretary; and Thelma Erwin, treasurer. The present officers are: Iona Schuler, president; Thelma Erwin, vice-president; Caroline Dirmeyer, secretary; and Francis Rykowski, treasurer.

The purpose of the Sunshine Club is to brighten and bring health to the home, to the school, and to the community. The two prime motives are helpfulness and usefulness.

The Sunshine Society, as a high school organization, numbers 140 chapters in Indiana and one in Illinois.

One of the several projects of the Sunshine Clubs is to contribute to the James Whitcomb Riley Fund. Every five years one Sunshine Club in the state is chosen by the State Sunshine Society to collect all contributions toward this cause. The money is used to purchase supplies for the Riley Hospital for Crippled Children in Indianapolis.

Any girl of South Side is eligible for membership in the club, provided she does not belong to either the U. S. A. Club or the So-Si-Y.

Denotes Sunshine

State Emblem

This small block is the emblem of the State Sunshine Society. It represents the sun coming over the horizon. It illustrates the light that the members of this club bring into the lives of other people. The emblem is used for their papers and stationery.

Sunshine Alumni To Lead Groups

Doris Garrison, Peggy Newell, Willodean and Melba Scherer To Discuss Sundry Topics.

The Sunshine Club Alumni girls are very much interested in helping to make the convention a great success. Many girls found it impossible to attend, but four girls arranged to conduct the discussion groups. These members are Doris Garrison of the class of 1934; Peggy Newell of the class of 1934; Melba Scherer of 1935; and Willodean Scherer of 1934.

Doris Garrison was a member of the Math-Science and the Travel Clubs in South Side. She was also secretary of the What-Not Club. Miss Garrison was a member of the South Side Times staff for the Totem. While attending South Side High, she earned her G. A. A. letter. She was a State Discussion Contestant and was awarded third place in the extemporaneous contest. She was a member of the Senior Play cast.

Peggy Newell was a member of the Meteries, the Girls' Athletic Association and the Wranglers. She belonged to the Art Club and also to the Math-Science Club. She was vice-president and foreign secretary of the Travel Club. She belonged to the orchestra and the Glee Club. Miss Newell was secretary-treasurer of the Student Players. She participated actively in basketball, volleyball and basketball.

Willodean Scherer belonged to the Girls' Athletic Association and the Glee Club. She was president of the What-Not Club and vice-president of the Travel Club. She was a member of the Pebble Pups and the Math-Science Club. She belonged to the National Honor Society.

Melba Scherer was a member of the Girls' Athletic Association, the Glee Club, and was an officer of the Sunshine Club. She attended South Side from her freshman year to the November before graduation. She then graduated at Elmhurst. She made the honor roll once at South Side and all the time at Elmhurst.

Doris Garrison will discuss Club Service. She will preside in the Greeley Room. Peggy Newell will talk on Money Raising, in the Voorhees Room. Melba Scherer will speak on Social Meetings in the library and Willodean Scherer will discuss Other Meetings in the study hall.

Miss Pittenger will be the sponsor and she will be in room 52.

New Haven Club Has Annual Party

Mr. White, Principal of School, Expresses View Sunshiners Are Doing Worthwhile Work.

From the letters received at South Side from the principal and pupils of the New Haven High School, it can be seen that the Sunshine Club is a success there.

Mr. White, the principal, feels that the Sunshine girls are doing worthwhile work in his school. He also believes that the girls have been a good influence on the general citizenship of the whole school.

One club member thinks that the club gives the members a higher standard of achievement. In their community they use their dues largely for charity, giving a Christmas party annually for the needy children of the community.

Another pupil, who is not a member of the club, thinks that the club has created a spirit of good feeling and friendship among the girls of the school.

The school is represented at the Riley Hospital and other institutions by donations to them through the Sunshine Club.

Hanover Scene Of Fourteenth Sunshine Meet

Annual Confab Was Held June 18, 19; 700 Girls Attend From Over State.

The fourteenth annual Indiana State Sunshine convention was held at Hanover College, June 18 and 19, where approximately seven hundred girls from high schools all over the state of Indiana gathered to enjoy the very interesting convention program. The Scottsburg chapter, of which Miss Fannie Middleton is the sponsor, was the hostess to the members of the society.

The state officers of the Sunshine Society for 1934-1935 are: President—Ethel Short, Vernon. Vice-President—Katherine Mohler, Scottsburg.

Treasurer—Helen Ramsey, Atlanta. Secretary—Ruth Ann Crim, Sulphur Springs.

Treasurer of Riley Fund—Miss Hazel Cage, Huntington.

State Dean—Mrs. C. E. Sandefru, North Vernon.

State Sponsor—Miss Fannie Middleton, Scottsburg.

Theme Was "New Horizons"

The theme upon which the convention program was based was "New Horizons." The first morning of the convention was reserved for registration, after which lunch was served at the College Point House. The college gymnasium was the scene of all the convention meetings.

The feature of the Tuesday afternoon meeting was an address, "The Battle with the Beast," by Dr. Dearin, Oakland City College. After the meeting a few hours of recreation was enjoyed, during which there was swimming at the Hanover Beach.

In the evening, vesper services were held at College Point after which a stunt program was given at the college gymnasium. After this program a dance was held.

Wednesday morning the sponsors and the girls held separate breakfasts, after which a general business meeting was held. Before the closing dinner a song contest was held.

Convention Help Thanked by Club

Mr. Snider, Misses Mellen and Pittenger, Times, So-Si-Y, Are Few Who Have Aided.

The president of the South Side Sunshine Club, Iona Schuler, in expressing her appreciation of those who are giving their time and energy to help the Sunshine convention, which is to be held Saturday, said, "Speaking for the Sunshine Club, I want to express appreciation for the co-operation of South Side in helping with the convention. We are especially grateful to Mr. Snider and Miss Pittenger."

Others helping are: So-Si-Y girls, who will help to serve the lunch; Miss Lucy Mellen, who is in charge of the lunch; Mr. Snider, who helped get speakers, is to give the principal talk at the convention, made arrangements for the football game, and gave many helpful suggestions; Miss Pittenger, who gave helpful advice and suggestions and also took part in the meeting; The Times, which published this special issue for the convention.

Thanks also goes to the Athletic Association, which will give tickets for the Peru football game to every member at the convention; the music department, which is furnishing music for the morning program; and all the teachers who have loaned their rooms and given services to the club.

Sunshine Club Plans Town House Luncheon

The Sunshine Club is sponsoring a luncheon at the Town House on Thursday, October 17, at 12 o'clock. Miss Crowe stated that Mrs. Sandefru, the state Sunshine dean would be present at this luncheon. This club is also giving a breakfast in Indianapolis on October 18, at the L. S. Avers' Tea Room. Both of these meetings are in connection with the State Teachers' meeting of this year.

Student Radio Amateur
In McClymonds High School, Oakland, California, Bill Dunlap, a senior, is the envy of all his classmates because he talks to radio amateurs all over the world by code. Despite the fact that staying until night makes him so sleepy that he cannot come to school some mornings, Bill finds a great deal of enjoyment in pounding a telegraph key.

Handles State Money

Miss Kathleen Purvis

Miss Kathleen Purvis, of the New Haven High School, holds the office of state treasurer of the Sunshine Club. She was elected to this position at the convention at Hanover in June. She is also president of the New Haven chapter.

Plays, Speeches Are Events of Sunshine Club During Year

Last year's program of the Sunshine Club was a very interesting one. Various outside speakers were guests at the meetings, and their speeches proved a source of valuable information to the members of the club. Miss Pittenger was the first outside speaker, and her topic was "The Service of the Sunshine Club." Mr. Snider spoke to the club on March 13 on "Suggestions for a Successful Convention."

Various social activities were held by the club throughout the year, including a combined Halloween party and potluck supper on October 30, to which everyone came masked, and at which prizes were awarded to those wearing the prettiest costumes; a Christmas party held on December 11, at which time the program included playing games and singing Christmas carols; and a Mother-Daughter tea held April 30. Initiation services were held at the meeting of November 13, when 22 new girls were initiated into the club.

The officers elected on January 22 for last year were: president, Caroline Dirmeyer; vice-president, Betty Beyran; secretary, Dorothy Tobianski; treasurer, Thelma Erwin; sergeant-at-arms, Valeria Martin. Those elected at the May 28th meeting for this year are: president, Iona Schuler; vice-president, Thelma Erwin; secretary, Caroline Dirmeyer; treasurer, Frances Rykowski; sergeant-at-arms, Dorothy Zoegel.

A play concerning the tuberculosis Christmas stamps was given on November 27.

300-400 Expected At S.S.S. Luncheon

White and Yellow Color Scheme To Be Used; Two Songs Are To Be Included on Program.

The Sunshine State Convention luncheon will be held at South Side in the cafeteria at 12 o'clock Saturday. The tables will be covered with a white cloth with strip of yellow down the center to carry out the Sunshine colors, and yellow paper napkins will be used to carry out the color scheme.

The menu will be as follows: Hot meat loaf sandwich with gravy, mashed potatoes, perfection salad, cocoa, ice cream, and wafers.

The sponsors will sit at a special table and will be served by some So-Si-Y girls. Among the guests at the sponsors' table will be Miss Pittenger, Mrs. Sandefru, the Sunshine state dean, Miss Rinehart, and Miss Rehorth.

During the luncheon there will be some songs sung including the "Sunshine Girl" and "Sunshine Pal." The luncheon will be served under the direction of Miss Mellen and her staff. They expect to serve between three and four hundred.

"Build Well" Is Theme of State Sunshine Clubs

Organization and Initiation Planned for September; Year's Program Is Given.

Following the general theme "Build Well," the Sunshine clubs of Indiana have planned many interesting meetings for the coming year.

The September meeting was set aside as an organization meeting at which time formal initiation of new members were held.

"Build Well for Physical Strength" has been chosen as the theme for the October meeting. At this meeting the members will discuss foods and exercise.

A Thanksgiving program will be held in November. The theme for the month is "Build Well for Service."

In December the meeting will be held in the form of a Christmas program, carrying out the theme, "Build Well for Usefulness."

Manners at home and at school along with appropriate dress and conduct will be considered at the January meeting.

The February meeting promises to be a very interesting one in that a program of local Sunshine talent is to be held.

A discussion will be the feature of the March meeting. The topic for the discussion has been selected as "Within This Present."

In April the Sunshine clubs are to have their election of officers. In addition to this a program for senior Sunshine girls will be held.

Sunshine Society Has Novel History

Crawfordsville Organize Branch In 1901; Convention Held At Tipton, Indiana, in 1930.

Celebrating their thirty-fourth year of existence the Sunshine Societies in Indiana are to meet in Fort Wayne. Crawfordsville, the mother society, getting the idea from the national Sunshine Society organization (office in New York City), organized a branch society in 1901. At one of the conventions, held in Tipton in 1930, it was decided to divide the state into four districts and let each have a District Dean to assist the State Dean. Fort Wayne is in district 2, for which Miss Gertrude Wahl of Goshen is serving as dean.

At the state convention held at Hanover College in 1935, there were seven hundred delegates from 150 Sunshine Societies in high schools all over the state. The motto of Sunshiners is "Others," which is more fully expressed by their creed. The buttercup is the state Sunshine Society flower. In 1930, a committee was appointed to place an inscription of six words on a stained glass window in the lobby of the Riley Hospital. The inscription is "Others. Indiana High School Sunshine Societies."

The Sunshine initiation is a simple Candlelight Service—sometimes combined with a Friendship Fire ceremony out-of-doors. The sending of flowers to the sick, and the singing of Christmas carols to shut-ins are two big projects in each society.

Hospital Is Aided

Hospital Window

This large block is a replica of a window in the Riley Hospital at Indianapolis. It is in honor of the State Sunshine Society for the work they have done for the hospital. Each girl in the Sunshine Society contributes five cents to the state fund which is turned over to Miss Hazel Cage, who is in charge of the fund. This money is used to buy special equipment such as chairs and instruments for the hospital. Hundreds of dollars have been spent on this equipment.

New Haven Aids In Sunshine Meet

Neighboring Chapter Assisted In Plans for Convention Held Here Tomorrow and Saturday.

The New Haven High School Sunshine Club of New Haven, Indiana, will assist South Side's chapter in the plans for the Sunshine convention which will be held here tomorrow and Saturday.

The officers of the New Haven group are: President, Kathleen Purvis; vice-president, Clara Byer; secretary, Betty Bruggeman; treasurer, Lillian Jackmeyer; and publicity director, Carolyn Levy. The faculty advisers are the Misses Helen Harrell and Harriett Daniels.

The New Haven group's part in the convention will be an hour's program on Saturday afternoon.

In speaking of their chapter, the New Haven advisers said, "It is interesting to note that in the South Side and New Haven groups there are represented two distinct types of Sunshine organizations. In New Haven, the club approaches one hundred percent membership of all girls in the high school. The majority of clubs in this district are of this sort. The large club group is frequently broken into sections which specialize in different activities. The South Side Sunshine Club is only one of the many activities open to girls, and its membership is not large compared to other chapters; however, all the societies follow the general Sunshine plans, regardless of size."

Drive on Fire Prevention Is Country-Wide

Safety and Caution Urged
By Fireman at Assembly;
Test Fire Drills Given.

Aim To Cut Loss Of Life, Property

Many Suggestions To Prevent Destruction Offered Housing Administration.

National Fire Prevention Week, which is a country-wide observance, was celebrated this week in schools, industrial houses, and stores throughout the United States.

In Fort Wayne Fire Chief John C.
Stahlhut and Captain Carter A. Bowser, inspector for the city fire department, were in charge of the observance.
The city program, as in other years, featured talks by uniformed firemen in every parochial and public school; talks on fire prevention at all luncheon clubs, in most of the factories, and over radio station WOWO;
and an attractive display in one of the downtown stores. Fire drills in all of the schools, and free fire hazard inspection in private homes were also a part of the observance.

Chief Comments

Chief Stahlhut, in commenting on Fort Wayne's observance of Fire Prevention Week, said, "The city's fire loss has been very low, and very rarely do we suffer the loss of lives of either firemen, bystanders, or building occupants in local fires. This record is one which Fort Wayne should be proud to claim and anxious to retain as its own."

The Federal Housing Administration, through its fire prevention bulletins, is furthering fire prevention by assisting in the modernization of homes and other buildings, as well as construction of new homes in accordance with high technical standards. The bulletins also trace the causes of at least fifty percent of the losses from fire to faulty construction.

F. H. A. Bulletins Aid

Some of the suggestions in the F. H.
A. bulletins include the checking of private homes for faulty stairs, plumbing, and lighting and power. Fire-resisting materials are urged for use in basements around furnaces and heaters, and in attics along roofs and chimneys. Twenty-two percent of home fires are said to originate in attics and basements.

Clean and protected heating and ventilating facilities are other equipment which home owners are urged to install. In line with this, the bulletins also advise the use of fire extinguishers, fire escape ladders, and fire blankets. The bulletins also advise the use of fire extinguishers, fire escape
ladders, and fire blankets. The bulletins also advise the use of fire extinguishers, fire escape
ladders, and fire blankets.

School Has Assembly

At South Side, an assembly for Fire Prevention Week was held on Tuesday morning at 8:20. Safety and caution were urged by the uniformed fire department member, Captain Bowser, who spoke to the assembly. Several fire drills were also held to test the student body's ability to quit the building should the need for hasty evacuation arise. Mr. R. Nelson Snider was in charge of arranging the schedule for the novel drills.

Theme of Library Is Better Fiction

Hazel Kuttler To Review Book; Jo Anne Smith To Give Fortunes at Halloween Meeting.

Coming just one week before Halloween, the Library Club meeting of October 26, will have that holiday for its theme. Fortunes of the various members will be read mysteriously by JoAnne Smith. Hazel Kuttler, who held a position this summer at Rahe's Lending Library and had many contacts with all the new and better fiction, will review one of these types of books.

After this serious part of the program and a short business meeting, the members will play charades and dance to popular melodies played on the piano by Selma Liff, Bob Garzett, JoAnne Smith, and Evelyn Kruse.
Refreshment will consist of pop corn, apples, and cider. The committee is planning this meeting includes Maxine Mariotte, program chairman for the year; Phyllis Barrows, Ruth Berning, Selma Liff, Richard Gebert, and James Geier.

Trip The Light Fantastic With Your Choice At the Tea Dance

"May I have this dance?" will probably be the most-asked question tomorrow, October 11, which marks the date of the first tea dance of the year. The dance will be held as usual in the school cafeteria. Because this is the first one of the tea dances this year, a large number is expected to attend. The committee, composed of Virginia Vesey, Bernadette Dygert, and Harriet Yapp, as well as Miss Oppelt, who is in charge of the tea dance in behalf of the Booster Club, invites everyone who wishes to come and enjoy an afternoon of enjoyment and pleasant relaxation to attend this, the first dance of the season. Freshman especially are invited. In previous years the first dance has been attended very well, and it is expected that this year it will be just as well

Other Events Listed

"Back to School Night" will be held October 14. The parents will again be invited. The freshman tea party will be given October 21, the sophomore tea October 28, the junior tea
November 11, and the senior tea November 18. Mrs. Rea will inform the committee when the next meeting will be held.

Tradition Began Seven Years Ago

Back-To-School Night Sponsored By Parent-Teachers' Since
Originated in Fall of 1929.

Since 1929, parents have satisfied their probable life-long ambition of once again becoming a typical high school "kid." Undoubtedly, many parents did not have the advantage and opportunity of attending four years of high school and now they can satisfy this longing.

In the fall of 1929, South Side's first "Back-to-School" night was held.
Nearly 1200 people were present to attend classes in place of favored sons and daughters. Like the freshmen of our school, these adult pupils, too, seem to get lost, and the first issue of the Tiny Times was published.

The following seven years have been taken up in much the same way with the exception of having but one year.
An average of between 600-1200 people have always attended. The teachers co-operated in this event by having as their task the job of teaching the parents for a night.

This teaching runs, however, in the line of greetings and information about their son or daughter. The stationing of information girls has been the latest addition to "Back-to-School" nights. Parents will probably clamor for this night for years to come and we can accept it as a needed bit for not ours, but our parents' education.

Philaletic Fall Dance Will Be November 9

Hop Is Planned for Night of South Side-Central Game;
Committees Are Selected.

Plymouth Pilgrims Reviewed At Meet

Membership Drive Still on; Winners Will Treat Losers at Halloween Party.

Plans for the Philaletic Fall
Dance which will be held November 9, following the South Side-Central football game were started at a meeting of the Philaletic officers held Monday evening, October 7, in Miss Demaree's room. Work will begin immediately as the committees and their chairmen have been appointed and some plans have already been definitely made.

The ticket committee, with Mary Martha Hobrock as chairman, has already worked out a system by which it feels that its part of the dance plans may be improved and made more successful. The president, Ruth Adler, announced that there would be a prize for the girl who sold the most tickets.

More Committees Named
The publicity is in charge of Jane
Loomis with Ruth Roadcap, Rosemary Chappell, and Mary Martha Hobrock assisting her. Posters will soon be appearing on various boards, so watch them for information concerning the dance and its theme.

Rosemary Chappell is chairman of the orchestra committee. Maxine Borthert is the chairman of the decoration committee, and the chairman of the program committee is Helen Anderson.

This evening there will be a meeting of the Thespians in Miss Dem-aree's room. This meeting will be final tryouts for the play, and some of the parts will be assigned. The play is a comedy called "Seven to One." The next play to be given is also a comedy by the name, "No Men Wanted." The girls who turned out at the last meeting numbered about twenty.

Another project under way is the Philaletic yearbook. This book will contain the work of Philo this year, their songs, yells, and program. This project is being undertaken in the hope that it will be of help to the members in keeping them posted about the many things which are going on.

Revolutionary Literature Reviewed
Helen Flaig, chairman of the music committee, reports that the Philo quartet is doing fine in rehearsals. The quartet is one of the old favorite highlights in the Philaletic program.

The next meeting of Philo will be held Monday, October 14, in the Greeley Room. This meeting will be the second under the theme "America on Literature." Monday's program with Mary Martha Hobrock as chairman, assisted by Ruth Roadcap, Geneva
Shearer, and Clarice Rudy, will deal with the second topic under "America on Literature," "Revolutionary Literature."

All girls still desiring to become members of Philo may hand in their letters of application any time this week. The membership campaign does not close until midnight of October 13.
The gold team is leading so far in membership.

At a regular meeting of the Philaletic Literary Society, held Monday, September 30, in the Greeley Room, the first of the topics under America in Literature was reviewed.
This part of the program was under the charge of Mary Martha Hobrock, program chairman. She spoke first on the theme, America in Literature, which was followed by speeches by Margaret Crankshaw and Mary Michael on Literary Activities in the Virginia Colony and Literary Activity in the Plymouth Colony respectively. The program was completed by a piano selection by Peggy Kilpatrick.

Ruth Adler, president of the club, presided at the business meeting. The roll was called and the secretary's report was given followed by the treasurer's report.

The membership drive captained
by Verna Holtman and Helen Anderson is still underway and both teams are bringing in many new members.
The membership drive closes midnight, October 13. The losing team must entertain the winning team at a Halloween party.

Dick Helm Heads Student Players

Ruth Rose and Barbara Uran
Are Named Other Officers;
Program Committees Selected

Election of officers was the feature of the Student Players meeting held on Friday, October 4, in the Greeley Room. The officers are Dick Helm, president; Ruth Rose, vice-president; and Barbara Uran, secretary-treasurer.

After the election, a monologue portraying a colored person, was given by Selma Liff. Helen Flaig then played two selections on the harp. Helen Doenges, chairman of the program, gave a review of the recent play, "Personal Appearance."

Committees Announced
Miss Suter also announced the members of the program committees for November and December meetings.
They are, November: Mary Louise
Helms, chairman; Maxine Rippe,
Catherine Allendorph, Charles Hart,
Betty Jeanne Bond, and Don Sparkman; December: Cliff Schrom, chairman, John Edwards, Emily Lepper, Dick Helm, Sally Rea, and Ruth Rose.
She also announced that initiation would be held in January. These students on the committee are: Margaret Crankshaw, chairman, Barbara Uran, Luther Prociue, Bob Haruff, Bonislene Craig, and Theo Scheuren-berg.

Teacher Requests Needles and Thread

Notice to all girls! Miss Mott, a sewing teacher here, requests that all girls have a needle and several kinds of darning cotton or thread in their lockers. This will avoid all confusion in the sewing rooms when girls come in to borrow a needle and thread from either of the sewing teachers who are usually very busy.
Most girls are unfamiliar with the arrangement of the sewing rooms and they have to be shown where the things are kept, thus taking somebody away from his work.

Sand U Cards Mean End of Awful Day If You're Not Smart

After numerous talks and speeches by home room teachers on the necessity of keeping possession of S, U, cards, which were distributed on Tuesday, fifteen or more shiftless students lost or misplaced the card, which states whether or not satisfactory work is being done.

The remaining one thousand nine hundred and some students, who hung tenaciously to their reports, had varying experiences of which the following happened to yours truly is the most usual.

Upon entering my most versatile class, which by the way is Latin, I had high hope of receiving an S, a very worthy deed. As I sat awaiting the zero hour, I went into a reverie. My thoughts went back to the first time I was called upon to translate a few lines. I can only remember stammering and stuttering about, and being excused by the teacher and assigned an eighth period. My thoughts then wandered to the test just completed to my horror I remember my grade, a sixty-nine. To my disgust I summarize my prize S will undoubtedly be lost. I am brought quickly out of my reverie by the teacher calling my name. I approach the desk slowly, resigned to my fate. The teacher gives through the tedious job of putting the room, period, subject, and signature on the card, the zero hour approaches with a few deft movements the grade is put on, a sigh of relief escapes me;
it's an S.

Subject of French Group Is Rouen

Club Will Hold Term's Election Of Officers Today; Skating Party Plans Are Advanced.

All students who are planning to become members of the French Club are urged to attend the next meeting, which will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Voorhees room. The meeting is a very important one as the election of officers for this semester will take place during the business meeting. Additional plans will be held at the skating party to be held at Bell's rink the latter part of November.

The program for this meeting will be centered around Rouen. Rouen is an old French city located on the Seine River in the province of Normandy.
The customs of the people, the important industries of the city, the history of the establishment of the town, and other interesting information will be given as part of the program. The committee is also planning several games to be played some time during the meeting. Vivian Hickman is chairman of the program committee for this meeting.

Any student who has had at least one semester's work in French and who has made a grade of B or above is eligible for membership in the club.
The French Club has no dues and a student is a member after attending three consecutive meetings of the club.

Kenneth Scott Is Marionette Head

Other Officers Named Are Norman Budde, Doreen Russell;
Plans for Play Are Discussed.

Kenneth Scott was elected to serve as president of Marionette Club at the last meeting, which was held on Thursday, October 3, in the club's workshop. Other officers chosen are Norman Budde, vice-president; and Doreen Russell, secretary-treasurer.

Plans for the annual Marionette
Christmas Play, which will be given just before the vacation period, were discussed. A play committee composed of Tom Sellers, chairman; Eliza Bess Lucas, Lorraine Meyer, Lillian Sherbondy, and Mary Anne Park, was chosen. Ruth Eysenber, Laverne Boyce, and Ruth Berning were selected to serve as a committee for puppets and supplies.

A Halloween party was planned for Friday evening, October 25, and will be held in the club workshop. Doreen
Russell, Violet Garton, Norman Budde and John Bex will act as the general committee for the affair.

Outgoing officers of the club are:
President, John Bex; vice-president,
Georgetta McIntire; secretary, Mary Anne Park; and treasurer, Eliza Bess
Lucas.

Wo-Ho-Ma Club Picnic Committee Appointed

At the last Wo-Ho-Ma meeting held in the Greeley Room on October 3, plans were made for a picnic to take place on October 17. The committee appointed consists of Eloise Brase and Helen Clark. Helen Clark gave a report on the life of Jane Addams.
Games were played at the meeting.
Dorothea Tobianski will give a report on the life of Madame Schuman-Heink at the next meeting on October 31.

Social Science Club To Hear Noted Speaker

Ft. Wayne Minister To Talk
On Political Aspects of Italo-Ethiopian Conflict.

Paul H. Krauss To Address Club

Semester's Theme Is "Topics Of Current Issue;" Plan Play for School Assembly.

Dr. Paul H. Krauss, pastor of the Trinity English Lutheran Church, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Social Science Club at 2:45 this afternoon in the band room. Due to Dr.
Krauss's inability to be present at the evening meeting, the meeting is to be held this afternoon, although the club usually meets on Friday evenings.
Only members of the club and a limited number of guests will be admitted.
Dr. Krauss is noted as a speaker and keen observer of political science.
He is also keenly interested in the youth of America. He has traveled during the summer in several European countries with the American Seminary Association, and is widely known for his talks on Germany.

Dr. Krauss's speech will be on the political aspects of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict. He will also discuss governments, particularly the types of government prevalent in modern Europe.
The members of the club will discuss current political questions, especially those concerning the Italo-Ethiopian War, such as "What will be the effects of the war?" "Will America be drawn into it?" and "What is Italy's objective in invading Ethiopia?"

Plans for an assembly to be held before the entire school on some patriotic holiday will be discussed at the meeting. A constitutional committee will be appointed to make several changes in the constitution of the club, made necessary by changing conditions in the school.

The semester's theme for the club is "Topics of Current Interest and Their Relationship to the Social Orders." A discussion of the underlying causes of current topics will be given at each of the future meetings by some well-informed person.

Hi-Y Club Plans Retreat At Camp

Six Representatives, Officers Or Members Will Meet at Camp Potawatomi, Oct. 26-27.

A Hi-Y "retreat" for the purpose of planning Hi-Y programs, installing new officers, and instructing them in their various offices was discussed at a recent inter-club council meeting.
The tentative date for the "retreat" has been set for October 26 and 27.
It will be held at the Y. M. C. A. camp, Camp Potawatomi.

Six representatives either officers or members, who are especially interested in Hi-Y work, and the Hi-Y advisers will attend. Registration fees, to pay for the meals while at the camp, were set at one dollar, which is to be paid to the club adviser in return for a registration card.

Transportation Arranged
Presidents of the clubs, themselves, will arrange for the transportation of their club members and advisers to and from Camp Potawatomi. Mr.
Everett Pennington was appointed chairman of the program committee.
The members of this committee are
Mr. Maurice Ashley and Donald Mc-Alece. Mr. Ralph Virts was appointed chairman of the recreation committee, who will be assisted by Norman Jueschke and Joe Bell.

North Siders Present
Those who were present who are North Siders are Mr. Everett Pennington and Rollo Mosher, who are the Redskin Hi-Y club advisers; Norman Jueschke, president of the Redskin Hi-Y; Max Thompson, secretary of the Redskin Hi-Y; and Robert Trenner, treasurer of the Redskin
Hi-Y.

The council will meet again on Wednesday, October 9 at 7:15 o'clock to discuss the development of the plans for the "retreat."

"Jupiter" Subject Of Societas Romano

Program Part of Year's Theme; Telegram Game Is Played;
Refreshments Are Served.

"Jupiter" was the myth studied by the Societas Romana at its monthly meeting last Thursday. The theme for the year is "Mythology."

"The Myth and Its Value" was told to the club by Betty Rayl. She told many tales which were handed down from the Greeks to the Romans, about the myths. Irene Becker told about the "Birth, Supremacy, and Apparance of the Gods" in which she enclosed the mythical beginning of the gods and goddesses, and how Jupiter was crowned supreme ruler of the universe.

Walter Weaver told many mythical stories of Jupiter and his brothers, sisters, and children. "Jupiter and His Children," a poem, was given by Henry Velkoff.

Marion Bay, who was dressed up as Jupiter, gave a humorous poem of this great god.

A Latin telegram game was played, and the prize won by Betty Bond. Refreshments composed of ambrosia and cakes, a well-known food of the gods, were served in the Roman manner by girls dressed up as Roman women.

Walks Without Cane
We are very glad to say that Miss Kelley, who suffered a broken leg this summer, is now able to walk without a cane.

Guest Speaker

Rev. Paul H. Krauss

The Rev. Paul H. Krauss, pastor of the Trinity English Lutheran Church, will be the guest speaker of the Social Science Club Thursday afternoon. His subject will be "Political Aspects of the Italo-Ethiopian Conflict."

Teachers Hold Convention On October 17, 18

State Sessions Are To Be in Indianapolis; Others May Attend at Shrine Here.

Teachers of South Side will have the privilege of attending either the Indiana State Teachers' convention to be in Indianapolis, or the Northeastern Indiana Teachers' convention. These conventions will be held on the same days, October 17 and 18.

The general sessions of the eighty-second annual state convention will begin Thursday, at 8 p. m. at the Cadle Tabernacle. Departmental meetings will be held at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. on Thursday. Cadle Tabernacle will also be the scene of the annual business session of the association on Friday, October 18. Albert Free is president of the Indiana State Teachers' Association.

The sessions of the Northeastern Indiana Teachers' Association will be held in the Shrine Auditorium. Three general sessions and thirty sectional meetings will be held. Approximately 3,000 teachers will attend the sessions.
Among the speakers at this convention will be Dr. Roscoe Gilmore Stott, director of the Stott School of Speech, Cincinnati; Dr. Elise Martens, senior specialist in education of exceptional children, Bureau of Education, Department of Interior; Dr. Ralph Mag-off of New York University; Professor Thurston Owens, of Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland; Professor Ralph Corley of Purdue University; and Miss Frances Swain of the Chicago Public Schools.

Music at some of the sessions will be furnished by the harp ensemble and a string quartet under the direction of Mr. Jack Wainwright.

I.H.S.P.A. To Meet October 17 to 19

Annual State Press Convention
Will Be Held at Franklin
College for Fourteenth Year.

The fourteenth annual convention of the Indiana High School Press Association will be held at Franklin College, Franklin, Indiana, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, October 17, 18, and 19. One of the featured speakers of the program will be Mr. Leland
Stowe, who will open the convention
Thursday night with his speech, "The European vs. the American Press."

The officers for the 1935 convention of the Indiana High School Press Association are: president, George C.
Shaffer of Vincennes; vice-president,
Robert Suckow, of Franklin; and secretary, Ann Abbott of Fort Wayne.

There will be approximately three hundred and fifty delegates who will attend the I. H. S. P. A. from high schools all over Indiana. A group of thirty outstanding journalists from North Side and South Side will represent Fort Wayne at the convention.

Those from South Side who are accompanying Miss Rowena Harvey to the convention are: Louis Bonsib, Ann Abbott, JoAnn Smith, Harriett Yapp, Helen Anderson, Ruth Garrison, Virginia Vesey, Dorothy Crabill, Rosemary Chappell, James Sweet, Bryce Minier, George Ann Martin, John Bex,
Helen Kelsey, Betty Wolf, Bob Storm,
Dick Helm, and Norman Buck.

Parents Act Like Freshmen On Back-To-School Nights

Many of the dignified and worldly-wise parents of South Siders forget their dignity on Back-to-School Night and act just like a bunch of freshies.

They come in late for classes, skip classes (unintentionally, of course, get into the wrong rooms at the right periods and the right rooms at the wrong periods, and otherwise conduct themselves in a manner unsuited to even their greenest youngsters.

But they all enjoy themselves. They ask a good many questions about their boys and girls, and tell of their own school days. They seem to be most interested in their own children; so imagine the consternation of the teachers who, having had the pupils only a few weeks, cannot remember their names.

Seventh Annual Back-to-School Night Planned

Membership Drive of Parent-Teacher Association
Will Be Held Same Night.

Date Is Set For Monday Evening

Class Schedule Is To Begin,
Stop at 7:30, 9:30 P. M.;
List All P-T. A. Officers.

South Side's seventh annual Back-to-School Night, which is sponsored by the school's Parent-Teacher Association, will be held on Monday evening, October 14. The home room period will begin at 7:30.

Invitations are being mailed this week by Mrs. Raymond Fudge, membership chairman of South Side's P-T.
A., and her committee members, to all parents of the school's pupils. During past years, from eight hundred to one thousand parents attended the affair.

Membership Drive Planned
The annual drive for membership made by the P-T. A. will be held on the evening of Back-to-School celebration, although all parents are urged to come whether or not they pay their membership dues. The dues are twenty-<

"Fire Hazards Snatch Lives," States Captain

Hints for Fire Prevention Given by Bowser in Talk At Assembly on Tuesday.

"Fire hazards within the home have snatched 10,000 lives in the United States during the last year," stated Captain Bowser of the Fort Wayne Fire Department, Tuesday, in the assembly which was held in observance of Fire Prevention Week. He also said that the majority of these were preventable.

During his talk, Captain Bowser brought out the three-fold purpose of the fire department. First, the inspection and discovery of fire; second, the elimination of fire, and third, the education and training in the prevention of fire.

Main Hazards Listed
Because the high school pupils of today will be the home owners of tomorrow, he said that they were the most important group to which one could talk on this subject. Fire Prevention must be practiced at home. The three main fire hazards in the home are: (1) imperfect electrical systems; (2) the use of explosive liquids; (3) the accumulation of rubbish in the attic and basement.

Through imperfect electrical systems during the last year there was a loss of over $600,000. To prevent fires of this type the circuits should be checked often. An overloaded circuit leads to the running down of the fuse which eventually will burn out. The placing of heavy wire or copper so that it blocks the circuit is often the cause of a fire. The checking of circuits contributes greatly to the prevention of this.

Explosive Liquids Unsafe
Gasoline, naphtha, and kerosene are dangerous things to have around the house, because they are explosive and often cause the loss of lives. The hazards are caused by electricity formed by rubbing during the cleaning of clothes. The contact of matches and naphtha should prevent anyone from even considering the use of naphtha in the home. Many people realize that it shouldn't be used but think that their way of using it is safe. In this they are wrong, for the opinion of authorities is that there is no safe way of using it for cleaning. Kerosene is just as dangerous and causes as much damage as naphtha. A few months ago a house was badly damaged and a woman suffered death due to an explosion caused by kerosene coming in contact with a spark. This one illustration should be enough to prove to us the dangers of having these explosive liquids around the house.

Another Danger
The accumulation of rubbish in the attic and basement is another hazard of the home. The attic is usually the place where discarded furniture, old clothing, and other extraneous matter are put. This danger can be easily eliminated. The dangers of the basement may also be prevented by occasional cleaning of the basement and by having the furnace cleaned and looked over every season, so that the defects may be cleared up. The fire losses which had been $260,000,000, or from $3.25 to $4 per capita have been reduced in the last three years to less than a dollar per capita a year. Last year fire loss was 74 cents per capita.

Music Assemblies Are Planned Again

First Concert To Be on October 29; Annual Operetta Is To Be Presented on November 15.

The music department has planned many events for the coming year. Mr. Wainwright has announced that the band will hold music concerts again this year in the form of assemblies. The first one is to be held on Tuesday, October 29. The following ones will be held on December 10, January 7, February 11, and March 31, respectively. On October 30, the band will play at a concert for the C. C. camp, in exchange with Defiance, Ohio. This concert will be held somewhere north of Fort Wayne. The exact location is not known as yet.

The annual operetta staged by the music department will be given on November 15. They will have a minstrel show again this year which is to be held February 27 and 28.

Extraordinary Signs Brighten the Halls In Interest of Totem

In this world of ours, there seem to be a great many people who are quite careless and negligent on the latest news and events. Some people don't know that Lindbergh flew the Atlantic, a few do not realize that Columbus is responsible for the discovery of America, and a very few are unaware of the fact that bathing suits are getting briefer.

Campaign Is Opened
Be that as it may, no one in South Side this year, though he may be the worst of the worst of the careless can miss the fact that there is going to be a 1936 Totem. The advertising staff, under the direction of Dorothy Crabb, is not satisfied with a large number of seniors running all over the place saying "Wanta subscribe to the Totem?"

No, indeed, signs are tacked all over school, bill boards, and show cases making various demands of "Got your Totem?" "Now Is the Time to Sign Up for the Totem," and "Subscribe Now." Then they improved on this; the latest addition are the very clever picture signs. These signs are mounted on cardboard and contain a picture and a clever saying beneath it. All these sayings, of course, suggest the Totem. Louis Bonsib, editor, made the posters.

Clever Signs Are Seen
Four new signs are put up every day, and can be found in the show cases in the front hall or north entrance. A typical saying on them is "It would cost the Dionnes $10-It costs you only $2-Subscribe now!" This saying is topped by a picture of the famous five. A Totem with such advertising and promises should certainly prove to be among the best. Watch the signs, they should prove interesting and entertaining.

Members of Hi-Y Plan Wiener Bake

John Edwards To Head School In Sunday Afternoon Forums; Junior Hi-Y's May Join.

The Hi-Y wiener bake and moonlight hike to Foster Park will be held Friday night at 7:30. All the seniors and their girl friends are invited, and a large crowd is expected. The retreat at Potawatomi was announced by Mr. Leonard to be held November 2 and 3. About five or six boys from each club are supposed to go if they possibly can. At the meeting held Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A., John Edwards was appointed to be in charge of South Side's share of the Sunday Afternoon Forums held at the Y. M. C. A. Because there has been no Junior Hi-Y organized as yet, junior boys are invited to join the Senior Hi-Y. Six juniors have joined already, and more are expected to join as soon as the news gets around. The Hi-Yers are resolved to put the club on the map this year.

Former Archer Wins Rohback Scholarship

Oliver A. Switzer, a former South Side student, was awarded the Dean Rohback Scholarship at the Indiana Law School at Indianapolis. This scholarship is conferred upon the member of the class who has the best mental attitude, aptitude and adaptability. Mr. Switzer was second in his class scholarship and is very active in school affairs. He is a member of the staff of the school paper and holds an office in the Delta Theta Phi, a national law fraternity. Oliver was very active as a public speaker while at South Side. He was winner of an extemporaneous contest and was a member of Wranglers.

Hemming Towels Is Group Project

"Chatting With Road-Graders" Is Next Meeting's Subject of So-Si-Y; To Hold Faculty Tea.

"By-Paths of Service" was the theme which was carried out at So-Si-Y's biannual service meeting, which was held on Tuesday evening in the Greeley room. Ruth Adler, program committee chairman for the meeting, introduced Ruth Kimmel, who read as devotion the story of Dorcas from the New Testament of the Bible. Helen Flaig, accompanied by Virginia Baker at the piano, sang "Entire Consecration" by William J. Kirkpatrick, and "Smilin' Through."

Dance Movement Given
A group of girls from the dancing classes of Miss Alice J. Patterson gave several movements of modern dance studies which are being studied in the classes. The melodies used included "Early One Morning" and "Over the Hill and Far Away," old English folk songs, and several nursery rhymes. The girls in the group were Marjorie Turner, Ina Claire Chappell, Barbara Lee Scheele, Ellen Woods, Bernadette Schaefer, and Margaret Stalter.

After the program, the service committee for the club passed out towels to be hemmed either at the meeting or at home. Girls who are taking their towels home to hem, are requested to turn them in to Miss Smeltzley not later than next Tuesday. The members of the service committee are Ruth Rietz, chairman; Irene Becker, Dorothy Roudesbush, Helen Doenges, Mildred Rudolph, Barbara Von Gunten, and Eleanor Schremsner.

Annual Tea Planned
The next meeting, which will carry out the theme of "Chatting With the Road-Graders," will be the annual faculty tea. The various program chairmen, assisted by the members of the cabinet, will be in charge of arrangements. The chairmen are Ruth Adler, Martha Franz, Virginia Griener, Mary Michaels, Helen Doenges, Norma Clausen, and Ruth Rietz. The cabinet members are Anna Bremer, president; Verna Holtman, vice-president; Harriet Basford, secretary; Betty Rison, treasurer, and Catherine Allendorph, Inter-Club Congress representative.

All girls who intend to attend the faculty tea are requested to sign for a teacher and pay ten cents not later than next Tuesday in room 66. The guests are not to be invited before that day.

Meterite Party Set for Members

Dues Payers Only Will Be Admitted to Social October 15; Varied Program Is Arranged.

The next regular meeting of the Meterite Club, which is to be held on October 15, will be the Membership Party. This affair promises to be one of the biggest and most enjoyable affairs of the year for the Meterites. Only paid members are permitted to attend this party.

Preceding the program a short business meeting will be held, during which plans for the annual Meterite potluck will be discussed. Committees for this affair will be appointed at this meeting. The skating party, which is to be held soon, will be discussed also. Refreshments will be served at the meeting.

Program Divulged
A very interesting program has been planned for this meeting. Lois Rea is going to give the biography of the Greek poet, Homer. A talk will be given by Lorraine Iba on the works of Homer. The biography of Alfred de Musset will be given by Betty Lee Wilson; a talk on his works will be given by Phyllis Culver. Dorothy Hall will play a selection on the violin also. The members of the Meterite Club held a theatre party on Tuesday, October 8. They went to see "Top Hat."

Humorous Answers Are Given in Exams For History Course

To the question, "Identify Haile Selassie," a pupil in a social science class answered in his test, "Haile Selassie is the Fascist salute to Mussolini in Italy."

This is a good example of the humorous but interesting answers to examination papers in social science classes. Although the student himself does not think the answers so funny, teachers probably get a good laugh from these sometimes ridiculous answers. But a laugh doesn't hurt anyone, and probably these foolish answers help in a small way to make the classes more interesting and to relax the teacher's usually sterner attitude.

In room 142, many humorous answers have been received by Miss Crowe on her history tests. One pupil spelled Lafayette, Langhaette. One very literal person said William Pitt lived in Pittsburgh. Another pupil answered that England's American colonies were located in the Atlantic Ocean. "Champlain," one person wrote, "was the Royal Governor of New England." Another student who was a little turned about in his U. S. history said that Americus Vesputius led the people of Virginia in revolt.

Some other rib-ticking answers are: Peter Stuyvesant founded Pennsylvania.

William Pitt defeated Montcalm at Quebec.

John Smith was a Puritan warrior. John Locke was the "Father of New France."

Radio Station Call Letters To Change

At Meeting of Club, Members Decide To Have Call, W9TKY, Dropped; Eleven in Meeting.

The South Side Radio Club met in room 54 Monday, September 30, with Bill Hebermehl presiding. Eleven members were present. There was a demonstration on condenser and double button microphones.

The call of South Side's radio station, W9TKY, will be cancelled and a new one applied for, as Bob Schrieffer, holder of the license graduated last spring and will not be present at the future meetings. There is a new amateur in the Radio Club, Howard Holmes, whose call is W9VKB. The new officers for this semester are Bill Hebermehl, president; Roy Roadcap, vice-president; Herman Rutkowski, secretary. Mr. Sidell is the adviser of the club. The next meeting will be held in room 56, on October 14.

Any Senior Eligible For Essay Contest

$100 First Prize Is Offered; Other Awards To Be Given; Complete Rules Are Listed.

Seniors have been offered the opportunity to earn from $5.00 to $100 in a simple contest in which a student writes a theme of one hundred words or less in which each statement tells why "Haryko Caps and Gowns are no better than the best but better than the rest." The first prize winner will receive $100, the second $50, the third $25; five prizes of ten dollars each will be presented and also five prizes of five dollars each.

Rules Are Listed
The rules of the contest are as follows:

1. Each contestant must be a member of a senior class in an Indiana high school and be eligible for graduation in 1936.

2. Each statement must tell why "Haryko Caps and Gowns are no better than the best but better than the rest."

3. To have your statement eligible for consideration your class, or school, must hold a rental contract for Caps and Gowns with Harry K. Lardes Company, Indianapolis, Indiana, and their caps and gowns must be used during the 1936 Commencement.

4. Statements will be judged on their advertising value, conciseness, neatness, and legibility.

5. All statements must be on forms supplied by Harry K. Lardes Company.

6. All contestants must have their entries in the hands of the Harry K. Lardes Company on or before midnight, April 15, 1936. Awards will be announced May 15, 1936.

7. The decision of the judges shall be final and no papers will be returned. In case of a tie, duplicate awards will be made.

No Etipulations for Prizes
The prize money will be awarded the winners without any stipulation as to how it is to be used. It may be paid on the first year of college tuition or used in any way desired.

If the 1936 class members should desire to see samples of the cap and gowns, or have a catalogue to aid them in gathering data, the company has stated that it would be glad to furnish these on request and without any obligation on the part of the seniors.

It is suggested that seniors take this up with their English instructor. It might be made a class problem thereby rendering the contestant able to have assistance in composing his statement before submitting it to the judges.

For further details concerning the contest, the entry blanks, and so forth, students should see Mr. Snider.

U. S. A. Club Will Hold Election of Officers

Julia Crabb, president of U. S. A. Club, has announced the programs for the next three meetings. On October 10, there will be an initiation of new members. After the initiation, the members will sing Girl Reserve songs. On October 24 they will sew for the Needlework Guild. The committee in charge of the program is Ruth Gerber, chairman; Peggy Beer, Virginia Bias, Beverly Ann Griffith, and Joanne Bradley. Betty Burham and her committee, Jean Rarick, Marjorie Macke, Ethel Koch, and Rosella Koehler are in charge of procuring an outside speaker for the program on November 7.

John Stahlhut, City Fire Chief, Gives His List of Preventions

John C. Stahlhut, chief of the fire department in Fort Wayne, has celebrated his eleventh year in that office; before he held this position, he was assistant chief, and previous to that he was a captain.

When asked about large fires, he said, "There really haven't been any big fires in the last three or four years. All the fires recently haven't amounted to much."

The chief expressed his sincere appreciation of the co-operation of the schools in extending to the fire departments of this city. He says that the children take home all the information they get at school concerning fire prevention, and that they practice it.

Students and parents are requested to be sure that their fuse boxes are in order, as most of the fires in school and at home are caused by overloaded fuse boxes. Other precautions for fire prevention, advocated by Chief Stahlhut are: Avoid cleaning clothing with naphtha; do not use coal oil; do not leave lighted cigarettes around; do not throw lighted matches into waste baskets; and keep rubbish and other refuse out of attics and basements.

Loss of property in Fort Wayne, according to the chief, has been slight in recent years. Loss of life, too, seldom occurs in this city now.

Chief Stahlhut's hobby is football, and he is really an ardent fan. He rarely misses one of Notre Dame's games and is very much interested in other games, too.

"I can't say very much about thrilling fires," he said. "There haven't been any recently, and although I have seen some in the past, they are rather dim and vague in my mind."

1935 Totem Given "Medalist" Award

Highest Rating for Yearbooks; Scores 92 out of 100 points Legend Receives Recognition.

The Totem, yearbook of South Side high school, received the "medalist" award in a contest for school annuals or yearbooks which was conducted by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association of Columbia University. The "medalist" award is the highest rating a yearbook can receive.

The books are scored on the idea of the book, layout, editorial contents, photography, engraving, printing and typography, and paper stock and binding. Out of a possible hundred points, the Totem received ninety-two.

The editor of the 1935 Totem was Bill Hockett. Miss Rowena Harvey was the faculty adviser.

Ruth Greiner To Have Roll in Dramatic Play

Ruth Greiner of the class of 1935, has one of the leading roles in the dramatic comedy, "Closed Lips," by Lillian Montimer, to be presented by the Emmaus Dramatic Club in the Emmaus Hall Thursday and Friday nights at 8:30 o'clock. Others in the cast are Betty Schultz, Margaret Schuster, Virginia Greiner, Helen Schaefer, Oscar Eggers, William Brunner, Edward Grote, Lawrence Koeman, and Alfred Schlie. George Simminger is the director of the play.

All applications to attend the High School Day must be submitted to Mr. Snider by October 12. Further information can be found on the bulletin board in the front hall.

Archers Score 13-6 Win Over Peru Gridders

Green Passing Excellent; Peru Is Not Successful In Offensive Attempts.

South Side's gridders last Saturday passed their way to victory over a strong Peru outfit, coming out on the long end of a 13-to-6 score. In winning by far the most interesting game played at the Archer stadium this year, the Green showed considerable improvement over their previous performances.

The Archer pass offense was working almost to perfection. The Green completing eleven out of twelve attempts. Passes figured in all of the Archer drives. It was a pass that scored the first touchdown for the Archers. Another pass placed the ball in position for Ellenwood to score the second.

Peru also played a wide open game but was not as successful as the Archers. The Tigers' lone score came as the result of a pass. Peru threw fourteen passes but completed only four of them.

The punting for both teams was about even. Lee's kicks averaged thirty-one yards; Peru's punts went for an average of thirty yards. South Side fumbled six times, their opponents only twice.

The Archers made a total of ten first downs; their opponents garnered five. The Green made 173 yards from scrimmage; Peru gained 112.

First Half Scores

South Side dominated the first quarter with a seventy-yard march for a touchdown. Lee kicked off to Peru's 23. After two plays gained seven yards, Kelley punted to South Side's 31-yard stripe. On the first play Benz went off left tackle for a first down to mid-field. Lee passed to Feichter on the 25. Benz went to the 14 on a spinner for the third first down. Lee then threw a pass to Ellenwood in the end zone for a touchdown. Lee booted the ball squarely between the bars for the extra point.

The second quarter went in favor of Peru. After an exchange of punts in mid-field, Parmelee tossed a pass to Ellenwood, who dropped the ball after completing it. Peru recovered on South Side's 30. After three plays had gained seven yards, Atkinson tossed a pass to Carbone in the end zone for Peru's only score. Welch's placekick for the extra point was blocked by Ellenwood. South Side quickly recovered their form, and, after receiving the ball on downs on their own 24, they completed three passes to carry the ball to Peru's 30, where the ball rested at the end of the quarter.

Archers Take Second Half

The second half was featured by another long march by the Archers for a touchdown, this time an advance of eighty yards. After South Side received the ball on their own 20, the Green made five first downs on an off-tackle play and four passes to place the ball on the Tigers' nine. Ellenwood then carried the ball on an end-around play for the touchdown. Lee's placekick hit the upright and bounced outside.

The first part of the final quarter was played in mid-field. Peru threatened once a little later but South Side took the ball on downs and stalled away the remaining time on straight plays.

Will Alter Until Stadium Amplifier Is Perfect

Changes made in the amplifying system in the stadium for the Peru game last Saturday did not work out as planned, and consequently hearing was still not perfect. The alterations were for the best, but they resulted for the worst. At the Mishawaka game the week before, there was not enough volume to be heard by the whole crowd.

The Radio Research Laboratories changed the amplifiers in an attempt to increase the volume, but it did not seem to do much good. Mr. Davis stated that the Radio Research Laboratories would work with the speaker system until they had it perfected. They are now planning to get a new amplifier, which will increase the volume.

Jim Ellenwood, all-city tackle last year and the year before, is going great guns this year as an end. On defense, Jim excels in breaking up plays and blocking kicks, and on offense catches a good many passes. He scored both touchdowns Saturday against Peru.

Hockey Continues, With Three Games Played Last Week

"Ground, sticks! Ground, sticks! Ground, sticks! Bully!" With these familiar commands, soph team 1, led by Betty Eisenacher, and soph team 2, led by Dorothy Franke, began their hockey game at 3:30 on October 5. Betty Eisenacher made three goals for the total scoring of her team. Janet Harnish shot the ball between the goal posts twice for the total scoring of soph 3.

At 4 o'clock senior 1 and 2 teams played. They formerly were one team, led by Marjorie Hower, but so many seniors turned out for hockey that it was necessary to have two teams. Senior 1 is led by Marjorie Hower, and senior 2 by Betty Rison. Marjorie Hower led her team to victory by scoring four goals. Norma Clauser, Lillian Winkler, Jane Loomis, and Helen Allen did much in helping her make the goals. Betty Rison and Velma Yoder were outstanding players on senior 2. The final score was 4-0.

Junior 1, captained by Margaret Ruhl; junior 2, captained by Edna Disler, played at 4:30. Margaret Ruhl shot four goals for her team and Barbara Van Gunton one. Edna Disler and Anna Marie Baumgartner contributed their goals for team 2. It was a see-saw game, and the victor was not known until the last minute of play. Winifred Locker again did brilliant work as center halfback. The final score was 5-3 in favor of junior 1.

Bob Tapping Receives His Intramural Sweater

Bob Tapping, a senior outstanding in intramural athletics, received his intramural letter this week, as a reward for the 109 points he has earned in his three years of athletic participation. Bob automatically became a member of the Intramural Lettermen's Club. He participated in many intramural sports among which were basketball, tag football, handball, wrestling, and volleyball. Bob also engaged in varsity track. He received his final points towards his letter last spring when he placed fourth in the golf tournament. Football and volleyball were his favorite sports, for he participated in them for the past three years.

"I think that the intramural sports are a very good extra-curricular activity, especially for those who cannot participate in major athletics," Bob stated. At the present time a hundred and twenty-five points are necessary before the intramural letter is awarded, but as Bob started working for points in 1932 he was required to accumulate one hundred points under the old ruling. At the present time there are only eleven members of the Intramural Lettermen's Club in the school.

Girls' Singles, Doubles Tennis Champs Named

Winners Selected in Every Class Except Freshman; School Champions Later.

Bernadette Dygert, Margaret Ruhl, and Betty Eisenacher were named the girls' tennis champions of the Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores respectively, the Freshman tourney having not been as yet completed. In the doubles Rowena Bevington and Aldene Disler won the Senior division, Leona Menze and Margaret Ruhl won in the Juniors, Mary Ellen Blauvelt and Betty Eisenacher came out on top in the Sophomore doubles, and Betty Shwalter and Betty Neeb took the Freshman division.

These class champions will play each other to determine the singles and doubles champions of the school. So far only one game has been played in this part of the tourney, in which Betty Eisenacher and Mary Ellen Blauvelt defeated Rowena Bevington and Aldene Disler by the score of 6-2, 6-2. They will play the winners of the match between Leona Menze and Margaret Ruhl, and Betty Shwalter and Betty Neeb.

Bernadette Dygert completed the senior bracket by defeating Lillian Hackmeyer, 6-2, 6-1, to be senior singles champion. Previous to this, Betty Harnish had beaten Geraldine Dush 6-2, 6-3, and Margaret Ruhl had proved the victor over her sister, Marjorie by defeating her 6-2, 6-0.

The junior singles bracket was completed when Margaret Ruhl beat Betty Harnish 6-1, 6-2, to become the Junior champion.

In the Sophomore singles matches, Betty Eisenacher beat Delores Pequin 6-2, 6-6, 6-2. Betty Eisenacher became Sophomore singles champion when she beat Mary Ellen Blauvelt in three hard-fought sets, 6-4, 6-7, 8-6. In the freshman semi-finals, Virginia Menze beat Bernice Bender 6-4, 7-5. Nadine Miller was beaten by Beatrice Craig 6-3, 9-7. Marjorie Stratton beat Pauline Molin in two sets, 8-6, 6-3. Virginia Porter won over Reva Foster.

In the Senior doubles finals, Rowena Bevington and Aldene Disler beat Beatrice Schieber and Marie Winkler 6-1, 6-2, to capture the Senior doubles tennis title. In the Junior doubles tourney, Marjorie Ruhl and Winifred Locker were beaten by Leona Menze and Margaret Ruhl, 6-2, 6-4.

The Sophomore doubles tourney was ended when Mary Ellen Blauvelt and Betty Eisenacher defeated Martha Ann Bacon and Phyllis Culver to the tune of 6-2, 6-1. Betty Shwalter and Betty Neeb won two out of three hard fought sets from Anna Kowalski and Marjorie Rapp in the freshman doubles tourney by the scores of 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Skirts and Sports

Attention! For the first time there is going to be a G. A. A. swimming meet. Points will be awarded the same as for track. Come on, let's make it a big one.

Something hard to imagine is a girl hiking until she gets blisters on her feet, and then skating besides. One member of the G. A. A. who does this very thing is Mildred Close, and she gets plenty of points for it.

Our new history teacher, Mr. Tudor, was one of the judges for the final city tennis doubles match between Marjorie and Margaret Ruhl and Betty Harnish and Betty Eisenacher. He watched the base lines.

Helen Allen said that she wanted to go ice skating this week. Where's the ice, Helen?

Helen Banks is an up and coming freshman G. A. A. member. Watch for her, girls.

Since hockey has begun, it is noticed that Edna Disler continues taking her numerous spills.

The other night in student leaders' meeting, Marjorie Hower asked an important question about speedball. She said that it had come up in her freshman year and she had forgotten to ask it.

Eleanor Rarick really entered the hockey season with spirit. In the first game, between Soph 1 and 2, the final score was 11 and 0. Eleanor made the two goals for Soph 2.

Sportlights

For the first time in a good many years, the small colleges have risen up in arms and have smote the mighty Big Ten teams a good many terrific blows. Always regarded as warm up games, the small schools have this year turned the tables and sent the erstwhile mighty powerhouses home, draped with the mourning black of defeat. Three Big Ten teams took it on the chin on opening day, and two more in the second week of the campaign. A plucky, hard fighting South Dakota State team descended on a hapless Wisconsin squad, and, led by a hard-driving back named Miller, the Dakotans trimmed the Badgers 13 to 6. A week later Marquette came into town for its annual game with the Badgers and left Wisconsin on the short end of a 33-0 triumph. Doc Spears sure has drawn a headache at Wisconsin this year. Chicago and Illinois also fell on opening day, the Maroons dropping a 28-7 tilt to a much superior Nebraska eleven while little Ohio University turned in the major upset of the year thus far when they trimmed the highly touted Illini by a score of 6-0.

Pigskin Passes

Judging by the type of game South Side played against Peru last Saturday, the Archers seem to have finally pulled out of their slump and decided to battle. Last week the team played the best game of the year. A lot of the rough edges which were all too apparent in the previous few games had been polished off. Especially on the offense, the squad worked more smoothly. May they continue to improve until that hoped for perfect day against Central.

The brightest spot on the southern horizon since Peru is the efficiency of the Archer pass attack. In sharp contrast with several other occasions, the Green offensive made long and consistent gains, especially on their passes. The squad completed eleven out of twelve attempts. A mighty good record for any team!

Jim Ellenwood was the standout for the Archers last week. He was in on every play. Jim scored both touchdowns for the Green, the first on a pass, the other on an end-around play. In addition, he blocked Peru's attempted placekick after touchdown in the second quarter to preserve South Side's lead. He deserves a lot of credit for his performance, despite the fact that he is carrying a football around with him this week.

When Ellenwood received a pass from Lee while standing in the end zone in the first quarter, the Archers performed a feat which no other team has been able to do this year. They scored another touchdown in the third quarter for good measure, thus becoming the only team to score on the Tigers during the present season. Previously, the Fort City outfit had won four impressive victories, three of them by on-sided scores. Thus far they have defeated Warsaw, 24 to 0; Plainfield Boys' School, 26 to 0; Muncie, 6 to 0; and Kokomo, 28 to 0. Yet the Peru coach maintains that South Side has the poorest team his outfit has played all year. Sometimes we wonder.

However, Central is favored over the Redskins. The Tigers are hitting the Redskins. The Indians have been getting a lot of tough breaks lately. A super-jinx has haunted them all year. Several gridders moved out of town, others simply quit school, and still others are out on the injured list. Hardest of all to replace will be Forrest Cronkite, driving fullback, who quit school recently.

Meanwhile, Central rides the crest of their victory wave which is rapidly becoming a tidal wave. The Tigers have a total of 155 points to their credit while their collective opponents have nil. Victims of the Tiger offense are Bluffton, Riley of South Bend, Columbia City, Elkhart, Central Catholic, and Decatur.

North Side's record is nothing to sneeze at, but it cannot compare with that of the Blue. The Indians have won three out of their five tilts, losing one to strong Corbin and Goshen squads.

Tigers To Meet Redskin Squad In Tilt Friday

Central, North Side To Tangle Tomorrow Night on Northern School's Grid.

North Side's Redskins clash with the Central Tigers in a city series clash Friday night under the floodlights of the northern gridiron.

The Tigers in their past games this season have the edge over their opponents, having won every clash and not letting any opposition score. The Nulfmen have lost but two games, and have presented a vicious offense. The Redskins have also suffered the loss of a few regulars.

The northern eleven is expected to shoot their best offensive in an effort to down the Tiger fast backfield. Undoubtedly this game will go a long way in deciding the city championship title for this year.

Frosh Girls Learn Points of Speedball

G. A. A. Beginners Improve As They Practice; Three Games Are Played on South Field.

The first few G. A. A. speedball games played so far this fall have not been played so well, but the freshman girls are showing prospects of applying the principles which they have been learning. A great deal of team work is needed to improve their game. At 3:30, Monday, October 7, team 2 and team 4 played on the east end of the field, while team 3 and team 5 played on the west end. Team 4 won by the score of 3 to 2. Virginia Menze, Hazel Perry, and Beth Ellen Chadwick were the outstanding players on team 4, while Virginia Porter, Geraldine Fabian, and Dorothy Bloemker were outstanding on team 2. The game on the west end of the field was won by team 3, the score being 3 to 2. Some good playing was displayed by Esther Selzer, Marjorie Wallace, and Nadine Mueller of team 3, and Anna Lou Kowalski and Mary Lou Moffat of team 5.

Team 6 and team 1 played at 4:10, using the full length of the field. Team 6 captured the game by a score of 5 to 1. Pauline Molin, Beatrice Craig, and Norma Martin of team 6, and Betty Shwalter and Gwen Roberts of team 1 played good games for their respective teams.

LaDonna Gerber, Marjorie Moore, and Ruth Seifert served as umpires, while Betty Burhenn and Kathryn Moring acted as scorers.

Big Group Present At Athletic Meeting Means Good Teams

If the number of boys aspiring to varsity athletics is any criterion of the quality of the teams that will represent South Side in the future, then the Archers should have just about the best team in the country. Every available inch of the cafeteria was crowded last Friday, as the Lettermen's Club held their meeting open to all the boys desiring to compete in varsity athletics. Six speakers described the inner workings of the South Side athletic department to a boisterous crowd.

Mr. Ora Davis spoke at some length on the statistical and the financial end of the department. Mr. Snider spoke about South Side athletics in general, and Mr. Lundy Welborn gave a history of football, describing its development up until the time that the game we now play was adopted. Mr. Burl Friddle, new basketball mentor, Mr. Briner, and Mr. "Pop" Tudor, new equipment manager, also spoke briefly. If just about one half of the bunch at the meeting should develop into good ball players, Mr. Friddle and Mr. Welborn need have no more worries.

Stanford's Desire Is To Beat In Grid Classic at Rose Bowl

Editor's Note:—The following article by John Durn, prominent member of the Class of 1934 at South Side, who is now a sophomore at Stanford University, is the first of a series of articles by former Archers concerning the football outlook at various colleges. These articles will be published from time to time as we receive them.

South Siders interested in football naturally turn to nearby surroundings. Once in a while an outside team may attract a little attention from them, but that team usually has to be a fairly good one. Norman Buck, in asking me for a few notes about Stanford University's chances this season, unconsciously left himself wide open for criticism should Stanford, such a distant school, have nothing to prove of interest to you Middlewesterners.

On January 1, 1934, Stanford went down to defeat before the East's Columbia in the Rose Bowl game, the classic of all national football. Nine months ago Stanford again got the bid to the Rose Bowl and again went down to defeat, this time at the hands of the South's Alabama. Three months from now Stanford should again enter the Rose Bowl. This time, no matter who comes out to Pasadena to oppose them, the Western school must and will win.

It is neither a proud student's boast nor a superstitious appeal to the lucky third-time charm. Only one thing will defeat Stanford this year and that is the mere fact that they have everything in their favor.

"Tiny Thornhill" Coach

When old "Pop" Warner pulled out of Stanford, football seemed mighty doomed. Corbulent "Tiny" Thornhill assumed the job as head coach with only a pack of ambitious sophomores. That was in 1933. Before their fellow classmates had returned to their fall studies on the Stanford Farm, these sophomores had piled up 100 points against their opponents in the first two encounters. Three months later they were pitted against Columbia.

They are seniors now with three years' experience behind them. This year they are going to realize both of their annual ambitions. In 1933 these sophomores resolved that the University of California, our bitter rivals just as Central ranks with you Archers, should never defeat them while they were fighting under the Cardinal colors. Their resolution has been realized in the past two years. The second ambition, which no doubt means more to Easterners, is naturally the New Year's game.

Scribes Explain Failure

Sports scribes the country over have discovered with ease the cause for Stanford's failure in the Rose Bowl. The Indians have come to be dubbed the "passless wonders," for never have they been able to forward and lateral to any advantage. For two years All-American fullback Bobby Grayson has gotten away with his feat at passing, his delay, and his ensuing flash of speed to gain on a straight run. Opponents were at last realizing that he couldn't pass on those plays even if they did leave the Stanford ends unchallenged.

When Bobby dropped back for his fake forward, they would quickly observe, "Aw heck, it's only Grayson" and charge in after him, unmindful of those ends which might have caused danger had Grayson been able to toss them the ball.

Bobby Grayson Improves

This year it is a different story. Grayson spent the summer at the summer school of the University of Hawaii. For two hours each day he practiced passing and that alone. Now he claims an accurate 45 yards in place of his former inaccurate 30. His claims are well-grounded, present practice sessions disclose. Grayson, however, is not the only passing improvement. Central Is Favorite In Race For City Series Grid Crown

Bengals Assert Strength; Win Six, Lose Nine

South Side Expected To Be Troublesome To Rampaging Tigers' Title Hopes.

North Side Also To Be Considered

C. C. Out of Race; Archers Idle This Week - End as Central Tackles Redskins.

Central, who is riding high on the crest of a six-game winning streak, seems destined to have the city grid title sewed up unless North Side and our own Archers can improve greatly before they tangle with the Tigers later in the season. If South Side can work out a defense that will stop the devastating Central running attack, then the two teams will enter the game on almost a par.

Two City Games Played

North Side also has to be reckoned with, but at the present time it seems to be almost wholly up to South Side to stop the apparently unstoppable Tigers. Two city series games have been completed, and if comparative scores mean nothing, then these two games have accomplished very little toward naming an ultimate city champion.

Central Catholic has gone down to defeat twice thus far at the hands of city teams, and in both games it merely seemed a question of how many times Central Catholic's opponents would cross the goal line. The Irish have been definitely out of the race since they absorbed a terrific 40 to 0 thrashing from a powerful Central eleven which scored at will. North Side's 28-6 victory over C. C. was accepted as a matter of form and gave little notice of the quality of the Redskins.

Central's Chances Given

Central has swept through six opponents and has left a long string of badly defeated teams behind them. The Tigers have experienced little trouble in their overwhelming victories and will probably come into their remaining city series games as definite favorites. South Side, without the customary open date before the Tiger tilt, will have less time to work on Central plays, and it's going to take a lot of practice to develop a defense that will be able to bottle up the Central running and passing attack.

North Side will tangle with Central tomorrow night, and the results of the clash should give South Side a definite line on the real strength of their oldest rivals. All this seems to point to the fact that the winner of the South Side-Central game is going to be hailed as the city champion.

Notes Taken While On G. A. A. Hikes Tell of Adventure

One reason why so many G. A. A. members get a large number of points hiking is that anything is likely to happen on a hike. Of the many rural places to hike to, New Haven and Hometown prove most popular.

The notes of a hike to either of these places might read as follows: "Left at 9:30 a. m. Reached the outskirts of the city with no casualties. Ate one girl's lunch before we were a mile out. Went along the railroad ties and came upon a pretty little black creature with white stripes across its back and tail. As a result, we walked a little faster for a while. "After walking about three hours we finally reached our destination, and dined upon chili, hot dogs, and malted milks. On our way back, we shied away from the home of the black and white creature, and, in our detour, came upon a creek, where we went wading a while. Reached the airport and pestered a pilot with a barrage of questions. The plane doors were unlocked, so we increased our knowledge of the inside of a plane. Finally arrived home after having watched part of a ball game at League Park."

Archer Halfback Catches Pass

North Side Eleven Beats Irish 28-6

Shumm Stars As Redskins Score In Each Period To Win Their First City Series Conflict.

The Irish of Central Catholic again took it on the chin, North Side turning this trick last Friday night, the Redskins winning without too much trouble by the score of 28 to 6. North Side, scoring in each quarter, took full advantage of every scoring opportunity offered them, and Joe Schumm, yard hitting fullback, crossed the line three times, while Holman counted the final touchdown. The lone C. C. goal was punched across by Romary.

Central Catholic very kindly handed North Side a touchdown immediately after the kick-off when North Side recovered a bad pass from center on the Irish 7-yard line. Schumm scored standing up on the first play and after Lieberum had converted, North Side had piled up a lead that was never to be surmounted. The second touchdown climaxed a long drive down the field and Schumm again reeled off his own left tackle for the score, going over this time from the 5-yard line. Lieberum again converted and the Redskins enjoyed a two touchdown lead at the half.

After an exchange of punts, North Side again moved down the field, and this time the troublesome Mr. Schumm drove 19 yards to a score. The redoubtable Lieberum again put the ball between the bars, and the Irish found themselves hopelessly beaten. With a second team in, North Side hit pay dirt for the last time when Holman circled end on a reverse and ran the seven remaining yards to a score. After a group of wild passes had connected for C. C. and put the ball on the North Side 1-yard line, Romary went over for the lone Irish marker.

Central Catholic will attempt to put a game in the victory column next Saturday when they tangle with Howe, who is more or less of an unknown quantity. Much will be able to be told about the impending South Side-Howe game, which winds up the season for the Archers, from the result of the C. C. tangle with the soldiers.

G. A. A. Vaudeville Plans Lack Interest, Changed

Plans for the G. A. A. vaudeville have been changed because of lack of interest by the South Side clubs. Miss Patterson stated that out of the thirty-six clubs in South Side only twelve reported and from these only six agreed to the plan. It is possible that a vaudeville will be presented in the near future by the music department and G. A. A., for which presentation plans will be announced later.

80 Court Candidates Drilling for Basketball

Last week, Coach Burl Fiddle issued the call for basketball practice. There were about eighty boys who turned out. Mr. Fiddle is going to work with these boys for about a week, then he is going to cut the number down to about thirty. He also said that he is going to encourage every boy that is out for practice, whether he is a junior or senior, and whether he is registered or not. This is to add to the interest of the players. After football season, those boys who are out for football and want to go out for basketball will be given a chance.

Garrison Is Light Weight Net Champ

Beats Schoaaf 6-3, 8-10, 6-4 To Win; Cochran, Klopfenstein, Eicher Left In Heavy's Race.

Allen Garrison, prominent sophomore, was named boys' lightweight tennis champion Monday when he defeated Bob Schaaf, the other finalist, two out of three sets 6-3, 8-10, and 6-4. For the heavyweight title, Bud Cochran and Hubert Klopfenstein play in the semi-finals, and the winner of this tilt will play Wilbur Eicher in the finals.

Bronze medals will be given to the victors of both of the heavy and lightweight divisions, but they will be kept only until spring, when they will be awarded temporarily to the champions of the spring tournament. These two medals are to become the permanent possessions of the winners of tilts staged between the fall and spring champions of both divisions. These attractive awards are given by Scholastic, the National High School Weekly.

The semi-finals in the lightweight elimination were played off between Garrison and Hargan and between Schaaf and Schelper. Cochran won over Vic Seawald, Klopfenstein defeated Joe Bell, and Eicher vanquished Allen in the quarter-finals of the heavyweight tournament.

Decatur Whipped By Central, 29-0

Yellow Jackets Finish on Short End of Long Score As Tigers Win Sixth Straight Victory.

Last Saturday night the Central Tigers kept their perfect record intact when they defeated the Decatur Yellow Jackets by the lop-sided score of 29-0.

In the opening minutes of the game, Central advanced to the Decatur 8-yard stripe, but lost the ball on downs to a stubborn Yellow Jacket defense. The Tigers then came to the Decatur 35-yard line, where Charlton scored on a thirty-five yard run through his right tackle for a touchdown. The extra point was converted by Louis Sitko.

Tigers Score Again

In the second quarter, Central took the ball in midfield and marched to the Decatur six-yard line. The Tigers were slowed up momentarily by a five-yard offside penalty, but they came back to the 1-yard line, where Charlton plunged over for a touchdown. Central threatened once more when they went to the 11-yard stripe, but here Charlton fumbled and Decatur recovered.

Again in the third quarter, Central went down to the Decatur 8-yard line and fumbled. Decatur recovered and, as Walther attempted to punt out of danger, he fumbled and was tackled behind the goal line. The Tigers later took the ball in mid-field and marched down to Decatur's 3-yard line, where Red Miller plunged over for the third touchdown for Central. Sitko's try for the extra point was good. Central led 22-0 at the end of the third quarter.

Another Central Touchdown

In the early minutes of the last quarter, Central made their final score. Red Miller intercepted a Decatur forward pass and ran ten yards before being downed. Grimm passed to Paul from the 27-yard line to over the goal line for the touchdown. Sitko converted the extra point. Decatur made one threat when Huffman intercepted a Central pass and ran to the Central 40-yard line where he was hauled down. Decatur never threatened after that.

Students Are Exempted

One hundred three students of York High School, York, Pa., were exempted from their final examinations this last semester. Thirteen seniors were exempt from all tests.

Football Fumblers Carry An Increased Amount of Baggage

A peculiar jabbing of one's ribs may be traced these days to the excess baggage being hauled daily through the halls of South Side by our football fumlbers, Gordon Parmelee, Bud Feichter, Edward Kruse, James Ellenwood, Don Faux, Fred Meyers, and Harold Benz. Morning, noon, and night for one week these boys will be seen carrying the cute little things. One of the victims was stopped the other day by Lundy, who showed that individual how the ball should be carried under the arm. If our boys are seen playing with a pinkish football, the explanation will lie in the fact that one of them was careless with the beads served at his home one noon.

Gordon Parmelee will have to be particularly cautious when he works with the various chemistry-room acids, for unlike doughnuts, footballs and holes are not congenial. Ways to keep from getting old are provided in this newly-made rule, for just imagine Ed Kruse and a football and a girl all doing the light fantastic on a dance floor! Three may be a crowd, but, anyway, there is safety in numbers. If it so happens that some of our football players are in the habit of night-mares, perhaps the team's work will improve immensely with these people putting in added practice while they are in dreamland. Imagine the thrill of making a dreamland touchdown! The crowds are sure to be bigger and better rooters there. For the sake of the footballs, it is hoped that the boys' annual baths do not happen to be scheduled within this week.

460 Sunshine Members Are Visitors Here

M. J. Abbott Gives Greetings To Group; State Sunshine Dean Presides Over Meet.

R. Nelson Snider Is Main Speaker

Discussions Take Place in Greeley, Voorhees Rooms, Library, and Study Hall.

Stressing the most important phrases in their code, Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal, spoke to the 460 members of the District Convention of the Sunshine Societies who assembled here at South Side High School last Saturday morning.

The stringed quartet from our music department opened the morning session in the study hall. After this the Rev. Reno Tacoma of the Emmanuel Baptist Church was introduced by Iona Shuler, president of South Side's Sunshine Club. She then called the meeting to order and introduced Mr. Snider, who welcomed the group to South Side.

Mr. Merle J. Abbott, superintendent of schools, having been introduced by Mr. Snider, gave his greetings to the assembly.

Mrs. Sandefur Speaks
All clubs were urged by Mrs. Sandefur, the state Sunshine dean, to plan for their year's program. Showing the work and importance of Sunshine Clubs, she compared the societies to a small mountain, which although it is small, is very forceful and does good to many people.

"With love in my heart, forgetting self, and with charity for all, I will make the object of my life helpfulness and kindness to others," she said. "I shall try to give intelligent service in making the community in which I live a safer and more beautiful place for all. Thus will my own life become rich and complete."

Around this Sunshine creed, Mr. Snider, the convention's main speaker, based his address. He explained that the love referred to in the first phrase of the creed is expressed in many different ways by everybody. "Forgetting self," he said, "should be done only to avoid selfishness. Most people make a big mistake in their life by not having a certain objective. Good intentions are had by most everybody but so many people don't choose to do service with intelligence." He concluded with the idea of "service" from the creed. He explained that everybody can do some kind of service.

Business Meeting Held
Mrs. Sandefur presided over the business after these speeches. Roll call showed that the largest delegation came from New Haven with 65 representatives, Goshen was second with 60, Huntington third, with 50.

The Huntington club invited the Sunshine convention to be held there next year.

Mrs. Sandefur also asked for volunteers for the state convention next summer.

Virginia Baker and Helen Flaig from the music department, played and led the group in singing of songs. The New Haven Sunshine Society presented the program in the afternoon. The cast for the minstrel show, "Showboat," was:

Mistress of Ceremonies... Aimee Ruth Sunshine Sextette... Lois Cameron,
Rosemary Miller, Zenda Snyder,
Henrietta Elson, Ruth Kain, and Esther Federspiel.

Pickaninny... Felice Smith
Colonel's Daughter, Nancy...

Deception Committee... Jeanette Straub
Marindy... Elsie Mae Gable
Caroline... Carolyn Levy
Curtain... Dorothy Wilhelm, Janice Van Kirk.

Prompter... Kathleen Purvis
"There Goes the Showboat"...

Entire Society
Sponsors of the society are Misses Harriet Daniels and Helen Harrel.

Discussion Groups Meet
Discussion groups were held in various places after the business meeting.

Club service was led by Doris Garrison, '34, in the Greeley room. Money raising was discussed in the Voorhees room with Peggy Newell presiding.

Melba Sherer led the group which discussed Social Meeting. This was held in the Library. The Study Hall was the meeting place of the group which discussed, "Other Groups." Wilma Sherer led this group. Sponsors met in room 52.

Lunch was served in the cafeteria for all members who wished to attend. Due to the large group, some members ate while others attended discussion meetings.

Registration was taken in the front hall where every girl received a program and a yellow pom-pom.

All delegates attended the South Side-Peru football game after the luncheon.

Delegates represented the following societies: Concord Township, Atlanta, North Manchester, Millersburg, Huntington, South Whitley, Converse, Fort Wayne, Goshen, Larwill, New Haven, New Paris, Tipton, Wabash, and Akron.

American Boy Editors Sponsor News Contest

Readers of The American Boy will be interested to learn that the magazine is sponsoring a news-writing contest. The story is to be written from details shown in the picture sent out with the instruction sheet. Several copies of this picture will be found posted in the Times room.

Prizes to be given for the best stories will be as follows: first prize, ten dollars; second prize, five dollars; third prize, three dollars; and five additional prizes, one dollar each.

The story is to be written, supposedly, by a cub reporter on the Bingville Herald, who has just been given his first big assignment. It is to consist of not more than four hundred words, yet must contain all the news sources shown in the picture.

The story should be typewritten if possible. All typewritten stories should be double-spaced and written on one side of the paper only. The name, age, address, and year in school of each contestant must appear at the top of each page.

Address the entry to the Newspaper Contest Editor, 7430 Second Boulevard, Detroit, Michigan. All entries must be in the mail by the morning of October 16.

Sonia Velkoff, After California, Says, "No Place Like Home"

It seems a rather unusual thing to be asked to write a story about a trip which so many people have taken, but I suppose that no two people have the same impressions or experiences. To make this trip novel, we took the Greyhound bus instead of a car or train.

It enables one to stop anywhere without any inconveniences. We went from Fort Wayne to Indianapolis, and from there to St. Louis. We stayed in St. Louis overnight, but the only impression I have of that city is a terrifically uncomfortable night. The temperature was about 106 degrees. The next day we proceeded to Kansas City. Missouri is much like Southern Indiana, and Kansas City by night resembled any large American city. The next stretch was the longest and most uninteresting of the whole trip. All of Kansas seems to be one long, burning-hot plain. As we neared Denver, however, the country became more like the West. Here we had our first glimpses of sagebrush and mesquite.

Impressed by Denver
We visited Denver for several days. In my estimation it is one of the most beautiful cities I have ever seen. The community spirit is predominant among the people, and they have a great deal of civic pride. There are three huge parks in the city and outside of Denver. They are the most well-kept and attractive parks in the West.

From Denver the trip was exceedingly beautiful. We started going through the first real mountainous country I have seen for a long time. The roads wound way up on one side and then down. It is a thrilling sight to see several thousand feet above sea level, and from the top of a mountain look down into the valley or see the bottom of the road at seven different places below you. The trip went on this way until we entered new Mexico.

From there the country became more rolling, and we saw the first signs of the red earth which designates the canyon country.

Sees Indians and Mexicans
Albuquerque was our next stop, and proved interesting because of the many Indians and Mexicans we saw. We investigated a very unique Mexican and Indian curio shop and watched a Indian women weave their famous rugs.

All along the road through New Mexico and Arizona we saw many of the queer little Indian establishments. Most of their homes are simply odd little rounded huts, resembling in shape the Eskimo igloo, but made of adobe bricks covered with adobe. When it is a sort of clay. The houses of the Mexican and white inhabitants are the small settlements and towns are neatly made of blocks of adobe or of bones covered with this clay.

Grand Canyon Amazing
We progressed on to Flagstaff, Arizona, to visit the wonderful Grand Canyon. That was the most spectacular part of our trip. I hardly think its beauty can be described. Only those who have seen it can really realize its grandeur. I had another thrill when we decided to view the canyon from the air. We took an airplane from the airport near the canyon and flew across from the south rim to the north rim, and then all along above the canyon.

The colors are very beautiful and are forever changing. The formations are almost grotesque and make one think that it is another world as seen. We saw the Colorado River very plainly from the air, which is the only way the river can be seen for any length. On land one can see it only at two very small places.

After the ride, we spent the rest of the day along the canyon's rim, viewing its splendors on foot. We also watched a party of people going on mules down into the canyon. They have an all-day trip, and at night they stop at Phantom Ranch, located in the only fertile strip of land on the canyon floor.

Palms in West
From Flagstaff we traveled on through a large stretch of desert and mountains to Los Angeles. Here we made our longest stop. Los Angeles is the most beautiful city along the Pacific coast.

The most striking feature of the west coast cities is the trees and shrubbery. Most of the trees are palms or pepper trees. They are very beautiful but rather austere and stately. All the large avenues are bordered with them.

While in Los Angeles, we went to Santa Monica. It is very beautiful near the Pacific Ocean. There are many marvelous beach clubs and summer homes all along the beach from here to Long Beach. We drove all along the coast to Malibu Beach, where a great many movie stars' summer homes are located in a colony. We saw two of the ships which are used by the Fox Studios for filming all ship pictures.

Take in Hollywood
One night we went to Hollywood. Truthfully, it is very disappointing. The town itself it just like any other American city only perhaps a little more glittering. There are many places of interest, such as the Brown Derby, the Chinese and Egyptian theaters, and the Trocadero Cafe. We saw many of the stars, but the majority of these are located outside of Hollywood. I had the good fortune to visit one of these locations at the Fox Studios, and it proved very interesting although complicating. We also went to Coconut Grove in Hotel Ambassador and heard Lenny Hayton and his orchestra. This hotel has the most beautiful grounds of any in Southern California.

From Los Angeles, we went up the coast to Monterey. This odd little fishing town is located on a peninsula which is considered the most picturesque along the coast. We took a tour all over this place and saw many interesting things. We saw several "seal rocks" and "bird rocks" and many here white sand dunes. We went through "ghost forests" which are so-called because of the shroudly Spanish moss which hangs from all the trees. We visited an old Spanish Mission near Carmel-by-the-sea. The building was very old, and under its floor were buried the founders of the first missions in California. Carmel is a very fascinating little place. It is an artists' and writers' colony and is as individual as its inhabitants. No two houses are alike, and there are many unique stores and shoppes.

Go to San Francisco
San Francisco was our next stop. This was the most prosperous city we visited. As it happened, we arrived and stayed there when the weather was sunny, but usually it is very damp and foggy. Nevertheless, it was very cold and everybody, it seemed, wore heavy clothes. In fact, no one ever wears light clothes, and fur coats are worn all year round. San Francisco is noted for its well-dressed people and styles.

We saw the Golden Gate and Golden Gate Park. The former is very beautiful at sunset, and the latter wonderful in that it retains its natural beauty.

The city reminds one of a foreign place. It is built mostly on two mountains, and many of the streets are so steep one can hardly climb them. There are flower stands and shops everywhere, and these make the place especially colorful. While we were there, the fleet was in and the town was just crowded with sailors. Then there is the Presidio, a soldier's garrison. It is quite a sight to see all the uniformed men in the city.

Upon leaving the city, we crossed the bay on a ferry and we had our glimpse of the fleet in the harbor and also of the construction of the new San Francisco-Oakland bridge.

Gambling Places at Reno
The trip home was also interesting, but not so important. We stopped at Reno and it is a great disappointment. Of course, we saw a great number of the famous gambling houses, but the town is a plain place. Salt Lake was unique as was Salt Lake City. It is a Mormon town and run in accordance with their religion. There is a very beautiful temple and tabernacle, which are truly architectural masterpieces.

Utah and Wyoming are vast lands with much sage brush and little else. The "badlands" of Wyoming are odd and beautiful in a different sort of way. They resemble the canyon formation somewhat but are whitish in color and tinted in places with blue. This coloring is due to the copper in the earth. Our next journey took us through Nebraska and here again we noticed the cultivated lands of the middle west. Omaha was a very nice city, and reminded me of Denver. The remainder of the trip was interesting, but familiar to me and, I suppose, to most of us in the middle west.

I will never forget the many marvelous sights I saw and the wonderful things I experienced, but when we came into Indiana once again and I was in familiar territory, I decided that "there is no place like home."

Indiana Extension Has Large Class

Survey Shows That 96 Graduates Have Enrolled; Passes All Marks; Give Complete List

Floyd R. Neff, officer in charge of the Indiana University Extension center here, has announced that a large number of high school graduates have enrolled for the first semester's work.

A survey shows that at the present time, 96 high school June graduates are enrolled. It is expected that this number will mount within the next week. Tentative enrollment figures compiled by the center indicate that this year's enrollment will surpass that of last fall's by a wide margin.

Word has been received from Bloomington that three freshmen have been exempted from taking English composition by virtue of grades made in a recent extension school which was taken by thirteen extension students. Lloyd Grodrian, June graduate from South Side, was one of the three exempted.

Of the list of high school graduates that are taking courses this fall, South Side leads with a total of 33.

The complete list follows: Herbert Meyer, Jr., Ernest Williams, Harry Von Gunten, John Gerding, Frederick Prange, Harriet Storm, Wanda Jones, Newell Kellogg, Lloyd Grodrian, Christine Elliott, Margaret Murphy, Emily Gardner, Jeanette Harlan, Leon Underwood, Glen Seabold, Wayne Bender, Nellie Walters, Virginia Beck, Jack Dawson, Vergil Gerber, Catherine Hirschman, Ruth Greiner, Wayne Getts, Loretta Schaefer, Robert Morris, Edward Hackney, William Dulin, Mildred Hoy, Suzanne Meyer, Elizabeth Somers, Virginia Noble, Forrest Fisher, and Richard Horstmeier.

Natalie Brennan, Ann Peters, and Florence Brennan have their outside reading reports in. This is in Miss DeLancey's English 2 class.

English 4 classes take up Narrative Poetry, and in a test on Browning, Floyd Menze, Betty Griffith, Glen Greiger, and Claude Davis received above 90.

Miss Demaree's 10B's are now studying "Sorab and Rustrum." They recently finished the "Ancient Mariner."

In a recent algebra 1 test given by Mr. Sidell to his third period class, the following people made 100 percent: Helen Banks, Janice Cross, June Enoch, Mary Lee Hines. Those who made 95 are: Milo Chasey and Thomas Clapper. The median of the class was 79.

In a recent punctuation test, given by Miss Keifer, the following people made perfect grades: June Bly, Jack Jennings, Theron King, Charles Lahman, Betty Lou Lindenberg, Dale McNeal, George Rogers, Dorothy Schivier, and Marcella Tieman.

In Mrs. Welty's 9B home room, Elroy Miller is the chairman and Nadine Muller is the secretary.

"Torpedoes" was the subject of a very interesting talk given by Clifford Zieg during the home room period in the Greeley Room last Friday. This was the first of a series of talks to be given this semester in Mr. Murch's home room.

Navy Day Contest Open To Students

To Be in Progress From Oct. 1 To 15; Winners To Get Trip To Capital and Navy Academy

The Navy Day Essay contest, which is to be promoted by the Indiana Navy Day committee in co-operation with the Navy Day League of Washington, D. C., is open to all high school pupils. It will be in progress from October 1, to 15, and the winners, who will be two pupils of the high schools of Indiana, a boy and a girl, will win trips to our national capital and to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland.

Mr. Floyd I. McMurray, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, expressed his desire that many will participate in the contest. In his letter to the school he explained, "In the Middle West we are so far removed from the sea that we do not readily become intimately acquainted with the maritime activities of our country, and I hope that the high schools of the state will participate actively in this contest."

The contest will be invaluable to all students of history and economics, and will develop a more widespread interest in romance and adventure of the sea. If any is interested, more material about the subject may be obtained from Mr. Null.

1500 Club Members Enjoy Wiener Roast

A wiener bake, enjoyed jointly by 1500 Club members and all room agents whose percentage of subscriptions was at least 70 percent, was held Friday evening at Foster Park. An abundance of food was provided; besides wieners, the menu included cream puffs, Coca Cola, potato chips, and marshmallows. Arrangements for the fire were made by Robert Storm, John Bex, and Louis Bonsib. Those attending the affair were Jim Sweet, Helen Anderson, Maxine Mariotte, Leona Menze, Ruth Henline, Louis Bonsib, Dalton McAlister, Dean Brahm, Robert Storm, John Bex, Georgianna Martin, Helen Kelsey, Ina Claire Chappell, Joan Bonsib, Rosemary Chappell, Norman Buck, Betty Wolf, Ruth Garrison, Dorothy Crabill, Harriet Yapp, Bryce Minier, Mildred Foellinger, and Miss Rowena Harvey.

Teaching Staff To Take Part At Convention

Thursday, Friday Set Aside For Teachers From Northeastern Part of Indiana.

Mr. J. H. Chappell To Be In Charge

First Sessions To Be Held Inside Shrine Auditorium
At 9 O'Clock Thursday.

Several members of South Side's teaching staff have been appointed to serve on committees and otherwise take active part in the northeastern Indiana Teachers' Association Convention to be held on Thursday and Friday of this week. Mr. J. H. Chappell, an industrial arts instructor here, is the association's president and will be in general charge of all the sessions.

Besides Mr. Chappell, teachers who will be active in the various meetings are Mr. K. Nelson Snider, who will be the dinner speaker at Ball State Teachers College and Indiana State Teachers College dinner on Thursday evening; Mr. A. Verne Flint, who will have direct charge of the reservations for the dinner; Miss Emma Dochterman, who is a member of the art section committee; and Mr. Benjamin Auld, who will serve as chairman of the committee for the literary section. Mr. Snider will also serve as a member of the superintendent-principal section, and Mr. Flint is chairman of the science-mathematics section committee. Miss Dorothy Jenner, public speaking instructor, is chairman of the oral English and speech section committee; and Mr. Earl H. Murch will serve on the committee for the business education section.

General Session Thursday
The first general session of the convention will be held in the Shrine Temple auditorium on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Various other meetings will continue until Friday noon.

The program for the general session on Thursday is as follows:

Music—Huntington High School Band, Delmar Weesner, director.

North Side High School Choir, William K. Sur, conductor.

1. a. Consolation.... Mendelssohn
b. O Thou Whose Feet.... Scottish
c. O Turn Thee..... Gounod
2. a. Echo Song.... Orland Lassus
b. She Is So Dear.... Praetorius
c. The Gypsy.... Zolotareff

Invocation—Rev. Charles M. Houser, Plymouth Congregational Church.

Appointment of committees and announcements.
Drs. William C. Bailey and Harold C. Rugg of Columbia University, debate, "The Significance of Current Issues in Education—What Is Progressive Education?"

Sectional sessions which will be held on Thursday are the departments of athletics, agriculture, grade school grammar and rural school education, principal-superintendents, primary-kindergarten, Latin, music, industrial arts, and oral English and speech.

Friday Program Announced
The program for the general session on Friday is:

Invocation—Rev. Alvin P. Teter, Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church.
Music—Northeastern Indiana All District Orchestra, Director Carl Schulte, associate to George Dasch of the Metropolitan Symphony orchestra of Chicago.

Address—"Varieties of Intelligence," Dr. E. W. Butterfield, commissioner of Education, Hartford, Connecticut.

Sectional session meetings which will be held on Friday are the departments of social science, literary, mathematics, home economics, art, special education, business education, and Red Cross work.

Officers of the convention association are, in addition to Mr. Chappell, Burton Q. Adams, vice-president; W. S. Painter, legislative chairman; and F. E. Day, secretary-treasurer.

Social Functions Planned
Besides the regular and sectional meetings, several important social functions will also be held. Among these are the Columbia University dinner, which will be held on Thursday at Mrs. Miller's cafeteria; the Manchester College luncheon, to be given at the Chamber of Commerce building; the Gamma Gamma Sorority luncheon, which will be held in the Town House; the Ball State Teachers College and Indiana State Teachers' College dinner, which will take place in the Shrine Temple dining room; the art teachers' luncheon, which will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Other important events calendared are the living model fashion review, which will take place in the Skyline tea room at Wolf & Dessauer's store; the Marion College Luncheon, to be served in the Keenan Hotel; the Purdue University Luncheon, which will be held in the Chatterbox of the hotel; the Tri-State College luncheon, which will be held at the Y. M. C. A.; and the home economics luncheon, which will be held in the Chatterbox.

Senior Hi-Y's Invite Juniors To Join Club

Senior Hi-Y held a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. with Dick Dochterman in charge. The juniors, which they were invited to join, have turned out with a fine attendance; about six new members were taken in, most of them juniors.

Benny Woodhull and Bud Feichter were elected chairmen. Feichter will open the meetings and Woodhull to close them. The club decided that they would not send delegates to the retreat unless it was held here. They also decided not to pay their dues to the state organization but will pay them to their club and remain a local unit. Plans for the winter bake were completed and the meeting was closed by Miller Makey.

Mr. Henry Chappell

Mr. J. Henry Chappell, manual training instructor at South Side, will preside at the Northeastern Indiana Teachers' Convention to be held in Fort Wayne this week. Mr. Chappell is president of the N. I. T. A.

Archers To Aid Musical Portion Of Convention

String Quartette, Ensemble, Trio, Soloist From Music Department To Entertain.

Mr. Jack Wainwright, who is the director of the South Side High School Department of Music, and South Side students under his direction will have a prominent part in the musical entertainment at the Teachers' Convention to be held on October 17 and 18 in Fort Wayne.

Quartette Offers Selections
At a luncheon given by the Primary-Kindergarten section of the convention in honor of Miss Eleanor Johnson on Thursday, Mr. Wainwright will present a string quartette for the enjoyment of the teachers. Members of the quartette and their instruments are as follows: Mary Jo Allen, first violin; Georgianna Jane Jones, second violin; Helen Kreischer, cello; and Evelyn Lehman, viola.

An ensemble, also under Mr. Wainwright's direction, will play at a joint session of the Superintendents and Principals, Red Cross, Science and Mathematics, Grammar, Grade, and Rural sections at the First Presbyterian Church on Thursday afternoon. Those in the ensemble are as follows: Margaret Rehm, cello; Bob Wiehe, violin; Margaret Null, flute; Myron Jones, clarinet; and Vernon Gregory, viola.

Ensemble Is To Play
Mr. Wainwright will also direct a string trio composed of South Side students at Central High School on Thursday afternoon at the Oral English and Speech section meeting.

At the Shrine Club at 6 o'clock on Thursday evening, an ensemble composed of Helen Flaig, harp; Margaret Null, flute; Vera Parker, flute; and June Bly, flute, will present a program under the direction of Mr. Wainwright.

Helen Kreischer, a member of the South Side music department, will play several selections on a harp at the Home Economics assembly on Friday morning at the Anthony Hotel.

State Convention Program Is Given

Many Noted Persons To Speak;
Eight From Here To Attend; Association Heads Given.

The eighty-second annual session of the Indiana State Teachers' Association, which will be held in Indianapolis on Thursday and Friday of this week, will be in general charge of Albert Free of Spencer, president of the association for the coming year.

Members of South Side's faculty who will attend the convention are the Misses Martha M. Pittenger, Rowena Harvey, Crissie Mott, Mary Paxton, Alice J. Patterson, Pauline Van Gorder, and Elizabeth Demaree. Mr. R. Nelson Snider will also attend on one day.

Sessions Begin Thursday
The general session of the convention will begin on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Shrine Temple. General sessions on Friday will be held in the tabernacle and at the Murat Theatre. Departmental meetings will be held on Thursday at 10 a. m. and at 2 p. m. The annual business session will be held in the Shrine Temple on Friday morning at 9:30.

All members of the association will meet at 4:30 p. m. on Thursday at different district meeting places for the purpose of selecting members of the executive committee. Fort Wayne delegates, who this year are represented by Miss Bertha Nelson, will meet in the club room of the Claypool Hotel. The city is included in the Fourth Congressional District.

Officers Are Named
Speakers at the Friday general sessions are Agnes Samuelson of Des Moines, Iowa, president of the National Educational Association; Miss Florence Hale of New York City; A. J. Stoddard of Providence, Rhode Island, president of the Superintendent Division of National Education; and Dr. Jesse Adams, president of the College of Education, University of Kentucky. Dr. Wilford H. Osmond will give an illustrated lecture on "Ethiopia and Their Struggles." Dr. Fred B. Smith of New York, will speak on "America Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow;" and Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of the Peoples' Church in Chicago will have as his subject "Romance of Life."

Impressed By British Ways, States Krauss

Social Science Club Hears About Ethiopian Conflict;
European Nations Baffled

The "Political Aspects of the Italo-Ethiopian Conflict" was the topic of the Rev. Paul H. Krauss' talk at the meeting of the Social Science Club last Thursday afternoon. He probably is better qualified to speak on this subject than any other person in Fort Wayne. During the summer he traveled through several European countries with the American Seminary Association and viewed the circumstances and governments of Europe.

"I was most impressed with the British government," stated the Rev. Mr. Krauss in his talk. "It is amazing to see how many of their young people are going into politics. Rather than trying to gain political positions, their cause is dedicated to the serving of labor and social causes." Dr. Krauss wholeheartedly believes that Great Britain is one of the foremost democratic countries in the world. Their younger generation is full of enthusiasm for the country.

Pre-War Period Near
While Dr. Krauss was in Europe, he visited England, Germany, France, Russia, and Poland. His tour did not permit him to go into Abyssinia and Italy, but from the some seventy speakers whom he heard, he has been able to gain much knowledge on both sides of the Italo-Ethiopian question.

"We are no longer living in the post-war period," Dr. Krauss stated. That time has passed, and the present is nearer at hand, especially in Europe. Many of the governments have passed into the hands of dictators, and the people are beginning to realize that they have lost their rights when the power to protest has been taken away from them. They have ceased to be individuals."

Dr. Krauss related an incident which happened in a farming district near a large industrial center. It seems that it took Mussolini three steps to get these people in the army. The first was in the form of a request. The Italians ignored it entirely. Then the dictator sent a post-card, declaring that if the Italians did not take the matters more seriously, it would be necessary to use more drastic measures. Even such a warning as this did not scare too many of the farmers. The sentiments of the people are not with those of the few of the different governments. Few of the people with whom Dr. Krauss talked were in sympathy with the colonization movement.

Russia Is Interested
When Mussolini first was noticed in public life, many laughed at his ambitions. Dr. Krauss said that there were now around 43,000,000 Italians in the territory which was about the size of one-half of our state of California. His idea of colonization was to give the Ethiopians the benefits of superior civilization and a higher degree of culture and religion.

However, the speaker stated, "Ethiopia has been Christian, a different sort of Christian, of course, since the birth of the religion. Today the Ethiopians are using Western ideas, and Mussolini's plan is making people poorer, wages lower, and prices higher in the country."

Krauss heard from one of the Ethiopian sympathizers.

While in Russia, Dr. Krauss said that it was easy to see that the conditions between Italy and Ethiopia have caused Russia to forget her five-year-plan to some extent and center most of her attention on Germany.

Europe Unhappy Picture
"For a while Russia was entirely out of international affairs; but now one can see that they are linking themselves with the countries around Germany. Right now Europe is a very unhappy picture," he said. "It seems that many nations are baffled by conditions, and Mussolini's prediction of another war in Europe by 1937 is receiving more than due consideration."

When Dr. Krauss was boarding the boat to return to the United States, he said to a German that he hoped Germany and the rest of Europe would not see another war. The German told Dr. Krauss that if any such thing should happen, and of course he hoped not, that the United States should have sense enough to stay out of it.

Theo Schuereberg Heads French Club

Rouen, An Old French City, Is Topic of Program; Customs
And People Also Discussed.

The election of officers for this semester was the main business at the French Club meeting held last Thursday in the Voorhes Room. The results of the election are as follows: president, Theo Schuereberg; vice-president, Lillian Gable; secretary, Anna Bremer; and point recorder, Violet Garton.

Rouen, an old French city located in the province of Normandy on the Seine River, was the topic of the program. Rouen is called the city of churches and is noted for its many old and picturesque cathedrals.

Nancy Newell told of the beautiful Mount St. Michel and passed pictures showing various views of it. She also told about some of the many other cathedrals in the province of Normandy.

Vivian Hickman told of the building of the city before the conquest of Gaul by the Romans. Other points given in her talk were that the main industry of Rouen was the manufacture of cotton and woolen goods and that it ranked next to Lyon in its output of the manufactured products. The position of Rouen favors a vast trade and also makes it a summer resort. Pictures showing the dress of the people, the houses, and other buildings were also shown.

Freshman Mothers Invited To Tea

The Freshman Mothers' Tea, which is being sponsored by the South Side P. T. A., will be held October 21 at 2:30 in the Greeley Room. Mrs. Detamors is to be the general chairman of this tea.

Mr. Herman Makey, The Sleuth, To Take Job As Detective

What a buzzing was going on in the halls of Clifty High! Their star quarterback gone just three days before the big game of the year, the clash with Leicester High, and no one to replace him!

The last to see him was the coach, who had called him to his office in the school building after supper to plan the game against Leicester. They parted at the door of the coach's office at 9 o'clock, and since then nothing has been learned about Speed Jones.

Dan Dunn and Sherlock Holmes have both been asked to hunt for the missing quarterback, but they have joined forces to discover the leak in the news about the Ethiopian concessions to the Standard Oil Company.

The Writers Club of South Side High School has undertaken to solve the mystery. Already its sleuths have discovered that the Clifty High School is built over a network of tunnels for water and steam connections. Clubs are being found, and there is hope that the game will start with Speed in the lineup.

Mr. Herman Makey, acting as the chief detective, will direct all students who are interested in writing. Come out and help solve the mystery. It is expected that this novelette will require at least seven chapters. The first is due at the next meeting of the club, Tuesday, October 22, in Room 72.

Faculty Is Invited As So-Si-Y Guests

"Chatting With Road-Graders" Is Theme of Annual Tea; Club Officers Take Charge.

So-Si-Y's annual faculty tea, which will be held on Tuesday, October 21, will be featured by the enactment of the various phases of the Girl Reserve Code in pantomime, songs, and unique plays.

The captains of the year's committees are in charge of the separate groups which will include "Gracious in Manner," "Impartial in Judgment," "Ready for Service," "Loyal to Friends," "Reaching Toward the Best," "Earnest in Purpose," "Eager for Knowledge," "Reverent to God," "Victorious Over Self," "Ever Dependable," and "Sincere at All Times."

The captains are Ruth Adler, Martha Franz, Virginia Greiner, Mary Michaels, Helen Doenges, Norma Clausen, and Ruth Reitz.

The theme for the tea will be "Chatting With the Road-Graders," and will be in general charge of the cabinet members who are Anna Bremer, Verma Holtman, Harriet Basford, Ruth Reitz, Catherine Allendorph, Virginia Greiner, and Helen Anderson.

Special guests who will be included in the party are Miss Jeanette Lamson, new Y. W. C. A. secretary; Mr. and Mrs. Merle J. Abnett; Mr. and Mrs. R. Nelson Snider, and Miss Martha Pittenger. The officers, advisers, and Miss Lamson will all be in the receiving line. The advisers are Miss Beulah Inghart, program; Miss Alda Jean Woodward, social; Miss Eleanor Smetzly, service; and Miss R. Hazel Miller, Y. M. C. A.

Job's Daughters Plan Sport Dance

Rudy Errington's Band To Play; Place Is Valencia Gardens;
Maxine Rippe Takes Charge.

A sport dance, having Halloween as its theme, will be given by Job's Daughters at the Valencia Gardens on Saturday evening, October 19. The tickets will be seventy-five cents and may be purchased from any member of the committee or at the door on Saturday evening.

Rudy Errington and his orchestra, which has just been newly organized, will provide the music from 9:30 to 12:30.

The general chairman of the dance is Maxine Rippe and the various committees are as follows:

Ticket committee: Betty Lyons, chairman; Nancy Wermuth, South Side; Beatrice Schuster, Central; Betty Westendorf, North Side.

Hall committee: Georgianna Martin, Maxine Mariotte.

Orchestra committee: Helen Kelsey, Vera Mosel.

Decoration committee: Mary Ann Mayland, Betty Roberts, Mary Jane Michael, LaVon Cook.

Posters committee: Mary Hagerfeldt, Mildred Miller.

Publicity: Rayola Morton.

Business: Eleanor Cupp.

Virginia Sponhauer will be the honorary queen of this dance.

Wranglers' Initiation, Potluck Are Planned

A semi-annual event, the Wranglers' potluck and initiation, will be held next Monday; the potluck will begin at 5:30 in the cafeteria and the initiation will immediately follow. This meeting is always one of the most enjoyable and important events of the club's program. Only paid members are invited to the affair. Various committees include a decoration committee made up by Dick Helm, Bernadette Dygert, Maxine Mariotte; the food committee carried on by Joan Lohman and Margie Spangle; the Ritual by Tom Jaenicke and Clifford Schrom. This year's event is expected to come up to the level of previous, enjoyable ones.

Literary Club Furthers Plans For Sport Hop

Dance Committees Named; Quartet Sings at Meeting;
Thespians To Give Play.

At a meeting of the Philaethian Literary Society held Monday evening, October 14, in the Greeley Room, further dance announcements were made by the president, Ruth Adler. The Philo Dance will be held on Saturday, November 9, which is the day of the South Side-Central football game. The theme for the dance will not be announced until later. Many interesting things have been planned in the way of decorating and entertainment for this event which is looked forward to with great anticipation by the student body. Prizes will be awarded at the dance. Ruth Adler also stated that there would be a prize for the girl who sold the most tickets for the dance.

Mary Martha Hobrock is the chairman of the ticket committee. She announced a new plan for the carrying on of the ticket sale which it is hoped will work out successfully and with good results. Other members of the ticket committee are: Dorothy Crabb, Jo Anne Smith, Ann Abbett, Betty Rose Lehman, Verma Holtman, Maxine Howard, Virginia Gardner, Joan Kennedy, Geneva Shearer, and LaVerne Dee Keel.

Publicity Committee Active
The chairman of the publicity committee is Jane Loomis. She is assisted by Rosemary Chappell, Fay Bechtold, Virginia Fathauer, Mary Martha Hobrock, Elizabeth Simminger, and Helen Doenges. Already this committee has made some very interesting sketches for their posters which will be placed at various spots in this building as well as in Central and North Side. Watch these posters for information concerning the theme of the dance.

Rosemary Chappell is the chairman of the orchestra committee. She is assisted by Harriet Yapp and Sybil Knudson. This committee has not as yet decided upon what orchestra they will have for the dance.

The decorations for the dance are in charge of Maxine Borchert and her committee who are: Maxine Mariotte, Mildred Foellinger, Wilma Butler, Margaret Crankshaw, Marjorie Meyer, Bernadette Dygert, Helen Flaig, Selma Liff, Mary Michaels, Lorene Schannen, and Sonia Velfok.

Anderson Is Program Chairman
The programs for the dance are in charge of Helen Anderson and her committee who are: Helen Doenges, Elizabeth Simminger, Louise Closs, Ruth Roadcap, Violet Garton, Betty Wolf, Gwen Horn, Jean Creighton, Marjorie Cartwright, and Thekla Leiminger.

Following the business meeting the program was turned over to Mary Martha Hobrock, program chairman. The second of the topics under the theme America in Literature was reviewed by Clarice Rudy, Ruth Roadcap, and Geneva Shearer. This topic was Revolutionary Literature.

The Philaethian Quartet which is just newly organized sang for the first time at the meeting. The two numbers which they chose were "Smiling Through" and "Tell Me Why."

Members of the quartet are Helen Flaig, Harriet Yapp, Ruth Fritz, and Sybil Knudson. They were accompanied on the piano by Helen Flaig.

Several Plays Planned
The Philaethian Thespians at a meeting held Thursday evening, October 10, tried out for the various parts in the play "Seven To One." All the parts have been typed by Geneva Shearer who deserves a lot of credit for her service. The rest of the parts will be handed out immediately and practice will begin during the vacation for Teachers' Convention. The next play to be given will be "No Men Wanted" which is a comedy in one act. Those who do not have parts in the first play will have their chance in the second.

Another accomplishment of Philaethian girls which is under way is a Year Book which is to be made for the benefit of keeping everyone informed as to what is going on in the club. The chairman for this will be Mary Michaels. She will be assisted by Helen Anderson, Selma Liff, Elizabeth Simminger, Helen Doenges, Margaret Crankshaw, Violet Garton, and Thekla Leiminger.

Homer, Musset Meterite Topics

Plan Annual Skate, Potluck
At Tuesday Club Meeting;
Committees Are Selected.

A membership party was held by the Meterite Club on Tuesday, October 15. This party took place of the regular meeting.

Preceding the program, a short business meeting was held, during which plans for the annual Meterite potluck were discussed. Committees for the affair will be chosen at the next business meeting of the club.

The skating party which is to be held soon was discussed also.

A very interesting program completed the meeting. Lois Rea gave the biography of the Greek poet, Homer. A talk was given by Lorraine Iba on the works of Homer. The biography of Alfred de Musset was given by Betty Lee Wilson; a talk on his works was given by Phyllis Culver. Dorothy Hall played a selection on the violin.

Refreshments were served after the close of the program.

Students Being Examined
The annual health examination is again being given to all students of South Side. At present, Dr. Duemling, the school doctor, is examining all participants of intramural sports. Following this, all taking gym work will be inspected. The remaining pupils of South Side will then be inspected.

One Million Dollars....

What does $1,000,000 mean to a student? It is only enough money to supply fourteen people with $20 a week for nearly seventy years. It is only enough money to buy fifty $20,000 homes. At 3 percent interest, a million dollars would produce only $30,000 a year, three times a U. S. Senator's yearly salary.

Our school building represents an investment of $1,000,000 by the city. Our parents and neighbors think the students of the south end are worth that much money.

Dividing that amount by our 1950 students, one can see that there is $572 invested in each pupil here.

There has been, we believe, an entirely too evident habit among our students to mark their names on everything, run pencils along the walls in the halls, put their feet up on desks, mark and tear up library books, and generally mess up the school building and grounds.

People judge us by our personal appearance. It is not unreasonable to believe that people judge us also by the way we care for other things.

South Side may not be our own personal possession, but each and every one of us may be sure that our parents had to pay for part of it. When we grow up and pay taxes, we too will pay for the upkeep of the public schools. It would not be a bad idea to take a look around now to see what you are getting for your money.

Would you care to pay for the labor used in cleaning our walls and classrooms if you knew the cost was unnecessary? Not many would.

If your parents let you drive their car, would you cut your initials in it, stick gum on the seats, drop confetti on the floor, take the tail light for a souvenir, or steal ten gallons of gas?

Would your parents let you take out their car again if you deliberately put a neat dent in each fender?

Should the school board allow pupils an education who cause an equal amount of damage to their school?

Failure Is In Not Trying

All the world will love a man who will stand with his back to the wall with the odds against him and fight for his rights. A story is told of a former world heavyweight champion. He was defeated in his first fight by a man not half his size. The derisive comment which followed him wherever he went so maddened him that he straightaway went into training, followed the small fellow all over the nation, fought in all kinds of battles in any old place, and finally, in his gigantic moment as a contender for the world's championship, had the satisfaction of knocking the title holder clean out of the ring.

In our every-day life, success is won in much the same way through the application of similar methods. Many a student has thrown up his hands at a time when a little more effort would have achieved success. Remember that there is no real failure except in not trying.

American Out of Doors

Much has been accomplished during recent years in the way of providing public playgrounds. The great national parks, smaller national monuments, and the vast reservations of national forests have justified their existence in happier, healthier, and more enjoyable vacations. Such parks as Yellowstone, Yosemite, Glacier, Sequoia, and the Dunes have provided much pleasure for millions, yes, millions, of tourists. Nearly every state in the union has lawns which provide for public parks and preserves.

Consider an area of over 215,000,000 acres of cut-over, burned and devastated forests in the United States alone. This entire area must again be made productive, not only to protect the headwaters of our streams, but to supply the actual industrial needs of this country.

Our hats go off to the boys who make this possible—The United States Forest Rangers.

Carrying On

With Gwen Horn

Writing a column that should be a mixture of a Declaration of War, an Insane Asylum, a news report, and a peace treaty is just one of the things that those who have carried on before me had to encounter. Now, my fate has been decided, and I am willing to make the best of it. If I don't, the future "carryovers" will lower their heads, as I pass and say, "There's a girl who didn't have a twenty-track mind and couldn't bear the burden."

It has been said that "No news is good news," so be prepared for the worst—

Being an occupant of this place of education, I have observed some scenes which might attract your attention, such as—Ruth Stoner trying to beat Dick Strasser to the last taffy apple at Wranglers; Bernadette Dygert practicing baby talk for the forthcoming Philo play; Mr. Makey and Pay Bechtel engaged in their daily argument over "Burke"; Maxine Mariotte practicing her whistle for Miss Demaree; Helen Potter powdering her nose at the mirror in the library; Bill Epmeier and Bob Zeig busily, in fact, industriously, rolling papers in journalism class; Tom Hern pronouncing pie, "pah" and then changing it to "Pi-ee" for us Yankees; Martha Zelt looking very sweet in a new sweater; and Phillip Green and Dick Busch looking very "Joe" in their felt hats.

And then there was the freshman in manual training class, who thought the walls in the room were old because they had moulding on them.

Bonsie Craig shouldn't feel so badly—After all, Mae West's face is worth a thousand dollars!

Radio News: This is Red Fallon announcing the weekly amateur hour of S. S. H. S. (Spinach Stuffers Hour of Sampling). First but not foremost, we may laugh ourselves hoarse at the three man quartet, composed of Alfred Deim, Bob Hoffman, and Norman Theye. This exclusive quartet is composed of only three members as the result of the last part having been killed at three minutes before one. What no gong? Next up, Eleanor Powell vs. Mary Louis Helms—She's up, she's down, she's on the ground—Reefe, Rife, Siss boom bah! S. S. H. S. Raw, Raw, Raw! Bang! Bang! Pardon the noise, but Budnagel and Stoop haven't as yet invented their "fifty-seven and a half cent cheaper than the other two shock-absorbing gonger." For this very reason Vera Crise hasn't kicked it around for a long time. But never let it be said that a King (oh, don't get excited, it's just the younger brother—You know—"Terry"), wouldn't do things up in a big way. Having stood for an hour on the ramp railing, we were finally informed that it was the distinctive elevator dance, and of course, Terry had to have some elevation. Enough of that—Let's turn the dial. Do I hear voices; do you hear voices? Yes, we hear voices. Ah, yes! 'Tis Mademoiselle's choristers giving their version of "Tell Me Why," from the Harrison Hill Drug Store Studios one block south of the ever-popular Stadium Lunch. The chorus, composed of Ruth Fritz, Dorothy Durbin, Jean O'Leigh, Mary M. Hobrock, Sally Rae, Maxine Howard, Dorothy Golden, "Peppy" Wermuth, and Jack Beemer (they needed a soprano), is led by that eccentric, Davidual Q. Stegarnagel.

Won't mention any names, but did you hear of the freshman who pointed to Mr. Snider and said, "And, who's that guy?"—And that's all.

Who's Who in Archerland

This week's "who" is among the more popular Archer socialites, having been elected a member of the social council of his class, president of the Student Players, and being an all-around good fellow.

Among his achievements in South Side are a second place for sports writing in the C. S. P. A. central states contest, sports editor, sports copy and make-up editor, and make-up editor of the Times, and sports editor of the 1936 Totem.

"Tall, dark and handsome," he is athletically inclined and plays basketball, football, tennis, and displays his athletic ability at numerous dances. He has big brown eyes, straight brown hair, is about six feet, and he has a loping gait.

He has a radiant disposition which attracts many friends, and also manages to keep them, it's said.

A small brother, Don, is following in his big brother's footsteps, and is anticipated by some that he'll be another edition.

Everyone knows who Dick Helm is.

When one is a freshee, one is often much different at graduation four years later.

When one is a freshee, he combs his hair, wears a necktie, and shines his shoes because he wants to. By the time he's a senior it's a habit.

At the freshee stage, both boys and girls are silly about each other. At the senior stage, only the girls are silly; the boys are broke!

Freshmen think hamburgers are great food. After four years of them, seniors think they're just another thing to eat.

When one is a freshee, he realizes his place in the world and stays there. When one is a senior, he realizes his place in the world and tries to get there.

At the freshee stage, one can get in the movies for child's rates with a little acting. Even if a senior has taken dramatics, it's well nigh impossible to do that, we're found!

Down South

If you notice a group of dignified seniors chirping like little birds and singing out the phrase, "Sweet bird," please do not accuse them of cracking under the strain. It is merely their attempt to do honor to the dramatic effort on the part of an outstanding orator, Manuel Rothberg, to repeat a bit of poetry in his English class.

According to an old adage, clothes make an impression. Evidently Mr. Gilbert's black suit gave a variety of impressions. One of those sweet young things thought he looked like an undertaker. Another was of the impression that the addition of a derby and a big black cigar would give our venerated professor the appearance of a typical fight promoter. The prize for the most exaggerated impression goes to the darling who thought he resembled a preacher.

The trophy offered for the best case of absent-mindedness has found its resting place in the trophy case at the Jones mansion. Myron, it seems, was consuming a delicious hamburger at a nearby restaurant and desiring some ketchup upon his hamburger, he reached over and grabbed a bottle and poured it on with great zeal. Imagine his surprise when he discovered that he had his bottle of pop in his hand instead of the bottle of ketchup.

All those who have a mania for mixed-up affairs such as scrambled eggs, should make it a point to attend the Job's Daughters dance. According to all advance reports everyone will be there with someone else's "big moment."

All you guys and gals who have had the terrifying experience of trudging home and telling the pater and mater that you have just put the family car out of commission, are probably sympathizing with the Roosevelt playboys and the "warm" greeting they probably received upon arriving home after trying the durability of their car against that of a train.

Uniquities

By Dean Brahm

Three hundred years ago in England a man banked his money by recording his deposits by notches on a stick. It was then split, the bank keeping one part and the depositor the other. Before he could withdraw his money, the two halves had to be matched together. If this method were to be used today perhaps bank tellers would have to be expert at jig saw puzzles.

Here are some interesting Scotch proverbs. Some are rather humorously expressed, though they are true and worthwhile to follow.

Keep something for the sore foot. Everybody's business is nobody's business. (No truer words said.)

Lock your door that you may keep your neighbor's honesty. (Not a bad idea.)

A nice wife and a back door makes a rich man poor. (So this is why the boys won't give the girls a break. We don't blame them.)

The oldest newspaper in the world is the King Pau, or "Capital Sheet," of Peking, China. It dates way back to 911 A. D. The paper was irregularly issued until 1351. Since that time it has been of uniform size. It had a daily edition also, which was started somewhere along the nineteenth century and had a circulation of 14,000 paid customers. The King Pau today is published daily and Sunday and its circulation runs high into the thousands.

Many say that China is the most backward of all nations. Sometimes we wonder if the Chinese weren't the most civilized nation in the early days of mankind and the other countries backward.

Collis P. Huntington (1821-1900) was born of noted New England parents. He received little or no schooling. However, he did not let this stop him from fame and fortune. When he was 14, he started life peddling clocks in the West. Starting at the age of 39, Huntington laid plans for building the Central Pacific Railroad. (Now Southern Pacific Railway.) He also operated the Chesapeake & Ohio.

Willing to make up for his lack of education, Collis gave liberally to Indian and negro institutions. Among his collections were $3,000,000 in paintings which Huntington gave to the Metropolitan Museum. He also left $80,000,000 to this museum.

Rip Van Winkle Lost In Our "Modern High School Slang"

By Bernadette Dygert

"Who am I? Why am I? Where am I?" old Rip would surely ask if he were to wake up in the twentieth century, October of nineteen-thirty-five, to be exact, and find himself in the halls of South Side; for he could not possibly escape adopting some of the modern slang which runs continuously on the tongues of nearly every high school student. However, at first the slang all about him would serve old Rip with a great deal of puzzled meditation.

Poor old Rip would undoubtedly be startled at someone shouting "Hi!" into his ancient ears. Just picture the old man trying to gain a high place at such an exclamation. He would never dream it was a friendly greeting. If Rip were to inquire shakily of one of our high school boys, "Young fellow, could I get a bite to eat around here?" He would no doubt hear in a queer nasal tone, "Why shore."

"Generation Going To Dogs"

A shake of his old head in wonder as to whether this generation all have sinus trouble, or colds, or something drastically wrong with them would naturally follow. Soon he would talk in our language, "What's this generation coming to anyhow?" Rip, however, "hadn't heard anything yet." At lunch hour around the school block, the old man's ears could not help catching, "Babe, are you going my way?" Rip, for the life of him, would not be able to locate the "babe" he had pictured at this statement, the ones like he used to see in cradles.

"Humans Made Differently?"

If something humorous had occurred in a class that morning, Rip would be in for some more amazement, "Land, I laughed so hard I thought I'd split a gasket!" "Hmmm, humans must be built differently, very differently, these days if they have gaskets," old Rip would be sure to conclude. Two boys, half-quarreling, half in fun, would produce some puzzlers, "You GREENIES—Members of one of our more barbarous clubs, the library staff, seem to have very queer tastes in the matter of initiation for new members. They painted the finger nails of Arlin Greiser, Jim Geiger, Dick Gebert, Bob Gargett, and also several girls a lovely shade of green!

MUSTACHIO—We see our friend John Miller has evidently forgotten to shave his upper lip, or something, for a cooky duster now occupies that spot.

PICKANINNY—We have heard that Mr. Wilson has in his possession a Negro newspaper which contains a castor oil ad showing Joe Louis as a small child. Personally, we wouldn't mind being the representative of the castor oil company in the Chicago Negro district.

HITHER, THITHER—If anyone misses Luther Procie, he's probably trying to find a place at the "corner of Harrison and the first street north of Calhoun."

GENTLE SLUMBER—Someone told us of a southern newspaper publisher, Robert Quillen, we think, who rebelled against publishing his paper on Christmas. One year, he sent his subscribers blank paper, and another, he sold the paper the day before and bought it back the day after Christmas. Perhaps it was the only day in the year he could sleep.

Note: members got out of school to attend its last meeting....I love to kick acorns....If you say anything about that to anyone else, I'll crown you....It was just an act of charity on her part....He thought you meant him....Why didn't Bex and Martin put something about themselves in the Times mail box, instead of the tie-up last issue?...Why did you add that last paragraph on? Anyone could tell it didn't sound like a girl....I know something about Helm, only it happened a long time ago....It's pretty good, isn't it? I wonder if he wrote it himself?

Teacher Visits Mother
Miss Nellie Covalt goes home to Kokomo each week-end to visit her mother who is seriously ill and is not expected to recover.

However, lately our confidence in the people has been to some degree restored. The majority of the people interested in the trial supported the decision given at Flemington as the only possible one. Then when the New Jersey Court of Appeals and Errors turned down flatly the appeal of the convicted man's lawyers, the majority again upheld that decision.

It is said his publicity-seeking attorneys will make an appeal to the Supreme Court of the land. If so, we believe the court will not even recognize the appeal.

Even then, will we be misled by such a gesture? We know now that it is a poor idea to believe in newspaper publicity, and we hope we won't.

Archers To Meet Irish In City Series Clash Next Saturday

Green Favored To Beat Purple On Local Field

South Side, Playing First City Game, Has Hopes of Fourth Straight Title.

C. C. Weak, Bested By North, Central

Central Catholic Grid Squad Improving, But Has Lost Four, Tied One; No Wins.

Four straight! Four city grid championships in four years is the goal for which the South Side Archers will be striving when they open their city grid competition against Central Catholic Saturday afternoon.

Only once before in the history of City Series play has this feat been achieved. Central's Tigers came through four times in a row from 1928 to 1931. Twice has South Side captured the coveted crown three years straight. They inaugurated their competition against Central back in 1922 by defeating the Tigers, 9 to 6. They also won in 1923 and 1924.

Archers Are Favored And now, with the enviable record of winning for the past three seasons, the Archers have a chance to equal Central's record. Whether they can come through or not only time will tell.

The Archers are not expected to have much trouble in their first tilt in defense of their crown. The Irish have not yet won a game. In their five games they have lost four and tied one. The crowning touch came last week when Howe Military Academy, which has only a fair squad, trimmed the Irish by three touchdowns. Howe scored once each in the first, second, and fourth quarters.

Archers Improve Steadily Meanwhile the Archers were enjoying a breathing spell from actual competition. However, they have been spending their time to good advantage, getting in long, strenuous practice sessions every day.

The Archers have improved steadily throughout the season. They played by far their best game against Peru, who boasts of the strongest team in several seasons, holding the Parlor City squad to their only defeat.

The Green is expected to rely largely upon its pass attack against the Irish, because of the excellent showing they made with it against Peru, when eleven out of twelve Archer passes were completed.

Coach Lundy Walborn is expected to start Ellenwood and Don Faux at ends; Nye and Makey at the tackles; Gamble and Wilson at guards; Ostermeyer at center; Meyers or Woodhull at quarter; Parmelee or Feichter and Benz at the halves, and Lee at fullback.

Lineup Is Given The probable lineup for Central Catholic is: Barile and Callivan at ends; Scher and Decker at tackles; Gamble and Deheimer, guards; Parrott at center; Romary at quarter; Smith and Mudd, halves; and O'Connor, fullback.

The game is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock, one-half hour earlier than usual, since daylight savings time is ended.

Alumna Helps Referee Margaret Spiegel, '30, and also a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan, refereed the hockey games last Friday and will continue to do so when she has time. Miss Spiegel is a favorite with G. A. A. members. She is now teaching physical education at Concordia High School.

Who Will Be Victor In City Series Race Is Timely Question

Who will win the City Series? This all-important question, which is in the heart of all true sports lovers in this city, now looms bigger than ever due to the fact that the battle between North Side and Central, which was played last Friday evening, ended in a scoreless tie, leaving the two teams in a tie for the lead in the race for the city championship.

Next week, South Side begins its fight in defense of the crown emblematic of football supremacy in this city, which they have held for the last three years. They take on the Irish from Central Catholic in their first engagement; the following week they play North Side's battling Redskins, and if the Green Wave emerges victorious from these two contests, they will on November 9, again tackle their traditional enemies, the Central Tigers.

When talked to, the Archer gridgers expressed various hopes and opinions of which the following are a few:

Gordon Parmelee: "It'll be a tough battle."

Jim Ellenwood: "We'll win if we play ball, and we will play ball."

Don Faux: "Central's favored, but the favorite doesn't always win. We've got a very good chance."

Fred Meyers: "I think we'll win, but we'll have a lot tougher battle than we had the last three years."

Bud Lee: "All we have got to do is battle."

Margaret Ruhl Is Girls Tennis Singles Champ

Defeats Betty Eisenacher; Leona Menze, Margaret Ruhl Also Win Doubles.

Margaret Ruhl, a junior A, was crowned school singles champion in a hard-fought match with Betty Eisenacher when she defeated her in a one-set match 6-1. The match was played on the gymnasium floor Monday at 3:30. Following the singles championship match, the doubles were played off for the school championship. In this Margaret Ruhl and Leona Menze defeated Betty Eisenacher and Mary Ellen Blauvelt, 6-2. Both matches were a display of good tennis.

Juniors Win Over Freshmen Betty Eisenacher, sophomore champion, beat Bernadette Dygert, senior winner, and Margaret Ruhl, junior star, defeated Violet Porter, freshman winner, in the semi-finals of the school tennis championship matches which were held in the gymnasium Friday afternoon.

Mary Ellen Blauvelt and Betty Eisenacher, sophomore winners, defeated the senior doubles champions, Rowena Bevington and Aldena Disler, and the junior championship pair, Leona Menze and Margaret Ruhl, defeated Betty Showalter and Betty Neeb, freshman winners.

The Eisenacher-Dygert match was a see-saw match until near the end when Eisenacher made four points straight to win the set 7-5. Nearly every game came to a decision before the winner was determined. In the Ruhl-Porter match, Ruhl swept through triumphantly, not letting her opponent have a look-in. She took the match, 6-0. The junior doubles pair, Ruhl and Menze, also found very little opposition in the freshman pair, Showalter and Neeb. The juniors played a straight set, letting the freshmen break through in the third game for their lone score. The junior champs took the set, 6-1.

Sophomores Defeat Seniors In the doubles match between Bevington-Disler, seniors, and Eisenacher-Blauvelt, sophomores, the seniors won the first and third games, after which the sophomore pair swept to victory 6-2.

The final singles match, between Margaret Ruhl, junior, and Betty Eisenacher, sophomore, the seniors won the first and third games, after which the sophomore pair swept to victory 6-2. In these final matches, only one set was played because the length of time a usual three-set match takes would make it impossible to have them played in the gym.

These girls are not playing for points, but merely for the fun of the game and for the honor it will give their class.

Coach Bill Barrett will lead his Irish into battle Saturday against South Side when the Archers begin the defense of their city grid title.

North Side Holds Tigers to 0-0 Tie

Redskins Get Many Breaks; Able To Gain Yardage; Lieberman, Sitko Are Outstanding.

Tiger grew the City Series issue as the North Side Redskins held the vicious Blue machine to a scoreless tie under the floodlights of the northern gridiron Friday.

As the score indicated, the game was evenly matched, but it was plain that the Redskins received most of the breaks. In the first half Central was able to make only one first down, while the northern eleven made none. The Redskins lost more yardage than they could gain in the opening half. The Blue pushed over two more first downs in the third quarter and did likewise in the last period, while in the last half of the game the Redskins scored seven by the consistent running of Joe Shumm.

During the game the Redskins picked up 119 yards from the scrimmage and lost 33 yards, leaving a total plus of 86. The Tigers did not fare so well. They made only gains of 96 yards from the scrimmage, and lost 17 yards for a total of 79.

In the initial period the ball stayed in the middle of the field most of the time with a punting duel in order between Steve Sitko of Central, and Lieberman of North Side.

Play Close Games In I-M Tag Football

Chumps Win Over Blackhawks 6-0; Archers Trim Stooges 12-0 in Tilts; Forfeit One Game.

Three more intramural tag football games were scheduled for playing on the South field last week, two of them resulting in close, well-fought games, and the third a forfeit.

The Chumps, after a period of vicious battling, were able to cross the Blackhawks goal for the only score of the whole game. Willis Mertens was the athlete who was able to cross the well-defended goal. The try for the extra point after touchdown by Walter Voigt fell short. Many threats were made by both teams after that touchdown, but the defending team would always strengthen at the decisive moment and hold the offensive team away from its goal, the final score being 6-0 in favor of the Chumps.

Archers Win The Archers, playing the small but fast members of the Stooges team, were able to win by a score of 12-0.

During the first three periods of play the Stooges were able to work the ball deep into the Archer territory, but lacked the punch necessary to put the ball over for a touchdown. In the last period of play the Archers finally began to click and ran the ball down the field for two touchdowns within the last five minutes of play. The first score was made by Brown on a run from the Stooges ten-yard line. The second touchdown was made by Close on a 65-yard run from his own 35-yard line. Both attempts for extra points were wide of the goal posts.

The Hawks forfeited to the Blackhawks because they did not have a sufficient number of players present at game time. The official score was 2-0.

Basketball Squad Is Cut Down To Thirty Boys

Coach Burl Friddle, who issued the call for basketball practice two weeks ago, has been working hard with his court candidates. He has been showing the boys the fundamentals, defensive work, and offensive work. During the past week he has cut the squad of eighty down to thirty. He expects more candidates from the football squad.

Pigskin Passes

Central's Tigers have at last met their equal. North Side pulled the unexpected and the hoped-for (by South Side) when they held the Blue to a scoreless tie Friday evening. Central and North Side are now tied in the race for the city crown with a win and a tie apiece. Central Catholic is hopelessly out, having lost to both the Blue and the Red.

The outcome of the Central-North Side battle serves to put South Side on the spot. It gives the Archers a better chance to retain the title, but on the other hand it puts the pressure on them all the more. Two wins and a tie will be necessary for the Green to win the crown in undisputed fashion. One win and two ties will place the Archers in a tie with either or both Central and North Side for the title.

Peru continued their winning streak the Archers so rudely interrupted recently, by defeating Huntington, 24-2. Huntington in defeat thus becomes the second team to score on the Parlor City outfit.

Two South Side alumni have been making names for themselves in college football. They are Herb Banet and Don Powell. Banet in a game against Adrian recently, accounted for thirteen of Manchester's twenty points. He scored two touchdowns and kicked a point after touchdown.

We hear from a reliable source, none less than Gord Straley, that Powell is going great at Purdue. Straley even goes so far as to say that Don, now a sophomore, is being considered as prospective All-American material.

Nineteen Chosen For Dancing Club

Meetings To Be Held Thursday; Misses Smith, Patterson To Advise; Girls Receive Points.

The nineteen most talented girls were chosen from the thirty-five that tried out for the newly-formed dancing club on October 3. Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Alice Patterson, faculty advisers, stated that the club would meet every Thursday evening after school.

Miss Smith had charge of the first meeting on October 10, but Miss Patterson will have charge of most of the future meetings.

Girls Are Advanced She stated that the girls in this club will be expected to do more than the average dancing class because they are more advanced.

She also suggested that the girls not fortunate enough to be chosen, enter the dancing section of the gymnasium class and get foundation work. They should then come for the next tryout which will probably be at the beginning of next semester. All the girls who are interested in G. A. A. will get points for participation in the club.

Fundamentals Are Expected At the meeting last Thursday, Miss Smith explained some of the fundamentals of dancing. She said that the class would start out with the most simple and primitive type of dancing as that kind has become the most popular.

Those girls who were chosen for the club are: Maxine Althouse, Anna Marie Baumgartner, Dolores Cleaver, Mary Kay Connell, Marjorie Clapp, Kathryn Cook, Helen DiGregory, Beatrice Craig, Teddy Confer, Janet Hartman, Gwyn Horn, Sybil Knudson, Peggy Kilpatrick, Betty McKown, Dorothy Roubush, Bernadine Shearer, Barbara Scheele, Dorothy Scheele, and Mary Ellen Woods.

Miss Smeltzly Speaks Before German Club

Tells of Foreign Trip; Program Committee for Next Meeting Is Announced.

"My sister and I boarded the S. S. Reliance in about the middle of June and were on it for five weeks," began Miss Eleanor Smeltzly in her talk before the German Club Wednesday, October 9. "Our watches had to be changed an hour every day. When we crossed the Arctic Circle, the passengers were given a Polar Bear party. The sun remained out all day and night. At two o'clock, the sun was so bright that we needed our colored glasses to protect our eyes. In honor of the Americans aboard, a Fourth of July party was held.

Steamer Is Luxurious
"The S. S. Reliance, a German steamer, is a luxurious and moderately large liner of the German-Hamburg line. The passengers consisted of Germans and quite a number of Americans. The swimming pool is an unusual one in that the roof is removable to let in sunlight and air. Newspapers, delivered by boys, were sent to each stateroom every morning. On every other night, German or Danish movies were shown. An international symphony orchestra played every night. This orchestra could be broken up into three parts to perform in different parts of the ship."

"We stopped at Iceland, Norway, Sweden, and Denmark. At the latter we were met by Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, whom we know personally. Everywhere the dolls we purchased were originally German made but dressed in the various costumes of the countries.

Sailed To Hamburg
"The S. S. Reliance, when it reached Germany, sailed down the beautiful Elbe River to Hamburg. From Hamburg we proceeded to Berlin by train. Berlin, being the capital farthest east, was not touched by the war. The buildings, factories, and palaces are all standing the same as before 1917. The streets and avenues, especially Unter den Linden and Friedrichstrasse, are all very beautiful. There are no ugly telephone poles or electric wires to disfigure the view. They are all underground. We also visited the palace of the ex-Kaiser, which is surrounded by large, beautiful gardens. When we entered the palace, we were required to slip felt slippers over our shoes in order to keep the hardwood floors unscratched. In Berlin we also saw Hitler's residence.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

In a recent test that Mr. Rothert gave to his Latin 1 class, the following students made a grade of 90 or above: Betty Muntzinger, Evelyn Heine, Richard Shorter, Dick Wooding, and Martha Zeit.

The following students received a grade of 90 or more in a test given by Mr. Rothert to his Latin 3 class: Joe Bell, Margaret Dickmeyer, Louise Jerning, Helen Cox, and Betty Lee Wilson.

O'Lilly Kensler was the only person who made a grade of 100 percent on a test in junior business training given by Mr. Furst to 67 pupils. Those students who received 90 or more are: Marion Ehle, Albert Ferguson, Ruth King, Mary Oates, Walter Roesener, Basil Thompson, Eileen Vaughn, Maxine Althaus, Geraldine Campbell, Wilma Carrier, Anne Marie Hausmann, Eileen Hoffman, June Holzwarth, Betty Minner, Sadonna Neith, Betty Showalter, Nathan Tagmeyer, and Nancy Vaiton.

Was she a freshee? One day Miss Edith Crowe happened to see a girl outside her door. This was not really unusual, but she noticed that the girl was still outside the door quite a while later, and she was still looking into the room. Miss Crowe went out and asked her if she wanted anything. "That is my pink slip that flew into your room," she said.

Mr. Rothert said that he told a student to decline woman in Latin. (Imagine his surprise when the student said: "woman, woman, woman, woman, woman.")

The other day, a girl asked to be excused from gym. Miss Patterson got this as her excuse: "I was riding my bicycle down the street and a log bit me on the heel. Now I cannot walk very well."

Two tests have been given in Miss Paxton's algebra 2 classes. Those receiving two 100's in the first period are Betty Eisenacher and Dorothy Pefer. Those in seventh period are Robert Bopp and June Etta Collins, and in the fourth period, Clyde Nussbaum.

Officers have been elected in Miss

Paxton's home room. They are Ann Peters, chairman, and Betty Pugh, secretary. Each week a committee is chosen to arrange for entertainment during the home room period. One of the entertainers was Harry Fisher, who played the violin and sang a song, but Miss Paxton would not tell the title of the song!

Miss Benner's public speaking classes have been relating short stories. Some of the best were given by Rosemary Chappell, Leona Menze, Mary Michels, Ed Kruse, Gwen Horn, Mary Louise Helms, Marjorie Dancer, Rowena Bevington, Helen Flaig, Ada Baumgartner, Sally Rea, Dorothy Kies, and Selma Liff.

"How To Make a Hunting Dog Hunt—If He's a Hunting Dog" was the subject of Bob Craig's speech that he gave the other day in public speaking class.

Ed Leitz is the first pupil in Mr. Makey's English classes to have completed his outside reading work.

A test on the first two chapters of "As You Like It" was given in Miss Benner's sophomore class. The highest grades were: Robert Armstrong, 94; Don Hickman, 95; Helen Longwell, 95; and Virginia Roe, 94.

The following pupils of Mr. Gould's botany classes have turned in a large number of weeds: Rowena Bevington, 50; Betty Lou Lindenberg, 46; Barbara Von Gunten, 66; Marcel Bandtel, 53; Justine Lohman, 47; Evelyn Lehman, 46; Marjory Scheuman, 54; Alma Shull, 55; Lillian Winkler, 51.

In Miss Perkins' third period beginning French class, a test was recently given. Jane McElwin made 99.5 and Miles Porter, Jr., made 98, and these were the two highest grades in the class.

Elizabeth Simpson and Jane Wormington made 95.5 on a recent test in a beginning French class of Miss Perkins.

A week's diary in French was kept by Miss Perkins' French IV classes.

Large Crowd Attends P.T.A. Annual Event

Back-To-School Night Is Start of Campaign for Large Enrollment.

The Parent-Teachers Association of South Side held another successful Back-To-School night last Monday evening, October 14. It was the seventh annual affair of that kind sponsored by the association, and a large crowd of enthusiastic parents were in attendance at "classes" which began at 7:30 with the home room period.

Dues Are Collected
During this period, which was fifteen minutes in length, dues of the P.T.A. members were collected, and the annual membership drive was begun. A larger membership than ever before was reported, although before-hand the membership was the largest of P.T.A. enrollments in Indiana. From there the parents proceeded to their child's first period class, where they became acquainted with the teacher, and learned what their child does in his class. The same procedure was followed in other periods.

During the fourth and fifth periods, lunch was served in the cafeteria just as is done regularly during a school day. Each period, except home room, was ten minutes in length and they were arranged as follows:

Home room 7:30 to 7:45
Period 1 7:50 to 8:00
Period 2 8:05 to 8:15
Period 3 8:20 to 8:30
Period 4 8:35 to 8:45
Period 5 8:50 to 9:00
Period 6 9:05 to 9:15
Period 7 9:20 to 9:30

A special attraction of the evening was another edition of the Tiny Times, which was distributed during the home room period as it has been done each of the preceding years.

Invitations to the Back-To-School night celebration were sent out by Mrs. Raymond Fudge, membership chairman of South Side's P.T.A., and her committee, to all parents of South Side's students.

Mothers' Gym Classes
To Start October 21

The first meeting of the South Side Mothers' gym classes, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association will be held Monday evening, October 21, at 7:15 in the gym here. Fifty cents will be charged for the semester, which will be used for welfare work in South Side. About ten classes will be held during the semester under the direction of Miss Alice Patterson, gym teacher at the school. These classes are very entertaining and enjoyable. The mothers will partake of volleyball games and potluck suppers besides the regular exercises. All mothers of South Side are invited to attend, whether they plan to take an active part or not.

Anyone desiring to be an expert in mopping the floor, kindly call on Mr. Gilbert. The other day in second period health class he gave a perfect demonstration.

Archers' Ark Is Philo Fall Dance Theme

Maxine Borchert Is To Head
Decorations; M. Hobrock
In Charge of Ticket Sale.

Hop Is Scheduled For November 9

R. Chappell Chairman of Orchestra Committee; J.
Loomis Heads Publicity.

Archers' Ark dance was decided upon as the theme for the annual Philaethian Fall Dance to be held Saturday evening, November 9, following the Central-South Side football game. This theme was decided upon after a very lively discussion by the officers and dance chairman at a meeting held Monday evening, October 21, in Miss Demaree's, the faculty adviser's room.

Prizes To Be Awarded

Maxine Borchert is chairman, and Sonia Velkoff assistant chairman of the decorations committee for the dance. Originality is their aim in decorating. They will be assisted by Maxine Mariotte, Mildred Poellinger, Wilma Butler, Margaret Crankshaw, Marjorie Meyer, Bernadette Dygert, Helen Flaig, Selma Liff, Mary Michaels, and Lorene Schannen. The decorations will feature the ark and all the animals, particularly the tiger. Some very novel ideas are also being worked out.

Mary Martha Hobrock, chairman of the ticket committee, announced that there would be a prize for the girl who sold the most tickets. The tickets will go on sale today at fifty cents a couple, thirty-five cents stag. The sale of tickets is to be carried out in a very different manner this year. Other committee chairman for the dance are Rosemary Chappell, orchestra chairman; Jane Loomis, publicity; and Helen Anderson, program. These chairman and their committees will meet at various evenings this week to plan in detail arrangements for the dance. The bulletin board will furnish further news concerning the dance.

At the dance itself, there will be several other dance prizes awarded to the couples holding lucky numbers. Also at the dance there will be some novelty numbers. Favors will be given to everyone present.

"Friday evening, October 25, of this week, there will be a meeting of the yearbook committee in Miss Demaree's room after school," Mary Michaels, the chairman, announced. This committee consists of Selma Liff, Elizabeth Simminger, Helen Doenges, Margaret Crankshaw, Violet Garton, Thekla Leininger, and Helen Anderson. At this meeting work will begin immediately on the yearbook which will carry the dates and information of all the Philaethian activities.

Thespians Continue Practice

The Philaethian Thespians have been practicing continually on their play "Seven to One," which, if everything continues to go well, will be given on November 1. The students taking part in this first play will be Gwen Horn, Geneva Shearer, Selma Liff, Maxine Mariotte, Maxine Howard, Betty Davenport, Joan Kennedy, and Bernadette Dygert. Those who did not take part in this play will have their chance in the next one. Geneva Shearer was responsible for having all the parts typed for the convenience of the players.

A Halloween party and initiation will be the feature of the next Philo meeting which will be held Monday evening, October 28, in the Greeley Room. This meeting is the one at which the defeated membership team must entertain the winners. Chairmen who are working on this meeting are Rosemary Chappell, Verna Holman, and Helen Anderson.

Yearbook Reaches Subscription Goal

Nearly 950 Obtained by October 16; Surpasses All Former Records;
Oct. 26 Picture Deadline.

A new record for subscriptions to the Totem has been set in the campaign this year. The goal which was 800 subscriptions was reached before the last day of the campaign, Wednesday, October 16. The total subscriptions recorded is now about 950.

Already 1336 Totem have been obtained from the number of subscriptions received during the entire year of any Totem publication in previous years.

The price of the 1936 Totem is two dollars. This amount may be paid in full, or, if preferred, twenty-five cents may be paid down, with the remaining amount being paid before April 15, 1936.

A great majority of the senior pictures have been taken. By last Saturday, October 19, the photographs of the seniors whose surnames begin with the letters from F to L had been taken. Seniors whose last names begin with the letters from L to Q are to have had their pictures taken by Saturday, October 26. Seniors whose surnames begin with the letters from Q to Z must have had their pictures taken by Saturday, November 2, which is the deadline for Senior Totem pictures.

Underclassmen pictures will be taken during November.

College Teachers Are Foods Class Visitors

During the seventh period on Wednesday, October 16, eight teachers from North Manchester College visited Miss Mellen's advanced foods class. The object of their visit was to do observation work. They were shown through the department and they also were told what the girls do in their daily work.

Totem Positions Still Open To 1936 Grads

Louis Bonsib, Totem editor, has announced that applications of any seniors wishing a position on the Totem staff will still be considered if they will apply at the Totem office immediately. This extra time has been granted because several seniors who wanted to work on the Totem did not know they had to apply for a job.

Freshmen And Sophomores In Speech Contest

Forty-three Students Sign Up for Annual Debate;
Others Speakers to Assist

Forty-three freshmen and sophomores signed up for the first part of this week to take part in the Freshman-Sophomore Speech Contest, sponsored annually by the Public Speaking Department under the direction of Miss Dorothy Benner.

These students, most of whom have had very little experience in this line, will be aided with their five-minute argumentative speeches by older students who have had at least two semesters of public speaking. They will help the contestants in choosing a topic, arrangement and delivery.

Freshmen and sophomores will not be in the same contest, but instead the primary speeches will be held before their respective English classes. Finals are to be held in the study hall. A definite date for these contests has not yet been decided.

The freshman class is represented by twenty-five students in this speech contest, while the sophomores number eighteen. Following is a list of the contestants: Freshmen: Maxine Alt-house, Marjorie Clapp, Beatrice Craig, Betty Daniels, Geraldine Fabian, Dorothy Koonce, Alan Miller, Velda Oppe, and Lorene Schannen. Sophomores: Maxine Alt-house, Marjorie Clapp, Beatrice Craig, Betty Daniels, Geraldine Fabian, Dorothy Koonce, Alan Miller, Velda Oppe, and Lorene Schannen.

At the dance itself, there will be several other dance prizes awarded to the couples holding lucky numbers. Also at the dance there will be some novelty numbers. Favors will be given to everyone present.

Faculty Tea Held Tuesday Evening

Theme of Evening Was "Chatting With the Road Graders;"
Discuss Code of Girl Reserves.

So-Si-Y's annual faculty tea, which was held on Tuesday evening in the Greeley room, was featured by the presentation of seven short skits interpreting most of the points covered in the Girl Reserve code. The theme of the tea was "Chatting with the Road Graders," and was in charge of the club's cabinet and the program chairman for the semester.

Preceding the program, a trio composed of Miriam and Elizabeth Lickhart and Mary Jo Allen played several classical selections. The seven skits were directed by Martha Franz, Mary Michaels, Ruth Adler, Helen Doenges, Virginia Griener, Norma Clauser, and Ruth Rietz. They included "Gracious in Manner," a pantomime; "Impartial in Judgment," featured by "I Want To Be a Girl Reserve," sung by Eloise Stewart, president of the Wheatley Center Girl Reserve organization; "Ready for Service," a pantomime; "Loyal to Friends," based on the story of Naomi and Ruth from the Bible; "Seeing the Beautiful," a playlet; "Ever Dependable," based on the parable of the ten wise and foolish virgins; and "Reverent to God," a hymn, "Spirit of Light," sung by Ruth Rietz, Ruth Roadap, Virginia Baker, Inez Thompson, Marjorie Scheumann, and Leona Menze.

Anna Bremer, in her address, introduced Miss Jeanette Lampson, new Y. W. C. A. secretary who succeeds Miss Lucille Holtzapfel; and Miss Zelah Heinbaugh, girls' secretary of the "Y."

After the program, Marjorie Dancer, accompanied by Ruth Roadap at the piano, led the group in the singing of the Girl Reserve Quest, the G. R. loyalty song, and several other selections. Following the singing, refreshments, consisting of fruit punch, cakes and candies, were served.

Skate Party Planned By Philatelic Society

The Philatelic Society has planned some very interesting activities for the coming weeks. One of these is a skating party which will be held on November 1 at Bell's Rink. The ticket committee, John Jackson, Reginald Gerig, and Emily Lepper, has set the goal for the ticket sale at 200 tickets. As a special attraction at the skating party will be awarded. The price of each ticket is 25 cents. Jane Loomis is in charge of the publicity.

An important meeting of the society will be held on October 29. Miss Smeltzly will speak on the subject, "Russian Stamps." She will also exhibit her collection of stamps from this country.

As the foregoing are only a few of the activities which have been planned, the future meetings look very promising.

P.T.A. Sponsors Dances
The P.T.A. of Broadway High School, Seattle, Washington, will sponsor tea dances every month. The dances will be given every first Friday from 9 o'clock till 12 o'clock.

Four Teachers Here Assigned To Committees

R. Nelson Snider, Ora Davis,
Susen K. Peck, and Erma
Dochterman Appointed.

Several members of South Side's faculty were named to serve on special section committees for the 1936 Northeastern Indiana Teachers' Association convention at this year's meeting which was held last Thursday and Friday at the Shrine Auditorium.

The group of instructors includes Mr. R. Nelson Snider, who will serve on the principals-superintendents section committee; Mr. Ora M. Davis, science-mathematics; Miss Susen Peck, literary; and Miss Erma Dochterman, art.

Mr. J. H. Chappell, instructor of industrial art here, will be succeeded as president of the association by Mr. Owen R. Bangs, superintendent of the Ligonier city schools. Other officers chosen for next year are Miss Mary E. Hallowell, principal of Etna Township High School, vice-president; and Mr. Frank E. Day, superintendent of the Wells County Schools.

Mrs. Ross Featured
The Thursday evening session at the Shrine Auditorium was featured by a 45-minute address by Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, director of the United States Mint at Washington, and former governor of Wyoming. Mrs. Ross stressed, for the most part, the personality and ability of the New Deal personnel. She also discussed the advantages of remaining neutral in regard to the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

Dr. E. W. Butterfield, commissioner of education of Hartford, Connecticut, was the principal speaker at a joint section meeting on Friday morning. Dr. Butterfield's subject was "Satisfactions in School Discipline," and included six "don'ts" for teachers to set against their punishment plans.

Other speakers listed
Others speakers at special group meetings included Rex M. Potter, librarian of the library of Fort Wayne and Allen County, at the social-science section meeting; Forest (Phog) Allen, University of Kansas athletic director, athletic section; Prof. Ralph C. Corley, professor in biochemistry at Purdue University, science-mathematics; Prof. Felix Payant, instructor of fine arts in Columbus, Ohio, art; Elise H. Martens, of the United States Office of Education, special education group; and M. E. Shudaker, head of the department of business education, Ball State Teachers' College, commercial education group.

Miss Maude Lewis of Washington and Mrs. Wayne Reid of Richmond, told of the national field activities of the junior organization of the Red Cross at the Red Cross section teachers meeting. Marjorie Snyder, president of the Allen County Junior Red Cross, and Pauline Miller told of the local work being done.

Mr. Merle J. Abbott, superintendent of Fort Wayne schools, was renamed as a member of the committee for studying ways and means of affecting closer relations of education activities with other associations in the state.

Math-Science Plan Fun Frolic Today

Games, Fortune Teller, Dancing, Fun House, and Refreshments
Will Be Feature of Program.

Games, a fortune teller, a fun house, dancing and refreshments will feature the program for the Math-Science Club meeting to be held this evening in the Greeley Room, which will be gayly decorated with cornstalks, yellow and black cats, pumpkins, and witches.

Ruth Adler, social chairman, announced that 60 members are expected at this meeting, which will be in the form of a masquerade party.

Many Halloween games will be played under the direction of Jim Sweet. A unique "Fun House" will give the members many thrills and chills. Later, music for dancing will be provided.

For refreshments there will be doughnuts, pumpkin pie, and something to drink. Those who care to, may bob for apples.

Payment of dues and masking are the only requirements for attendance at the party.

Committees in charge of the party are: program, Dorothy Crabill, Dick Helm, Bob Harrouff, Millie Poellinger, Helen Anderson, Ruth Garrison, and Marie Wolf; entertainment, besides Jim Sweet, the chairman, there are Betty Wolf, Lois Wyneken, Ruth Garrison, and Bryce Minier.

Many Studes Profit By Swapping Old Pens For New Ones

The fountain pens which were given for two old pens and a three-cent stamp collected recently were distributed Tuesday during the home-room period. There were about 350 pens in various colors, sizes, and shapes. The pens were given out according to the value of the gold in the points of the pens received in trade for the new pening implement. The pens have been rebuilt from old pens handed in. New points have been put on all of them and some have received new sacks and other necessary parts.

Pens Are Guaranteed
This is an excellent trade for two worthless pens and a stamp. The pens are guaranteed for one year and will be replaced if they do not last this long.

Some of these pens are large, some small, and some medium. They are in assorted colors, red, blue, green, and a few mottled colors. All will doubtlessly give good service.

Students Approve Trade
Mr. Snider gives his opinion of the pens by saying, "You are receiving an excellent trade for the investment. The pens seem to be in good condition and will probably last a long time."

The students who received the pens hold a good opinion of them. Many were surprised by the appearance of them. Those pupils (and teachers) who didn't turn in two old pens are sorry that they neglected to do so. The offer will probably not be repeated, so those who missed the opportunity are out of luck.

Wranglers Hold Potluck, Initiation

Ceremony Serious, Humorous; Built Around Club Purpose;
New and Old Members Assist.

One of Wrangler's semi-annual events, a potluck followed by an initiation, was held at 5:30 last Monday. First in the cafeteria, then in the various classrooms. The potluck was one of the most successful held thus far, for there was plenty of food and lively chatter. Many members appreciated the fact that, "It was the best potluck I've ever attended," for eating was interrupted only by a brief speech given by Miss Benner, the club's adviser.

The initiation started out by the initiates being assigned to various clean-up-after-potluck duties. The entire initiation, built around the purpose of Wranglers, which is to further public speaking, lasted several hours, and consisted both of serious and humorous ceremonies. All old Wrangler members and officers took part in the affair. The club now has a full-fledged membership of sixty-five students.

The official committee for the initiation was Gwendolyn Horn, Tom Jaenicke, Doris Bennett, Richard Strauser, Clifford Schrom, Dick Helm, Bob Storm, Louis Bonsib, Maxine Mariotte, Georgianna Martin, Sally Rea, and Joan Lohman. Other Wrangler members cooperated with these persons.

U.S.A. Club Hems Towels For Guild

Work To Be Done at Meeting on October 24; Ruth Gerber Is Appointed Program Chairman.

The members of the U. S. A. Club will hem towels for the Needlework Guild at their next meeting on October 24. All the girls who expect to sew are requested to bring thimbles with them.

As there will not be enough work for all the girls, Julia Crabill, the president, appointed a committee to give a program while the other girls are sewing. Ruth Gerber is chairman. The rest of the committee is Peggy Blass, Virginia Blass, Beverly Ann Griffith, and Joan Bradley.

The committee in charge of the meeting on November 7 is Betty Buchanan, chairman; Jean Rarick, Marjorie Macke, Athelda Koch, and Rosalea Koehle.

Famous Artists Will Be Here During Winter

Tibbett, Goya, Seidel, Shure, Broncato Are Performers
Brought by Music Group.

Lawrence Tibbett, world-famed baritone, will be brought to Fort Wayne on November 8 in the first of a series of community concerts to be held during the winter under the auspices of a group of music-loving Fort Wayne persons.

The sale of tickets, which are five dollars each for adults, and two and one-half dollars for students, and include admittance to each of the concerts, will close Saturday evening. A tremendous increase in membership over that of former years has been noted and is credited by members of the association to the excellence of the performers billed.

Performers Are Listed

Other performers scheduled besides Mr. Tibbett are Carola Goya, Toscha Seidel, Leonard Shure, and Rosemarie Broncato. Of this group, Mr. Tibbett is, of course, the best known, especially to radio listeners and the movie-going public. He is America's most outstanding baritone.

Carola Goya is a young American of Spanish ancestry who grew up in Spain and absorbed an appreciation for Spanish art. Besides a natural grace and beauty, she has dramatic ability, which makes her performance finished and an entertainment in itself. She will appear here on April 22.

Seidel, Shure To Play

Toscha Seidel, who will be in Fort Wayne January 23, is a violinist of many years' concert experience in England and Scandinavian countries as well as America. Leonard Shure, a brilliant young pianist, is familiar to Fort Wayne people because of his concerts here last year, sponsored by local people who believed that he showed promise, a belief which has been justified by his many recent successes. He recently played with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and is highly recommended by Koussevitzky, the director of the orchestra.

Rosemarie Broncato, a coloratura soprano, is a Metropolitan Opera star. She replaced Marion Talley when she failed to fill her late engagement. She will be here December 9.

Most of the performances will be held at the Shrine Auditorium. Members of the association are also entitled to the privilege of attending concerts in other cities belonging to the association, including South Bend, Elkhart, Muncie, Toledo, Battle Creek, and many other cities throughout the United States and Canada, provided the seating capacity permits. Tickets may be obtained from Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Smeltzly.

Torch Club Plans Activities of Year

Committee Appointed To Secure
Sponsor, Membership Drive Group Named; Dues Charged.

At a meeting of the Torch Club Monday evening in the Voorhees room the new officers were introduced to the members of the club. The new officers are Joe Bell, president; Charles Will, vice-president; and Dick Vogelsang, secretary-treasurer.

This year the club is lacking a sponsor. For the few years Mr. Sterner has been the faculty adviser. However, he is unable to act in that position this year. A committee was appointed by Joe Bell, the new president, to secure a sponsor. The club voted in favor of asking Mr. J. H. McClure or Mr. Harold Windmiller to fill the position. The committee chosen consists of Don Armstrong, chairman; Ray Racine, Bob Jones, and Dick LaMar.

A committee was also chosen to secure at least ten new members to join the Torch Club. The members are: Robert Lee, chairman; Donald Steinbauer, Kenneth Allway, and Donald Carrier.

It was decided that dues will be charged this semester. This is the first time this has been done. The amount has not been set, but "the more members, the less dues" is the rule. Every member was requested to bring a new member the next meeting. The next meeting date will be announced in the bulletin.

The club plans many activities this year, which include a skating party, a mother and son banquet, a father and son banquet, and many splash parties at the Y. M. C. A. pool.

Over Three Hundred Parents Join P.T.A.

Three hundred thirty-two parents joined the South Side Parent-Teacher Association on Back-To-School night. This fell short of the number enrolled last year by 68. The class membership chairmen are hopeful that after the class teas the number of members will be increased to as many if not more than last year.

The freshman tea last Monday 17 parents enrolled, bringing the total membership to 349 members. The enrollment stands as follows: Freshman, 108; sophomore, 61; junior, 103, and senior, 77.

Room 36 with Miss Alda Jane Woodward, teacher, and Mrs. Carl Goebel, representing the P.T.A., went over the top in grand style with 21 memberships.

The membership chairmen are the Mesdames Frank Bollman, George Monosmith, H. C. Rehm, Roland Gregory for the freshmen, sophomore, junior, and senior classes respectively.

Band To Start Monthly Music Concerts Soon

First Program Is Scheduled For Tuesday; Usual Price
Five Cents To Be Charge.

Our school music department will give its first of a series of monthly music concerts before the entire school body next Tuesday morning after the home room period. There will be a charge of five cents to each student, payable to the home room teacher, which will help cover some of the expenses in the music department.

In commenting on the programs Mr. Jack Wainwright, director of the band, said the best support the students could give would be in their attendance and attention.

Students are not the only ones who may attend these concerts; their parents and friends are also invited. At each program several instruments will be demonstrated and explained. The flute and harp are the first to be considered in this manner.

The program will be as follows:

Black Horse Troop	Sousa
First Heart Throb	Strauss
Columbia-Cornet solo	Robinson
George Glenn
In a Little Gypsy Tea Room	Burke
Moonlight and Roses-Trio	Margaret
Null, George Strahlem, Helen Flaig
Kol Nedra	Ascher
A Day in Ireland	Briegleb
Largetto from Second Symphony
.....	Beethoven
Chocolate Soldier	Strauss
Shrine of Liberty	Jewel

P.T.A. Meeting Is In Form Of Tea

Freshman Mothers Entertain;
Mr. Snider and Others Speak;
Mrs. Kelsey Is General Head.

Freshman mothers were brought together in a general "get-acquainted" meeting sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association, Monday, October 21. The gathering was in the form of a tea, and was the first Parent-Teacher Association meeting of the year.

The gathering began at 2:30 in the afternoon and was held in the cafeteria. The afternoon's entertainment consisted of selections by the school orchestra and speeches by faculty members. Among the faculty speakers are: Mr. Snider, Mr. A. Verne Flint, Miss Pauline Van Gorder, Mr. Earl Murch, Mr. Russel Furst, Miss Martha Pittenger, and Miss Pearl Rehstor.

The theme of the gathering was carried out in Halloween fashion. The table was decorated with pumpkins, leaves, and candles after the popular fashion. Refreshments consisted of tea and wafers. Mrs. Kelsey presided over the whole program. The group was very large for such gatherings, as there were about 65 ladies present.

The committee in charge of the tea was Mrs. Iba, chairman; Mrs. Schelle, a mother and son banquet, a father and son banquet, and many splash parties at the Y. M. C. A. pool.

John Bex Is Chosen IHSPA Leader Friday

School Is Awarded Eighteen
Out of Possible Twenty-
Two Places at Convention.

Leland Stowe Is Feature Speaker

Newspaper Awards Given To Norman Buck, Richard Helm, Jim Sweet, Others.

John Bex, a prominent junior at South Side, was elected president of the Indiana High School Press Association at the annual session held at Franklin College on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, which was attended by eighteen delegates from South Side. This is the first time a South Side student has been president of the organization, and the second office a member of the Times staff has held.

Times Wins Many Places

South Side was awarded eighteen first places out of a possible twenty-two places, and two second places. The Times was awarded first place, All Indiana Superior, in class one of the newspaper contest. The Totem and the Legend from North Side tied for first place in class one in the yearbook contest.

Individual newspaper awards were presented to Norman Buck and Richard Helm for average cover of sports; Richard Helm, sports column; Louis Bonsib, advertising; Helen Kelsey, reporting single event; James Sweet, feature story. Second places were awarded to James Sweet and Hugh Scott for an editorial and a humor column respectively. Paul Kennedy received an honorable mention for a cartoon.

The Times as a whole was awarded first places on the general quality of sports stories, of news writing, of reporting, of editorials, of art work, of advertising, of constructive work, of humor material, and of the make-up of the paper.

"European versus American Press" was the subject of the feature address given by Leland Stowe, noted author, lecturer, and foreign correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune.

Leland Stowe Speaks

"Foreign papers differ in appearance and in the material that composes them. The papers are smaller in width and in the number of pages. All of the stories are written in first person," stated Mr. Stowe.

"In the three great countries of Europe, Germany, Italy, and Russia, the press is dominated by dictators, and the newspapers are used as political machines and the reporters as tools to instruct the people what to do, think, and even how to vote," continued the speaker.

"Mussolini suppresses all freedom of press in Italy, destroying all news that is detrimental to himself or the government."

"In Germany reporters who are forced to have a license and work under a code, attend a meeting every morning at which they are told what news to print, which stories to feature and which to minimize. They are instructed to keep out of the newspapers anything that would weaken their power or military spirit either at home or abroad."

Foreign Press Corrupt

"The press is almost unbelievably corrupt in France. The reason for this is that the French people are so thrifty they will not buy the paper for more than two cents, and they do not advertise, so the papers must be supported by parties. Any publisher can be bribed to print a false story, leave out a story, or twist the news so as to give the wrong impression. The press laws were made after the formation of third republic, and in their determination to be free, the people made the laws too lax."

Mr. Stowe narrates some of the trials of foreign correspondents in Europe. Before the journalists in France obtained an agreement from Premier Laval to be treated the same as French correspondents in America, all stories which were harmful to the

Math Club Plans Halloween Party

November 1 Set As Party Date;
Mathematics Contests Held
At Recent Meetings in 142.

Helen Meyer gave a very interesting talk on "Mathematics in the Ancient World" at a recent meeting of the Junior Math Club. Mathematical charades were presented by Arno Schelper. Because an arithmetic contest was scheduled which had to be done on the blackboard, the meeting was held in Miss Paxton's room instead of the Voorhees Room.

Puzzles were presented by Edward Wallace; and a unique game, cent party, was played by the club members. Refreshments were served by members of the program committee which included Allen Garrison, Helen Meyer, Arno Schelper, Edward Wallace, Clarence Helmsing, Dorothy Richter, and Elvera Koop.

In place of the next regular meeting, an interesting Halloween party has been planned for November 3. The committee in charge of this party which will be held in the Greeley Room consists of Allen Garrison, chairman, assisted by Maurice Boyce, Jack Horn, Mary Jane Klomp, Mildred Mitchell, and Marion Roehrs.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider

Miss Susen Peck

Miss Erma Dochterman

Mr. Ora Davis

South Side will be well represented in the working committees of the 1936 session of the Northeastern Indiana Teacher's Convention when four members of the faculty will serve on committees. Mr. R. Nelson Snider will serve on the principals-superintendent's committee. Miss Susen Peck has been chosen as a member of the literary committee. Miss Erma Dochterman will serve on the art section.

Mr. Ora M. Davis was elected to a position on the science-mathematics committee.

War and Similar Slaughter

In the past decades of the machine era, man has created thousands of machines that in their place, and properly managed are a boon to mankind, but which, when out of place and poorly managed, become a most destructive force against their creators. Among the most important of these is the automobile. War is usually considered the greatest evil of modern civilization, but the automobile has destroyed more lives in our history than all our wars.

Death in many dangerous occupations is attributed to the fact that old-timers who know their work by habit reach the perilous stage where they begin to grow careless. Such is also the case with auto drivers, we believe.

Drivers who know it all fail to check their brakes, headlights, steering equipment, and tires. They pay no attention to the fact that eye and physical perfection for drivers is now regarded as essential for safe driving. Soon they fail to drive carefully. They then reach a point similar to the careless veteran trapeze artist.

Many men in such lines of work say that the intense fear they have for the danger in their work is the only thing which has kept them alive. If drivers would be reminded constantly of the danger in careless driving, they would certainly be more careful of their lives, and incidentally those of others.

Soldiers on the battlefield, if they want to live at all, take every precaution to protect themselves. Do drivers?

Fireside Scene

The old man sat in his easy chair, beslippered and comfortable. A smile lingered upon his face as he recalled far-off happy days. He saw himself trudging through the refreshing rain, skating upon the slippery mud, playing with old automobiles and all the other fascinating things upon his way. He warmed to the memory of the stimulating hustle to get to school in time, of the comforting heat of the halls and of the cheery noise of the jostling rabble.

His fingers twisted the silk fringes of his chair as though he were once again opening a combination lock. He glanced up at row upon row of expensive volumes and thought of one single armful of water-spotted, second-hand, well-marked books he once possessed. He would trade his whole magnificent library for them. He recalled the treacherous top shelf of his locker and remembered the sudden din and fluttering pages as the books showered down upon his embarrassed head. Gingerly he moved his hand to his pate as though he would again feel the tender spots.

He shuffled to his desk and opened a secret drawer. He lifted out a volume called "The Totem," also a parcel which he tenderly unwrapped. It was a faded green sweater with a big "S" in front. He wore that the day the Archers first beat Central's Tigers.

Habit, Not Circumstance

The things we do today are determined by the things we did yesterday, and will in turn determine our actions tomorrow. In other words, we are all creatures of good and bad habit, rather than of circumstances. Almost without exception, our actions are habitual, and yet we fail to realize this. A man bolts his food today because he has been in the habit of eating that way. He may make the most solemn resolutions, but he will find himself back in the same old rut.

The time for action is not tomorrow, the next day or minute, but right now. If you are out of the habit of giving your best, stop and think to make a better change, for the ideal day and the future will take care of themselves.

Carrying On

With Ray Ballweg, Jr.

As I sit here and wrack my weary brain for something that will add to the pleasure of my dear public, I have the feeling that I will be "put on the spot" if I don't stay within the margin of safety by refraining from unpleasant remarks. Well, I will do my best, so Mr. and Mrs. South Side, let's go to press! (Quote Walter Winchell.)

Do you, the citizens of South Side, realize the great talent for salesmanship that it now possesses? Here are just a few of the offers forced on us: Promise your Totem subscription to me. Have you subscribed to the Times? Don't forget to buy your ticket for the skating party from me. Want any school stationery?—And practically hundreds of additional offers.

Another thing, if you listen to the radio very closely at the advertising end, this is what you will hear: Drink Eno to prevent intestinal toxicity. Use Lady Esther for beauty. (Available at all ten-cent stores.) Palmolive for that school girl complexion. Are you the pimply face? Eat Fleischman's yeast. Have you tried Carter's little liver pills for that sour disposition? He's a railroad president, but he's a dental cripple. Even your best friends won't tell you. Drink Coca-Cola for the pause that refreshes. (Adv., Helen Anderson.)

Added sights: Mammals and papas trudging up and down our ramps like we used to do when we were freshmen, and trying to decipher the hieroglyphics of their Johnnys or Bettys. The expression of fear on their faces as they enter the next room to see if the next report could be any worse than the last. Secretly in their hearts they must be glad that it happens only once a year! Warren Zelt trying to talk to no less than six girls at once. And we have been wondering if he was a lady's man! Dignified seniors trying to get in on the last minute rush to get their photos taken. Curious freshmen putting a piece of gum on the end of a pencil and trying to get notes out of the mail box. Peggy Kilpatrick wearing Bill Korte's Sea Scout sweater. Bob Hall playing cop and robber with the neighborhood gang.

Ed Archer wants to know who the 11A is who wants to get back on the list of boy friends of Elvera Koop. Ask Albert Hoffman about his amputated tonsils. Did you know that Harriett Yapp has a weakness for "rack stars"? She even writes poems about them. Someone told me that Eleanor Vesey had definitely broken with Joe Bell and that he tried to get a date with our new little "sunbeam", Martha Zelt, but failed. And I know plenty of fellows who say that she's all right, and five hundred South Siders can't be wrong. It just occurred to me the other day that Mr. Murphy sounded very much like Major Bowes.

Here is a swell poem that I heard the other day:
I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree;
This may seem true to you and me
But not to the boys of the C. C. C.

Everyone seems to like Tom Hern, the new fellow who just came here from the far South. A new cute couple seem to be Bill Epmeier and Dorothy Durbin. Tom Jaenicke and Ann Winters don't seem to be hitting it off so well because of a recent fight. Don't you think that John Bex would be a good football player?—but he doesn't see it that way. "Lizzie" Faulkner thinks that Fred Thomas is sure swell, but Fred doesn't think so. So it's rumored that Theoren King and Vera Mosel are going together again; it seems that you can't keep them apart. Chuck Worden and Jean Bollman seem to have been enjoying each other's company of late. Jean also said that she was going to reform. This must have something to do with this affair.

So Gwen Horn tried to get a date with Bruce Hunt of Central for a recent dance, but had very little success. This is one of the few turn-downs that I have heard she has had. Ed Kruse is waiting for the right girl before he spends much more time on dates. Bob Haruff has turned bachelor again; as if he never wasn't. Did you ever see Norman Buck's football team when he wasn't there? Well, it sure is a mess (even when he is there). Well, I think that I have created enough damage, so I will have to quit carrying on, or I will be carried out. So, farewell, cruel world.

Who's Who in Archerland

We have been giving the boys all the limelight lately and haven't given the girls a chance. But never let it be said that the men around South Side could take the honors away from the women!

A senior girl seems to stand out prominently this week. She is a blond, with a classic profile, and snapping brown eyes.

Having a very radiant personality, "Theo" is an admirable public speaker and enjoys it immensely.

For the past month "Theo" has been chairman of the French Club, and at the last election was made president. She is worthy of this honor, being a very good French student.

This slim senior has been a member of Philo and Wranglers also this year and is very active in both. She spends her summers at Lake James and Indian Lake, where her main hobby is swimming.

Of course, Miss Schuenerberg is known as "Theo," but she was christened Theophilus Lois Theresa Schuenerberg. Can you imagine? But remember this, her heart is just as big as her name, or bigger.

It might be helpful if the movie producers of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" would run explanatory notes with all the speeches.

Our Gift From Rome

When we play a game in the stadium, it is South Side vs. opposing team. vs. is derived from the Latin, versus, meaning against.

Have you ever been in a play when the director has said to converse ad lib.? Did you have to ask what he meant? Ad lib. comes from the Latin words ad libitum, meaning at pleasure.

Historians say that the oldest book in the world is the Reg Veda, a book which was in existence, completed as it is now, 1500 years before the birth of Christ, and not the so-called "Book of the Dead" from Egypt, consisting of many disjointed fragments collected from many sources as far back as 6000 B. C.

In three hours they consumed seven hares, one seal, one bucketful of dried walrus meat, twelve ton-ounce cups of tea, and topped all this with two dozen large-sized biscuits.

Today people watch in amazement stream-lined trains streak past their homes at one hundred fifty miles per hour. We wonder what they think of this old-time steam engine! It was nothing for it to average 120 miles per hour. This engine made the record run in 1901 and was owned by the Plant System.

Alack and a lass! Didst arouse myself from much needed slumbers and prepared for dreaded departure to mine institution of higher or lower learning. Arrival heralded by the tinkling of the dreaded final bell. Oh, the pity of it all! Slipped through the much-deserted halls and related tale of late street car, automobile accident, failure of my trusted Big Ben to ring me into consciousness, and honored master's desertion of duty. But all to no avail. All pleadings and age-old tales of woe bore fruit in the form of the ever-conspicuous pink slip.

Wended weary way to home room where four ravishing solicitors didst pounce upon my frail bones without thought of my humble safety. Super salesmanship soon bore its fruits with my familiar scrawl upon four slips and my pockets relieved of a like number of two-bit pieces.

Off again upon my way to first class where after much stammering and shuffling I made known the tale of a much-exaggerated ache in the cranium. Said ache grossly increased when honored instructor refreshed my failing memory to the extent that my fragile carcass presented itself at the nearby movie house on the past evening. Sarcastical suggestion forwarded that attendance at flickers was made in a trance caused by terrible headache.

Off to second period where horrible monster in the form of much-feared test didst snatch out at me and leave face blank with amazement. Paper left in like condition. Stumbled on the steps on the incline and smarting sensation noticed on prominent proboscis. Scurried off to quietude of venerated hall of study where I felled all former records for slinging strip of paper by means of stretching rubber. Also didst cause myself considerable embarrassment and crimson-cheekedness by slumbering off into the land of dreams and depositing self on oily floor.

Mr. Verne Flint Gives Details Of Decimal Number System

Note: This is the second in a series of feature articles by South Side teachers.

By A. Verne Flint
Instructor in Mathematics

Nearly everyone in America is familiar with the numbers which are taught in every grade school in the land. Few, however, realize that the number system which they use daily took thousands of years for development. It is still in the process of development in one direction, that is, the larger numbers which do not admit of writing under the decimal system are being expressed in other ways. In expressing the distance to a star, for example, the number may be expressed as two times ten to the sixteenth power in units of light years. This type of expression is used to save time and space. Try writing the number, just expressed, in miles.

Characteristics Are Named
There are three important characteristics of the number system which we use that make it peculiar but at the same time useful. It has ten characters, including the zero. With these ten characters any number may be expressed, because a second important characteristic is that it is a place system of numbers. The third characteristic is found in the fact that it is a decimal system; i.e., each digit in a number is ten times as much as it would be if it were one place to the right of where it is.

It would be very interesting to know just where all the numerals originated and who were the original writers. Studies of this have not revealed the answers. Neither the origin of the numbers nor that of the zero have been determined. (The zero, which we do not rate as a number, but as a symbol for a condition, is an indispensable part of our number system. The place system requires it.) The Hindus are known to have used the zero as early as 876 of our era. It is likely that it appeared sometime before this, but no evidence is had in this respect. The symbols which the Hindus used found their way to Mesopotamia where they were somewhat modified. The theory which has it that the Arabs obtained their numerals from India, and then modified them, is the reason for the name Hindu-Arabic numerals.

Difficulty in Tracing
The oldest dated appearance of the Hindu-Arabic numerals in Europe is found in Spain, 976 A.D. Gerbert is the first European Scholar who is definitely known to have taught these numerals.

Probably one of the best methods of obtaining an appreciation of the number system which we use today is by comparing it with another which nearly everyone is somewhat familiar. Did you ever try multiplying 647 by 896 by the use of Roman numerals? How about computing a rate of interest in terms of Roman numerals? Try writing the national debt in Roman numerals.

The processes of multiplication and division were developed rather slowly with the number system which we use today. It is said that the following process of multiplication is in use at present by some of the Russian peasants. Take 49 times 28, for example. Proceed by halving 49 and doubling 28 and arrange thus—

28	56	112	224	448	896

Fractions are not considered in the halving. Now add the numbers in the lower row which are under odd numbers. Can you tell why this gives the correct product?

This is a very brief report on such an extensive subject and points out only a few of the things which we take to be especially significant. The pupil in mathematics learns to appreciate the contributions which have been made through the centuries to what has been termed the "queen of the sciences."

Oh these lines—We know, you don't have one, you just act natural. That's what you think. Everyone has a line; you just can't get away from it, even if you don't admit it. Maybe it's just something about the way you walk, talk, or laugh. If you want to be different, think of the line that you would like to have. Practice it when you're by yourself, then start using it. If you're the languid type, be a button-hole-twister. Now be consistent, don't forget and giggle or get excited and start hollering around. Wear "frilly" feminine clothes, high heel shoes, and look perfect at all times. Better practice walking a little for this one; you shouldn't get around too fast.

Keep smiling and keep your spirits up, if you want to be the opposite or vivacious type. Have your hair cut short and don't keep it curled too well. It's most convenient to be this type, because you can do almost anything you want to and get away with it.

Editor, the Times,
I have been reading your paper four years now, and as far as I can see, the same people are always mentioned in all columns. Is it possible that in a school of such size, nearly two thousand students, that only twenty-five or thirty people do everything, go everywhere, and see everything; and the other 1,970 students do nothing or little?

I must admit that the school paper, one of the best in the world, is good. It would have to be to have such a record as this has.

I personally know of many students who have spent some time in various parts of the country and adjoining countries, who would be only too glad to express their travels so that others, not so fortunate, may read and learn, or enjoy.

Of course, maybe I am just better posted than your reporters, or maybe just more interested.

nately known to have taught these numerals.

Printing which came into use in the fifteenth century has tended to make the writing of the numerals uniform. Before this time the manuscripts were written and the writing of the various individuals made differences in the characters used. Consider some of the threes and fives which you see on the blackboards at present and you will understand the handicap of tracing the development of numbers before the days of the printing press.

Archers-Redskins In Important Grid Clash Here Saturday

Game To Make Or Ruin Green In City Series

Win or Tie Will Keep South Side in the Running for City Grid Championship.

Erratic North Side Favored In Battle

Northern Eleven Has Mediocre Record, But Can Rise To Brilliant Heights.

Having successfully hurdled the first barrier in their annual race for the city grid title, the South Side's Archers will meet North Side's Redskins Saturday in the first real test of the Archers' strength against a city opponent. The game may make or break the chances of the Green for the crown. The game is scheduled to be played at the South Side stadium, beginning at 2 o'clock.

Redskins Show Competition
In meeting the Redskins, the Archers will be bucking up against a team that has had a poor season as a whole, but which has shown occasional flashes of brilliance. The North Side outfit has won three games, lost three, and tied one. Two weeks ago they rose to undreamed-of heights to hold to a scoreless tie one of the strongest eleven Central's Tigers have been able to present in several years. Last week the Red, playing in a comparatively unimportant game, lost to Decatur by a one-point margin.

The Indians have apparently been pointed for both Central and South Side; they play best when the most depends on the outcome. Surely the outcome of no contest could be more important to the Red than Saturday's contest. A victory will assure them of at least a share in their first city crown. A tie will leave them in the running with their final standing depending on the Blue-Green battle.

Against such a mediocre outfit capable of inspired play, South Side will send a team that has improved slowly but surely since the start of the season. Against a fair line and a flashy backfield, the Archers will present a heavy, tough line and a mediocre backfield. To match a fast running attack, the Green will have an offensive consisting of comparatively few straight plays, a large number of more complicated plays, and an effective pass attack, which has proved the downfall of most of the Archer victims.

Redskins Have Advantage
The Green will enter the fracas with a record of three wins, a loss, and a tie. Perhaps they will be gaining momentum from their city tilt last Saturday. The Redskins have the advantage of a brief respite from city competition.

South Side will have everything to win, everything to lose. North Side will have everything to gain, nothing to lose. The Green will be battling to stay in the running for their fourth straight city crown, a record achieved only by Central's Tigers. A win or a tie will keep the Green in the running; a loss will rob them of their chances.

North Side will have all the incentive to win that any team could possibly have. They will be fighting for a chance at their first city title. They will be attempting to gain their first grid victory over a South Side team. They will be attempting to get back in the win column after their defeat at the hands of Decatur last week.

South Side's starting lineup will probably consist of Ellenwood and Don Faux at ends, Makey and Nye at tackles, Wilson and Bennett at guards, Ostermeyer at center, Meyers or Woodhull at quarter, Feichter or Parmelee at left half, Benz or Kruse at right half, and Lee at full.

The officials will be Middlesworth, Bauer, and Geller.

G.A.A. Will Give Halloween Party

Affair Is Planned for Friday; Committees Named; Marjorie Cartwright Is General Head.

At the first G. A. A. executive meeting of the year, plans were made and committees were appointed for the annual Halloween party. It is to be held in the cafeteria on Friday night, October 25, at 7:30 p. m. Those girls who are talented in singing, dancing, playing, or acting, are asked to notify Miss Patterson, Miss Smith, or Marjorie Cartwright for a tryout. As in other years, the party will begin with a grand march. During the march, the people wearing the funniest, prettiest, cutest, and most original costumes will be chosen. Prizes will be awarded to these people.

The program for the party is in charge of Marjorie Cartwright. She has to assist her: Janet Hartman, Ruth Adler, and Adelaide Scheele. Leona Menze is in charge of the refreshments. Her committee includes Margaret Ruhl, Mary Ann Park, Virginia Menze, and Mary Ellen Blauvelt. Care of the decorations was given to Barbara Raymond. Assisting her are Imogene Fabian, Betty Eisenbacher, and Dorothy Franke. Cornstalks, branches, leaves, and pumpkins will be used to decorate the cafeteria. Marjorie Hower and Enita Snively are co-chairmen of the door and ticket committee. Assisting them are Betty Harnish and Winifred Locker. The tickets, which are a dime, will be sold in the gym office by members of the committee.

Central Catholic Team Is Ready for Garrett

Central Catholic will attempt to defeat the Garrett eleven at Garrett this Friday, as the Tiger eleven clash with the Wabash gridders here the same evening.

Central has been undefeated, and also holds the honor of keeping all opposition from their goal stripe. The Wabash team also is undefeated, which proves this clash will be a hard-fought battle. Both teams are going through an intensive training in order that they may each capture the clash. The Irish also are going through stiff training in order that they may hold their opponents in check.

Decatur Team Is 13-12 Victor Over Redskins

Yellow Jackets Take Close Decision Over North Side In Hard Fight October 16.

Decatur High School's gridders continued to display their jinx over the North Side Redskins in their annual battle last Wednesday afternoon on the Decatur gridiron.

The Yellow Jackets scored their second consecutive victory over North Side in downing the Redskins by a score of 13 to 12. North Side scored on the last play of the game and narrowly missed knotting the score when the attempt at conversion went wide.

With only seconds to play, Shumm caught a long pass and was tackled on the five-yard line. North Side went on to push the ball across but missed tying the game up when the conversion went wide. The kick was made after the final gun ended the game.

Decatur scored shortly after the start of the second half when they opened a drive on their own thirty-five yard line, went down the field to score on a pass to Banning who raced across the last white line to score. The line plunge for the extra point failed.

A few minutes later, Walther went wild to score on a forty-five yard run. Receiving a lateral, Hurst raced around his left end for the point after touchdown, which eventually won the game. Decatur was on the defensive for the remainder of the game.

Bad plays on the part of Decatur gave North Side its first score. After getting the ball on Decatur's ten-yard line, as the result of a poor punt, Poorman passed to Shumm for the touchdown. The attempted place kick was blocked.

Decatur, it will be noted from past experience, plays inspired ball when up against a Fort Wayne team. They beat the Redskins last year and held the strong Archer team to a scoreless tie. They emerged victorious over Fort Wayne's Fighting Irish by a 7-6 score and tied Central 0-0.

Archer Eleven Overwhelms Irish Squad By 25-7 Score

South Side successfully inaugurated its city series campaign last Saturday when the Archers scored their initial triumph over a city opponent by romping to a 25-7 victory over a badly beaten Central Catholic eleven.

The Archers held the upper hand throughout, and it was only after they had run up a four-touchdown lead that Central Catholic was able to cross the South Side goal line. The Central Catholic line reminded one throughout the game of a sieve, and the South Side forward wall did most of its playing in the Central Catholic backfield.

Jim Ellenwood again stole the show, twice driving in to block punts and gaining consistently on his end around plays, as well. In the ground-gaining department Ed Kruse proved himself the most adept. Kruse carried the ball a good portion of the time, and time and again he would drive through gaping holes in the Central Catholic forward wall for gains of ten or fifteen yards. The statistics clearly show the South Siders' superiority, as they rang up sixteen first downs to Central Catholic's five, and punched through the Central Catholic line for a total of 193 yards from scrimmage while the Irish were amassing forty-five.

Scoring Done Early
South Side lost little time in scoring. After the two teams had punted back and forth a few times the South Side steam roller shifted into gear and began pushing a fighting but helpless Irish team down the field. With Feichter and Kruse carrying the ball and Parmelee tossing passes, South Side moved from their own forty-four yard line to the Irish fifteen, where the drive was capped off when Parmelee tossed a pass to Ellenwood who caught it on his knees in the end zone for the initial South Side points. Lee's attempted conversion dropped wide of the bars and South Side led 6-0.

Central Catholic managed to stave off the Archers off until early in the second quarter, when the Irish line again proved its worthiness as a sieve. Ellenwood sifted through and blocked Romary's punt and Nye recovered for South Side on the Central Catholic seven-yard line. Benz, hitting low and hard, cracked through on the first play for a touchdown. Again Lee misinterpreted the stance of the goal posts and his attempted conversion

Latin Students Here Present Novel Drama

Seventeen South Siders Take Parts in "Latin Grammar Speaks" at Teachers' Meet

A Latin play, called "Latin Grammar Speaks," was presented under the direction of Miss Gertrude Oppelt, at the Little Art Theatre on Thursday, October 17, for the benefit of the Latin section of the Northeastern Indiana Teachers' Conference.

Seventeen Latin students from South Side took part in this play. The characters were as follows:

Margery Brown, a freshman in high school, Joan Bonis; Latin Grammar, James Dorn; First Declension, Claudine Wells; Second Declension, masculine, Dick Keyser; Second Declension, neuter, Bill Schaefer; Third Declension, John Thackeray; Fourth Declension, Bob Harroff; Nominative Case, Rosemary Lehman; Genitive Case, June Haeger; Dative Case, Fay Bechtold; Accusative Case, Jane Loomis; Ablative Case, Ruth Berning; Prepositions, John Leach, Robert Bunner, Robert Jones; Vocative Case, LeVerne DeKeel.

The play takes place in the library of Margery Brown's home. She is fretting over her Latin assignment, which seems idiotic to her. She has just fallen asleep over her Latin, when she begins to dream about Latin Grammar and all his children who are the five declensions and six cases in Latin.

Latin Grammar and his family have been badly mistreated by Margery during the school months. Margery does not dislike them any more than they dislike her. In turn each member of Latin Grammar's family gives his identifying speech, each one making Margery feel more friendly toward them.

Latin More Appreciated
By the time each has recited, Margery has become a friend of each member of Latin Grammar's family and finds that they are not so difficult to learn after all.

After the dream is over Margery awakens. She sees her Latin text lying before her, and she realizes that Latin is not so hard as she thought it to be.

As the curtain closes, Margery is eyeing her Latin book lovingly and eagerly she starts to study her Latin. The costumes in this play were carried out in the Roman fashion of the time of Julius Caesar.

The players are very grateful to the following people who helped in making the play a success:

Miss Rehorth, who assisted in the planning of the costumes.

LaDonna Gerber, who helped in the making of the Roman costumes.

Jim Geiger, who assisted in arranging the stage.

Kenneth Scott, who aided in arranging the lighting for the play.

Miss Ley had two of her art students paint the signs worn by the various declensions and cases; those students were Frank Glusenkamp and Harry Wittwer.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

The following pupils in Mr. Gould's botany 1 classes made 95 percent or above in a recent test on leaves: Charlotte Bell, 100; Vera Hilgeman, 100; Jane McElwain, 100; Marjory Scheu-nan, 99; Martha Newell, 99; LaVon Cook, 98; Constance Haag, 98; Betty Muntzinger, 98; Dorothy Herbst, 97; Robert Firestone, 97; Aldena Dialer, 97; Dorothy Volz, 97; Jeanette Hardisty, 96; Betty Harnish, 96; Marjory Funderberg, 96; Rowena Bevington, 95; Betty Lou Lindenberg, 95; Marie Mitchell, 95; Ruth Fritz, 95; David Rendleman, 95; Virginia Baumgartner, 95.

Mr. Gould's botany classes are now studying flowers in the laboratory and also in the recitation periods. His advanced classes are beginning to study toadstools and mushrooms.

Four of Miss Hodgson's geometry 1 pupils have made perfect scores on recent tests. They are Helen Cox, Lee Ninde, Lester Yoder, and Bob Bosely.

The U. S. history 1 classes of Mr. McClure are now studying the Revolutionary War. The general history classes are taking up the study of the early Italians.

Those who made the highest grades in the series of tests on factoring in Miss Thorne's algebra 2 classes are Joe Bex, Mary Ellen Blauvelt, Robert Penimore, Martha Kessler, Edward Reeves, Frieda Schubert, Ruth Baade, Phyllis Geller, Margaret Gross, Henry Velkoff, Leon Yaggy.

In Miss Kiefer's English 8 class the following people recently gave reports on the Puritan Age in English literature: Wilma Butler, Mary Michaels, and LeRoy Rusher.

The following 9B's who have made A grades on three paragraph themes and outlines in Miss Kiefer's classes are: June Houseworth, Velma Lehman, Margaret Lois Rea, Peggy Bacon, Betty Daniels, Mary Lee Himes.

Mr. A. Verne Flint's mathematics classes are now studying graphs. James Hiatt turned in one of the best graphs, which showed the cost of the World War. Other graphs covered safety, fire prevention, births, deaths, and population, among other subjects.

I wonder where Peggy Kilpatrick's mind was the other day in history class when she said that Patrick Henry's famous saying was "Give me liberty or give me love."

Pupils in Miss Paxton's algebra 2 class the first period who received perfect scores on the last test are: Betty Broderick, Betty Eisenacher, Junior Ellinger, Sarle Hoffstetter, Oscar Miller, Dorothy Piefer, and Julia Alice Pressler.

Miss Schmidt's German III classes had a test on the principal parts of irregular verbs. The following pupils made a grade of 100 percent: Harriet Basford, Verna Holtman, Elizabeth Neff, Geneva Shearer and Dorothy Young.

In Miss Paxton's algebra 2 class, period four, Lois Daves made the only perfect score, and Esther Lewis, Helen Neese, Clyde Nusbbaum, Sarah Smeltzer, Delma Stier, and Glennia Stirlen made scores between 90 and 100.

Miss Kelly's English 7 class is beginning to study The Book of Modern Plays.

Ruth Gerber, program chairman of Miss Kelly's home room, is planning the work on the pamphlets of professions.

French Club To Start Programs About Paris

The first program on Paris will be given at the French Club meeting to be held today in the Voorhees Room. As Paris is the chief city in France, several programs will be devoted to its study.

The program for this meeting will be of great interest to all those who are interested in dress designing. Maria Haven will give a talk on "Paris as the Fashion Center of the World." Talks will also be given on the manufacture of perfumes, cosmetics, automobiles, gloves, and on the other great industries for which Paris is noted.

A little French playlet written by Theo Schuereberg and Lillian Gable will be given. The characters are as follows: the clerk in a department store, Violet Garton; the customer, Maria Haven.

The club is having a membership drive, and all students who are planning to become members are urged to attend this meeting.

Further plans for the skating party to be held on November 30, will be discussed at this time.

Radio Club Hears Roy Roadcap Talk

Demonstration and Discussion Also Held; Next Meeting Is To Take Place on October 28.

An interesting meeting of the South Side Radio Club was held last Monday in room 96, featuring a talk and demonstration by Roy Roadcap, and a general discussion on a radio topic by the members. This club is a recent addition to the list of South Side clubs, and many boys are showing a great interest in the subject of the radio, sixteen members being present at the last meeting. The business of the meeting included the reading of the minutes by Herman Rutkowski, secretary, and the deciding by the members to get a transmitter, which is to be loaned by one of the members or built new, for the station which the club recently acquired.

The frequency of the transmitter will be either 3500 to 3900 kilocycles, or 7000 to 7300 kilocycles. The receiver for the station has been procured, and the power will be from 50 to 100 watts input. Complete details of the new station will be furnished later.

The meeting was then turned over to the program chairman, and Roy Roadcap gave his talk: "How Radio Tubes Work, and Their Characteristics from the Earliest to the Latest." The talk was accompanied by a demonstration on the same subject. A discussion was then held by the club on the new windmill chargers.

The next meeting will be held Monday, October 28, in room 96. Another interesting meeting has been planned, and all boys who are interested in radio are urged to attend.

Mr. Snider Is Named To N. E. I. T. A. Position

The Northeastern Indiana Teachers' Association which met last week, Thursday and Friday, honored Mr. Snider by appointing him a member of one of their various committees. The committee to which Mr. Snider was appointed is known as the principals'-superintendents' section. Several other teachers from South Side and other schools in the city were also honored.

government were held up or something taken from them.

Slang Fools Spies
One way to make the stories prompt is to telephone them to the newspaper offices. On all of the telephone lines the government usually has employees who listen in and catch the conversation on records which are used as evidence if the journalist is ever brought to trial.

"The only way to fool these employees is by the use of American slang," stated the speaker. At the time of a revolution one reporter telephoned home, "The town is as quiet as a Sunday afternoon, nerts. Six boxes bumped off in family row." The spies naturally thought this was all right and let it pass.

All foreign correspondents are followed by spies who report all of their actions, and anyone who spreads propaganda or gives misinformation cannot expect to stay.

Mr. Stowe said that he believes that foreign news has improved since the war because it is more interesting. During the speech the feature speaker told of interesting experiences with foreign royalty.

Welcomes, Responses Given

At the opening session of the convention in the college auditorium, the meeting was called to order by Harry A. May, executive secretary, and the invocation was given by Dr. Robert H. Kent. This was followed by musical selections by Dr. L. B. Murdoch of Franklin College and the welcome address by Dr. W. G. Spencer, president of Franklin College. Responses were given by George Schaefer, president of the I. H. S. P. A., and Mrs. Marietta S. Miller, president of the I. J. T. A. A. The other officers present were Robert Suckaw of Franklin, vice-president; and Ann Abbott of South Side, secretary.

At the convocation Friday morning, Herbert R. Hill, assistant managing editor of the Indianapolis News, gave an address in "All Work and Some Play." He compared journalism to pyramid with a broad bottom but not much room at the top. He pictured the life of a journalist as hard, and thrilling without much pay and lots of excitement.

Newspaper and yearbook instruction classes, the taking of the convention picture, the convention banquet at which the awards were presented, and the convention dance done to the music of Gene Kellam's orchestra were events of the second day.

Preceding the dance, Mr. C. Walter McCarty, managing editor of the Indianapolis News, gave an address on "Hoosiers in Journalism." He presented the names and interesting facts about prominent journalists who were born in Indiana or received their training here.

On Saturday round-table discussions were held at which the delegates exchanged ideas on yearbook and newspaper problems.

Symposium Conducted

The activities of the convention were concluded with a symposium conducted by the Indianapolis Star. The six members of the staff who were presented are Claude A. Mahoney, Mary E. Bostwick, Corbin Patrick, Maurice Early, Kathryn Pickett, and F. E. Raschig.

Miss Madeline Guillian, of Rushville, was elected president of the Indiana Journalistic Teachers' Advisers' Association; Mrs. Marietta Miller of Connersville, vice-president; and Miss Dorothy Robertson, Bloomington, was elected secretary of the organization.

Approximately three hundred delegates from the journalism departments of high schools all over Indiana attended the convention.

Plans Complete For Philo Ark Dance Nov. 9

Tickets Are 50c for Couples,
35c for Stag Bids; Mary
Hobrock Ticket Chairman

Dick Shack's Band Scheduled To Play

Initiation of Thirty-Three Members Is Held Monday;
White Team Gives Party.

Plans for the annual fall dance of the Philatelic Literary Society to be given Saturday, November 9, the day of the Central-South Side football game, are completed and work already started on them under the direction of Ruth Adler, president of the club.

The club has secured Dick Shack's orchestra to play for the dance from 8 until 12 o'clock. Tickets for the dance are on sale and may be purchased from Mary Martha Hobrock, ticket chairman, or any Philatelic member. The price is fifty cents a couple or thirty-five cents stag.

Attendance Awards Planned

The theme of the dance is Archer's Ark and the decorations will be carried out in accordance. The decorations are in charge of Maxine Borchert and Sonia Velkoff. Any girls who are not on the decorating committee, but who would like to help, should come to Miss Smeltzley's room any evening after school and an assignment will be given to them.

Other chairmen for the dance are Jane Loomis, publicity; Rose Mary Chappell, orchestra; and Helen Anderson, program.

Ruth Adler announced that there would be an attendance prize and other prizes given away at the dance. Some specialty numbers will also be features of the dance.

Prizes Are Given

At a regular meeting of Philo held Monday evening, October 28, in the Greeley Room, there was an initiation of new members followed by a party given by the White Team, who lost in the membership drive. Thirty-three new members took part in the initiation which was under the direction of Verna Holtman, Rosemary Chappell, and Helen Anderson.

A prize for the cleverest poem containing the words witch and Halloween was won by Ruth Fritz. For guessing to the nearest number the seeds in a pumpkin Betty Anne Scharf took the prize.

Games Are Played

Many other interesting games were played: bobbing for apples, Nosesy, Passing the Cat, The Three Fates, Hunt, and Pills.

Refreshments were served and the meeting was adjourned.

The next Philo meeting will be held Monday, November 11. This meeting will consist of a review of the New York group in literature by Ann Abbott, Helen Doenges, and Selma Liff. A play, "Seven To One" will also be given at this meeting by the Philatelic Thespians. The Thespians will hold their regular practice today in room 68 at 3:25.

Junior-Math Society Plans Halloween Party

Ghosts, goblins, and pumpkin faces will be seen in the Greeley room, Friday, November 1, for on that night the Junior-Math Club will hold their Halloween party. All members of the club who have paid their dues are invited to attend the party which starts at 7:30 o'clock. Members are to sign up for the party in room 146 by Friday noon. If they have not paid their dues they are to do this at the time they sign up.

The committee in charge of this meeting is comprised of Allen Garrison, Maurice Boyce, Jack Horn, Mildred Mitchell, Marion Roehers, and Mary Jane Klomp.

Mrs. Snider Relates Trials of Being Married To Principal

By Leona Menze

After long-endured years of silence, the suffering wife at last comes into her own! We know our teachers by the front that they present to us. But beneath the apparent smoothness is, undoubtedly, the gentle touch of a woman. It is said, in history, that beneath every big event, a woman was usually lurking.

This starts the series of tell-tale trials and tribulations suffered by the favored few wives. High upon our list rests the name of R. Nelson Snider, and associating it the equally well known one of Mrs. Snider. Opportunity presented itself for disclosure at the So-Si-Y faculty tea.

Over tinkle of punch cups and crackle of candy corn, and the gales of laughter following replies, some choice bits of information were obtained. Mr. Snider, himself, could not be lured from the scene, and after several questions, I was wondering whom I was really interviewing.

Many Telephone Calls

It seems that special trials come to the wife of a principal. Take the phone calls for instance, enough are received to accommodate a whole telephone exchange. One of the most unusual and bothersome, by the way, was a phone call received at about 1:30 in the morning. It seems that a student had just arrived home from a party and wanted to know who had won the basketball game.

Mr. Snider, after a mad rush to the phone, in a very controlled voice said simply, "I don't know yet." Meals, too, are interrupted and irregular, especially during the basketball season.

Miss Smeltzley Is Speaker On Russia

Potluck Is Planned for Future;
Joan Bonsib, Betty Wilson,
Phyllis Culver Head Program.

A very interesting talk about Miss Smeltzley's tour of Russia was given by her during the Meterite meeting which was held on Tuesday, October 29. She told about the living conditions in Russia and the life of the young boys and girls of Russia. Miss Smeltzley also told about her trip on the way over to Russia. She traveled on the S.S. Reliance, and gave a description of the life of the passengers and employees of this ship. Her talk was accompanied by an exhibit of articles she purchased in Russia.

During the meeting the Meterite potluck, which is to be held soon, was discussed. Various committees were named to help in making this party a success. The committees are as follows:

Program committee: Joan Bonsib, chairman; Lois Rea, and Margaret Null; menu committee, Betty Lee Wilson, chairman; Betty Neeb, and Marjorie Rapp; decoration committee, Phyllis Culver, chairman; Martha Zeit, and Mary Lee Hines.

The Meterite girls are planning to give a Thanksgiving basket to some needy family. A committee to organize this was named: Margaret Ruckel, chairman; Helen Banks, and June Enoch.

The date of the Meterite skating party is uncertain as yet.

Librarians Review Novel By Walpole

JoAnne Smith Foretells Club's Fortunes; Selma Liff, Hazel
Kuttler Are Also on Program.

"I gaze into my crystal ball,
To see what the future holds for you-all."

JoAnne Smith, and then she continued to foretell the destinies of the members of the South Side Library Club at their monthly meeting on Tuesday, October 22. The fortunes were in poetry written by Maxine Mariotte and Maxine Borchert.

A reading of "A Murderer's Confession" by Edgar Allan Poe was given by Selma Liff. Hazel Kuttler reviewed Hugh Walpole's "The Inquisitor" which was in keeping with the theme for the year, better fiction. Games, such as charades, were played and dancing was accompanied on the piano by JoAnne Smith, Selma Liff, and Bob Gargett, alternately. After a short business meeting conducted by Martha Franz, president of the organization, refreshments of pop corn, apples, and cider were served.

Good Neighbor Fund Campaign Started Today

Community Chest Is Sponsor; Students Asked To Help; Bueshing Chairman

By taking an interest in the eighteen member agencies of the Community Chest, high school students may thus do their share toward the annual drive which opens today and closes November 7.

Mr. Charles H. Bueshing, president of the Lincoln National Bank and general chairman of the campaign, gives the following message to high school students, "I know that many students in the public schools see at first hand the work that is being done for Fort Wayne boys and girls through the Community Chest. We hope that students will discuss the Chest in their homes so that more people may know of the good that is being done."

Goal Higher Than Before

The goal for this year's drive is $198,500 which is $10,000 more than last year's goal. The extra amount will go toward one year's care for 96 orphans who were not taken care of during this year.

No one will try to figure out just what each one's share of this amount is but if everybody is neighborly and generous, the goal will probably be reached.

Members Benefit

The American Red Cross, Associated Catholic Charities, Boy Scouts of America, College Club Day Nursery, Dental Clinic, Family Service Bureau, Girl Scouts, Hospital and Home Service, Humane Society, Jewish Federation, Lutheran Social Service League, Pixley Child Welfare, Rescue Home and Mission, Salvation Army, Visiting Nurse League, Wheatley Center, Workers for the Blind, and Y. W. C. A. are the members who benefit from the chest drive.

U.S.A. Club Hems Towels For Guild

Ruth Gerber Program Head;
Girls Participate in Games;
Club Invited To Hear Doctor.

As one of their many services for the year, U. S. A. members hemmed towels for the Needlework Guild at their meeting held last Thursday in the Greeley Room.

While the girls were sewing, the program committee, of which Ruth Gerber was chairman, entertained them with music and stories. Ethel Koch opened the program with a piano solo. "Hopefulness" was the subject of a reading given by Betty Daniels. A sextet composed of Thelma Phifer, Dorothy Phifer, Beth Ellen Chadwick, Thelma Connatt, and Rosella Caehlor entertained the group with several songs. Anna Lou Kowalski told some jokes.

A comic reading about the Dionne quintuplets, "The Quin Train of Calender" was given by Virginia Blass. After the program everybody took part in several games. Ruth Gerber was assisted by Peggy Bacon, Virginia Blass, Beverly Ann Griffith, and Jane Bradley.

During the business meeting the members filled out cards with information which will be needed at the Y. W. C. A. office. An announcement was made about a lecture given by a lady who has been a medical doctor in the open jungles of Africa. She will speak at the Y. W. C. A. on November 13. All Girl Reserves are invited to hear her speak.

Staff Advances Plans For Big Special Issue

Plans for the National Education Week issue of the Times were revealed at an important staff meeting held Monday after school.

Members of the major staff made announcements about their various departments with stress put upon getting things in on time.

Miss Harvey then made several announcements about the radio in the Times room, neatness and cleanliness of the room, journalism classes, promptness in getting stories in, and the big issue. She also said that so far she is very well pleased with the Times work this year.

Virginia Vesey, the general manager of the big issue, made several announcements about it. In concluding the meeting, Bryce Minier stressed the importance of making this big issue a success.

Miss Fiedler Heads Advanced Math Club

A new Math Club is to be developed in the near future with Miss Fiedler as the adviser. The new club is intended for students who are planning to continue with math in college.

This fall, the work will be confined to algebra.

To be eligible for the club, the students must have had algebra 3 and 4, or at least they must be taking algebra 3.

The purpose of the club this term is to give drill in the fundamentals in advanced work in algebra, to create greater interest in the drill work by having contests between groups of students, and to spend some time on special topics for which there is no time in regular classroom work.

The club will meet once a week in room 16. Everyone who is interested in and eligible for this club should see Miss Fiedler anytime this week.

Tea Dance Friday; Music by Students

Launching for the first time an orchestra composed of South Siders, Dale Burgener will furnish the music for the second tea dance of the semester in the Greeley room under the direction of Miss Gertrude Oppelt.

The members are Bob Phillips, alto saxophone; Elmer Webb, drums; Bob Harruff, piano; Arnold Metsch, trombone; Dale Burgener, violin; Frank Elder, alto saxophone; William Nickerson, trumpet; Lester Yoder, bass; and Raymond Errsman, tenor saxophone. The feature of the program will be the songs "Cheek To Cheek," and "You Are My Lucky Star," by Bob Phillips. Bernadette Dygert, Virginia Vesey, Harriet Yapp, and Rosemary Lehman compose the committee in charge of the dance, and Miss Edith Grove and Miss Martha Pittenger will act as chaperones. The admission price will be ten cents.

DeMolays Plan Annual Dance For November

Harold Harris Is Appointed Chairman; To Be Held at Shrine Valencia Gardens.

Plans for the annual DeMolay Fall Sports Dance are now nearing completion. This affair is one of the outstanding dances of the year. The dance will be held in the Valencia Gardens on November 9. Dancing will continue from 10 o'clock to 1:30 o'clock with a half-hour intermission from 12 o'clock to 12:30.

The local DeMolay chapter has been very fortunate in obtaining Bud and His Buddies to play for their dance. This band comes direct from Chicago where they have just completed an extended engagement. They have built up a great popularity in Chicago through their radio broadcasting.

Harold Harris, South Side alumnus, is general chairman for the dance. Assisting him with plans are Dale Perkins, Dick Helm, Robert Doctor, Paul Randall, LaMar Shedron, William Fries, Bernard Whitacre, Lewis Adler, Charles Gable, and Dick Paul.

Sub-committees for the dance are Tickets, Dick Helm and Lewis Adler; orchestra, Dick Paul, Dale Perkins, and Charles Gable; publicity, Bernard Whitacre; hall, LaMar Shedron, Paul Randall, and William Fries; favors, Robert Doctor and Bernard Whitacre. Tickets for the dance may be obtained at the Y. W. C. A. Bill Fries, John Jackson, Bill Hebermehl, Chuck Stone, Bill Hoblet, and John Jackson.

Minier To Attend Rotary Luncheon

Times General Manager Chosen
By Mr. Snider To Be Junior
Member of Business Group.

Bryce Minier, general manager of the Times staff, has been chosen by Mr. Snider to be in November the junior member of the Rotary Club from South Side. He will attend the Monday noon luncheon for Rotary Club members for one month beginning November 4. He will sit with members representing the vocation or profession in which he is interested.

Each month a different South Side student, to be chosen on an honorary basis, will be given this opportunity. Principals of other high schools in the city will decide what student will be chosen from their particular schools.

Besides being general manager of the Times staff, Bryce is president of 1500 Club and sergeant-at-arms of Social Science.

South Side Building Improvements Are Planned For Future

"The planned improvements and additions to South Side will not materialize for at least two years; and since the money and plans are not provided for, the work will probably be delayed even longer than that period," so stated Mr. Carl J. Carlson, supervisor of school buildings and grounds.

Present Plans Given

The present plans call for the construction of several additional classrooms, to be built on a second floor plan; an auditorium which would cover the space now occupied by the study hall and large girls' and boys' locker rooms; and a new study hall and locker rooms on the proposed second floor. The large stage would also be used for a girls' gymnasium, according to the plans. Improvements to the present classrooms are also stipulated in the plans.

Steadily increasing enrollments at South Side during the past several years have necessitated the improvements. Superintendent of Schools Mr. Merle J. Abbott introduced the new five-year building program for the city school system, which is making possible the necessary improvements.

Roof Is Repaired

Extensive repairing to the roof of the school has been going on for several weeks under the newly-instituted plan. The work is being done by Dahm Brothers Roofing Company.

At the most recent meeting of the school board at which the latest plans were announced, a monthly receipt total of over five hundred dollars was announced for the school's cafeteria, which for the past two years has been under the direction of Miss Lucy Mellen. Delivan F. Parks, another teacher here, is the bookkeeper for the cafeteria.

Art Club Plans Arts Afternoon November 13

Sonia Velkoff Named General
Chairman; Kenneth Scott Heads Art Group.

Plans are under way for the Art Club's big fall feature, "The Arts Afternoon" to be presented on Wednesday, November 13, in the Greeley Room. At a special meeting held in room 77 last Thursday, the committees for the affair were announced.

Sonia Velkoff was appointed general chairman. Kenneth Scott, assisted by Bill Scott, has charge of the arts committee. This includes the hanging of the exhibit to be furnished by the Little Art Colony of Stillwater, Minnesota, and the arranging of a plastic art demonstration by some well known Fort Wayne artist.

Betty Roose Assists

Betty Roose is chairman of the dance committee and Marjorie Dancer is the chairman of the music committee. Kenneth Scott, assisted by a member of the Student Players' Club, will furnish the drama for the affair. The Student Art Activities will be under the direction of Janet Fisher. This will include several demonstrations.

Other Chairmen Named

The chairman of the refreshment committee is Elizabeth Linhart, and she will be assisted by Frances Craig and Marie Mitchell. George Anna Jacobs heads the appointments committee, and is aided by Ann Hull and Helen Woods.

Chairman of the serving committee is Ann Hull, and her assistants are Judy Kroeff and Maxine Roth, while Virginia Vesey and Rosemary Chappell comprise the hospitality committee. Publicity for the occasion is under the direction of Selma Liff, and she is assisted by Norma Miller and Hollis Logue. The house committee is headed by Delbert Leininger, and he is assisted by Joe Faulkner.

Concert by Band Has New Feature

Wainwright Gives Interesting Demonstration of Flute at Year's First Music Program.

The first music concert of the year, featuring the school band, was presented last Tuesday in the gymnasium. The band seemed full of pep, and its spirited playing was much enjoyed by the students, faculty, and parents who were present at the program. The band opened the program with a piece led by Mr. Wainwright. Then another selection, Caprice, was played.

Solo and Duet

Special features of the concert were a cornet solo by George Glem with the band accompanying him, and a flute duet by Margaret Null and George Strahlen, accompanied by Helen Flaig on the harp. Two popular numbers were "In a Little Gypsy Tea Room" and "Moonlight and Roses." An accordion sextette played the former accompanied by the band, and a saxophone quartet and cornet quartet played the latter.

"Irish Melodies" Played

An interesting demonstration was given by Mr. Wainwright on the flute. He said that the flute dated back many hundreds of years and is probably the oldest instrument. It is also the most useful instrument. It was used extensively by the Greeks as an essential part of their children's education. The first flute was about half as big as the modern one, had only one scale, and was able to play in only one key. A German flute maker invented the flute we have today, working fifteen years to perfect it. It has three different octaves, or registers, and is second only to the violin for playing arpeggios, runs, and trills. The flute duet was then given to illustrate Mr. Wainwright's demonstration. Other selections by the band were: "Irish Melodies," a selection from the Second Symphony of Beethoven, and a part of the "Chocolate Soldier." The concert was concluded by the singing of the school song.

Music, Games Feature German Club Meeting

Two piano solos, given by Don Vetter, were featured at the meeting of the German Club, Wednesday, October 23. He played two of Beethoven's well known compositions, "Für Elise" and "Minuet in G." After the program, the game, "Seltsame Glieder," or "Strange Parts of the Body" was played. Following this, a vocabulary match was held in which Eric Beyer placed first and Frieda Schubert, second. Eric was rewarded with a Chinese mask, and Frieda with a yellow hat.

Plans for the next meeting are being made by the program committee, which consists of Verna Holtman, Geneva Schaefer, Don Vetter. Although these plans for the next meeting are incomplete, an outside speaker will probably talk to the club.

Students To Present Latin Drama Today

The play "Latin Grammar Speaks" will be given in the study hall the sixth period Thursday. Tickets for the play will be sold to the Latin pupils in their Latin classes. Anyone else who desires to see the play must purchase a ticket from the Latin teachers in rooms 30, 34, 36 or 56 before the beginning of the sixth period. The admission is 5 cents. The presentation of a ticket excuses a pupil from his sixth period class when the bell taps at 1:40.

General Chairman

Sonia Velkoff

Sonia Velkoff has been appointed general chairman of the Art Club's big fall feature, "The Arts Afternoon." She announced her sub-committees this week.

Math-Science Has Halloween Party

Selma Liff Given Costume Prize;
Program Composed of Games;
Ruth Adler General Head.

Recently the paid members of the Math-Science Club enjoyed their annual Halloween Party in the Greeley Room.

First of all, everybody was lead by a ghost through the morgue which was really the teachers' room with a few corpses and wierd sounds and lighting effects in it.

Selma Liff, dressed in a hand-embroidered dress, patent leather boots, and a silk shawl for her head, was awarded a prize for the best costume.

Several games, such as balancing an apple on one's head, jig-saw puzzles made of the cut-up Times, wink, and jumping over chairs when blindfolded were played. In the last game Louis Bonsib, John Bex, and Jim Dern showed unusual ability.

After the refreshments, which consisted of pumpkin pie, apples, doughnuts, and jelly beans, the radio provided music for dancing.

Ruth Adler, general chairman of the party, was assisted by the following committees: entertainment, Dorothy Crabb; Dick Helm, Bob Harruff, Mildred Foellinger, Helen Anderson, Ruth Garrison, and Betty Wolf; games, Jim Sweet, Betty Wolf, Lois Wyneken, Ruth Garrison, and Bryce Minier.

"Going To Salem" Next Travel Topic

Mary Michaels Is in Charge of Program; Thelma Kuttler To Give Speech on Witchcraft.

Mary Michaels, program chairman of the Travel Club, has planned the following program for the club's next meeting, to be held Wednesday, October 30.

The subject of this meeting will be "Going to Salem." Miss McCloskey will give a short talk about modern Salem. Charles Hauch will give some interesting points concerning the origin of Salem. A speech on the witchcraft, for which Salem is known, will be given by Thelma Kuttler.

These three talks will bring out the idea of Halloween, and games for the occasion will be played. Refreshments will afterwards be served.

Mary Michaels also stated that on November 15 an evening party will be given. All members are invited to come.

Dave Steger Is Ill

Dave Steger, a prominent senior, is taking a rest cure at his home. He will return to school in January. Dave is not only being missed by his closest friends, but he is also being missed as a yell leader and as president of Wranglers.

Everyone wishes him a speedy recovery and hopes to see him back soon.

Few Students Fully Appreciate Value of Our School Cafeteria

Everyone in South Side knows about the cafeteria and takes it for granted, but he does not realize how much work and how many people it takes to make the cafeteria function.

The cafeteria is a very vital part of the school. It not only offers balanced foods at the lowest possible prices, but the cafeteria staff assist at club parties, banquets, and dances.

The main purpose of the cafeteria is to please the members of South Side. Miss Lucy Mellen, who manages the cafeteria, plans the menus according to the accepted high school menu offered to students. The students have their choice of balanced foods. In this list of balanced foods must be included hot foods and cold foods. The prices are reasonable in relation to the current market.

Meals Carefully Planned

With that in mind, meals are planned so that they will always offer soup, a meat dish, a meat substitute, two to three vegetables, three to four salads, three to four desserts, breads of various kinds, sandwiches, and candy, which is energy food.

To carry out such a foods offering each day, orders must be made carefully. The general orders are like the following: There is one large fruit and vegetable order each week. There are fifteen to twenty pounds of cabbage ordered each week, one basket of carrots, sixteen dozen radishes, twelve to fifteen bunches of celery, and one hundred pounds of potatoes. Each day two and one-half cases, consisting of half pints of milk are ordered. One

Philatelic Club To Give Skate At Bell's Rink

John Jackson, Dorothy Aldridge, Dalton McAlister, Jane Loomis in Charge.

Charge Ten Cents For Skaters' Bus

Miss Smeltzley Speaks on Russian Stamps, Shows
Her Collection at Meeting.

At their regular meeting yesterday, the Philatelic Society made definite plans for their skating party, which is the first one to be given this year by a South Side club, tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock at Bell's skating rink.

Homer Miller, president of the club, had previously appointed the committees for this skating party. They have made extensive plans. Tickets are selling for 25 cents each and may be bought from any member of the ticket committee or in the front hall today and tomorrow during the fifth period.

Those who have no way to get to the rink may go out in the skaters' bus for 10 cents round trip. Attendance prizes will be awarded the holder of the lucky tickets. The prizes are two boxes of candy.

Chaperones Listed

Mr. and Mrs. Elina Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Davis, Miss Mary Crowe, and Miss Martha Pittenger will act as chaperones for the group.

Committees in charge of the various things are: Tickets, John Jackson, chairman; Emily Lepper, and Reginald Gerig; attendance prize, Dorothy Aldridge; transportation, Dalton McAlister, chairman; Donald Schaefer, and Fisher Rehner; publicity, Jane Loomis, chairman; Rosemary Shea, Marjorie Craig, Marion Bell, and Allen Tremper.

At this meeting Miss Eleanor Smeltzley gave a talk on Russian Stamps. She showed a collection of the stamps and a U. S. S. R. flag from that country. In her second collection of stamps, Miss Smeltzley exhibited stamps of the Viking countries. The committee in charge of the meeting was John Jackson, chairman; Emily Lepper, Jane Loomis, and Helen Kelsey.

Teachers Speak At Mothers' Tea

Rothert, Wainwright, Voorhees,
Murphy, and E. Crowe Talk;
Mrs. Stumpf Presides At Tea.

Talks were given by South Side teachers at the Sophomore Mothers' tea, Monday, October 28. Mr. Maurice Murphy spoke along the Social Science field. Mr. Martin Rothert, who is head of all foreign languages and is teacher of Latin at South Side, talked on Languages. Mr. Herbert Voorhees gave a talk on the Sciences. Miss Rowena Harvey, teacher of journalism and faculty adviser for the South Side Times and the North Side Northerner, talked on Journalism. Mr. Jack Wainwright talked on Music, and Miss Edith Crowe on Health. Mrs. Graham Russell stressed the idea of friendliness in the Parent-Teacher Association.

The tea was in charge of Mrs. Stumpf. She was assisted by Mrs. Buesking, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Mone-smith, Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Close, and Mrs. Wolf.

Wo-Ho-Ma To Hear Of Scheumann-Heink

"The Life of Madame Scheumann-Heink" will be the topic of discussion at the Wo-Ho-Ma meeting today. Dorothy Tobianski will be the principal speaker. Recordings of Madame Scheumann-Heink's singing will also be played.

In addition to this there will be games and a short business meeting.

Immortality The True Justice

One of the most criticized things of the American people is their sense of values. European writers have clamoured against America as a nation which has set up no standards of culture to judge the entertainment world. This is only too true, we believe.

When an artist or a struggling opera singer is impoverished from need of public appreciation, and the next day two prize fighters whose only talent is their ability to maul their opponents, receive thousands of dollars for a brawl of a few moments' duration, we wonder if we are just the people true Americans should be. Movie stars get huge salaries, while groups of Shakespearean actors go bankrupt. Radio entertainers get big pay envelopes while learned men such as college professors find it hard to gain decent wages. Politicians grab thousands of dollars from white collar jobs while statesmen are out of jobs because they were defeated in the last election. Baseball stars realize a few grand for a season of playing and talented musicians' salaries are barely sustaining.

These facts make us wonder. Do the American people have good judgment or clear perception? Is this the land the men in the past sang their praises to?

However, one need not despair, for the world to some degree has always been that way and probably always will. Flippant nonsense lives lavishly and genius goes begging.

One item that called our attention to these facts was the death of a great Dutch painter. The total sum he received for his works during his lifetime was one hundred dollars. His paintings are now valued at about one million dollars.

As in life, so in high school. The student who slaves away unnoticed today will be rewarded in later life. The person who makes the greatest show and neglects his opportunities will be selling shoes or clerking in the ten-cent store tomorrow.

That is a fact. If you doubt us, ask your parents which of their classmates have become prosperous, which unknowns, the studios or the showy students?

The real appreciation is in how long a person and his work are remembered. That is the true justice.

Are We Ever Fast?

A recent Times feature pondered over what Rip Van Winkle would think of modern slang if he were to return today.

Somewhat similar is the story of a visiting Chinaman. He remarked to an American about the hither-thither complex of the American race. He was sitting in a New York subway train when a man rushed in and sat down. When the man came to his station, he jumped up and ran out. Surely, thought the Chinaman, something very important must be going on, so, out of curiosity, he followed the man. The man walked very fast, but the Chinaman managed to keep up with him through cars and crowds. With a final spurt of speed, the man went into a park and sat down to read a newspaper.

Even in South Side one can notice manifestations of speed. We jump up when the bell rings. We trample on each other's pedal extremities. When lunch time comes, we rush home, bolt our food, sit down ten minutes, and get back with two minutes to spare.

We prepare for a big test an hour before it comes off, read our point books the day before they're due, and skip through our every-day work like an aimless breeze. We are always in such a hurry to get finished that we don't do it all.

Perhaps our early ancestors would stare in amazement today. They would see trains, autos, and people speed by. They would marvel at the almost unbelievable progress since their day.

But we are inclined to think that they would also break out into a good hearty laugh at our aimless wandering.

Brass Tacks:

"Give me the money that has been spent in war, and I will clothe every man, woman and child in an attire of which kings and queens would be proud. I will build a schoolhouse in every valley over the whole earth. I will crown every hillside with a place of worship consecrated to the gospel of peace."—Charles Sumner.

Carrying On

With Sonia Felkoff

It is said by the real up-and-ups that individuality is the by-word in the world today. Nobody can exactly define the word. To be individual means to be different, and to be different means to be individual, and—oh, well, you get the general idea. Anyway, I like the sound of the word. A wise guy just told me that if I said that word again, he'd be individual and throw something. Without a doubt, he will be disappointed, because I'm a terrible catch.

To proceed—since my main and only idea in writing this column is to be individual, I'll change my identity. No, not a G-woman nor Greta Garbo. I'd rather be Sherlock Holmes. (His pipe is so cute.) I've got a Watson, too. Well, here is what we've dug up while diligently snooping around in other people's business. (Watson has a black eye—he peeked into the wrong keyhole.)

Talk about being different—Barbara Uran wins the prize. Imagine walking down the main street of Lafayette, Indiana, in a formal and eating cream puffs. Someone just inquired if I knew why Dick Geiser could not rate Claudine Wells. He should worry. Mark Antony was 32 before he even met Cleopatra. Bernadette Dygert certainly has loud tastes. Now it's a yell leader from North Side who escorts her hither and thither. Someone, I had an idea that by the time most of us reached the graceful old age of a senior, we had outgrown note-writing. But Fred Thomas has ideas of his own. Watson, dear boy, uncovered a real find—a bunch of super-love letters all tied up in pink ribbons, etc., written by our Freddy to M. McCoy. Goodness! I'm not a Walter Winchell or anything, but I still think that this week, orchids or sweetpeas, or what have you, should go to Vera Crise for being such a lovely model at Groth's. You can't tell me that clothes make only the man!

A slight interruption—Pardon, but it was Watson—He just found out that Mr. Snider was Gracie Allen's uncle (not the one that's living—the one that's married) and he couldn't stand the shock. Somebody just told me that all my senior pictures looked like me except the serious one—that one I had my mouth closed! Is there no justice? A little bird rushed up to whisper something in my ear about Newell and Jack Eisner, but he little bird stuttered and I didn't get all the story. The Englishmen usually are thought of as kind of dumb and slow but this time the English have one on Bill Fries—he was asked why the English were called a "spoon-fed" nation and he decided it was because they ate soup. I wonder if he thought they ate soup with forks. Gee, I nearly forgot—our sweet Max Roth has consented—yes, she and Walt Jerguson are going steady.

Seen about town—Millie Foellinger at Job's Daughters with a smooth looking guy from out-of-town...Selma Liff with Dick Stein, who is no less than Fred Astaire's double when it comes to dancing...Barbara Arney really going with Dick Orr...Maxine Greiner not being able to keep her dates straight...The "Three Musketeers" not being about to find the first one...Roseann Certia actually speaking to someone...Bob Gargett trying to jump up to touch the clock in the front hall...Bob Locke playing poker (Tish)...Mr. Gilbert giving a couple of girls a drink of water out of a test tube...Dick Dochterman and Morgan Harrison actually tripping the light fantastic...One of the Makey boys giving the ladies a break...Bonsib making Totem posters (still, yet, and always)...Joan Lohman with Dick Strasser floating along in the rear...Everybody trying to get out of the same door of the gym at the end of the fifth period...Fred Ostermeyer deciding that going steady isn't what it's cracked up to be. Perhaps he should inquire how Helen Goehinger and James Cunningham get along so well.

I got trouble and plenty of it—another half-page to write and Watson has forgotten where he put his glasses. Maybe Betty Meigs could lend him a pair. (Ad.) Well, no glasses, no Watson, no dirt. I guess I'll have to change my profession and become a crystal gazer instead.

Ah, woe is me and all my brethren (the resourceful youths who are delving into the unknown realms of chemistry) are very terribly disillusioned and it's all Mr. Gilbert's fault. Pink lemonade is not lemons at all—it is made of some citric acid crystals and water and a lot of funny little bugs to make it pink. That is the last straw! I'm going to become a hermit.

Who's Who in Archerland

We practically had to run to catch up with the lengthy strides of this popular senior. We easily recognized her by the glint of carrot coloring in her curly hair. When we finally reached her, she turned, said "Hi ya" and whizzed into the Totem office. We stood contemplating whether to knock down the door or meekly await this busy girl outside. We were just about to do the former, when she barged out the door again and almost knocked us down. Seeing that we really wished a little conversation with her, she willingly stopped running around and gave us some information.

"The reason I didn't pay much attention to you at first is because I'm trying to get some 'dope' for the Totem."

You see, Mary Martha is an assistant circulation manager of the Totem and the freshman editor. Besides being active on the Totem, Miss Hobrock is very active in clubwork. In the past, she has been the sergeant-at-arms of Philo, the president of Meterites, and the treasurer of German Club. She is now an active member of Philo, being program chairman; Art Club, Student Players, Marionette, and Social Science.

Mary Martha is very tall, slim, good-looking, and amiable.

She usually answers to the monikers "Marnie" or "Martie."

The Thundering Herd

Drawn by Paul Kennedy

Thru The Winger

Frieda Bolinger has two guys, Paul Christian and Chuck Worden, in her hair, with Vivian Blum ready to scalp her.

Mickey Mitchell's street of dreams is Harrison Boulevard, and the dream-girl isn't even in high school yet. Rita Tournet thinks about Bob Firestone aptly. Please, Gwen Horn, don't twist your curls in second period class unless you're prepared to buy a nice padded cell for Jangled Nerves Jr. who can't stand it. Grace Nelson, the girl Bob Adams and Manuel Rothberg raved about last semester, now is all concerned about James Geiger. Bill Nickerson can't make up his mind whether it's LaVon Cook or Maryann Mayland, but George Glenn is ready to take care of Maryann. Phil Green, please notice that Bernadette Shearer is even ready to tie your shoelaces for you. Margery Rohrer has gone on to bigger and better things. Although Betty is the Crum of cake in Bill Gaul's sweet tooth, Marjorie Schelper thinks she can be a toothpick. Having Bob Bligh for a big brother doesn't seem to help Jane with Jim Ellenwood. Bob Campbell will be left in the soup if he doesn't hurry and beat Bob Martin to Peg Westphall. Martha Nolan sees plenty in Bob Zeig that nobody else can see. Stewart has a True-lone on Betty Abbott's hair.

Vera Jane Wells thinks that Leonard Weinraub is surely all right, and we hope that he thinks the same of her. What's this brawl that we have been hearing about Thelma Court and Junior Chidester, and Junior knocked her out? Maybe we are going back to cave-man tactics. Why is it that a new freshman whose name is Bernadette Shearer has the name of a certain South Side yell leader written much larger than the rest on her jacket? It seems that Eldora Buesking and Burt Hardendorf have broken up, and we consider it a shame that this had to happen. George Duwaldt is still very sweet on Barbara Lou Noble. Maybe if he got up enough courage he could do something about it. Dick Geiger is still going strong with Almeta Stotlar, and there is no sign of any kind of a break-up. Why can't Bob Lee give Imogene Wright a break once in a while? When Bob Nelson of '35 goes to see Ginny Gardner, and the other boyfriend is there, she gives him a dime, and tells him to go and get a soda.

Birdies vs. Love

There was a time when every mind in high school was directed upon the deeper things in life, And not to dirt deflected.

There was a time (we hate to think). When pupils liked to ponder Upon the mysteries of life And not the girl friend yonder.

There was a time, in Mother's day. When they made much ado About the birdies in the woods, About the wild flowers, too.

But now we talk of nothing but The dates of one another. The woods, the birdies do not rate Before the high school lover.

Secrets to Seventeens

Men are less advanced and not nearly so deceiving about their lines as the members of the weaker sex. Masculine wiles are not set off in distinct types and sometimes they get tangled up.

The "wise guy" line is the most prominent among men who are clever enough to remember or memorize the latest joke and wise cracks and have presence of mind enough to use them in the right places to make the girls giggle. Anyone using this line should remember to keep it clever and not try to be such a smarty that he gets silly.

Anyone who has a large, brutish appearance should use the tough line. Let girls run around after you and when they catch you act indifferent toward them. Don't fall in love; that can be the death of this perfectly good line.

Every woman wants a masterful man, but most boys haven't sense enough to get that way. Tell your girl friend where to go and what to do. Your thrill will act as if she doesn't like it, but she really loves it.

If you're serious and just can't make a fool out of yourself then turn intellectual. Know all about it and why. Dazzle your girl friend with big words and wise sayings. They don't need to be always correct, because the girls usually just act as if they're listening, anyway.

Uniquities

By Dean Brahm

(Editor's Note: Obeah is the religion practiced in Jamaica. Instead of casting the spell directly on the person as in Voodooism, the spell is cast on a drink. The victim is either tricked or forced into drinking the potent, and the results are almost instantaneous.)

The old Jamaican laid out her collection of herbs. Even the pet monkey was silent as the circle of herbs and plants grew into shape. This was being made into bad medicine to, kill the tribal king. Then after his death her son would be king. The woman picked up a bunch of herbs and dipped them into a pot of boiling water.

Death was in the air! The monkey seemed to sense it as he crouched on his shelf, neither moving nor chattering. The Jamaican now put the wet articles into a bag. Carefully she drained the liquid off into a hollow shell. This done, she drew another bag and commenced spreading more herbs on the floor. This time she chanted softly during the laying out process. The monkey seemed in better spirits, too, for he chattered merrily from his perch on the shelf. The reason was obvious; this was a good charm, designed to bring health to the drinker. The Jamaican was making this for herself, to give strength to carry out her plans. Although different ingredients were used, the same procedure was followed as in making the death charm. This liquid was also poured into a hollow shell and carefully set at the opposite end of the shelf. This being done, the sorceress left the hut. The monkey, left to himself, looked first into one shell, then the other. Finally he curled up and went to sleep.

At sunset, the aged woman returned. Now was the time to work the magic. She reached for the shell containing the good magic. Slowly the Jamaican raised it to her lips and drank deeply. One horrible shriek escaped from her lips as she fell to the floor, never to rise again. The monkey had reversed the positions of the shells.

George Washington died the last hour of the day, the last day of the last week of the last month of the last year of the century.

A remarkable clock owned by a Hindoo prince is, for perfection and ingenuity, the strangest piece of mechanism in the world. The making of this clock is among the lost arts, although other clocks in various parts of the world approach it in ingenuity and skill of workmanship. Near the dial of this timepiece is a gong hung on poles, while underneath, scattered on the base plate of the clock, is a pile of skulls, ribs, arms, and legs, the whole number of bones in the pile being equal to the number of bones in twelve human skeletons. When the hands of the clock indicate the hour of one, the number of bones needed to form a complete human skeleton come together with a snap. By some mechanical contrivance the skeleton springs up to the gong and strikes one blow. This finished, it returns to the pile and falls to pieces. When 2 o'clock comes, two skeletons get up and strike, while at noon and midnight the entire heap springs up in the shape of twelve skeletons and strikes, each one after the other a blow on the gong, and then falls to pieces as before.

Parents Approve Campaign For Safer Pupil Driving

During the past few weeks, articles and editorials emphasizing careful driving have appeared here. In this way, The South Side Times is sponsoring a safety campaign of its own, and judging comments we have heard, most people favor it. If, by your whole-hearted support, someone is saved from injury or death, the campaign will have been very worth while.

In a previous article, students were asked for their opinions. This time the parents themselves have commented. Mr. Abbott and Mr. Snider were also questioned. Each person was asked his opinion of the campaign, of high school driving, of how the accident toll could be stopped, of whether school officials should control high school driving, and of who or what should be held responsible for most accidents.

Officials Give Opinions

Mr. Abbott: Splendid. I think that in order to make good drivers they should be instructed, but they should also be restrained from reckless driving. The schools have certainly done their part. We have reduced the number of children's accidents by the school patrol and in other ways. Thoughtless high school drivers should be restricted if they are not amenable to suggestion. The school is not responsible, for it has been doing its part.

Mr. Snider: A fine idea. The majority of young people are better drivers than older folks, but there are some who are much more careless. The toll could be stopped by being very careful in checking the mechanics of the cars. Drivers should have thorough knowledge about the laws of safety and observe them voluntarily. Yes. Steps must be taken to revoke the permits of poor drivers. Carelessness and violation of rules should be held responsible.

Parents Express Ideas

Mrs. Rea, president of the P.T. A. and mother of Sally: A very good idea. I don't think it can be overdone. As a general rule the high school drivers are to be commended on their driving. There are a few, however, who like to show off. A penalty of revoking the drivers' licenses for poor driving would help. I have always approved of students getting permits to drive to school, because the principal usually learns which pupils are dependable. Carelessness and liquor used by drivers should be held responsible.

Mrs. Crabb, mother of Dorothy and Julia: I think that's fine. It all depends on the different drivers. Drivers should have more consideration for the other fellow. I believe it's a good thing to control high school driving. The reckless drivers are responsible.

Mr. Bacon, father of Bob: I think it's all right. They are good drivers as a rule. Others would be better with proper instruction and more experience. Stricter enforcement of laws by police on bad drivers. I think it's a very good idea to control high school driving. In some cases the fast driving of the drivers is responsible.

Our Gift From Rome

We have all been warned many times about the investing, saving, and spending of money; but I wonder if we all know that our English word "money" is derived from the Latin word "monere" meaning "to warn." All of the names of the months come from Roman names, for example, "January" comes from "Janus," a Roman "god of beginnings." Therefore, it is most fitting that the month of January should begin the year.

Two "Archers" on Selling Staff at Suedhoff & Butler Store; Visit 'em!

Bud Lee, Fullback

Fred Ostermeyer, Center

Every Saturday morning and occasionally after school hours when work doesn't interfere with football practice you'll find two of our popular football players doing selling duty at the Suedhoff & Butler Men's Wear Store, 1011 Calhoun street. Most of their time is spent in the shirt and tie sections although they do have a good line of chatter on other merchandise such as corduroy pants, sweaters and what not. Drop in on the boys some Saturday morning and "chew the fat" about what's what in the line of sports... they'll be glad to see you and it won't be necessary to make a purchase.

You Can Fool Some People, But Don't Include Teachers

Gather around, my children, and you shall hear, What classroom antics you need to fear.

Stop! Look! Listen! If it so happens that you are one of those classroom or hall-traveler bluffers, for our faculty has its own ideas when it comes to detecting antics which shout, "There is a bluffer."

Dorothy Benner's knowledge about the modern high school student's vocabulary aids her in recognizing the bluffer's speech, for a sudden, astoundingly well-chosen vocabulary, and a hesitation in the pronunciation of words mark that person, Miss Benner finds. The moral is that those desiring to be successful bluffers should all cultivate huge vocabularies so that even copied speeches would sound natural.

Many Are the Traps
However, "Ya can't win" if you talk all around and about the point, even with plenty of voice and a good vocabulary for this characteristic belongs solely to ye olde bluffer. Better be careful about reporting on books you have not read, for one student got caught in a net by attempting to answer a question asked when, purposefully on the part of Miss Benner, the question had nothing to do with the book! Yes, many are the traps for the bluffer.

Mr. Murphy resorts to a few well-pointed questions and judges by the conciseness by which they are answered. Concise statements contain depth, he maintains.

Mr. Briner's Work
Although Mr. Briner's work is of a very different nature from teaching English or economics, he too deals with bluffers, to a certain extent. He finds those individuals always ready with an excuse for everything that comes up. Mr. Parks relies quite a bit on answers in black and white. He's "from Missouri" and most bluffers have a hard time getting by those people. Mr. Whelan, though he isn't from Missouri, believes, too, in well-put questions.

Students Have Various Ways Of Spending Their Vacation

It seems that during the short vacation which we recently had, the pupils of South Side filled their time doing many different things, many of which are quite odd ways in which to spend the days of vacation.

When asked by a curious reporter what they did during the vacation, the students gave various answers. They are as follows:
Earl Creamer—I stayed home and played horseshoes, just for the sake of luck.
Betty Gross—I went fishing. Better ask somebody else what I caught.
Margaret Green and Lida Mae Miller—We fell into a gravel pit. The sign said no trespassing, but we just laughed and laughed because we knew the gravel pit had been moved to the next state.
Bill Korte—I took Peg to the show. There was a hot time in the old town that night.
Mollie Hoff and Jean Bollman—She and I went fishing. We fished right off some cliffs; But all that we could even rate was a big net full of sniffs—In short—we almost got pneumonia.

Pupils' Text Books Set Forth Their Artistic, Poetic Ability

Dull lectures, ambitious artists, and would-be poets all lead indirectly, of course, to the destruction and depreciation of much-neglected text books. Seeming indifference to patient teachers always seems to express itself in the decoration, writing, or otherwise, of the books which claim us as prisoners for four years of our young lives.

In thumbing through an already much-thumbed textbook, one is quite capable of understanding that it has passed through five or six generations. Some students, the less artistic ones, resort to parallel lines and zig-zagged strokes. Some, the more artistic ones, seem delighted to go into detail on current sights, and others simply express their feelings in verse.

Drawings, Verses Seen
Lacy, flowery valentines seem to stand out quite predominately in the parade of books. The various figure-heads labeled with such affectionate terms as, Chicago Ike, Hayseed Hal, Maggie Jiggs, and the modern young man also stand out in line. The books are sometimes used as a handy "memo" for names and telephone numbers.

Ah, but verse! That is where the South Side pupils advance to the front. Civics books seem to have such things as this in them: "In case of flood, stand on this—cause it will al-

Don't Try To Trisect An Angle Because It Can Not Be Done

Trisecting of any angle is a problem which people are still attempting to solve, although it has been proven impossible many times. No doubt that some students noticed the supposedly correct proof and construction which appeared in some of the leading Sunday newspapers on September 1.

Solution Again Disproved
When Miss Adelaide Fiedler, head of the mathematics department at South Side, was asked to look over this proof, she said that she felt like the instructors of the Paris Academy in 1775. At that time they had to pass a resolution that no more solutions would be examined by officials since it had been definitely proved impossible.
Just for the sake of showing that it was wrong, Mr. Verne Flint, mathematics teacher here, used the proof given in the newspaper on a right angle. With very little trouble he proved that it could be done only on certain angles and that it was not a general proof.

Marionettes Give Halloween Party

Annual Affair Is in Form of Wiener Roast; Violet Garton Is Chairman of Arrangements

Marionette Club's annual Halloween party, in the form of a wiener roast, was held last Friday evening after school at Foster Park.

Games and contests preceded the supper, arrangements for which were in charge of Violet Garton, chairman, Doreen Russell, Norman Budde, and John Bex.

The next meeting of the club will be held this evening in the workshop. Plans for the annual play will be furthered. The play committee, which is composed of Tom Sellers, chairman, Lorraine Meyer, Lillian Sherbondy, Eliza Bess Lucas, and Mary Anne Park, will give a report on the work it has completed.

Work on the puppets for the show will probably be started after the play selection has been discussed. The committee in charge of supplies is composed of Ruth Eysenberg, Laverne Boyce, and Ruth Berning.

Hollywood Glamour Appeals to Students Who Like Its Stars

Glamorous Hollywood! All of South Side's students seem to have favorite stars from that metropolis of the movie industry. Everyone, including well-known football players as well as industrious soda-jerkers, finds that one star stands far above the rest in his estimation. The choice of the outstanding player, however, is greatly varied. Some students like the swash-buckling and loquacious manners of Jimmy Cagney, while some, mostly freshmen, prefer the infantile antics of cute little Baby Leroy.

Pupils Tell Favorites
The answers of some students to the question, "Who is your favorite movie star and why?" follow:

Jim Ellenwood: I like Jimmy Cagney because of the parts he plays. Joe E. Brown is good, too.
George Kempf: I like all the blondes and brunettes, especially blondes.
Grace Collins and Beulah Horstmyer: We both like Fred Astaire 'cause he cute and he's got personality plus.
Harry Ertel: Jimmy Cagney; because I liked G-Men.
Herman Makey, Jr.: I like Jean Harlow.
Earl Engelbrecht: I like Jimmy Durante, hotcha, cha.
A cute little freshman who wouldn't tell his name: I think Baby Leroy is perfectly grand.

Stepin Fetcher Scores
"Chuck" Worden: Stepin Fetchit, he's funny.
Roy Ellingwood: Clark Gable, he looks so much like me. (Does he like himself?)
Marian Roehrs: Katherine Hepburn, because she is a good actress.
Jim Phelps: Eleanor Powell. She's got class.
Charles Hart: Mae West, because I know a girl that looks just like her.
Warren Zelt: Dick Powell, because I like him and his acting.
Betty Schultz: Robert Taylor, because I think he is the acme of masculinity.
Virginia Greiner: Katherine Hepburn. I don't know exactly why.

122 Weeds Collected By Botany Student; Many Are Unknown

When Paula Gerding, outstanding weed-gatherer of the botany 1 classes with 122 specimens, was asked how she got so many weeds, she replied, "I just picked all of the plants that looked like weeds to me." While gathering weeds, she had many humorous experiences. Paula also was in an embarrassing situation when she came upon an old swimming hole, being used at the time, at her aunt's grove at Cedar Creek. At another time she had to wait about ten minutes for a pesky bee to get off of a rare weed which she couldn't pull up.

Cold Bath—Almost
When asked if she had had any more experiences beside the above, Paula said that she almost had a ducking in the St. Mary's River while looking for weeds at Foster Park. The next question asked was which weeds were the hardest to get. To this she responded, "Mullein thistle, and the burdock were hardest to get, while the milkweed was the messiest. The mullein was hard because it was big, and the root was so long. The stickers on the thistle and burdock made them difficult to get because one had to be so careful of hurting oneself."

Hunts Three Days
It took Paula about three days to get her collection of 122 weeds. Out of this number, twenty-seven are unknown. Her rarest ones were sunace, true and false Solomon's seal, and fireweed.

When asked if she would know the names of all of the weeds she picked if she would see them again, she replied, "I couldn't remember all of them, because 122 is quite a few, but I would be able to name more of them than I could have before I took botany." She also said she was glad she didn't have to gather any more weeds, because she was beginning to gather them in her sleep.

Rooms in South Part Of Building Receive Shiny, New Shades

Faithful shades have hung in the south part of the school building since the erection of the school. Finally, they have been replaced by nice, shiny new ones. The favored rooms are 72, 74, 76, 78, 80, 82, and the library. Other rooms are 174, 176, and 178. The teachers' rest rooms also received new shades.

To proceed farther up another incline, we discover 138, 140, 142, 144, and 146 also have rid themselves of old, torn and stained shades. The shades were put up by Mr. Pinkham, who does all the shade work for the schools. Last year, all the rooms along Calhoun Street were blessed with new shades. It is to be hoped that next year the job may be finished throughout the school.

Miss Frances Perkins, Human, Friendly, Impresses Reporter

By Joe Bex

"Pupils are taught much too much about the problems of government by inactive persons and on a theoretical basis. They should be told about such problems, but not asked to give their own opinions," stated Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, backstage of the Shrine Auditorium after her talk Tuesday night in answer to a question we asked her.

However, getting to her for an interview, was in itself quite a problem. After listening to a splendid speech given by our lady secretary emphasizing the fact that labor and capital are more cooperative than is generally supposed, we gathered our wraps together and hurried toward the stage, only to be met by an usher who firmly denied us entrance by that way. We then took a side aisle and picked our way up a stairway guarded by another usher to whom we explained that we were reporters desiring to see Miss Perkins. Without waiting for a reply, we brushed past and finally got on the stage.

Answers Many Questions
Several feet ahead of us stood the only woman ever to become a member of a president's cabinet. The pleasant smile on her face immediately dismissed all our fears of weak knees and other such things. We walked bravely up to her and asked her several questions.

Then prominent people of Fort Wayne began crowding around asking other questions, giving congratulations on the fine speech, and expressing opinions on subjects. Answers were given to all kinds of questions ranging from: "What do you think of the Child Labor amendment?" to the explanation of the 59-cent dollar. Stuff dignified atmosphere was forgotten. Conversation flowed freely and everyone was having an excellent time. We were so interested in the conversation of the group that we forgot to continue our interview.

Appearance Is Impressive
Our picture of Miss Perkins was greatly altered after having seen her. She was not the frail, extremely shy, and sensitive, and somewhat melancholy-looking person we thought her to be. She is a strong, well-built, forceful, but cheerful person who looks like she would accomplish things.

Smiling, unoffended by the rudeness of a group, she seemed one of us. She was outstanding, of course, but she didn't carry it too far. She is all truly great persons do, struck everyone as being very human and friendly.

Her personality seemed to win friends at a glance. One could easily understand why irate labor leaders after a few minutes talk with her, came out pacified. That pleasant personality, with her years of experience in labor quarrels, her understanding of labor and capital, and her excellent common sense form a certainly successful combination.

Enjoys Making Speeches
Once during the talk with the group, a lady came up to Miss Perkins and said that she enjoyed her speech even though she was of a different party. A tenseness gripped everyone for we all knew that politics would spoil the pleasure of the group. Miss Perkins said with a smile, "You people certainly take your politics seriously in the West." The situation was saved and everyone felt at ease once more.

After a few more precious minutes of conversation with us, she started to walk toward her dressing room and with a pleasant goodbye she was gone. We looked around. Had we been really talking to a member of the president's cabinet? It certainly did seem like it. Weren't I and my fellow reporter supposed to get an interview? Why didn't we ask her all the list of questions we had made out?

The answer to it all after a little consideration we both knew. We were having such a good time we had forgotten about it. The charm of her personality had completely absorbed us. The Secretary of Labor had made us forget about our work.

Afternoon With Amateur Radio Proves To Be Enlightening

"Calling CQ, CQ, CQ, CQ; hello CQ, CQ, CQ, CQ. This is W9SKA: S, Saratoga; K, Kansas; A, Arkansas calling CQ. This is W9SKA, Fort Wayne, Indiana, calling CQ and standing by. Come in, please."

This is the first thing which greeted our ears when we listened over the 160 metre shortwave band of Paul Reynold's amateur radio set. It all sounded delightfully official and promised us an interesting afternoon. We would answer W9SKA's call as soon as he gave us the ether, for "CQ" meant he would talk to anybody on his band.

Many Parts Are Used
In the meantime, we were interested in Paul's setup, for, to a couple of girls, it looked like a miniature junk pile. However, we soon learned that transformers, condensers, amplifiers, coils, wire, microphones and speakers, besides the transmitter and receiver, were responsible for the enjoyable communication, "QSO" with other amateurs. The operator, we noticed, sat on a wooden stool; this insulated him from the high voltage transmitter. Much to our surprise, this pile of "junk" and those piles owned by other amateurs cost anywhere from $75 to $500.

We carried on the communication, "W9SKA answering W9SKA's CQ; W9SKA: S, Saratoga; K, Kansas; E, England; answering W9SKA." Then, as is the custom, the answering station told W9SKA how his receiver and transmitter were working, the number of watts input, and how the signal from W9SKA was coming in, etc. There followed an entertainment of just talking to W9SKA and some singing rendered by the visitors at station W9SKE. Actually talking over the air gave us quite a thrill and somewhat comforted us for being so very ignorant about the whole setup. Then, "W9SKE stand by for W9SKA." We surely received novel entertainment by that station's operator, Bob Shrieffer, for it consisted of everything from clock winding and musical numbers to conversation.

Much Information Gained
During some of this communication, we were shown various tubes included in an amateur set, all of which were interesting although rather above our heads. We also inspected "The Log of Amateur Radio" in which the record of the amateur's communications are kept for government inspection by that individual. We were interested in how a person obtains a license. He is asked to pass strict tests for operating the amateur radio, and is compelled to know the code and to be able to send ten words in one minute.

"W9SKA standing by now for W9SKE." We decided the afternoon was very lovely, so we would get some of the ether out of doors. "W9SKE, thanks W9SKA for a most enjoyable QSO—73 (best regards). We are standing by if you wish to say anything more." "W9SKA, too, enjoyed our QSO, and thanks to the YL's (young ladies) for their vocal selections, although they sounded superlously. W9SKA leaving the air—73."

Humorous Replies of Students Express Sympathy for Ethiopia

Pity the Dictator of Italy, for the South Side students are almost unanimously against him. In answer to questions, they all sympathize with Ethiopia, Addis Ababa and the Conquering Lion of Judah, but not a word of sympathy for Benito.—(I suppose they thought Ethiopia needed it more.)

To the question, "Do you sympathize with Italy or with Ethiopia, and why?" the following people answered in the following ways:
Oscar Eggers—Think up something yourself and say I said it.
George Anna Martin—Ethiopia, because "them's my sentiments." (Courtesy of Mr. Murphy.)
John Bremer—I have no sympathy. Helen Kelsey—Never been there. Ethiopia can it or leave it shut.
Eddie Reeves—Ethiopia, I want to get even with the inventor of spaghetti.
Eleanor Vesey—Italy, just to be different.

Leslie Johnson—Ethiopia, and say when it rains there, I hope it pours.
Herb Nitzsche—Ethiopia, I like Joe Louis much more than Primo Carnera.
Bernadette Dygert—Don't ask me. If I knew anything to say, I wouldn't know how to say it.
Joan Bonsib—Ethiopia, I think the emperor looks cute.
Arno Schaefer—Ethiopia, because I've got a little money on them.
Ruth Henline—Ethiopia, the newspapers feel that way about it, and I read the newspapers.
Eugene Schmidt—More spinach to Ethiopia.

Criminals Eliminate Themselves
Public Opinion Revealed

Dr. Gallup Starts Something
By MYRON JONES

Domestic troubles are beginning to turn the thoughts of the American people from the Ethiopian War to the gang wars which are taking place on their own door steps. Within the last week, seven bodies of well-known underworld gangsters have been found, bullet-riddled, in the gutters of New York City. The cause is the controlling of slot machine and laundry racks by ambitious underworld chiefs. Are pre-Capone days coming back? The answer given by some prominent investigators seem to insinuate that they are here. Sincere hope is expressed by all that the crime wave will be stopped and the gangsters punished before children and innocent by-standers are included in the death circle of the mobsters.

A timely editorial appeared in last Sunday's Chicago Tribune. It depicted a strong man sitting on a bench, dressed in armor, personifying War, listening to a gaunt figure in black who is reading a list of the names of the dead. He represents Auto Accidents. His only comment to War is, "It takes me a little longer, but I get results." It is indeed lamentable that the proportion of fatalities should even in a small way approach the toll of deaths caused by War. We are all concerned about War and are ready to do anything to prevent it, why then do we not take action against the brutal killing of someone every 15 minutes of every day of every year.

"America Speaks," the weekly poll of America's public opinion by the American Institute of Public Opinion, of which Dr. George H. Gallup is managing editor, and which appeared in The News-Sentinel Monday and will appear each Monday following, is and should be of interest to high school pupils. "America Speaks" will content itself with giving the accurate statistical results of a scientific poll of public opinion on the issues of the day. It is believed that this poll will be non-partisan by the fact that it will avoid editorializing, merely presenting the facts, leaving the interpretation of them to the readers.

Also in conducting the polls, the ballots will go into every state and every county in the country. Many of them will be mailed. Others will be presented to the voter in a personal interview by trained investigators located in 75 centers. Personal interviews will be needed to get adequate response from persons on relief and persons in low income groups. The weekly polls will not only be of great interest for the results alone, but will contribute to the science of popular government by indicating authentic public opinion on the issues involved. "America Speaks" will make articulate the voice of all the people in the United States on such issues as President Roosevelt's popularity, the leading candidates for the Republican nomination for President, Government spending for relief and recovery, curbing the power of the Supreme Court, immediate payment of the bonus, regulation of liquor sales, war, and government regulation of business and industry. Watch for the answers of the people to these problems and tell your friends to watch for it. It will provide authoritative background for your political opinions.

Dr. Gallup, managing editor of the American Institute of Public Opinion and the author of the revolutionary political opinion referendum, "America Speaks," is the founder of the new world-wide organization of the Quill and Scroll. Rising from a small post at Iowa University, Dr. Gallup moved to the top of the journalistic field. As founder of the International Organization of Quill and Scroll in 1926, Gallup started his career in the field of journalism. Following this start, he held several college positions, and his statistical works have been the source of many of our better journalistic researches. He has the habit of starting things that have no precedent, and "America Speaks" is another of his triumphs.

Thirty-Five South Side Girls Take Swimming

At present there are thirty-five South Side girls who are taking swimming for gym credit at the Y.W.C.A. There are thirteen beginners, and they meet on Mondays and Wednesdays, the eighth period. The advanced classes are twenty-two in number, and they meet every Tuesday and Thursday, the seventh and eighth periods. The regular class period is thirty minutes long, followed by a diving class which is fifteen minutes in length.

Mrs. Ivan Clem is the swimming instructor, and she is assisted by Miss Edith Kyles, a graduate of South Side. Marjorie Hower, a senior life saver; Ada Schuelke, a junior life saver; and Betty Shedron also help Mrs. Clem with working in the office.

What's In a Name Besides Dope For Good Feature Story

Names, names, and more names—1870 of them, to be exact, and the majority of them are common in our everyday English. For example, let us go over the adventures for one day and see how many times we come in contact with our fellow students' last names.

Starting in the morning when we ask: what the menu for breakfast is, we may hear something like this from the Cook: Mellen, Berry, Quince, Bohne, Shank, Bacon, Trout, and Fudge. Crum served with no extra charge. Such a meal would no doubt result in a Payne and a visit to the Dochterman, who has the reputation of being a Goodman. His fee is only 1 Buck; certainly a small sum for a Mann who Dailey braves Rainy and Fairweather, Frost and Winter, Storm and Gale.

Many Are Streets
A sight-seeing trip through the city over such prominent streets as Fairfield, Creighton, Leith, and Lewis will finally bring you to Foster and Franke Parks. Here run wild Black Bear, Lyons, and Gray Wolf. The Crows will not have their freedom long, for when the Gardner Barrows a Hemmer, he will build a Koop for them.

As we travel on over the Byroade we come to the Castle where we see the Nobles and the Squires cheering the King as he chases the Knight around the Thorne Rose Bush trying to Bopp him with a Flint-shaped cleaver, attempting to get his Fish-back. All this is going on while the Kaiser's Court is in Session.

From this fairytale land, we will tell you a "tall story." Our Hosier governor, McNutt, has signed a bill for the construction of a Strawbridge across Long Lake directly or indirectly giving employment to the (Hod) Carrier, Driver, Potter, Weaver, and Baker. When completed, Flaig(s) will be waving amidst clouds of Blue, Green, and White. A Speaker will be there; Furst to talk on Stone and Wood; then his subject may prove Moore interesting, changing to such celebrities as "Tommy" Bridges, Young "Max" Baer, "Sherlock" Holmes. A Dancer, accompanied by a Harp, concludes this program.

All Ends Well
Now the Sweet tones of a Bell call us to the Chappell surrounded by Halls and Lockers. Through a Glass Hatch we catch a Beam of Golden Leitz, Berning in our Hart forever. With Sterner thoughts, you know you are on the Wright Case when you find twenty-four Millers have put a Dent in the Davenport and, last but not least, we must not forget our Brothers who are sisters. Leaving such thoughts we say: "All's Well that ends Well!"

Mary Lou Langfeldt Sings Over Chicago Broadcast Station

If the students of South Side turned their radio dials to station WBSB Chicago, Tuesday, October 22, at 9:30 o'clock, they were probably surprised to hear the announcer say that Mary Lou Langfeldt, a junior of South Side, would sing the popular melody "Outside of You."

This was Mary Lou's first experience of singing over the radio. She has been in several auditions at the well-known Jo Keith studio, winning second place in the last one that was held. The various winners of these auditions were then given the privilege of singing through the "mike." She has taken "personality blues" singing lessons from Miss Gaye at the Jo Keith Studio since the latter part of July. She is still taking lessons at Chicago every Tuesday.

Mary Lou has the notes of the songs transposed into a lower tone because her voice is so low. Her ambition, as one would expect, is to be a popular "blues singer" and to sing over the radio.

Students Leave School
Since school began in September for the fall term, twenty-three pupils have already deserted the ranks of South Side.

Out of the twenty-three pupils, Jane Stute went to Elmhurst; Peggy Daily, Richard Nelson, Alice Coleman, went to Central; Allene Dorrell went to Indianapolis; Theo Deck, Central Catholic; Norma Hitzeman, Rochester, New York; Bill McKeon, Chicago; Mariette Walburn, Muncie; Adair, Huntington; Bill Bender, Detroit; Mason Rollin, Florence Anderson, Vomet Diehm, and Jean Snider went to work. Art Swain, Melba Robbins, Floyd Houser, Lorraine Hauer, Bob Fulton, and Quentin Briggs quit school.

I-M Volleyball To Start Soon; Entries Taken

Practice Begins This Week, To Continue To Nov. 7; Three Divisions Is Plan.

Volleyball, a popular fall intramural sport, will begin this week when Mr. Briner will sign up any team that wishes to enter. The teams will practice until November 7, and the elimination schedule will begin on that date.

Three divisions will be formed according to weight, as was the case last year. The lightweights are listed as 105 pounds, middleweights from 106 to 125 pounds, and heavyweights continuing from 126 pounds upwards. Practices and eliminations are to be held only in the fifth periods this year. Since regular schedules start November 11, it is necessary for all who wish to participate to sign up with a team in Mr. Briner's office by Friday evening.

Points toward an intramural letter are awarded for participation in this sport. Ten points are granted for continuing throughout the season, and five points are given to each member of the winning team. Last year more than 150 players competing in 24 teams received points for volleyball. More than ever before are desired and expected to participate this year.

Girl Athletes Enjoy Skit, Music, Dancing At Halloween Party

"Will you look at that?" "I wonder who she is?" "I wonder what in the world she is supposed to be?" Such exclamations as these marked the beginning of the G. A. A. mask Halloween party last Friday night. A grand march started the party off with a bang. During this march, people with distinctive costumes were picked. Martha Franz, dressed in a wedding gown of 1910, was awarded the prize for the prettiest costume. Doris Duffy, dressed as Union Suit, and Velma Connet, as Spark Plug, were tied for the funniest costumes. Gwen Roberts, as Miss G. A. A. of 1902, received the prize for the most original.

Teddy Confer Entertainers Included in the program were Teddy Confer, who gave a Russian dance, Velma Yoder who sang, "I'm In The Mood For Love" and "Cheek to Cheek," Maxine Althouse and Janet Hartman who gave tap dances, and an acrobatic dance given by Marjorie Lou Wickes. The girls were then greatly honored in having Mr. Nul, his daughter Margaret Nul, and Helen Flaig play for them on flutes and harp respectively. Miss Patterson and Miss Smith gave an impromptu dance to the "Blue Danube." It was really a lulu!

Velma Lehman and Margaret Hitzeman gave two numbers on the accordion. The highlight in the program was a skit given by the executive board. The characters in this play are: Barbara Raymond, the bride, as Miss G. A. A.; Leona Menze, the groom, as Good Sportsmanship; Enita Snavely, the flower girl, Good Fellowship; Marjorie Cartwright, as the Reverend, Athletics; and Marjorie Hower, the villain, Foul Play. The script was read by Ruth Berning.

Former Members Present After the program, the members danced to popular tunes, as Velma Lehman played the piano. Later, the refreshments, which consisted of taffy apples and popcorn, were served. Enita Snavely, Leona Menze, Marjorie Cartwright, and Marjorie Hower assisted in the serving. Among the old members who were present were Eleanor Cupp, Martha Suter, Margaret Beck, Eue Cameron, Margaret Ames, and Eileen South.

Auto Accident Deaths Mount To Highest Toll

The increasing number of automobile accidents in the past years cannot help but attract attention, as fifteen percent more people were killed in automobile accidents in 1934 than in 1933. The total number of people killed in auto accidents in 1934, as announced by the Census Bureau, was 33,980, which is the greatest number of people ever before killed in one year. This total represents an average death rate of 26.9 persons out of every 100,000.

Recent figures covering major cities for the 62 weeks ending on September 28, indicate that automobile death rate continuing upward this year. When the bureau's figures were given out recently, J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, issued a statement pointing out that "not a single railroad passenger was killed in a train accident on steam railroads in the United States in the first six months of 1935."

Pigskin Passes

Don Powell is doing better all the time at Purdue. He played in a large part of the Chicago game and scored one of the touchdowns for the Boilermakers on a pass into the end zone.

It is interesting to note the number of former South Side players who are now active on the grid squad at Manchester College. On this list are Disler, Bevington, Snider, LaPointe, Robinette, and Banet. Of these, Snider and Banet are lettermen.

This week's game with Columbia City appears as a breather for the Archers. After the North Side game, we hope the Archers take a deep breath in the interval and blow down Central's house of bricks next Saturday.

It begins to look more and more as though Central's house isn't to be blown down. They extended their string of unbeaten, unscoring-on games to eight. This season they have won seven contests and tied one. Not once has their goal-line been crossed. It begins to appear as though the Archers will be the first and only ones to beat the Tigers.

North Side's victory over South Side gives them at least a share in their first city grid crown. Coach Bob Nul and the Redskins are to be congratulated on putting out a winning team in spite of a lot of tough breaks. They won their title with a squad which started the season with prospects of a very mediocre season. In spite of the fact that a large number of players were injured and several others left school, the Red came through.

The game Saturday demonstrated all too conclusively that an offensive based almost entirely on passing puts the team under a terrific handicap. For another illustration, look at Indiana for the last three weeks.

The North Side game produced a bumper crop of Saturday night quarterback for the Archer farm. We are all much too prone to second-guess on the team. The fans seem to take the games even more seriously than the team. It is a good idea to forget the whole thing after the final gun. Let's be as good losers as winners.

Hi-Y's to Stage Party at Bell's

Dick Dochterman and Morgan Harrison in Charge; To Be Held November 9.

An important meeting of the Hi-Y was held at the Y. M. C. A. last Thursday evening at 8 p. m. About twenty members attended and four new members were taken in. They are Bud Lee, Roy Ewing, Wade Thye, and Bill Wilson. Most of these were brought in by the members of team two. Each new member gives the team fifty points and the number two team is leading by five hundred points. The trip to the retreat at Potawatomi was definitely cancelled as the game with North Side and other plans interfered. More plans for the skating party to be held November 29 at Bell's Rink were made. About five hundred tickets are to be printed. They will be on sale at twenty-five cents each within a few days. A turkey will be given away to the holder of the lucky number. Morgan Harrison and Dick Dochterman are the general chairmen in charge of the party. At the next meeting to be held November 7, Rev. Vincent of the Presbyterian church will be the speaker.

After the business meeting the boys all went down for a swim in the Y. M. C. A. pool. Some exhibitions of living and swimming were given by Hi-Y members and members of the Y. M. C. A. At 9:30 the party was over and the meeting was closed by Dick Dochterman because of the absence of Benny Woodhull who is the losing chaplain. It was announced that there would be no meeting next week because of Halloween. During the basketball games this year the Hi-Yers will be in charge of the reserved section.

Rifle Club Members Compete for Medal

The Girls' Rifle Club will meet Wednesday night at 7:20 o'clock at the range. An hour of target practice will follow to see who will win the high point medal for the following weeks. Joyce Spencer won the medal at the last meeting. She will be forced to turn it over if she does not retain her high score.

Five Hockey Games Played By G. A. A.

Soph 2's Defeat Soph 4 Squad; Junior, Senior Teams Play In Last Week's Contests.

Last week many interesting games were played; those were headed by Barbara Raymond's Sophomore team 2 playing against Helen Meese's Sophomore team 4. Barbara Raymond's team captured the game with a score of 2-0. Eleanor Rarick played an outstanding game for team 2 and turned in two goals one in the first and one in the second half.

At four o'clock an interesting game was played between Betty Eisenacher's Sophomore 1 team and Dorothy Franke's Sophomore 3 team. Betty was the guiding spirit behind her team and aided by Ruth Siefert who made a goal in the second half and Vivian Rinchen who made her goal in the first half, the game was won with a score of two to one. Janet Hartman made the goal for her team.

The next game played was dominated by Edna Disler's Junior 2 team. Betty Rison's Senior 2 team was defeated with the final score 4-0. All of these goals were made by Edna Disler in the first half.

Friday's games were started off by Betty Eisenacher's Sophomore 1 team playing Barbara Raymond's Sophomore team 2. Sophomore 1's won this game with a score of 2-0. Anita Affolder and Margaret Telley made the goals for team 1 in the second half.

The next game between Dorothy Franke's Sophomore 3 team and Helen Meese's Sophomore 4 team ended in a tie. The goals for team 3 were made by Dorothy Franke in the first half and Janet Hartman in the first and second half; for team 4 the goals were made by Helen Meese, Vera Walker, and Mary Jane Redding.

Junior team under Margaret Ruhl played to a tie with Marge Hower's Senior 1 team. The goals were made by Marjorie Cartwright and Marge Hower for Senior 1 team and Winnie Locker and Margaret Ruhl for Junior 1 team.

Teams 3, 4, and 6 Speedball Victors

Defeat Freshman Squads 2, 1, and 5 Monday; Team 6 Retains Lead by Easy 12-1 Win.

Freshmen teams 3, 4, and 6 were fairly easy victors Monday in the G. A. A. speedball games. By virtue of its victory team 6 is still in the lead for the freshmen championship.

Team 6 beat team 5 by the outlandish score of 12-1. Pauline Nealin and Beatrice Craig each scored four goals, and Maxine Peltz and Betty Neel each two to bring their team to victory. June Cioch made the single goal for team 5.

Team 1 was defeated by Team 4 by the score of 10-4, with Hazel Perry of team 4 the outstanding player of the game, scoring six points. Mary Snavely and Velma Connet helped her by scoring two goals apiece. Imogene Wright made two points and Betty Daniels and Gwen Roberts each scored a goal for the losers.

The closest game of the day was won by team 3 over team 2, 7-4. The scoring in this game was pretty well divided between three of the forwards: Tully Mueller scoring three goals and Marjorie Wallace and Della Rauner each scoring two. Mildred Franz and Miriam Oberiser helped their team by each scoring two goals.

Rifle Club Determines Its High Point Scorer

A meeting of the Girls' Rifle Club will be held November 6 at the range. The N. R. A. membership will be discussed, and the high point scorer will be selected to wear the high point medal. Joyce Spencer will be able to keep the medal only by keeping her high score of 86 out of a 100.

South Side Takes 26-7 Defeat From Strong North Side Squad

Fourth down, the ball on the 9-yard line, one-half yard to go for a first down, and South Side leading North Side's Redskins 7-0, was the situation which faced South Side's grid squad in the second quarter of their game last Saturday. Remembering last year's North Side game, which the Archers won with a touchdown, an extra point, and a field goal, the Green elected to attempt a placekick from the field. Bud Lee dropped back, booted the ball, and missed the goal.

On that kick probably hinged the outcome of the game; on that kick North Side won at least a share in their first city grid crown by gaining their first victory over a South Side football team. For the Redskins, apparently inspired by the failure of the kick, went on to run rampant through the Archers to win by three touchdowns, 26-7.

Poorman Makes Touchdown On the next play an Indian went around left end for nine yards. Shumm then carried the ball off right tackle, got into the clear and past the Archer secondary. He traveled 48 yards before Bud Feichter hauled him down on South Side's 23. Bodecker went around left end for another first down on the 12-yard marker. After three plays failed to gain for the Red and it began to appear as though the Archers had successfully stopped the thrust, Roger Poorman carried the ball around left end for a touchdown. When Jim Ellenwood blocked the extra kick, saving the Archers a one-point lead, South Side fans breathed a sigh of relief.

Just as the early part of the game was all Green, so was the remainder of the contest all Redskin. Three minutes the Indians threatened and three more times the Redskins scored. Early in the third period, North Side took the ball on their own 41. After a plunge by Shumm gained six yards, the Red proceeded to use South Side's chief weapon to score another touchdown. Poorman tossed a long pass to Shilts who carried the ball to the 15-yard stripe. Bodecker then tossed another to Shilts for the touchdown. The kick for extra point was good and North Side led 13-7. The end of the quarter found the Redskins again knocking at the pearly touchdown gates, in possession of the leather on the Green's 25.

Redskins Block Passes On the first play of the final quarter, Poorman went around left end for a first down on the 15. Bodecker then carried the pigskin around right end for the third touchdown. The place-kick for extra point was again good, giving the Red a lead of 20-7. In the middle of the period, after the Red had already begun to stall for time, Roger Poorman slipped through guard, streaked for the sideline, and ran 33 yards for another score.

Not in the least daunted, the Archers got another touchdown drive underway. The Green filled the air with passes to advance the ball from the South Side 29 to the Redskins 15, where Miller intercepted a pass to stop the threat. Shortly afterward, the Green regained possession of the leather and advanced to the 5-yard marker where North Side again intercepted a pass as the gun sounded. The most surprising thing about the game was the failure of the Green pass attack to work in the pinches and the weakness of the Archer line in the second half. After the first part

Two New Members Admitted To 1500 Club

Among the list of people working hard to get a large amount of points rank the names of Norman Buck and Jim Sweet. Jim and Norman have just reached 5,000 points, according to the point system employed by the Times. The first endeavor of a Times worker is to get 1500 points and become a member of 1500 Club.

The latest additions to this club are Maxine Howard and Dean Brahm. After dint of much hard work, they can now boast of being members of that honorary club. Maxine is a senior and has piled up her points by being a member of the mailing staff; Dean has credited his name with 150 points by working on sports and editorials.

Archers, Spartans Win Tag Contests

Heavyweight Victors Win Over Potters, 19-0; Lightweights Over Cats by 25-0 Tuesday.

Two fairly-well fought intramural tag football games were played Tuesday evening on the South field. The first game, which was won by the Archers by a score of 19-0, was a heavyweight battle between the Archers and Potters. The other, a light weight game, was won by the Spartans from the Cats, 25-0.

The Archers paved their way to victory by playing a fast and furious brand of football. All of their scoring was done in the first period of play.

Teams Fight Hard A long run around right end, with Cochrane carrying the ball, tallied the first score. Soon after this a long completed pass from Close to Stalter, who was standing on the goal line, brought the second score. The last touchdown came when Close broke through the center of the line and carried the ball over for a well-earned score. Close then passed over the center of the line to Stalter for the only point after touchdown that was good. From the second quarter on the Potters collected themselves and did not let the Archers past the twenty-yard line. Both teams settled down to hard earnest fighting, but could not break through for a touchdown.

The lightweight game was dominated, as the score shows, by the Spartans, although the Cats did put up a fight, their principal weakness being the lack of team work. The scoring by the Spartans was pretty well divided throughout the game. Spencer, who led the scoring honors, intercepted many passes and was therefore the outstanding player of the Spartans. Mitchell, a small but fast member of the Cats, made many good runs for his team, but did not get enough support from his team to enable him to score.

South Side Pupils Win Scholarships

Art School Gives Five Awards; Presented To Art Students Outstanding in Department.

Because of their outstanding work in the art department, five South Side students have been awarded art scholarships to the Fort Wayne Art School. They are Charles Stone, Leonard Kock, Hollis Logue, Eleanor Kirkpatrick, and Eleanor Schremser. The classes are held every Saturday morning with Mr. McBride, director of the art school, as the instructor. Charles Stone, who was awarded a scholarship when in grade school, specializes in sketches from life and water color technique. For doing very delicate tone work in pencil shading, Leonard Kock earned his scholarship. Hollis Logue, taking his second year of art, is studying commercial art. Portrait and figure drawing is the specialty of Eleanor Kirkpatrick. Eleanor Schremser is interested in composition in illustration.

Two South Side graduates, Geraldine Henline and Elizabeth Hampel, have been granted full-time scholarships at the art school. They are doing outstanding work in water color. Their scholarships were granted on a competitive basis.

It was surely good to see our old friend, Margaret Spiegel, again. Come back as often as you can!

When are Marjorie Hower, Mildred Close, Ruth Berning, and Rosalin Huston going to play "Quakers' Meeting?"

Congratulations, Margaret Ruhl, for winning the singles championship of the school!

Did you ever know that the junior hockey team, of which Edna Disler is the captain, has a special rooting section when they play? It is composed of Edna's small brother and sister, who are much concerned about their big sister.

Ruth Seifert, who hadn't played speedball for a year, made all the points for her winning team in the second period gym class. She scored seven points.

A big hand for Leona Menze and Margaret Ruhl for having retained their doubles championship of the school.

The G. A. A. party went over with a bang. Everyone present enjoyed the grand march, the swell program, dancing and refreshments, and especially the group singing "roun' that o' piano."

Congratulations to the girls who won prizes for their costumes at the party! Martha Franz captured the prize for the most beautiful costume, Gwendolyn Roberts for the most original, Velma Connet for the funniest, and Doris Duffy for the most unusual (was it unusual?)

Doesn't Marge Hower make a swell villain? She surely can wield a club; just ask Leona Menze, as she was the victim.

Miss Smith and Miss Patterson stole the show with their impromptu dance to the strains of the "Blue Danube Waltz."

Archers To Tackle Columbia City Eleven Here Saturday

Fourth Victory Of Year Object Of South Side

Game Expected To Be Pre-Central Breather, With Green Victory Forseen.

Opponents Have Mediocre Record

Parlor City Squad Has Poor Season Showing, But May Prove Surprisingly Tough

South Side gridders will be gunning for their fourth victory of the season when they tackle a Columbia City eleven of questionable caliber at the South Side stadium Saturday. With the Archers definitely out of the race for the city title, the tension under which the team has been laboring for the last few weeks will be somewhat relieved and South Side should not have too much trouble with Columbia City next Saturday. But, unless the Archers have worked out a much better defense than that they displayed against North Side, the Archers are going to find their goal-line a meeting place for their opponents.

Decatur Defeats Opponents
Columbia City has had somewhat of a mediocre season and last week they sustained a defeat at the hands of a strong Decatur eleven, which also handed the North Side Redskins a setback. North Side was definitely laid out by South Side's vaunted passing attack and Columbia City will probably do the same. If the devastating running attack which smothered Central Catholic could be revived to aid the ailing passing department, then the Archers, if stopped in the air, could fall back on their running attack.

Archer Injuries Few
South Side has suffered very little from injuries and should go into the Columbia City game full strength. There will probably be plenty of hard work this week on the defense which failed to materialize against North Side and which cracked wide open so often against the bone-crushing plunges of Shumm and Poorman.
The showing that South Side puts up against Columbia City will go far in predicting an ultimate victor in the forthcoming South Side-Central tilt. The Archers will tackle Columbia City on the home grounds, and this fact coupled with the hope that the Archers may return to their early season form, favor them over a mediocre Columbia City team.

Hubert Klopfenstein Wins Heavyweight Tennis Title

Hubert Klopfenstein, prominent junior tennis player, won the heavyweight title by defeating Wilbur Eicher, the other finalist, in two out of two sets, 8-6, and 6-4. Allen Garrison was previously declared lightweight winner.
Klopfenstein competed with Bud Cochrane in the semi-finals and won the match by two of three sets, 4-6, 7-5, and 6-4.
The heavy and light winners each receive medals from Scholastic, the National High School Weekly, through the intramural department. These medals will be awarded to the spring tennis champs. They will become the permanent possessions of the winners of titles staged between the fall and spring championships. The awards are attractive bronze medals with a suitable inscription upon them.
The annual fall tourney began with 26 participants September 30. The heavyweight victor was declared in the fifth round of elimination, and the lightweight champ played his final match in the fourth round. This year's tournament involved a large number of participants. This condition together with the inclement weather caused the tourney to extend over an unusual length of time.

Robinette, a freshman in the school of commerce, plays guard on the football squad, as does Delbert Disler, a sophomore, taking social science. Bill LaPointe, freshman halfback, is taking a pre-medical course, while Forest Bevington, also a freshman backfield man, is taking commerce. Herb Banet, first string quarterback and one of the leading scorers in the Conference, is a junior, on the Student Council, and active in all college work. Waveland Snider, a junior specializing in social science, plays end, and is also a basket-ball star.

Intramural Sports Appeal To Many

Intramural Lettermen's Club Is Open To All Participants in Minor Sports; Eleven Join.

Intramural Lettermen's Club is an honorary organization for athletes who have earned their intramural letters, as the name implies. It is an outgrowth of the point system being used in the intramural department.
This club is open to all participants in the minor sports who have earned 120 points or more. To accumulate this number requires quite an expenditure of time and some amount of athletic ability. It usually takes about two years of participation to earn a letter, which is smaller in size than those given in major sports, and therefore to gain admission to the club.

Members Are Listed
Only eleven are members of the organization at the present time, since it is so difficult to earn the required letter. These members are listed in the order in which they became associated with the club: Carl Brandt, James Myers, Aaron Schoenfeld, Stewart Trulock, Theron King, John Allen, Gaylord Stalker, Leroy Cunningham, Robert Feichter, Harold Roberts, and Robert Tapping. Tapping was made eligible to the club on October 2.

Club meetings are held twice a month; the first to take care of any business, and the second for social purposes, when a potluck is held or an interesting speaker is enjoyed. The first meeting of the fall season will be announced soon by Mr. Briner, the sponsor of the club.

Letters Grant Membership
The custom of awarding letters to intramural athletes who have achieved a high goal and granting them membership in an exclusive club is a very suitable method of rewarding them for their hard work for the department. Thus sports-minded boys who can not enter varsity sports can be honored in a way similar to that in which varsity athletes are honored.

Chuck Taylor, Pro, Shows Archer Net Squad a Few Tricks

A wizard by the name of Chuck Taylor invaded the South Side gym last Thursday and proceeded to give an amazing exhibition of passing, blocking, and shooting, as well as other fundamentals of basketball, before the South Side squad and a large group of spectators. Mr. Taylor formerly played with the world-famous New York Celts and we feel certain that if the rest of the professional basketball teams play the sort of ball that was demonstrated by Mr. Taylor, the spectators would be constantly sitting on the edge of their seats, wondering where the ball was, and when they did locate the ball, they'd probably wonder how it ever got where it was.

Besides the basketball squad, a fair-sized crowd turned out and they certainly received more than their money's worth. Mr. Taylor had every member of the squad baffled in attempting to stop his passes, which were liable to go anywhere. The men who play professional basketball are not sissies, and anything that they can get away with and still be in the rules, they don't hesitate in doing. Societies for the reform of American basketball consider that this is the wrong attitude, but in that status might tell you nevertheless, it is still good basketball.

At the end of the demonstration, two teams, with Mr. Taylor playing on one, scrimmaged a little while, and when the teams went to the showers they were very glad that Mr. Chuck Taylor, or anyone like him, is not on the enrollment of Central High School.

C. C.'s Irish Score 12-0 Victory Over Garrett

Outplaying the Garrett Railroaders most of the way, Central Catholic won their first game of the season by defeating Garrett 12-0. It was the last game of the 1935 campaign for the Irish.

The Irish were in an ambitious, and fighting mood and consequently they turned in a good performance with Smith, Mudd, Romary, and O'Conner displaying good performances. The Railroaders made one scoring threat in the last quarter, but were halted when Romary intercepted a pass on the five-yard line.

On the opening kickoff, Smith broke loose, but was called back because Romary had forward-passed instead of lateral-passed to him. Smith, on the first play, travelled to the 3-yard line where Romary dove over for the touchdown. In the second quarter, the Irish advanced to the 1-yard line, but were held for downs.

Romary broke loose for 22 yards, after they had advanced into scoring position, for the second touchdown. Both attempts for conversion failed.

Undeclared Tigers Beat Wabash 13-0

Strong Central Eleven Handles Game Well; Passing Is Good; Penalty Losses Are Suffered.

Central's Tigers kept their record of not being beaten or scored on intact by beating Wabash by the score of 13-0. It was the first defeat suffered by the Wabash Apaches during the 1935 campaign. The score, however, does not indicate the brand of football played. The Tigers were decisively outplayed in the first half, but came back the second half to win the game.

Wabash Lacked Punch
The Wabash team had everything except one important factor, that necessary punch to put the ball over. The Apaches picked up 179 yards on running plays, and completed 10 passes, one on an interference ruling for a gain of 107 yards, in 20 attempts. Wabash made 13 first downs, eight in the first half. They had one pass intercepted. Central completed two passes, for 31 yards, in five tosses. The Tigers gained 151 yards on running plays and made nine first downs, but seven of these came in the second half. The Tigers were penalized three times for 15 yards, while Wabash was penalized the same number for 45 yards.

Wabash wasted no time in launching a drive that ended on Central's 3-yard stripe with inches to go for a first down. The Blue punted out of danger, where the ball was fumbled by an Apache back. The Tigers recovered in mid-field, followed by a run around by Charlton that netted them 25 yards, but there they were halted. Again Wabash drove into scoring position by completing a number of passes, and kept the Tigers with their backs to the goal during the remainder of the half. Wabash tried two field goals, but they both went wide.

Apaches' Attempts Fail
In the third quarter, the Apaches again threatened, but the Blue held, and by a series of runs, passes, and penalties, the Blue advanced to their opponent's 12-yard line. Here Charlton was sent around right end behind a mass of blockers for Central's first touchdown. Sitko's attempted conversion was half blocked.

After the kickoff, the Apaches, gambling, passed deep in their own territory and drove to the Tiger's 35-yard stripe where the Blue team knocked down three successive passes. Central then kicked out of danger and held Wabash. Stanski then ran back a punt for 42 yards to the Apache 30-yard line. A penalty put the ball on the 13-yard line from which point Stanski skirted his left end for a touchdown. Altekuse converted on a placekick. From that point on, Wabash could spin a man loose for a long gain.

The continuous bickering during the World Series was paid for last week, when Judge K. M. Landis, baseball judge, fined Umpire Moriarty, Woody English, Billy Herman, and Billy Juris each two hundred dollars for profane language, and Manager Charlie Grimm the same amount for refusing to leave the bench when ordered.

There were plenty of upsets in last Saturday's gridiron program. The greatest heart-breaker was in the Purdue-Carnegie Tech clash. Not only was Purdue home for the first time this season but, undefeated so far this season, they fell before a team defeated three previous times.

To dear old Minnesota, Clarence Thompson recalled the days of Paul Bunyan, as he sprinted, dodged, and weaved his way to touchdowns against the strong Northwestern eleven.

Fred Carideo, brother of the famous Frank Carideo, is showing Notre Dame some of the family's wares as he, like his brother, crashed the line for long gains last Saturday.

Statesville prison football team was foiled in an attempt to win their fourteenth consecutive victory, when the Gary Hollenboys, a semi-pro eleven, held them to a 6-6 deadlock. Next season, however, the prison eleven is looking forward to a better team, since they will not be bothered with graduations.

A new version of the "galloping ghost" appeared in the Illinois-Iowa game last Saturday, but this time the fans from Illinois were not the receivers of the gains made by the phantom player. Ozzie Simmons, fleet Iowa halfback, literally defeated the Illini alone. In sixteen attempts he gained 192 yards including a 71-yard dash for a touchdown. Ozzie will undoubtedly be an outstanding candidate for All-American honors this season.

Hold "Camera Week"
Camera week, a new event of Fremont High School, Oakland, California, is to allow students to take snapshots of their friends for five days. They will have an opportunity to take shots of the football players along with those of other students.

Active Week End For North, Central

Redskins To Tackle Huntington Vikings Friday; Tigers To Meet South of Lima Saturday.

North Side's gridders, after their notable performance against South Side's Archers, are named topheavy favorites over Huntington's battling Vikings, whom they meet tomorrow evening on the Northern gridiron.

The Redskins present a very erratic team, first ascending to unheard-of heights in holding Central's Tigers to a scoreless tie and then descending to great depths in being defeated at the hands of the Decatur Yellowjackets, and again rising to stem the South Side Green Wave.

Central's Tigers, who are now riding the crest of one of the longest sustained winning streaks in the history of the downtown school, are expected to stretch this string to the total of seven victories and one tie when they meet South of Lima Saturday on the North Side gridiron. Three of these victories were gained last year.

The most outstanding feature of this drive is that in these last twelve games no person has been able to cross the blue goal line. The last team to score on the Tigers was Wabash. This team was also the last team to emerge victorious over the Fighting Tigers. Central, however, got their revenge this year when they unceremoniously defeated the Apaches by the score of 13-0.

French Group Includes Paris In Term Work

Miss Rehorst Reviews Trip; Maria Haven, Violet Garton Also Give Talks.

A very interesting program on Paris was given at the last meeting of the French Club which was held on Thursday, October 24, in the Voorhees Room. Paris is the chief industrial center of France, and the style center of the world.

Miss Pearl Rehorst, South Side home economics teacher, was the main speaker on the program. She told of the experiences she had during a ten-day shopping tour in Paris. While there she had a dress designed at one of the small dress-making establishments for which the city is famous. The dress was made of black satin and had little circles of black hand-made braid down the front.

Describes Dress Designing

Miss Rehorst said that a person who is taking a course in dress designing first begins by draping stiffened cheese cloth around a wax figure. When the material is arranged in a suitable fashion, a similar method is used for the good material and thus a dress is created. She also said that the French did not discard dresses that had been worn through one style period; but, instead, they took the dress apart, and combined it with other materials to make an entirely new dress of the latest fashion.

During her talk Miss Rehorst stated that national and international events change the trend of fashion. She said that the dark colors and the military note in the present fashions come as a result of the Ethiopian situation. Another point of interest was the fact that the stores in Paris have no show windows and in order to see what they have, one must go inside the store. A humorous incident in the speech was the story about the French girl wanting to marry an American man because an American soldier, in Paris during the World War, had given her some chocolate candy.

Skit Is Presented

Miss Rehorst showed a pair of gloves, a purse, and a compact which she had purchased in Paris. She also showed many pictures and snapshots that had been collected during her Paris visit.

The remainder of the program consisted of a short talk on Paris fashions given by Maria Haven, and a short talk on industries of Paris given by Violet Garton. A little French playlet, written by Theo Schurenberg and Lillian Gable entitled "Madam Goes Shopping," was given. Maria Haven played the customer, and Violet Garton played the clerk.

The four new members present at the meeting were Marion McAfee, Bob Locke, Max Goddard, and Earl Paxton.

During the short business meeting that preceded the program, Theo Schurenberg, president, announced that the tickets for the French Club skating party would be issued at the next meeting.

Competition is Keen In Typing Contests For Big Ten Scores

To aid students to develop speed and accuracy, to arouse interest, and to promote friendly competition are the purposes of weekly tests given in Miss Nell Covalt's typing classes. Two contests are held, one for speed and one for accuracy.

The results of the speed tests are displayed in groups of first, second, and third big tens on one section of the blackboard.

The first big ten has a design consisting of a crescent in which is written "What the Stars Say," and ten stars containing the names of the students who have the highest net speed. The color scheme of the stars is interesting. The first three are yellow and suggest "shining" and the next three are blue to suggest "true blue." On either side of the stars are rectangles containing the names of the second and third big tens.

On another board, an honor scroll for accuracy has been drawn. Those students who qualify by writing accurately for ten minutes have their names on this scroll.

Elizabeth Simminger is the art student who drew these attractive designs.

The test papers of the typists are displayed on the bulletin board challenging other students to find errors.

Students To Sing

Ruth Turner and Betty Minneker, two students at South Side, have merited the leading parts in an operetta, "Sylvia," to be given at the Redemer Lutheran Church on November 12 and 14.

Elect Former Graduate Agnes Vought, who graduated from South Side with the class of 1934, has been elected secretary of the sophomore class of Harlan College, Harlan, Ohio.

Plans Music Assemblies

Jack Wainwright

Mr. Jack Wainwright, director of the music department at South Side, has planned a series of musical assemblies to be held throughout the present school year. His plans include a large number of special features presented by musicians of national fame.

Sea Scouts Complete Final Plans for Party

The Sea Scout Patrol Viking of the James H. Smart troop will entertain its many friends at a gala masquerade party Halloween night, October 31, at Bell's skating rink.

Many prizes will be awarded for the best and the most comical costumes. Among the numerous prizes are a one ten-piece dresser set, a man's bathrobe, a mantle clock, and favors for all who attend.

Busses will leave from the corner of Berry and Clinton streets at 7:30, 8:00, and 8:30. Advance prices for tickets will be 35 cents and can be purchased from the members of the Viking Ship.

Play To Be Featured At Third S. P. C. Meeting

The Student Players' Club will hold its third meeting of the semester tomorrow afternoon in the Greeley Room at 3:30. A play called "Screen," by Jerry Emerson, will be the highlight of the program. Those taking part in the play are Mary Louise Helms, Charles Hart, Maxine Rippe, and Don Sparkman. There will also be a few musical selections.

The committee for this meeting is Mary Louise Helms, chairman; Catherine Allendorph, Betty Jeanne Bond, Don Sparkman, Charles Hart, and Maxine Rippe.

Wranglers Will Hold Program on Armistice

A special armistice day program will be an outside speaker, music, and novelties, by the various club members will feature the Wrangler's Club meeting in the Greeley Room Monday. The refreshments are to be in keeping with the time of the year. The committee in charge is Jesse Ellen Zollars, chairman, Mary Louise Helms, Alfred Diem, Roy Ewing, Phil Greer, and Virginia Shiffert.

Wears Old Dress

Vera Berning, a freshman, wore her great grandmother's black taffeta dress to the G. A. A. Halloween party.

Students of French Write to Foreigners

Out of twenty French students who wrote letters to French children, about ten have received replies. Last term Miss Perkins gave names of twenty French children to as many pupils in her classes. These are the French boys and girls, telling them of their family, school, hobbies, age, home town, country, and personal affairs. These letters were written in French or English, according to the individual's preference.

The students who were very lucky received replies from across the Atlantic. These letters were written in French and contained information similar to that sent by our own students. The replies were received during the summer.

Many of the students who have received replies have written back. As Miss Perkins gives out names and addresses of French students each year, some correspondence has been going on for a period of years. Many feel as though they know their correspondents personally.

So-Si-Y Will Hold Initiation Tuesday

Martha Franz Is Committee Head of Program; "Leisure Lanes" To Be Held on Nov. 5.

Initiation of new members will feature the next regular So-Si-Y meeting, which will be held on Tuesday evening, November 5, in the Greeley Room. The theme for the meeting is "Leisure of Leisure," and will carry out the year's program, "Stray Roads."

Martha Franz, chairman of the fourth regular committee, is in charge of the arrangements, which include a program of music and short talks.

The committee members are Dorothy Roubush, Lucille Kneller, Betty Waldrop, Jane Warmington, Catherine Allendorph, Dorothy Mertz, Vivian Hickman, Virginia Woods, Anna Papai, Irene Becker, Adah Baumgartner, Evelyn Kruse, and Eliza Bess Lucas.

Peru Teachers Visit Commercial Classes

Miss Huffman and Miss Hester Wood, two commercial course teachers from Peru High School, visited South Side's commercial classes Wednesday. The Peru teachers are given one day a year in which to visit other high schools in the state, and this year they chose Fort Wayne High Schools. Miss Wood, who teaches shorthand and commercial law, attended several classes here including Mr. Windmill's, Mr. Furst's, Mr. Murch's, Mr. Parks, and Miss Covalt's.

Perhaps they had an interest in South Side because our shorthand students placed first in the state contest held last spring. Peru, too, has at one time succeeded in placing first.

Both teachers were much interested in the manner in which South Side's classes are conducted. Miss Wood is particularly interested in our shorthand course. Miss Huffman's interest was mostly centered on the subject which she teaches, namely, bookkeeping. Both of them felt that their visiting our classes gave them new ideas. Peru's method, they seemed to feel, is not quite as good as South Side's; for in trying to speed the work along to prepare for state contests, they are not able to be as thorough as our courses are.

1,000 Subscriptions Gained by Times

For the first time in several years, over 1,000 Times subscriptions have been secured by the campaign heads. This means that over fifty percent of the student body realize that the Times is necessary in their school life.

John Bex, business manager, and Harriett Yapp, circulation manager, were at the head of the subscription campaign. Ruth Henline, Helen Anderson, Ina Claire Chappell, Julia Crabill, and Eleanor Vesey acted as assistant circulation managers during the campaign. Out-of-school and out-of-town subscriptions were more numerous than in other years and helped in reaching this total.

More subscriptions are expected when one-third and two-thirds of the term is over and the price is reduced to fifty and twenty-five cents.

'33 Graduate Elected Wabash Junior Head

Bradley Moring, '33, has been elected president of the Junior class at Wabash. While in South Side, Bradley was a participant in many extracurricular activities, including football, Torch Club, Wranglers, Student Players, Math-Science and the Totem.

Notice of Thanks Sent

Last week Miss Mellen received from someone, name not signed, a note of commendation and also stating a helpful criticism of food served in the cafeteria.

"This information," she stated, "was appreciated because we were able to make the correction. It is our aim to please."

Miss Mellen requests that any helpful suggestions and criticisms be taken directly to her.

Custodians Present Reports on Upkeep Of Our Alma Mater

Up and down the inclines and then through the door labelled "Custodian," we find that branch of our school which is best posted as to the destructiveness of our South Side students. In answer to our question as to how the students seem this year, one of them replied, "Well, that depends." Very non-committal, it is true, but he had more to say.

Wall Marking Common

"Stormy Weather" seems to have a never-failing bad effect upon students, for they collect in the halls more and busy themselves in being general nuisances. A great deal of "wall marking" is very often due to "coffee nerves" or its equivalent, for janitors have found people unconsciously standing and drawing pictures or printing names on the dear walls of our alma mater. This year, however, it seems to be a prevailing opinion among the members of the "clean-up committee" that things are much better than they used to be. High school students are learning how to take care of public property much better, evidently. Congratulations are in order.

Locker Rooms Suffer

The locker rooms have suffered quite a bit this year, according to student reports. Better watch it! Janitors find that both locker rooms for girls and boys are similarly defaced. Whether some individual thought it was still in style to be throwing stones at the sun or what, nevertheless, a stone recently did a great deal of damage in that it shattered a large window in the building.

The morals "in a nutshell" are to avoid throwing stones at the sun, avoid "the pause that refreshes" when that pause includes marking on the wall, avoid "kicking the gong around," for it might prove destructive in numerous ways, and be careful when you twiddle your thumbs that you do not stir up unnecessary dust.

Greeley Room Gets New Coat of Very Bright Green Paint

From 7 o'clock in the morning till 5 o'clock in the evening, last Thursday and Friday, one may have observed that the Greeley Room was being turned upside down. Yes, you have guessed it. The Greeley Room has been painted.

The school painter, Mr. Froshough, supervised the task. Under him was a group of five men, our janitors being among them. The work included the windows, ceiling, walls, and window sills. It required seven gallons of very, very, green paint.

The only thing exciting that happened during the painting of the Greeley Room was when Mr. Froshough fell over a ladder. No paint was spilled and no bones were broken. We want to congratulate these men on their work. We think it looks great!

Columbus Principal Subscribes

Here is another proof that the South Side Times is really in demand in places other than right here in school! Miss Harvey received a letter from Mr. Harley Talley, principal of Columbus High School, Columbus, Indiana, asking that his name be added to the mailing list. He also requested that all back copies be sent so that he may file all of them.

Class Room News

Miss Hemmer is taking up vocational guidance in her freshman home room. Interviews were had with each pupil to find out his interests, and the possible line of work that he might wish to follow. Each pupil is to look up and study two occupations, one in which he is especially interested, and the other an occupation with which he is not so familiar. This may be done by interviews, or by reading on the matter. Talks and discussions will then be given on these various professions. An additional help to be secured from the vocational guidance magazine and pamphlets sent out by the Pittsburgh schools.

In Miss Covalt's typing 2 class, the following pupils qualified for the first big ten: Margaret Ruhl, who wrote 56 words per minute for 10 minutes; Margery Ruhl, 54.3; Eileen Mentzer, 44.9; Mary Michaels, 43.6; Hazel Noll, 42; Nancy Quince, 41.9; Robert Schweizer, 40.7; Vera Louise Kuge, 35.4; Iona Schuler, 34.3; and Elizabeth Luyben, 34.2. Jack Rehner leads the second big ten with 34.2 words per minute. Arthur Keller leads the third big ten with 26.6 words per minute.

In one of Miss Thorne's geometry classes, she asked one of her pupils what a square mile was. The pupil answered that she didn't know that miles came in squares.

In Miss Perkins' 9B French classes a vocabulary test was given recently and those who made 100 are: Aileen Hauck, Jane McElwain, George Obinger, Dick Gingley, Mary Lee Moning, Bob Sanford, and Jane Worthington.

In a test over the subjunctive mood held in Miss Perkins' French 3 class James Sweet made A+; Jo Anne Smith made 95 on a recent idiom test in Miss Perkins' French 4 class.

Did you wonder who were the people that made that grand little corner called "Our Gifts From Rome" about Latin derivatives? Well, the class is Miss Woodward's Latin 5 or Cicero class. The only one in the school.

Those who made 100 in a test on Sorab and Rustum in Miss DeLancey's classes are: Joan Bonsib, Grace Collins, Ann Peters, Sylvester Becker, Helen Cox, and Mary Ellen Kelley.

Miss DeLancey has a great number of students who have completed their outside reading points. These are: Betty Bolyard, Richard Craighead, Ernest Boer, Margie Quakenbush, Natalie Brenner, Ann Peters, Lorraine Quakenbush, George Kempf, Florence Peters, Floyd Menze, Joan Bonsib, Herman Akenbruck, Margaret Sheffield, Helen Cox, Dorothy Diem, Rita Murchland, Maxine Swaim, Marjorie Crago, and Norman Budde.

P. G. Classes Collect Specimens at Park

Last Wednesday, the Physical Geography 1 classes went out to Memorial Park in search of rocks of which they are making a collection. They left immediately after school, under the supervision of Mr. Whelan, and arrived at the park at 4 o'clock. Several boys brought sledge hammers along so that they may crack open the rocks and identify them. Mr. Whelan gave talks about different rocks, and the students took several specimens home with them.

How To Prepare For a Test? Just Read, and Ye Shall Learn

An all important subject, namely tests, which determine happiness or sorrow of students, participation or non-participation in sports, and graduating or just dropping out of school, seems to be attacked in different ways. Yes, my bright students, the well-known subject of tests. Sleepless nights, feverish preparations, and a haggard hour, are well known acquaintances.

As the student progresses in school, both in actions and age, various methods of attack seem to be used. The mature students, seniors to you, seem to be the best source of questioning, and I suppose they are. However, all the other classes come in this class, because "Don't we all have tests?"

The teachers, too, have their opinions, and after due consideration, they are pronounced the most reliable source. The various opinions have been freely given, and could probably give the less brilliant students an idea or two.

Teachers Give Opinions

Miss Alice J. Patterson—"A thorough review on a carefully made outline, to enable one to relate all important facts. In relation to gymnasium—a review of theory and technique, as well as practice of technique and plays. The same applies to dancing as well."

Mr. Benjamin Null—"It depends upon the type of study involved. In history and science, note books could be used, but in other subjects, use a continuous review of daily subjects and be prepared when the test comes."

Miss Emma Kiefer—"The method of study depends upon first, the subject and second, the nature of the test. There's not one way to apply to all tests. For literature, use an outline as a guide, and read the selection proper thoughtfully. If punctuation, be familiar enough with rules to apply them to sentences. The grammar test depends upon a clear outline and essentials discussed in class."

Mr. A. Verne Flint—"They should keep an up-to-date record of all the important principals in mathematics and be familiar with them. Review these things when it comes time for a test. A record of each type of problem would aid in review and act as a reference source. In general, have an organized notebook. This applies to mathematics; other subjects would be different."

Students Driving Cars Must Secure Permits

All students who drive to school are requested to secure a special slip at the office, fill it out, have their parents sign it, and return it to the office. This is a special regulation which is ordered by the Bureau of Safety. Another regulation is that any student who drives to school with another student should fill out a similar slip, having it signed by his parents, and returning it to the office. It is hoped that everyone will comply with these safety measures.

Art Club Plans Big Afternoon, Varied Exhibit

A. Abbett Presents Drama,
Betty Roose, Tap Dance,
Marjorie Dancer, Music.

Final plans for the big fall feature of the Art Club, "The Arts Afternoon," to be held in the Greeley Room on Wednesday, November 13, have been announced by Georgianna Jacobs, president. The affair is to be a part of National Education Week program, and it promises to be an unusual one. The program for the afternoon is under the direction of Sonia Velkoff. An interesting exhibit from the Little Art Colony of Stillwater, Minnesota, will illustrate graphic arts. This is under the direction of Kenneth Scott. Mr. F. Stark, an instructor at the Fort Wayne Art School, will give a demonstration to show plastic art. Betty Roose, who will present a classical tap dance called "Poet and Peasant." She will be accompanied on the piano by Florence McGaffay. Drama will be illustrated by a monologue entitled "Renting An Apartment," given by Ann Abbett. Music for the program will be under the direction of Marjorie Dancer. She will present a vocal solo, and an instrumental number will be given by a member of the music department. During the whole afternoon the Little Symphony will furnish the music.

A very interesting student exhibit will be hung in the hall outside the Greeley Room. These will be mostly water color made by the art classes who are learning the new technique which is demonstrated in the Little Art Colony exhibit. This part of the program is under the direction of Janet Fisher.

The affair will be in the form of a tea. Georgianna Jacobs, president of Art Club, and Elizabeth Linhart, vice-president, will pour. Hostesses who will serve include Ann Hull, Martha Franz, Judy Kroeff, Max Roth, Virginia Vesey, Rosemary Chappell, Marjorie Mitten, Selma Liff, Joan Bonsib, Mary Martha Hobrock, Ellen Woods, Marie Mitchell, and Frances Craig. Hospitality committee are: Joan Bonsib, Delbert Leininger, Lois Logue, Louis Bomsh, Georgianna Martin, and Norman Miller.

Attractive invitations have been designed and made by Sonia Velkoff, Louis Bonsib, and Maxine Roth.

Marionette Club To Produce Play Puppeteers Will Give "Ali Baba And Forty Thieves" Sometime Before Christmas Vacation.

"Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," an old Arabian Nights play, was chosen by the Marionette Club as its annual production to be held in the study hall sometime before the Christmas vacation period. The play was announced at the last regular meeting of the club which was held last Thursday evening in the workshop.

The famous play will include a prologue and four acts, and the entire production will use eight principal puppet characters, along with a small band of robbers. Julia McClune Flory, renowned authority on puppets and play adaptations, wrote the dialogue, setting requirements, and designed the costumes for the play.

A play committee composed of Tom Sellers as chairman, Lorraine Meyer, Eliza Bess Lucas, Lillian Sherbondy, and Mary Anne Park, was in charge of choosing the play to be used.

After a short business meeting, the members of the club worked on marionette heads, which will be used for the characters in the play. Acceptable head models were turned in by Janice Dyer, LaVerne Boyce, Lillian Sherbondy, and Kenneth Scott. After the molds were set, a plaster of Paris cast was made for each head, and the real heads were made of plastic wood molded into the casts. Ruth Eylesberg, LaVerne Boyce, and Norman Buddie were responsible for obtaining supplies used in the making of the heads.

Betty Ann Schaaf, a senior in South Side, underwent a tonsil operation last Thursday morning at the Lutheran Hospital. She is now at home recuperating.

Legion Suggests Armistice Day Be National American Holiday

Last Monday, November 11, marked the seventeenth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, the important document which ended the greatest war of all time, the World War. In the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, the Armistice was signed in Palace of Versailles. On this day the Allies and Central Powers in the World War ceased hostilities and thus heralded the dawn of peace.

At present in the United States, Armistice Day is only a local holiday. It is established by law in twenty-three states. In some of the other states, the governor by proclamation declares it a holiday, but observation of it remains optional with individuals.

The American Legion very properly urges that it should be made a national holiday, and stresses several reasons why this should be established. If Armistice Day could be made a general holiday, it would be the one occasion which would serve distinctly as a memorial to peace. It would be the one holiday which should appeal equally to the people of America and Europe, to the former allies, and to the former foes.

Heads Art Committee

George Anna Jacobs

George Anna Jacobs will serve as chairman of the appointments committee for the "The Arts Afternoon," the big fall feature of the Art Club. Miss Jacobs is now serving in the capacity of president of this club.

Mid-Term Will End Friday, November 8

All work due by the end of mid-semester should be in by Friday, November 8, because that is the last day of the nine-weeks' grade period. The grades will be given out on Tuesday, November 12.

Junior Mothers Will Attend Tea

To Be Held At 2:30 Monday;
Mrs. Storm To Be Chairman;
Miss Pittenger Is Speaker.

All mothers of the students in the junior class will be entertained at a tea given in their honor next Monday afternoon at 2:30 in the high school cafeteria.

Mrs. T. Storm, general chairman of the group, assisted by several committees has planned a program based on the theme of Armistice Day. Miss Martha Pittenger, our dean, will speak to the mothers on "Personal Opportunities and Welfare Work." "Planning for College" will be discussed by Mr. R. Nelson Snider. Ruth Garrison and Vernon Miller are the students who will speak at the tea.

Ruth will talk on Armistice Day, while Vernon will speak about National Education Week.

Music will be furnished by the South Side music department, after which will be a time for questions and answers.

Those helping Mrs. Storm are Mrs. C. D. Hoff, program; Mrs. Roy Rippe, hostess chairman, assisted by the Mesdames C. G. Cleaver, Holmes, C. G. Geyer, A. L. Foellinger, N. Zehr, C. Strawbridge, E. D. Lehman, and P. Bandt.

The mothers' gym class will meet next Monday evening in the gymnasium under the direction of Miss Alice Patterson. Dues for the semester are fifty cents.

Two Get Positions On College Annual

Elinor Sieber and Paul Deal, Former Times Managers, Are Chosen To Serve On Arbutus.

Elinor Sieber and Paul Deal, two prominent South Side graduates of the class of 1934, have recently been appointed to positions on the Arbutus, Indiana University yearbook.

Elinor, who was general manager of the Times, was chosen as sophomore editorial assistant; and Paul, another general manager, was appointed sophomore business manager.

Besides being at the head of the Times staff, Elinor was a member of Meterites, Math-Science, Travel, Philo, Wranglers, French, National Honor Society, Quill and Scroll, 1500 Club treasurer, and Art vice-president.

Paul, in addition to his journalistic triumphs listed Math-Science, Booster, Travel, Wranglers, Art, National Honor Society, Quill and Scroll, and 1500 Club vice-president and secretary as his activities.

School Pupils Will Observe Armistice Day

Dr. Porter To Be Principal
Speaker; Stage Settings
In Charge Of Bob Adams.

In observance of the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of November, 1918, South Side High School has planned for Monday morning a school assembly entirely devoted to Armistice Day. The principal speaker of the morning is to be Dr. Miles Porter, who is an American Legion Post member. Dr. Porter completed his studies in both Williams College and Harvard Medical School in seven years, after which he began practicing. During the war, the close of which we are about to celebrate once more, Dr. Porter had charge of a hospital at Camp Humphreys in Virginia, where he saw many of the most ghastly tragedies of the war.

Brilliant Student
Wherever he has gone, he has made a splendid record; in one case, in his German class, he was capable enough to reverse matters and teach the class instead of learning with it.

The stage for the entire program is to be under the general charge of Robert Adams, Social Science Club president. The Rev. William M. Vincent of the Third Presbyterian Church will lead the invocation, salute and pledge to the flag, led by Jack Stump, will be given by the entire student body and guests. The South Side High School band will play for the program, and Mr. Wainwright, its director, will conduct a flag-raising ceremony. Besides the assembly, students will hold programs in honor of the day in their various home rooms.

Bryce Minier Is Rotary Club Guest

Most Outstanding Members Of Schools Selected As Delegates
To Attend Regular Meetings.

Bryce Minier, general manager of the Times, attended the Monday dinner meeting of the Fort Wayne Rotary Club as a special guest.

Each week, over a four-week period, Bryce will be permitted to attend the regular meetings of the club. A delegate is selected from each of the high schools, on the basis of scholarship and activity, each month. That delegate will attend for the four week period assigned.

Steve Sitko, outstanding member of Central High School's football squad, is the present delegate from that school. North Side's representative is Ralph Hengstler, president of the senior class.

Next Monday, the delegates to the dinner will sit with a member of the club who is prominent in the field of work in which they are especially interested.

Student Players Give Comic Play At Meeting

At the third meeting of the Student Players Club, Miss Suter announced that the deadline for paying dues would be December 6. This is the date of the next meeting. Anybody who has not paid his dues yet should give them to Barbara Uran, secretary-treasurer. Miss Suter also announced that Central Student Players are going to give their senior play, "Shavings," on November 16. There will be besides a night performance, a matinee for students.

A play given by the members of the committee was the feature of the program. The play, entitled "The Screen," was a comedy. The characters are Charles Hart, William Dodge; Maxine Rippe, Sylvia Dodge; Mary Louise Holmes, Rita; and Don Sparkman, John.

Besides the play, Catherine Allendorph read a poem "Shadow on the Blind" and the string quartet played two selections. Betty Jeanne Bond announced the various parts of the program.

The Rev. C. M. Houser Speaks To Wranglers

Wrangler's met together in the Greeley Room Monday both for carrying on an important business meeting and for observing the coming holiday, Armistice Day. Due to the illness of the club's president, Dave Steger, Gwendolyn Horn presided over the meeting and introduced the participants in the program.

A talk in keeping with the theme of the meeting was given by Ann Abbett. Her subject was, "What Armistice Day Means to Youth and What Public Speakers Can Do About It." Following her talk, Velma Lehman played several selections on the accordion; "Broadway Lights," "In a Little Gypsy Bar Room," and "Treasure Island."

The concluding talk was given by the Rev. Charles M. Houser, who not only dealt with the grim and ghastly side of it, but also with many of the humorous incidents of war.

Travel Club To Hear Talk About Clifty Falls

Travel Club will visit a point of interest nearer home at their next meeting on Wednesday. Clifty Falls in southern Indiana will be their destination. Verna Holtman, who has visited Clifty Falls many times, will guide the travelers through the park. Points of interest around the park will also be discussed.

A novelty of the program will be a tap dance featuring Helen Gray. Refreshments in keeping with the theme will also be served.

At the last meeting it was decided that Travel Club correspond with Theodore Roosevelt High School at Glendale, California. Any suggestions on what to write about to this high school will be gladly received from any member of Travel Club.

Junior Class Plans Banquet On Nov. 22

Contrary to the custom of having the Junior Prom and Junior Banquet in the spring, both on the same night, the present junior class will have its annual banquet earlier in the year, on Friday, November 22 at 11 o'clock in the cafeteria. The Junior Prom will be held sometime during the spring months as usual. This change is being made in order to avoid the rush and confusion on the night of this event.

At the present, the class officers and the faculty advisers, Mr. Lloyd K. Whelan and Miss Hazel Miller, are working on elaborate plans to make this one of the big events of the year. The theme has not been decided nor has the price, but details will be announced next week. The banquet is for all juniors, but other classmates, South Side alumni, and friends of South Siders may attend if they so desire.

Totem Of 1935 Gets Medalist Contest Award

Yearbook Gets High Ratings
Against Others In Class;
Bill Hockett Is Editor.

In the 1935 First Annual Yearbook Critique and Contest, the South Side Totem was placed in the Medalist class of Senior High Schools of 1501-2500 enrollment. In all there were 105 books entered from all parts of the United States.

In the critique each book is compared with the other books in its own class. Emphasis is placed on the student effort and activity in producing their book. In the rating for the Totem it was awarded 92 points out of a possible 100. The rating is listed as follows:

Rating Is Listed
In the idea of the book the Totem was given fourteen out of fifteen points. The editorial theme with an explanatory forward was very well introduced. The first part of the book was closely tied together, but no mention was made of the Tercentenary in the last pages.

The layout was given eighteen out of twenty points. The book in general was very attractive and effective, but a few of the pages were hard to read because of the spacing. All the summaries and statistics made complete stories.

The editorial content received 29 out of 30 points. The book gave a complete cross-section of the school that was above the average. Also all the classes were well represented. Most of the cuts were identified, but a few were not. The copy in general was written in an interesting and lively manner.

Rating Is High

The photography was given eight out of a possible ten points. The pictures varied very little in quality. The amateur pictures deserved to be given a big hand.

The engraving received nine points out of ten. In general all the cuts were finished in the same fashion and also most of the cuts were of the proper size.

The printing and typography was given nine of the possible ten points. The type is reasonably uniform throughout the book and the type face is easy to read.

In the paper stock and cover, the book received the perfect score of five points. The cover conforms with the book very much and the cover designs harmonize very well with the inside of the book.

The major staff members who published the issue included: Bill Hockett, editor; Lloyd Grodrian, business manager; Berneta McIntosh, business manager; Martha Baumgartner, circulation manager; Paul Reynolds, photographer; Arleth Carvin, organization manager; Susanne Meyer, assignment editor; Dorothy Fathauer, Frederick Prange, and Ellis Lochner, copy editors.

Faculty Contributes To Chest

Each year South Side teachers and employees are asked to contribute to the Community Chest Drive, which comes once a year. This year the contributions have amounted to $751 so far. No certain amount is specified, and everyone is free to give as much as he wishes. The amount that South Side contributed at one time amounted to $1600.

Armistice Day Assembly Speakers

Rev. W. N. Vincent

Elaborate plans are being made for the Armistice Day assembly. The Rev. William N. Vincent will lead the invocation. Dr. Miles Porter will be the principal speaker at the celebration.

Bryce Minier Elected Club Group Leader

Morgan Harrison Is Elected Secretary; Nineteen Are Representatives To Club.

At the first meeting of the Inter-Club Congress last Monday, Bryce Minier was elected president and Morgan Harrison, secretary. The club, which is made up of one representative from each club in South Side, is formed to take over problems and projects which come up in school.

Mr. Flint, one of the advisors, explained the purpose and some of the good results brought about by last year's betterment campaigns.

Beginning with this year, Inter-Club Congress is to be organized as a regular club. Miss Keifer suggested that a constitution be made up. Since the club is the advisory body of the whole school, it will make plans for a drive for students to take more pride in the appearance of their school. Members will be asked for their ideas about it at the next meeting.

Since the first and third Mondays of every month seem to be convenient for nearly all members, it was decided that they will be the regular meeting days.

Following is the list of members with the club they represent: Elinor White, Writers; Eldora Buesking, U. S. A.; Kenny Scott, Art and Marionette; Theo Schurenberg, French; Morgan Harrison, Hi-Y; Fred Thomas, Good Will; Verna Holtman, Philo; Catheryn Allendorph, So-Si-Y; Margaret Crankshaw, Travel; Dorothy Hull, Meterites; Ruth Morris, Wo-Ho-Ma; Iona Shuler, Sunshine; Roy Roadcap, Radio; Ruth Roadcap, Social Science; Bryce Minier, Times; John Thackery, Philatelic; Lois Wyneken, Math-Science; Vera Ellinger, Library; and Delbert Leininger, Wranglers.

Mr. Flint, Mr. Bex and Miss Keifer are the club's advisors.

Junior-Math Has Halloween Party

Refreshments And Masquerade
Are Main Attractions; Paid
Members Only Are Admitted.

At a Halloween masquerade held by Junior-Math Club in the Greeley room last Friday, the members enjoyed games and refreshments appropriate for the Halloween season.

Paid members only were admitted. This party took the place of a regular meeting for this week.

The committee in charge for this program was comprised of Allen Garrison, chairman, assisted by Maurice Boyce, Jack Horn, Mildred Mitchell, Marion Roehrs, and Mary Jane Klomp.

Philatelic Club Holds Skating Party At Bell's

An unusually large crowd, lots of skating, and attendance prizes were the outstanding features of the first skating party held by the Philatelic Society this fall. One hundred twenty-seven tickets were sold by club members. The ticket committee consisted of John Jackson, chairman; Emily Lepper, and Reginald Greig; attendance prize, Dorothy Aldridge; transportation, Dalton McAlister, chairman; Donald Schaefer, and Fisher Rehner; publicity, Jane Loomis, chairman; Rosemary Shea, Marjorie Craig, Marion Bell, and Allen Tremper. The success of this party was due chiefly to the co-operation of the various committees who assisted John Jackson.

Around two hundred people in all attended the party. Nearly fifteen dollars profit was made this year. This is a much better showing than last year, as the sales then amounted to only twelve dollars.

The chaperones for the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Elma Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Davis, Miss Martha Pittenger, and Miss Mary Crowe. Two attendance prizes were given out. They were two boxes of delicious candy.

The Halloween decorations were left up and served to decorate the rink. Mr. Bell, proprietor, and his assistants helped the few beginners. This was one of the most outstanding affairs held at the rink this fall.

The Philatelic Society will hold their next meeting Wednesday afternoon, November 13, in the Greeley Room. The chairman of the program for this meeting will be Rosemary Shea. The club will also discuss plans for a stamp auction in the future.

Heads Philos

Ruth Adler

Much of the success of the Philo Ark dance Saturday night will be due to the leadership displayed by Ruth Adler, president of the club, in directing the arrangements for the affair.

25c Totem Payment Is Due This Friday

The first Totem payment of 25 cents will be due Friday, November 8. There will be monthly payments until April 15. All payments should be paid at the Totem office. There is still plenty of time in which to subscribe for the Totem.

Three Alumni Are Named As Officers

R. O. T. C. Honors Former Archers; John Slick, Bob Masters, Paul Mielke Are Officials.

Three alumni of South Side were honored at Indiana University by being named R. O. T. C. cadet officers. Those boys who were honored are John Slick, Robert Masters, and Paul Mielke.

While at South Side, John Slick was active in football, the Glee Club, Hi-Y, Travel Club, Wranglers, Torch, Math-Science, 1500, Times and honor roll. He was also president of Student Players' and played in "Gadget," "Isle," and "Erstwhile Susan."

Robert Masters played in the band and was active in the Glee Club, 1500 and Times staff.

Paul Mielke was a president and a vice-president of Wranglers, program chairman for Art Club, Hi-Y chaplain, and circulation manager for the Totem. He was an extemporaneous speaker, and was active in intramural tennis, Travel Club, 1500, Times, Quill and Scroll, and was a member of the National Honor Society. He was very active in Student Players, taking part in the senior play, "Teapot on the Rocks," and "Reunion at Pine Knot Ranch."

Math-Science Club To Hear Mathews

To Speak About Water System;
Margaret Crankshaw To Talk;
Ruth Adler Named Chairman.

Mr. R. L. Mathews, of the Fort Wayne Waterworks, will be the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Math-Science Club tomorrow evening at 7:30 in the Greeley Room. His topic, "Fort Wayne Water System," will cover the water system, the treatment, and the results, showing water as it is in the river and the changes taking place until it is a regular drinking water.

Margaret Crankshaw, a member of the club, will talk on mathematics. John Bex, president of the club, announced that there will be a discussion on a new song for Math-Science.

After the meeting and program, refreshments will be served.

Ruth Adler, social chairman, is in general charge of the meeting.

Poulter Gives Lectures
Dr. T. Poulter, second in command of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, opened a series of seventeen lectures on his scientific observations to the South Pole to the students of Shorewood High School, Milwaukee, Wis.

Armistice Day, Silent Tribute In Memory Of Close Of War

Whistles rent the busy air
Of people hurrying here and there;
Then silence, filling each man's room,
Spoke, though it talked not, of banished gloom.

War with all its tragedies was declared at an end seventeen years ago at the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of November. It was then that a German delegation arrived at the headquarters of Marshal Foch to negotiate an armistice; and, although it was probable that the general could have continued the war and have forced German surrender, he agreed to a treaty as he did not wish to needlessly sacrifice lives just for a spectacular triumph. On that day the gentleman urged the people to insure a continuance of peace; he emphasized that something binding was more essential than facts and pledges and treaties and ententes. Marshal Foch gave a special message to the Americans, telling them that France salutes them in remembrance and affection for their deeds, their happy natures, their fine comradeship, their abilities, and courage. This date, which we call Armistice Day, has since been widely and sacredly observed as one of great importance to all humanity; that armistice agreement, which heralded the dawn of peace, is of international significance and should be hallowed by everyone. When we realize the vastness of the sacrifices that were made, then we truly appreciate the release. We must remember that for some the war is not over yet, for they are permanently wounded, lifted out of their own generation and civilization; for these people every day is simply a repetition of the former one. War cost over $384,000,000,000; one can hardly conceive of just how much money this really is.

Today formal ceremonies, flying flags, church services, school programs, and minutes of silent tribute are all a part of our allegiance to the event of November 11, 1918. Down through the years, our presidents have made talks especially dealing with the preservation of peace forever. South Side High School, therefore, along with many other schools all over the world observes this day of rejoicing. We try to appreciate fully the true meaning it holds for us.

Philos Finish Arrangements Of Fall Dance

Fifty Cents Couple Charge;
Mary Martha Hobrock In Charge Of Ticket Sales.

Archer's Ark Set For November 9

Hop Is On Evening Of Central Game; Chairmen Of Event Are Announced.

Arrangements for the annual Philaethian Fall Dance to be held Saturday, November 9, in the Greeley Room, have been completed under the general chairmanship of Ruth Adler, president of the club.

The annual fall dance is marked in importance by the Central-South Side football game. The theme decided upon for the event this year is Archer's Ark. Decorations will be carried out in accordance under the direction of Maxine Borchert and Sonia Velkoff. Dick Shack and his orchestra have been secured to play for the dance from 8:00 until 12:00.

The price of admittance is fifty cents per couple or thirty-five cents stag. Tickets may be purchased from Mary Martha Hobrock or any Philaethian member. During the evening there will be several prizes awarded and many other interesting features. The chairmen for the dance are Rosemary Chappell, orchestra; Mary Martha Hobrock, tickets; Maxine Borchert and Sonia Velkoff, decorations; Helen Anderson, program; and Jane Loomis, publicity.

At a meeting of the Philaethian Thespians held Thursday evening, October 31, a good play practice was given. The play that is to be given is called "Seven to One," a comedy in one act. The people taking part in this first play are: Betty Davenport, Joan Kennedy, Maxine Mariotte, Bernadette Dyer, Helen Doenges, Selma Liff, Geneva Shearer, and Gwen Horn. The property managers are Helen Doenges and Theo Schurenberg. "Work will also begin immediately on another play called 'No Men Wanted,' Miss Demaree, the faculty advisor said.

The next meeting of the Philaethians will be held Monday, November 11. Ann Abbett, Helen Doenges, Selma Liff, and Mary Martha Hobrock have charge of the program for this meeting. The topic will be the New York Group in America in Literature.

Home Rooms Will Celebrate Nov. 11

Armistice Talks To Be Given;
National Education Week To Be Observed At Same Time.

The week of November 11 is of great importance to the students of South Side, for on Monday the seventeenth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice will be observed by thousands of people all over the United States; and Monday also signifies the beginning of National Education Week in the schools.

The students of the different home rooms have planned similar ways by which to celebrate these two forthcoming events. Many of the rooms are in charge of committees who made the plans for their respective rooms.

Room 76 will observe Armistice Day by saluting the flag, and by discussing various things in connection with the day. During National Education Week, different topics taken from the Journal of the National Education Association will be discussed.

The students in Room 35 will sing the verses of the Star Spangled Banner on Armistice Day. Items from the Journal will also be discussed during the week.

In observance of National Education Week most of the home rooms will talk about various topics suggested by the journal of the association.

Many of the rooms have been so busy with last week's work on program cards and other school activities that no programs have been planned for next week.

The students of room 140 are feverishly working to complete their programs in order to receive the candy that Miss Magley promised them. This will be their Armistice Day program.

Building Air Castles

Today we live in an age of miracles. Every once in a while some scientist, inventor, or executive discovers a new process or plan which revolutionizes modern industry and opens up countless opportunities for still greater achievements. The wildest dreams of our forefathers have become matter-of-fact realities of today. We fly through the air at terrific speed, the sound of the human voice carries around the world in an instant, and scientists and doctors cure the most loathsome disease through simple means. Who is wise enough to foretell what tomorrow may bring?

Consider the present-day economic situation with its high prices, its unrest and its staggering industrial problems. Does the solution lie within the law makers, monetary commissions, or boards of arbitration? Yes, to a certain extent, but in plain common sense, the sanctions of today and tomorrow lie on inventors, scientists, doctors, executives, and the ordinary man or woman who builds air castles. All through the ages of history we may trace man's development and continued improvement in terms of inventions and discovery. When the world calls for more food, clothing, shelter, medical treatment, fuel, and mechanical devices, it remains for the inventors or the engineers to increase production and improve methods of transportation and communication, to supply the demand. It was so in the past and so shall it be in the future.

Specialization Brings Results

Many persons have wondered which it is better to be: a master of one work or a jack of all trades. This question is constantly appearing in the minds of young people who want to plan their careers.

The answer is obvious. If any person of average intelligence sticks to one thing all his life, he can hardly help being a success at it, but if he tries several trades, he is very likely to be a "jack of all trades, and master of none."

Realizing this, you may have the answer to the question of how many clubs or activities you should join. There have been bright students who have joined many clubs, participated in athletics, and still got good grades in their curricular subjects. However, these are exceptions. The average student is not so capable of doing so many things and doing them well.

A division of interest often brings poor grades to many underclassmen. Each club and activity has its own particular attraction for a student, and an entering student sometimes is so attracted by so many activities that he tries to take part in all those he likes.

Then the student gets poor grades in his subjects. Consequently, he becomes discouraged and begins to dislike school. He finds fault with the teachers and everything about school. He is cynical about his grades.

One should not carry all his eggs in one basket, but if one separates them too much, it's hard to keep track of them.

Don't Knock Opportunity

Success is another word for the modern American. Its appeal is common to all of us.

And yet few of us today are willing to pay the price of acquiring it. It is natural for us not to forego our pleasures, or to make unreasonable sacrifices. Our most earnest plans for the future somehow seem never to materialize at all, with the result that before we realize it, our opportunities are all in the past. History records us among the millions who wasted their opportunities.

There are thousands of people today who are taking advantage of their opportunities. They may be slaving away in humble positions; they may be the people we disdain to notice; they may seem to be most miserable failures today; but tomorrow, if they appreciate their opportunities and apply themselves, they will rule the earth. No matter what position they now hold, they will get ahead if they really try.

If an opportunity comes in either school, home, at the game, or in everyday life, take it immediately, or you will be sorry later. If an opportunity fails to exist, try to create one.

Carrying On

With Norman Buck

One of the most difficult things in the world is to be deliberately humorous. Fully aware of this fact, I shall not endeavor to be funny. I shall merely make statements of fact and let your imagination do the rest.

Believe you me, it is an entirely different problem writing a sports column and writing an editorial column. In a sports column, the author may comment upon the last game and express his view about the encounter. He may write at considerable length without indulging in personalities. In features like this one, the writer must wreck his brain for days to think of something to say that will not prompt any kind soul to knock his block off.

Two weeks ago in this same column, Ray Ballweg, administered a goodly dig at my tag-football team. Ray is now a member of that team. Tra la! Speaking of football reminds me of the excellence of Jim Sweet as a gridder. As a football player, Jim makes a fine Times editor. Millie Foellinger just waltzed into the room with a far-away look in her eye. She looked that way the night she bit my ear at a Halloween party.

Ned Henslee started out with a group of football players recently to celebrate Halloween. He spent a good portion of the evening talking to Jean Bollman. Needless to say, Ben Woodhull wasn't along. Tops in something occurred when Morgan Harrison pleaded with the same gang not to perform any of their work at the residence of Ward Gilbert. Morg claimed that Mr. Gilbert was too nice a man to bother.

Martha Franz, Virginia Baumgartner, and Betty Kreisher spent last Thursday evening downtown throwing soap chips at people. It is indeed too bad they didn't throw some at Bob Storm, accompanied by a bucket of water. That would be one way of giving Bob his long-forgotten bath.

Things I would like a picture of: thirty-five fellows scattering in all directions aided by the occupants of a squad car; the expression on Joan Bonsib's face when someone calls her a chubby little rascal; the expression on Gwen Horn's face under the same circumstances; the expression on any girl's face when someone tells her the same thing. Incidentally, Gwen didn't like it very well when Bill Epmeier (that platinum blonde) remarked, "Well, when did you roll in?"

Dave Arnold, of Central, threatened murder if I ever mentioned the fact that he perambulated home with Charlotte Kern after a recent tea dance. But then, that's the life of a columnist. Why is it that Jack Birkenbeul always refuses to play football, even of the tag variety? Mary Kay Connell, that awful thing, comes through with a crack to the effect that when a girl has chapped lips, she should stay away from the chaps. Such foolosophy.

I never knew that Ruth Adler was conceited until two minutes ago. When I asked her how my pal was, she thought I was referring to her. In reality I was inquiring about the health of Morgan Harrison. An easy way to commit suicide is to call Lois Wyneken a star. Another simple method is to muss up the mess of wool on the back of Martha Zelt's head.

Do you remember technocracy? Do you remember Paul Johnson, former South Side stude and one of the Archers' original three horsemen? He moved to Des Moines some time ago, where he became vice-president of his class. Ed Wilding of North Side had a big fine time at the North Side-South Side game, giving Ben Tenny the razberries for picking the Archers to win. While backing up the line on defense Fred Ostermeyer constantly sings, "Everything's Okie Dokie." Bud Feichter also has a pet song, but we could not put it in this column.

Start saving your pennies, nickels, and sales-tax tokens, kiddies. There are only thirty-nine shopping days till Christmas.

Who's Who in Archerland

Imagine a personage having the assets of a John Barrymore, a Jack Dempsey, a Pulitzer, and an Andrew Carnegie all mixed together to make one extraordinary human. It is rather difficult to separate these different talents and give an accurate description of each one—but here goes—

First we'll consider the John B. (arrymore) side of our well-known John B. (ex). He has participated in several dramatic productions in South Side. Among them are several Latin Club plays where John displayed not only his acting ability but also his powers of "Magna cum lauda."

Next, we'll consider the Jack Dempsey side of Mr. Bex. John is not exactly a fighter in the ring, but when it comes to a battle of words it takes more than ten to count him out. Of course, he does go in for physical sports, also. He enjoys football immensely and is out for intramural sports.

Next, let's take his Pulitzer qualities. John has been an active member of the Times staff ever since he has been in high school. He is now the business manager of the school paper. He is a member of 1500 Club and has a gold-jeweled Times pin. At the press convention in Franklin, John was elected president of the Indiana High School Press Association.

His Andrew Carnegie abilities have been acquired by his knack of being diplomatic, a leader, and having a good business head. John is the vice-president of Social Science Club and the president of Math-Science. He is a member of Booster and Student Players' Clubs, also.

With the coming of cold weather, it will be hard to tell whether some girls' faces have too much rouge on or whether it's just a cold look that makes them so red.

Recent movie was entitled The Dark Angel. Starring Joe Louis?

Shoes and Ships

This week I shall show the ancestry of several of our "cuss" words. Profanity? Not in this column.

The words for this week include concuss, percuss, incuss, and repercuss. In all the words the final syllable comes from the Latin participle quassus (cussus in compounds) meaning struck or beaten. The meaning of the above verbs depend on their prefixes. They mean respectively, to strike together; to strike through; to strike upon or against; and to strike through and back again.

Although most of these verbs are out of use, they still have close relatives which we know and use; namely, concussion, percussion and reperccusion.

Secrets to Seventeens

Fit In—Most high school girls and boys are in the adolescent stage and don't know whether to act grown up or act young and silly. There is a question in the girls' minds as to whether they should wear gloves and hats, and the boys wonder if they can get by in sweaters and trousers or if they should wear suits.

Think about the gang you're going with; are they very formal or very informal? Make up your mind and dress accordingly. Inquire around and find out what the other kids are going to wear. It's all right to be individual, but don't look out of place.

Your actions usually are a constant source of bother. You are torn between the desires to be a lady and to be a tomboy. Here, again, the best thing to do is to do what the crowd does. If they act sophisticated, you follow suit; if they want to "tear around," enter into the fun.

Be An Ideal Guest—Don't sit back and let your hostess worry about you because you don't seem to be having a good time. Maybe you don't like to play bridge, and you just hate to duck for apples because it messes up your make-up, but do your part to make your hostess' party successful. Never pair off with your boy friend or girl friend and sit snugly for an hour or so. If you don't want to play, don't go to parties. Learn to dance so you can get your own partners.

Be able to talk to anyone, be entertaining, and, for goodness sake, keep your pep. Nothing is so disgusting as a sleepy party. See what your hostess really means it when she says, "Do come back again."

We want to learn Hawaiian; We want to go and coo; For we are getting sick and tired Of "hoop hoop hoop a doo." Instead of saying "hot cha"; Instead of "whoopie" too, Hawaiian will roll off our tongue; It will be something new! We want to go Kaluan; We'd love to talk Haiku; There's nothing Honolulu much That we can't copy too.

FABLE—Bill Weaver got into the elevator and called out the twenty-first floor.

A voice in the corner called out, "Hello, Bill. Remember me?"

He turned and saw one of his high school classmates, Joe Robertson. He hadn't seen him since they had graduated sixteen years ago. Joe had changed a lot. He looked as if the combined forces of time and work had worn him down.

They fell to talking of the old days in school. Joe talked much of football games, dances, and old practical jokes he had played. He had gone through high school like a breeze.

Bill had little to say. He hadn't enjoyed high school much. He had had a great desire to get it all over with and get a job. After he had graduated, he had spent much time in employment offices, and finally got a small job with a printing company. He didn't care much for the job, but printing had always interested him.

Still talking, they got off the elevator together.

Joe had gone through college. He had been elected president of his class, played backfield football, and nearly flunked his studies. He had had a great time, he said.

Bill was silent. He thought of the struggle he had gone through after graduation, and smiled inwardly.

After miscellaneous comments on baseball, the weather, and business in general, and a "hope I'll see you again," Bill went into an office.

"William J. Weaver, President, The United States Printing Corporation," the sign on the door said.

Joe trudged on down the hall. He paused at a sign which said "Shoe Salesmen Wanted," and entered a nearby door.

TOUGH EGG—We hear that our friend Joe Close throws eggs on Halloween. Maybe it comes from tossing basketballs around so proficiently.

YES MAN?—We heard one fellow say uh-huh forty-five times to a teacher recently. That, we contend, is the school championship.

Keeping Up Appearances

By Helen Kelsey

Militaristic tailoring in every possible detail sets the pace for the wardrobe of the "miss" and "mister" of high school. The military influence shows up in suits, hats, shoes, sweaters, coats, frocks, gloves, and bags, both masculine and feminine. Franklin M. Reek, noted boy fashionist, states, "Fully three-fourths of the boys who are buying a suit will buy a double-breasted coat because they're a bit smarter and more military." Observation of the feminine parade show definitely the military influence, both because it is slenderizing and ultra-smart.

Dubonnet Wool Popular

Forrestine Valentine, a member of the advanced sewing class, has just finished a dress that any girl would be glad to make room for in her wardrobe. It is of the new "dubonnet" shade of sheer wool. The double-breasted blouse is adorned with four hexagon-shaped buttons in harmony with the color of the dress. The V-neckline is bounded by a triangular turnback collar on each side. At the wrist of the plain-tailored sleeves are inverted circular cuffs. The cuffs are uniquely fashioned with small buttons identical to those of the front of the blouse. Brown accessories consisting of an ascot tie, held in place with a silver and gold hexagon shaped pin with Forrestine's initials in the center (a gift direct from New York), suede oxfords, "envelope" bag of blocked leather, felt tam with a stunning feather, and kid gloves complete the costume.

Knitted Togs Featured

The exceedingly new color scheme of gold and wine is presented in the wine shade velvet suit and gold satin blouse worn by Alice Karn. The most outstanding feature of the jacket is the half belt and large box pleat in the back. The skirt is unusually simple and well tailored. A Russian neckline fastening in the back with a metal buckle is one of the top-notch features of the blouse. Large puff sleeves, held tightly at the wrist; an inverted pleat down the front of the blouse terminating at the lower point of the V-shaped lower line of the blouse; and the tiny set-in pocket add to the individuality of the outfit.

And now let us turn our attention to the worthy knitters of South Side. Jeanne Bollman knitted a brown barrel sweater to wear with her brown and white checked skirt and white shirt, while Mary Louise Helm selected a white sweater to wear with her rust skirt; the ribs of the sweater running vertically. The sweater has short puff sleeves.

And now we turn around again and direct our attention to the subdubs as they step "out in the cold again." Vera Jane Crise may be identified by a red-and-black striped coat made of an Hudson Bay Blanket, with the red predominating. Large patch pockets and a roll collar are typical of the coat. The coat, however, is not swaggar, but tightly belted with a wide red belt.

Bob Blomker, '35 Salutatorian, Finds Middie Leads Full Life

Bob Blomker, salutatorian of the 1935 class, who received an appointment to Annapolis, sets down his impression of Annapolis in the following letter which was received by Mr. Wilburn Wilson, a social science teacher.

"Well, Mr. Wilson, I am still a Navy man and hope to stay such for some time to come. The Naval Academy is a great place, but it is trying on the nerves. Everything appears to happen quickly and systematically—in fact, there is no doubt of it. The routine is very exact, as may be expected; and time is utilized to the fullest extent.

Much Tradition In Navy

There is quite a deal of tradition centered about the academy, as a part of the U. S. Navy, and about the whole navy itself. We are expected to know of the deeds and brilliant exploits of naval leaders of the past. The best traditions of the service are served-if careers are patterned after men such as John Paul Jones, David Farragut, Oliver Perry, George Dewey, and a few others equally famous. The midshipman is taught at the beginning of his naval career that 'Honor is the fundamental essential in a naval officer's character.' How easily it is seen that the requirements essential to the making of a naval officer are the same as those for the National Honor Society. That fact is really a big point.

"The fast routine makes it rather difficult to 'keep up' and not get lost. Sometimes I feel like the 'Lost Battalion' in all truth. Then I visualize myself embarking on the U. S. S. Outside, despite my pleas to Tecumseh, god of the 'Wooden Men. But again my mind becomes occupied with other duties, and my thoughts must change to the performance of whatever the Most High and Gracious Superiors may wish done by this humble one.

HALLOWEEN GLEAM Facial Expression in the Raw

Scene: Affairs where you dress up in outfits.

First falseface: See that guy over there all splashed up to represent a cement maker? Must be trying to be a concrete example.

Second falseface: Yeah, and look at that big fellow over there attempting to act like a musician. Guess he is trying to play a Georgianna accordion. I'll bet Bex takes the wind out of its sails.

First Falseface: Look at that chubby fellow over there perpetrating a farce trying to act like a baker. Must be trying to get back in the "dough."

Maxine Borchert undoubtedly expressed the sentiments of her entire English class when she was confronted with the task of pronouncing the name, Wingul Pulnub. She hopelessly exclaimed, "Oh, my heavens."

Latest reports have it that Gaylord Stalter has definitely decided to go into solitary confinement after the stinging report of the sergeant-at-arms in his public speaking class. It seems that Mr. Stalter was accused of bothering eight students during the course of one period. But worst of all, it was suggested that Gaylord proceed with his wooing of the fair maid, Maxine Roth, in some other location.

Romance seems to have entered into the Times room once more with the appearance of a radio in the room. Miss Harvey good naturedly permits the music the "public" prefers. Those with that famed moon-eyed look in their eyes are reported to be hanging around the room after school in enlarging numbers.

At last Norman Buck has found his ideal! He was seen holding the hands of Gwen Horn recently, although the two did not seem to be agreeing about something. It would be bad if their affair had to start out with a fight, wouldn't it?

Subjects Are Listed

"The academic subjects this term comprise such subjects as trigonometry and solid mensuration, English, Spanish, chemistry, and marine engineering. Seamanship is rather important, too, of course. Ah! Then our infantry drills! We get a great deal of drill in marching with thundersticks upon our shoulders. And, too, we must know how to shoot; so we practice at the rifle range and wonder why the bullseye looks so small. Rowing cutters on the Severn River and the Chesapeake Bay is a frequent task; but after all, it is good exercise, anyway. Midshipmen are also supposed to know how to operate sailing craft (I very much prefer sailing to rowing).

Health Is Important

"Healthy bodies are necessary here, and participation in sports and drill is considered essential. Football, of course, is regarded as the foremost sport. All of us look forward to coming games with eagerness, because we relish variety in routine.

"On the whole, the Naval Academy is really a fine place of learning. Many of my class have already resigned, and resignations of upperclassmen are also frequent; but I don't think anyone who has once been a midshipman at the U. S. Naval Academy will ever regret it. There is no doubt about it—the times may be tough, and the rules may be strict, but the training is a wonderful asset to any man's experiences.

Incidentally, I met Kenneth Smish at Yale University a week ago last Saturday, and he showed me around the campus. The Yale-Navy game in the afternoon was a thrilling one, despite the fact that Navy lost. Notre Dame trounced upon us at Baltimore last Saturday, too; but we must hide our grief and sink Army at Philadelphia, November 30. Then shall the goat and the donkey have a fitting fray!

Style Not a Problem

Sometimes we may see a person walking in clothes of his own choice and say, "There, but for the grace of God, walks a civilian!" But then we can say, "Well, at least we don't have to worry about styles." And so it goes.

"I fear that I must now bring to a close this unworthy epistle and rest assured that you have received some enlightenment in regard to Annapolis. Incidentally, if it isn't too much bother, perhaps you can send at some time a copy of the 'World's Best'—The South Side Times.

"Ah, well! Anchors Aweigh!

"Your ardent disciple,

"W. R. Blomker, Mid'm, U. S. N.

South Side To Tackle Central In Season's Grid Classic

Annual Conflict Of Green-Blue To Be Saturday

Rivalry To Be Continued As Archers And Tigers Meet At South Side Stadium.

Green-Blue Win Six Each Out Of Twelve

After twelve years of grid rivalry, South Side's Archers and Central's Tigers have gotten exactly nowhere in determining the better school. Saturday the teams will start from scratch with six wins apiece.

Saturday at 2 o'clock at the southern stadium, South Side's Archers and Central's Tigers will meet in their annual grid battle, the game which both teams and entire schools, both students and adult fans look forward to with interest during the entire season more than to any other grid game in this vicinity.

The two teams will meet to battle with all their energy, with all their strength, urged on by all the feeling and desire to win, that only a rivalry of such intensity and such long standing as the Tiger-Archer feud could create.

Tigers Are Favorites

Central enters the contest the dominating favorite. They possess an impressive record of wins for the season. Already they have won eight games and tied one. Never has their goal line been crossed; never have they suffered so much as even a field goal. Several outstanding high school teams have fallen at the hands of the Blue.

On the other hand, the Archers will enter the contest the decided underdogs. Already they have suffered two losses and have been tied once, while winning four contests. This record was achieved in a schedule that was not considered unusually tough. Central's record was made against a series of some of the toughest opponents any Fort Wayne team has ever faced in one season.

South Side started the team with a green squad and slowly built up the team for the defense of their city title. It began to look as though they might be successful until the Green recently met a stubborn North Side defense. In that game the Archer defense, the department in which the Green had placed most confidence, folded and allowed four touchdowns. Thus the Green has been faced with the problem of rebuilding rapidly enough to hold a vaunted Tiger attack.

Rivalry Is Intense

A glance at the comparative scores made by the Archers and the Tigers against city opponents also indicates the Green will have a tough time on their hands. The Tigers defeated Central Catholic by six touchdowns, 40 to 0; won Archers from the Irish by three touchdowns, 25 to 7. Central played a scoreless tie against an inspired North Side team. South Side lost to the Red by a decisive margin, 26 to 7.

Boys To Organize Volleyball Teams

Fifth Period Is Now Available For Practicing And Playing; Sixteen Boys To Enter Games.

Sixteen boys, volleyball enthusiasts, have been organized into four intramural teams and matched for competition. Opportunity for signing up will be continued next Tuesday, when regular eliminations will commence.

Only the fifth period is available for practicing and playing this year. The four teams which had signed up by last Monday have been matched as follows: Scrubs vs. Cardinals, and Circulars vs. Never Wins. Many more teams are desired and expected to sign up with Mr. Briner before the deadline next Monday.

As in former years, participants are separated into three divisions according to weight. Boys of 105 pounds or less are entered as lightweight, those from 105 to 115 pounds as mid-weight, and those of over 115 pounds as heavyweight.

its line and in its pass attack. However, if both these function against the Blue as they did against the Redskins, it will take something big in the nature of surprises to upset the Bengals. Last Tuesday beat the Green on end runs; Central's main scoring method is by end runs.

The Kellyklads, because of their loss to the Indians, are out of the city series race. Central can do no better than tie for the crown, and they must win to do that.

During the competition between the two schools, each school has won six games. The fact that there has never been a tie game between the two indicates the rivalry.

This season's contest bears a marked comparison to the outlook two years ago. At that time Central had been undefeated and was considering claiming the state title when up from nowhere came a comparatively unknown Archer team to blast the Bengal hopes. South Side fans are eagerly hoping for a repetition this year.

There is one factor which bodes good for the Archers, the intense rivalry between the two schools. When a Green and a Blue team meet, whether it be football or in basketball, previous records mean little or nothing. In fact, records seem to be the rule rather than the exception.

Frosh Team 6 Captures G.A.A. Speedball Title

Conquers Team 3 As Season Ends; Wins Five, Loses None For Perfect Record.

Team 6, captained by Pauline Molin, came through with an 11-3 victory over team 3, Monday, to cinch the G. A. A. speedball championship, winning five games and losing none. The game was, as the score indicates, a walk-away, as were the other games played by team 6. The members of the team are: Pauline Molin, Beatrice Craig, Doris Hilbish, Mary Jane Kelley, Norma Martin, Betty Minneker, Marjorie Parry, Maxine Pely, Marjorie Schelper, Maria Stier, Sadonna Neith, Marjorie Stratton, and Bernadette Shearer.

In the victory, Pauline Molin scored nine points to lead the scoring with Ladonna Keith making the other two points for the winners. Marjorie Wallace and Nadine Mueller scored two and one points respectively for team 3.

The freshman girls' speedball season thus dominated by team 6, was brought to a close Monday by the above-mentioned game, and by overwhelming victories of teams 2 and 4 over teams 1 and 5.

Team 2 beat team 1 by the score of 10-0, Lois Rea starring for team 2 by scoring five points. Virginia Porter, marking up three points, and Mildred Franz, scoring two, went together to make up the other five points to bring their team victory.

In another seemingly one-sided tilt, team 5 was defeated by team 4, 16 to 4. Hazel Perry did the better part of the scoring on her team by chalking up eight points, Virginia Menze scoring the balance of the points, while Ethelinda Koch did the only scoring for her team.

The standings of the teams at the end of the season are as follows:
Freshman 1 0 3 2
Freshman 3 3 1 1
Freshman 4 2 1 0
Freshman 5 1 3 1
Freshman 6 5 0 0

Skirts and Sports

Congratulations to Virginia Menze for being elected freshman representative at a recent meeting. She seems to be following in the footsteps of her older sister, Leona.

Pauline Molin, besides doing a swell job of captaining her speedball team, also knows her stuff when it comes to playing the game.

The seniors are quite sad, as they have played their last hockey game they will ever play in dear old South Side. Although the freshmen hate to have the speedball season gone, they still have a couple of hockey seasons to look forward to.

The game between Junior 1 and Junior 3 hockey teams played last Friday gets the prize of the season for being the dropsize.

Thirty-Two Entries In Boys' Handball

Still Not Too Late To Sign Up, Deadline Is Friday; First Round Elimination Is Held.

Handball opened a successful season in the intramural department last Monday, when the first eliminations were held. Thirty-two participants had been signed up and matched by that time, and many more are expected to enroll with Mr. Briner before the deadline which is Friday night.

Matches are played off during the fifth period and after school in the handball court, three tilts being staged every day. Each pair of players will play three games, and the winner of at least two of three is eligible for further elimination. As in other intramural sports, there is a division of participants according to weight. The lightweights include players of 105 pounds and under, and the heavyweights are over 105 pounds in weight.

The names of the boys who had signed up by last Monday listed and grouped according to the matches they play in are: Knight, Flaig; Morton, Helmsing; Klotz, Bopp; Hoffstetter, Kossman; Armstrong, Guffin; Stillwell, Wilson; Nussbaum, Chaisey; Heckman, Bailey; Chevalier, Vogel; sang; Garrison, Steinbauer; Schaaf, Bennett; Abbott, Byers; Elliott, Trulock; Miller, Feichter; Steiner, McAlister; Edwards; and Roberts.

Lundy Welborn, in discussing Saturday's game against Central, stated, "It won't be close." Lundy did not say whether he favored the Tigers or the Archers. Hence, whether he is an extreme optimist or a pessimist remains a matter of doubt.

We sincerely hope that South Side will be able to spring some surprises on the Tigers. It begins to appear as though they will have to if they hope to come out on top. It is almost certain that the Archer passing attack in itself can not beat the Blue. That was demonstrated all too well against North Side.

South Side will need the services of its two cripples Saturday. Ostermeyer will no doubt be all right. Ellenwood will probably also be able to play.

Remember, whatever happens Saturday, win or lose, be good sports about it. It is sometimes harder to be good winners than good losers.

South Side Scores 34-7 Grid Victory Over Columbia City

By Ruth Berning

South Side's Archers thoroughly trounced an inexperienced Columbia City eleven last Saturday by the score of 34-6. The Archers held the upper hand throughout the game, gaining ground almost at will, allowing the visitors to break through only once when Coach Welborn was giving his reserves experience. The Archers scored one touchdown each in the first, second, and third quarters, and two touchdowns and a safety in the fourth. South Side's offense, with its power and deceptiveness, had Columbia City completely baffled, with Benz, Feichter and Hosier leading its attack. Kling's versatility was the mainstay of the visitors, his punts often keeping the ball out of scoring territory.

The Green immediately felt out its opponent's weaknesses, and then traveled down the field with a number of passes and line smashes. The first score was made when Faux went around right end for a goal from near the 10-yard line. Lee made a good conversion. The quarter ended after Kruse ran nearly 58 yards on an end around for one of the best offensive plays of the game.

Third Touchdown Made

The second quarter was a close repetition of the first, with the Archers running rough shod over the field. Ostermeyer sent the team well on the way to a second goal when he snagged an attempted pass from Kling to J. Walter. After a faked pass with Lee going around left end from the 20-yard line to the 10-yard line, Kruse hit the line for a second marker. Lee again made the conversion good. In an attempt to imitate South Side's aerial attack, Columbia City failed in four succeeding attempts on the Kling to J. Walter combination.

At the beginning of the third quarter, Kruse gained 12 yards on line plays and then carried the ball to the 50-yard line on a forward pass. After a continued march down the field, Parnellee tossed the pigskin to Hosier for the third touchdown. Faux missed his attempt for the extra point.

The final quarter saw the Kelly Klads romp down the field, led by Hosier and Benz, in a number of line plays to the 30-yard line. A forward pass from Parnellee to Hosier netted another six points for the Archers. South Side scored a safety when Kling attempted to punt from behind his own goal line was blocked and he recovered behind the goal line. One of the best offensive plays of the day came when Benz ran nearly 40 yards for the fifth and last touchdown. Dern's attempt to dropkick the extra point was blocked.

In the first moments of the final quarter South Side's reserves slowed up enough to permit Columbia City to score their lone marker. The goal was made on a forward pass from J. Walter, near the 10-yard line, to Kling, behind the goal line.

The starting lineup was as follows:

South Side	Columbia City
D. Faux	LE... Schinbecker
Makey	LT... Hills
Bennett	LG... Gross
Ostermeyer	C... Bower
Wilson	RG... Grant
Nye	RT... Crolman
Norris	RE... Langhor

So-Si-Y Society Holds Initiation Of Members

Initiation of new members into the "Circle of Light" was the feature of So-Si-Y's last meeting, which was held Tuesday evening in the Greeley Room. Approximately fifty new members were admitted into membership.

Anna Bremer, club president, gave the welcome address; and Helen Anderson, membership chairman, acted as herald for the initiates.

During the short business meeting, it was announced that a medical missionary, who is an intimate friend of Miss Jeannette Lampson, Y. W. C. A. secretary, will speak next Tuesday evening after school on her experiences in her work. All Girl Reserves in South Side are invited to attend the meeting at the Y. W. C. A.

Martha Franz was the chairman of the program which was given after the initiation. She introduced Catherine Allendorph, who gave an original poem which carried out the theme of the meeting, "Lanes of Leisure." Betty Waldrop played a semi-classical selection, "Nola," on the piano following the reading.

As a part of the leisure program, several short talks on vacation hobbies were given by members of the committee. Ruth Roadcap's talk was on making sandals from rope; Eliza Beas Lucas' talk was on crocheting; Anna Bremer's was on bead work; and Verna Holtman's on smoke printing and blue print work. Following the program, refreshments consisting of popcorn were served to those attending.

"Heather," A Scotty, Is Personal Pride Of Miss Patterson

A contented, care-free, black, little puppy dog is the personal pride and joy of every G. A. A. member at this time. Heather is her name, and to be more explicit, Heather Adair, a pure-bred Scottish terrier. The puppy is the personal property of Miss Alice Jane Patterson, well known sponsor of the G. A. A.

Dog Is Intelligent

Heather came into this world about the middle of July, and even though she is but four months old, she knows a surprising lot of things either to annoy or amuse the interested spectators gathered in the gym office. She has a peculiar way of cocking her head on one side and letting a bright red tongue stick out of an equally red, prominent black mouth that seems to win her way into everyone's heart.

Heather has an impressive background, but her carefree cavorting could hardly vouch for it. She was bred at the Hillside kennels in Indianapolis, and her sire belongs to Mr. Jillman, the owner of the place. Her mother boasts the quaint name of Killie Adair. Her paternal grandfather is a well known show dog having the name of Heather's Necessity.

Originally Called "Peanuts"

Heather was born in a litter of three pups, all females, and from the first she was recognized as the ringleader. She is predominately black and is tinged with tan hairs, thus accurately being described as a golden brindle. She has some good show points, among them being a well-shaped muzzle and feet, and good carriage of the tail.

So far, she has progressed in holding up one ear, but the other just seems to lag, slightly. However, when she runs very fast, she lays them back in streamline fashion. Her favorite playthings are a well-chewed toy dog being described as a golden brindle. She has some good show points, among them being a well-shaped muzzle and feet, and good carriage of the tail.

The original three were named Peanuts, Popcorn, and Cracker Jack, with Heather being the original "Peanuts." Now she's just plain Heather and a well-liked little puppy.

Mr. McClure To Be Torch Club Sponsor

Mr. Leonard, of the Y. M. C. A., was the main speaker at the Torch Club meeting in the Voorhees room Monday. It was announced by Joe Bell, the president, that Mr. J. H. McClure would act as the sponsor of the club. He also said that the dues for the following term would be five cents every other week.

In his speech, Mr. Leonard said, "The South Side Torch Club is in a good position to be outstanding. It has capable officers and needs the cooperation of the members. If you are in any way in a position to render any aid to the club, do not shirk your duty. Give as much help as you are able." He also brought up the question as to how many members should be allowed to go to the senior conference at Anderson this year. This was discussed by the boys.

A committee was chosen by Joe Bell to bring more members into the club. It consists of Bob Lee, chairman; Don Maggart, Eugene Schwan, Charles Will, and Andy Bremer. Everybody was urged to bring new members, especially freshmen, to the meeting next Monday.

A committee was also chosen to make plans for a winter bake. This consists of Walter Jackson, chairman; Andy Bremer, Don Steinbauer, Kenneth Allway, and Dick Vogelberg.

A skating party is planned for the near future. The publicity committee was announced also. It is: Joe Bell, Robert Weil, Andy Bremer, and Donald Carrier.

Miss Dorothy Benner, public speaking instructor at South Side, is completing arrangements for the annual Freshman-Sophomore speaking contest to be held in the near future.

Collection Of Japanese Prints To Be Exhibited

It has recently been announced by Miss Mary Helen Ley, art instructor, that an unusual collection of beautiful imported Japanese woodblock prints will be on exhibit in room 61 during National Educational Week and the week following. The exhibit is open to all students and patrons of South Side.

These exquisitely colored prints are made exclusively by a studio in Tokio established over two hundred years ago and they are without question the finest woodblock prints made in Japan today. They are entirely hand-blocked on mulberry bark paper from cherry wood blocks; the beautiful colors used are made from vegetable dyes.

Many of the prints in the collection are reproductions of Japanese prints found in the print rooms of some of the great American museums, notably the Metropolitan, New York City, Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and the Chicago Art Institute. Famous masterpieces of Harunobu, Utamaro, Hokusai, Hiroshige, and Kunisada are represented as well as beautiful prints designed by the leading contemporary print designers of present-day Tokio and Kyoto.

"These prints are invaluable to those interested in the art, culture, habits, and customs of the Japanese people," stated Miss Ley. All are urged to avail themselves of this unusual opportunity. Some of the prints may be purchased if desired. Prints similar to these were exhibited a few years ago. Because several were disappointed by being unable to buy as many prints as they desired, arrangements have been made for offering a larger number for sale this year.

Class Room News

The following gave speeches on vocations in room 174 this week: Betty Hambrook, nursing; Beverly Ann Griffith, librarian; David Fyock, silver fox raising; William Fuhrman, engineering; Anna Gehring, Will Rogers Memorial; Willard Gibson, machinist.

A committee in room 174 will fix up the bulletin board for Armistice Day.

In home room 58, a program committee consisting of Ruth Reitz, Betty Nison, and Kenneth Scott are working on plans for the observance of National Education Week and Armistice Day. Among other things, a talk will be given on the flag code, that is, how to display and respect the American flag. On Monday morning before the assembly, the pupils will be asked to prove their knowledge of the words of the Star Spangled Banner and the pledge to the flag. For the remainder of the National Education Week there will be talks given on school and democracy as suggested in the handbook for National Education Week issued by the National Education Association.

Miss Keifer's English 8 class, which is reading the "Life of Samuel Johnson," is hearing reports this week by members of the class on some of Johnson's writings. Sonia Vekoff reported on "Rasselas." Mary Markle reported on the life of Alexander Pope, and Georgianna Martin reported on the life of John Dryden.

In the tests given by Miss Kelly on "Ivanhoe," the following people made grades above 90: Joe Bex, Joan Gunter, Charles Will, Richard Gentis, and Henry Vekoff.

Mr. Gould's beginning botany classes are studying various fruits. For the benefit of the classes, lantern slides are shown of oranges, pineapples, cucumbers, etc. They have also taken up the study of the capsules of the morning glory plant.

His advanced classes are studying bread malt and lilac mildew.

Mr. McClure's home room held a Halloween party recently. Taffy apples and fudge were served. The committee consisted of Ruth Berning, Vera Crise, Doris Bennett, and Dorothy Buchholz.

Latin Play Is Given In Study Hall Thursday

The play, "Latin Grammar Speaks," which was given for the Latin teachers during the recent teachers' convention in Port Wayne, was presented in the study hall the sixth period Thursday, October 31, for the benefit of South Side Latin pupils and others who were interested. The play, which was under the direction of Miss Gertrude Oppelt, was presented by seventeen Latin pupils.

Characters Listed

The characters are as follows: Margery Brown, a freshman in high school; Joan Bonsh; Latin Grammar, James Dorn; the cases were: Nominative, Morris Boyce; Dative, Fay Bechtold; Genitive, June Haeger; Accusative, Jane Loomis; Vocative, LaVerne DeKeel; ablative, Ruth Berning; prepositions, John Leach, Robert Bunner, and Robert Jones; the declensions were: first, Claudine Wells; second, masculine, Dick Keyser; neuter, Bill Seifer; third, John Thacker; fourth, Bob Harruff; and fifth, Rosemary Lehman.

Before the main action of the play took place, June Haeger introduced the characters to the audience.

The play takes place in the library in Margery Brown's home. She is complaining of her Latin assignment and falls asleep over her lesson. She dreams about Latin Grammar and all his children.

Dream Encourages Study

Latin Grammar and his family, which have been badly mistreated by Margery during the school months, appear in her dream. Each has something to say to Margery about her Latin Grammar. These speeches tend to make her more friendly towards her assignment. By the time each has recited, Margery has become a friend of each member of the Latin family.

After the dream is over, Margery awakes and realizes that Latin is more interesting than she thought it was. When the curtain closes, Margery is earnestly studying her lesson.

The costumes were carried out in the Roman fashion of the time of Caesar.

The students who took part in the sketch are very grateful to the following students for their assistance: Jim Geiger, who was the chief stage hand, and Frank Glusenkamp and Harry Wittwer, who painted the signs worn by the players.

Mrs. A. Verne Flint's Husband Revealed As Another Human

To carry on with the trials and tribulations of worthy wives of worthy teachers, we came across the well-known name of Mrs. A. Verne Flint. The enlightening information of her past experiences with her husband, was carried on in a telephone-to-telephone and note-to-note manner. It all began with a telephone call and ended with the delivery of the information by no less a carrier than Mr. Flint, himself.

Mrs. Flint took such an interest in revealing her truer side, as well as Mr. Flint's, that correspondence turned into a composition by Mrs. Flint, herself. The epistle is charmingly and undoubtedly quite accurately written.

"One distressing feature of being a school teacher's wife is the necessity of always being practical. A favorite dream of mine is to go into a store and buy anything the fancy might crave, murmuring, 'Charge it, please, without considering, 'Will it fade?' 'Will it wear?' 'Will it shrink?' 'Will it go out of style before I can afford another?'

Prepared For Life

"However, I should be prepared for life, as my mother taught in a district school for two dollars a week and an onion sandwich at noon, and my grandfather farmed frantically in summers in order to deluge in the luxury of school winters. A small source for invitation in having a school teacher for a husband is the uncertainty of his arrival, nearly six o'clock one evening—and, more disturbing—at four the next when one is away and there is nothing in the house to eat.

"Aside from cooking, nursing, sewing, cleaning, washing, ironing, supervising the instruction of the little Flints, and being the family's recreational director, I am certain I am no help to my husband. My outside interests include an enthusiasm in the work of the Daughters of the Amer-

Safety In Mind and Body Is Theme of Campaign

"Pumpkin Pow-Wow" Junior Banquet Theme

Class of '37 Sets Friday, November 22, As Date Of Annual Feast In Cafe.

Plan Big Program, Novel Decorations

Two and One-Half Hours Of Entertainment Promised; Tickets On Sale, 45 Cents.

"Pumpkin Pow-Wow" will be the theme of the annual Junior banquet, to be held by the class of '37 in the school cafeteria Friday, November 22, at 6 o'clock. The banquet in previous years has preceded the Junior Prom in the spring, but is being planned for this fall to lessen the confusion of having both events so close together and to increase the importance of both. The prom will be held in the spring as usual.

Program To Be Full

The program will last from 6 o'clock to 8:30 o'clock, and will feature the theme, as the elaborate decorations are now being worked on.

The banquet will be informal, the individual dressing as he pleases. Juniors are encouraged to come stag, as no part of the program will involve couples! However, those who feel so inclined may bring dates.

Tickets for the banquet will be 45c, with a tasty meal assured. The pastebards may be secured from the representatives in junior home rooms, from the class officers, and from the faculty advisers. Although the banquet is particularly for Junior-Seniors, underclassmen, alumni and friends of the school can be assured of a good time.

Officers In Charge

General plans for the affairs are in charge of the class officers, who are: Jerry Zehr, president; Ned Henslee, vice-president; Virginia Fathauer, secretary, and Jean Creighton, Richard Dent and Bob Storm, members of the social council. The class sponsors assisting are Miss Hazel Miller and Mr. Lloyd K. Whelan.

Committees have been named to take charge of the ticket sale, to handle the decorations, and to plan the program. Members of the ticket committee are the following junior home room agents from whom tickets may be purchased: Ned Henslee and Miles Porter, Study Hall; John Staley, Gym; Ruth Berning, room 70; John Bex, room 64; Leona Menze, room 36; Richard Dent, room 46; Alfred Kettler, room 98; James Dorn, room 56; Barbara Scheele, room 26; Jerry Zehr, room 85; Don Sinish, room 80; Mildred Hoff, room 91.

Roman Ceremony On Latin Program

Societas Romana Will Present Ancient Wedding Celebration At Meeting For Today.

A Roman wedding will be the feature of the Societas Romana meeting today in the Voorhes Room. The goddess, June, patroness of the laws of wedlock, will be the topic of the program. The poet, Spencer says,

And thou great June,
Which with awful might,
The laws of wedlock
Still dost patronize.

The Roman wedding will be performed in pantomime. Billie Bichacoff, who is program chairman, will read the procedure of a wedding ceremony. The following is a list of characters in the Roman mock wedding:

Irene Becker Bride
Eugene Schmidt Groom
Joseph Bex Priest
Margaret Null, George Strom

Flute Players
Robert Shimel, Donald Schaefer,
Max Magner Torch Bearers
Marjorie Cartwright

Mother of the Bride
Virginia Greiner Maid of Honor
Rosemary Lehman, Alice Karn,
Catherine Hause Attendants
Elinor White will talk on the attributes of June and her influence in the world today.

Election of an Inter-Club Congress representative will be held. Virginia Greiner will give the report of the last Inter-Club Congress meeting.

Mr. Rothert will show and explain the awarding of the Alpha Omicron Pi plaque which was given to the school by that organization last spring. The plaque is awarded to the student who has done the best work during the four years of Latin. Edythe Thornton's name was engraved on the plate last year.

For refreshments, pieces of the Roman wedding cake will be served.

Mayor Baals Voices Opinion Of American Education Week

The realization on the part of public officials that education is of prime importance as a unit of our social and political scheme is attested to by the following letter sent to the Times by the Mayor of Fort Wayne. The letter is as follows:

"In my position as Mayor I am called upon to endorse officially many worthy projects, but I recognize none as more important or essential than education. National Educational Week is more than ordinarily significant because it calls attention to the American system of making education available to all, which has been largely responsible for our country's success. "Education is particularly important to us, for the success of our representative system of government is dependent upon an enlightened public opinion. Boys and girls in our schools learn about their local, state and national governments. In acquiring this knowledge they learn to take an active interest in their government and to speak about it.

"This is all important, for expression leads to active participation. So long as our schools are successful in teaching the essentials of good citizenship, we need have no fear concerning the continuance of the principles upon which the Constitution of the United States was founded. "I subscribe wholeheartedly to the program of National Educational Week.

(Signed) HARRY W. BAALS, Mayor, Fort Wayne, Ind."

Harry W. Baals Speaks On Safety

Merle Abbett, Thomas J. Kelly, Captain Jules Stumpf, Sergt. Custer Dunifon Also Talk.

Mayor Harry W. Baals presented his idea of the importance of safety observance from the viewpoint of the mayor, in his speech during the assembly Wednesday morning.

Ruth Adler, president of the Safety Council, was in charge of arrangements for the assembly, the theme of which was "Safety." She also acted as mistress of ceremonies at the assembly.

After Mayor Baals' speech, Mr. M. J. Abbett, superintendent of schools, talked on the viewpoint of a school superintendent toward safety.

Mr. Thomas J. Kelly, president of the Chamber of Commerce, gave the viewpoint of the Chamber of Commerce, as a representative group of citizens, toward the importance of Safety Week.

Captain Jules Stumpf represented the Police Department by a talk on safety.

Sergeant Custer Dunifon, who is in charge of safety work in the Police Department, gave the facts and figures concerning automobile accidents.

During the assembly Ruth Adler announced the various contests which are being held in connection with Safety Week, which are as follows: A scrapbook contest, a poster contest, and an essay contest for English students. She also announced that a series of education programs will be held in the home rooms, after which an examination will be given and prizes will be awarded for the highest grades.

So-Si-Y To Hear Talk, Discussion

Mary Michaels Is Chairman Of Program On Tuesday Topic To Be "Crossroads of World."

So-Si-Y's annual world fellowship meeting, the theme of which is to be "Crossroads of the World," will be held next Tuesday evening after school in the Greeley Room. The meeting will be featured by a short talk on world peace by one of Fort Wayne's prominent pastors and a discussion to be led by a member of the school's social science department.

Following the address and discussion, the committee in charge of the meeting will sing several group songs which will carry out the theme of the occasion. Various selections will be played by a member of the music department following the group singing.

Mary Michaels is chairman of arrangements for the meeting. She will be assisted by Ruth Rose, Mary Brannan, Dorothy DeHaven, Mary Anne Fark, Helen Anderson, Marjorie Dancer, Mary Shaffer, Mary Ellen Strunk, Ada Schuelke, Vivian Boissenette, Betty Jane Tuerschan, Dorothy Turflinger and Donna Bill.

Music Concert Soon
The net music concert, under the direction of Jack Wainwright, will be held on Friday, December 6. The price will be five cents. This concert will be featured by presentations rendered by the orchestra. Orchestra members will entertain the students with ensembles and various solos given by individual members of the orchestra.

Ruth Adler Is Elected Safety Group Leader

Council Will Sponsor Room Programs, Assembly, And Contests During Drive.

Ruth Adler was elected chairman of South Side's recently organized safety council at a meeting which was held last Wednesday morning in the gym.

The council will sponsor a school-wide safety campaign which is to begin next week and continue for four full weeks. During the course of the drive, four assemblies, each stressing safety rules and the correct way to handle automobiles, will be held.

In addition to the four assemblies, there will be an essay contest, a poster contest, a scrapbook contest, and several programs in each home room of the school. At the end of the four weeks, tests will be given in the home rooms and prizes for the highest grades will be awarded.

In the final "windup," a traffic clinic to study problems of traffic in general and around the school will be held. The clinic will sponsor a test, and a certificate will be given to drivers who pass their tests. Neither the test nor the certificate, however, will be official.

Members Are Listed

Superintendent Points Out Purpose Of Education

The true purpose of education is best served where we plan constructively and counsel wisely with citizens truly interested in the well being of young people.

The schools are supported by the citizens of the state and are the instrument of this selfsame public. The purpose of every endeavor should be clearly that of producing a stronger citizenship. The principles of democracy upon which our nation has stood since its very beginning are those to be cherished and practiced by every loyal citizen. We shall serve best when we interpret the needs of our state and nation and formulate our educational program to suit these needs.

There are great changes that are now evident and some adjustment must be made to meet these new conditions. It is only through practical, dynamic, and active procedures that we are able to produce leadership that will reflect integrity and enterprise in useful roles of citizenship.

There shall always be degrees of intelligent fellowship that must be served, each one functioning according to his or her ability, and cer-

Adjudged By Delta Sigma Chi As The Best High School Paper In Indiana.

Awarded Engraved Silver Loving Cup

Mr. Eugene Pulliam Delivers Main Dedication Talk At DePauw University.

What? South Side Times wins first place! Where? In state journalistic contest at DePauw University. When? Last Saturday, November 8. By whom? Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity. Why? Because the Times was judged the best all-around high school newspaper.

This award was announced at the dedication of the new journalistic building at the University, which has been built to further journalistic activities at DePauw.

In the contest the leading Indiana high school newspapers participated. The reward which South Side received was a silver loving cup which is to be engraved, and then sent to South Side.

Three Issues Submitted

The copies which were submitted to be judged were the sixth, seventh and tenth issues of this year, which were issued under the direction of the present staff, of which the major positions are: General manager, Bryce Minier; managing editors, Joanne Smith, Ann Abbett; editor, Jim Sweet; news editor, Ruth Garrison, copy editors, Reginald Gerig, Rosemary Chappell; sports editor, Norman Buck; make-up editor, Dick Helm; sports copy and make-up editor, Bob Storm; business manager, John Bex; circulation manager, Harriet Yapp; advertising managers, Betty Wolf, Helen Kelsey; star reporters, Leona Menze, Mary Anne Park, Lois Wyneken; faculty adviser, Miss Rowena Harvey. The papers were judged on general make-up, typography, news, editorial content, and advertising.

Mr. Eugene Pulliam, a graduate of the university, delivered the principal address at the dedication ceremony, which was held at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, November 9, in the new (Continued on page 12)

Auto Dealers Give Prizes For Contests

Several prominent Fort Wayne auto dealers are donating valuable prizes to winners of safety essay contests which will be held in all school English classes under the direction of Mr. Benjamin Null, English department head.

In some of the classes the contest essays will take the place of weekly themes; in others, they will be counted as extra projects.

Among the most valuable prizes is the beautiful tan wool and fur laprobe, which is being given by the Packard Fort Wayne, Incorporated. The robe is valued at $32.50.

Other prizes and their donors are as follows: Baker-Miller Company, battery; National Mill Supply Company, flashlight; Oldsmobile Agency, vanity mirror; Chester G. Education, Democracy, Careful Driving To Be Observed During Week

Home Rooms Give Program On Anniversary

Many Home Rooms Plan Talks, National Education Week Is Program Theme.

As National Education Week is foremost in the minds of every student, many home rooms of South Side are planning programs to celebrate this week. Because the general theme for this fifteenth annual observance is "The School and Democracy," many home rooms are planning to follow the topics suggested in The Journal of the National Education Association. Some are procuring speakers, some are having general discussions, and some plan to have talks given by members of their own home rooms.

Reports To Be Given

Home room 140, under the direction of Miss Magley, is planning to have short reports given by various members of the class on the different educational centers in this city. The first speaker will be Lillian Hitzman, who will speak on the International Business College; the second, Merle Norris, will give a report of Indiana Technical College; Vera Mosel is giving the interesting points of Anthony Wayne Institute; Hubert Nichter is reporting on education at the General Electric; and Fred Nye will speak about the International Harvester. The chairman in charge is Mary Michaels; and her committee is Verneal Meyers, Merle Norris, and Morgan Harrison.

Education To Be Discussed

Mr. Flint's home room will hear a series of talks given by Norma Clauser, Joe Close, Martha Clark, Frances Crawford, and Roland Detmer. They will speak on the topics suggested by The Journal of the National Education Association.

Jack Cartwright, chairman of home room 142, has appointed a committee, of which John Brown is chairman, to outline a program for National Educational Week. Miss Smeltzley has divided her room into five groups, six in each group. The first group will discuss "School and the Citizen;" the second group, "The School and the State;" the third group, "The School and the Nation;" the fourth group, "The School and Country Life;" and the last group, "School and Recreation." This room is composed of 10B's and is attempting a program of this sort for the first time.

On Monday, November 11, Armistice Day was celebrated by room 178 with a speech by Frank Andrews. The following days of the week short talks were or will be given are Harriet Basford, Manfred Adams, Richard Baade, and Catherine Allendorf.

Miss Covalt's Mother Dies

The mother of Miss Nelle Covalt, commercial teacher, died Tuesday morning in Kokomo, Indiana, from cancer. Miss Covalt has been at home for about two weeks because of her mother's illness.

Wall Space Needed

Either the Times will have to stop winning so many certificates or the Times Room wall space will have to be enlarged. The twenty-one awards given to the Times at the convention at Franklin this fall have been framed and are gradually covering up all available walls in the Times room.

Professor J. R. Schutz

Professor J. Raymond Schutz of North Manchester College will be the main speaker at the Senior Mothers' Tea on next Monday afternoon.

P-T. A. Executives Will Meet Tuesday

An executive meeting of the South Side Parent-Teacher Association, will be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in the Greeley Room. All members of the board are requested to be present. Mrs. Victor F. Rea and Mrs. Clarence E. Kreissler are in charge of the meeting. Plans for the next few important P-T. A. activities will be discussed.

Schutz, Snider Are Speakers At Senior Tea

J. Raymond Schutz To Deliver Talk During Parent Affair In Cafe Monday.

J. Raymond Schutz will be the main speaker at the Senior Mothers' Tea which is to be held next Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the school cafeteria. Every senior mother is cordially invited to hear this talk. The theme of his speech is "Different Types of Colleges," to advise students who will go to college after graduation from high school.

R. Nelson Snider, the principal, will talk on the activities of students who do not go to college after graduation from high school. Mr. Jack Wainwright will provide music.

Mrs. G. Knudson, general chairman of the group, is being assisted by the hospitality committee, Mrs. Fred ieg, chairman; Mrs. Rufus Roth, Mrs. Philip Green, and Mrs. D. A. Polhuis; and by the program committee, Mrs. H. Horn, chairman; Mrs. Merle Abbett, and Mrs. Louis W. Bonish.

Art Students Enter Posters In Contest

In connection with Safety Week, a poster contest is being held among art students. All art students are eligible to enter the contest, but those who are studying lettering are especially interested in the contest.

The posters are to be made in the art classes under the direction of the teacher, and will in some way illustrate the importance of safety.

The posters will be placed on the bulletin board in the halls and the study hall during Safety Week to impress upon minds of students the importance of the slogan, "Safety First."

They will then be rated by judges, to be chosen at a later date, and the students who make the best posters will receive prizes.

Times, Totem Awards Displayed In Entrance

The bulletin board at the north side of the main entrance is now displaying awards given to the South Side Times this year. There are twenty awards made at the I. H. S. P. A. convention for different phases of work in which the Times excelled.

Medals given to our school paper and yearbook are also on display. Other awards given to the Times and on display consist of certificates of award given in various contests. There is a map showing places from which entries were received in the contest.

Poster And Essay Contests, Home Room Programs, Assemblies Being Held.

Huge Safety Drive Is Being Launched

South Side Times Is Again Publishing Big Issue For National Education Week

With the joint observance of National Education Week and the close connections between "Education and Democracy," and the launching of a huge safety drive for the purpose of impressing upon the students' minds the great need for careful driving, this week is filled with an unusual number of events and activities.

South Side is participating in a nation-wide affair in its observance of American Education Week, which is sponsored by the National Education Association, the American Legion, and the United States Office of Education. While there is a general trend for safety all over the nation the sponsoring of a specific safety campaign is a local event.

Speeches On Education

In connection with the former event, programs and speeches have been given in the home rooms to show the value of education in order to preserve our democracy. Besides the programs in home rooms there have been assemblies, with local men speaking on the subject.

Parents or any persons interested are urged to visit the school during this week and see the students and classes at work.

Posters are being made portraying the theme of education, and statements by the School Board and officials of the school have been published.

The theme of this issue of The Times is Education and Democracy, and classroom discussions in every subject are featuring the need for education. Vernon Miller, a student speaker at the Junior Mothers' Tea, told the mothers that "The value of Education Week lies in the future and not in the past."

Students Participate

Through the efforts of about sixty students, who compose the Safety Council, a safety campaign which will end with the creation of a traffic club to study the problems of traffic in general and around the school and to teach new drivers how to drive. A test and a certificate will be given to drivers, both of which will be unofficial.

The home rooms and assemblies will again play a large part in this drive. Programs and illustrations on general safety in driving and pointers on the safe way to do various things at home and around school will be given.

Posters portraying the "do's" and "don'ts" about safety will be made, scrapbooks containing material on this subject will be compiled. Every English student will write an essay on safety, and after a series of elimination contests, the winning essays will be chosen.

At the end of the drive tests will be given over all of the information given out and valuable and attractive prizes, which have been donated by firms interested in safety, will be given to the winners.

Plans Of Meterite Potluck Advanced

Club Plans Affair In Cafeteria On November 25; Pantomime Will Be Given By Members.

Plans for the Meterite potluck which is to be held on Tuesday, November 25 in the cafeteria, were discussed during the last meeting of the Meterite club. The various committees have the plans for this affair well underway. The potluck is expected to be one of the most outstanding club events during the school year.

All Meterites are urged to attend this potluck, as it is sure to provide hours of fun. A very complete program has been planned. A pantomime will be given by a group of the girls at this affair.

The Meterite club is ordering several books of plays for use at the special programs.

At the last meeting a very interesting program was provided. The biography of Alexander Pushkin, the Russian poet, was given by Martha Ann Bacon. A report on his works was given by June Enoch. The biography of Omar Khayyam, a Persian poet, was given by Florence Oransky; his works were given by Anna Lou Kowalski.

Developing Of Good Citizens Is Carried On Schools Have Social Studies; Provides Fine Experience; Pupils Aid In Democracy.

The modern trend is constantly to preach "democracy, co-operative democracy." Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, believes we need co-operation above all; in fact, people in every walk of life are shouting something to this effect.

What does it all mean? Are we actually preserving this much-claimed for democracy? What part may students in school play in this preservation?

Students May Help

Briefly, we may say that all of this clamor concerns giving people a part in determining the character of their own lives. We are obviously becoming more and more democratic in our homes and in the schools; on the other hand, our large-scale industries have been growing and serving as thwarting forces to democracy.

Student action may help matters out a great deal. Working at social and economic problems in school and seeking to understand them will help students to find solutions to problems. Habits and attitudes which we form now will undoubtedly follow us throughout our entire lives; naturally then, it is advisable for students to begin developing an understanding and a sense of responsibility. One must start out with a definite idea as to what kind of a civilization he wants, and then the building of it will be much easier.

Schools Develop Citizenship

The modern high school affords such vast opportunities for the student in its social studies that there is every reason for true citizenship being developed. In the school itself, students have grand opportunities of asserting leadership and responsibility, which training is valuable for personal growth. The whole point is that the students, through such experience, may very soon be able to bring new energy and integrity into the processes of democracy. Even in the school, student leaders may forcefully influence the ideals of the student body; co-operative democracy may be maintained within this body in this way. We need to do all we can to further the movement for student government, thus laying the foundation for personal and civic responsibility. The clamor concerned with "giving people a part in determining the character of their own lives" will then no longer be heard.

Japanese Drawings

Exhibited In Room 61

The Shima Art Company, Inc., presented in room 61 an exhibition of a collection of twenty reproductions of the drawings by Seiho, the greatest living painter of Japan, that have just been received from their studio in Japan. The drawings are used extensively in the art classes of present-day Japan for instruction and inspirational purposes.

The collection consists of seven plates in black and white brush strokes in which the Japanese painter has no equal. The subjects are: Sparrow on branch, cat, duck, pigeon, bird, chicks, and mouse. The remaining thirteen plates are in delicate colors and illustrate: the lily, daisy, insects, a study of grapes, lobster, bird and blossom, two bunies, bird on bamboo, fish, cranes, rooster and hen, lion, and group of goldfish.

Many of the prints are reproductions of Japanese prints found in the print rooms of some of the great American museums. Famous masterpieces of Harunabu, Utamaro, Hokusai, Hiroshige, and Kunisada are represented as well as beautiful prints of present-day Tokyo and Kyoto.

We more and more realize that the youth of this commonwealth is our most valuable asset and our greatest responsibility. As time goes on we delegate to the schools still further duties in the development of the child. We entrust to them not only his intellectual development, but his physical growth and his choice of wholesome recreation, his sense of appreciation of art, beauty and entertainment, his ideals of character, citizenship and right living.—Ed C. Johnson, Governor of Colorado.

Sergeant Dunifon Attempts To Make Fort Wayne Safer

If Fort Wayne goes on record as a city of its size having the fewest number of accidents of any city in the United States, much of the credit would certainly go to Sergeant Dunifon and his effort in trying to make it such.

Sergeant Dunifon, as head of the Traffic Bureau and Accident Prevention Bureau in Fort Wayne, has striven with tireless energy to make Fort Wayne the safest city in the United States, which means a great number of citizens will be saved from injuries and death. A glance at what Sergeant Dunifon has already done assures one that he will fulfill his ambition.

Five years ago, Mr. Dunifon had as his ambition the desire to be the head of the traffic bureau in Fort Wayne. He has accomplished this, and having won this position, he has set his aim still higher, that of making Fort Wayne the safest city. Many things toward this end have already been done by Sergeant Dunifon. A record is now being kept of all the traffic violators by a regular assigned officer who knows law and how to handle different people. This is a new feature of the traffic bureau. Also, the traffic markings and yellow lines and the elimination of the double parking downtown are all the work of Sergeant Dunifon. A closer check, also, is now being kept on traffic accidents than since 1929.

An encouragement to keep up the good work comes with the fact that Fort Wayne tied with another city for fourth rank as the safest city for the month of September.

In carrying out this traffic program an important manner of handling violators is indeed important because more people have been arrested for speeding so far this year than in the last three years, also more drunken drivers have been sent to jail than in the past years. There are now four motorcycle officers assigned to traffic work, which is the greatest number of motorcycle officers to date. The enforcement of traffic regulations is now more strictly done than ever before.

Reason Is Given

"All this is for only one reason," Sergeant Dunifon stated, "that of making Fort Wayne safer by cutting down the number of accidents."

Mr. Dunifon was not always a traffic officer, but once he was a locomotive fireman in the Fort Wayne division of the Pennsylvania Railroad. In 1929, at the age of 27, he entered police work with the Indiana State Police as a traffic officer. He worked in this position for one year and then he was appointed a traffic officer in Fort Wayne. Mr. Dunifon has now been engaged in traffic work for six years.

Our congratulations to a man who has done so much for Fort Wayne in such a short time and from whom we can expect much more!

... and since the same is to be observed in other states, do hereby respectfully request that all citizens of the Commonwealth of North Carolina observe it accordingly, to the end that we may make proper appraisal of our situation and prepare ourselves for the adequate discharge of the responsibilities involved.—John C. B. Ehringhaus, Governor of North Carolina.

City Helps To Observe National Safety Week

This week, which is also National Safety Week, as well as American Education Week, is being observed throughout the country by police departments, auto clubs, and other organizations interested in the promotion of safety.

Wolf and Dessauer's now have in their window a display designed to promote safety in Fort Wayne. It consists of two traffic signals with life-size models of schoolboy patrols. These models are equipped with regulation belts and badges. There are also posters and pictures of accidents.

Companies Give Aid

The Standard Oil Company is sending a series of letters about different phases of safety to the filling station attendants throughout the fifteen states in which the company operates. These letters are to be continued for a period of fourteen weeks so as to get men acquainted with various phases of accident prevention.

The police department has not planned anything special, as the department wants the public to think of every week as safety week. However, they plan an extensive accident prevention drive to begin next year.

Classes Are Held

In various cities the traffic departments are holding a series of public instruction to acquaint the citizens with the means of preventing serious traffic mishaps.

At Central High School programs are being held in the home rooms. Also posters have been put up in the home rooms to promote safety among the pupils. The North Side student council plans a safety program early in December.

Altogether, the citizens of our country are being taught the principles of safety that this may be a better and safer country in which to live.

Home Room Tries Recognition Stunt

Recently Miss Magley's senior home room had a new idea for getting acquainted, originated by Morgan Harrison. Each senior was given a small piece of paper upon which he wrote his name and all interesting things which made him different from the rest of the students. The papers were then collected and given out to the different seniors. Each one read the interesting things about his fellow students, and at the end they introduced their classmates.

Mrs. F. D. R. on Education

I hope all of you will give your co-operation to education in your communities and will stand back of every movement to make our country lead in having no people who do not know enough to understand what is going on, not only here but throughout the world, so that we may have an informed public opinion. We then would have a real majority rule, a real democratic country, and perhaps we could fulfill the ideals of our forefathers when they founded a country where everyone should have a reason to live for his country.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Senior Balloting Reason Is Given

Will Aid Faculty in Choosing Honor Society Members; Is Not Much Favored By Class.

The balloting by seniors held last week on the National Honor Society members was accepted by the majority of the students as a normal everyday procedure. However, it had a deeper significance than was apparent.

Mr. Makey, the chairman of the committee in charge of this different method explained certain fundamental points in regard to the regulation which are not known to the general student body. He stated that the change was merely an idea being tried for the first time. If the students, in the minds of the faculty, choose intelligently and judiciously, their choices will carry a large influence on the final selections. If, however, their choices indicate prejudice and favor toward personal friends rather than a basis of scholarship and achievement, their opinions will be disregarded and the selections made entirely by a vote of the faculty. In any event the student vote is not official but is being used as a guide.

A brief survey of the students' opinion indicated that although they thought it an excellent idea to gain some inkling of their convictions, still, not so much power should be vested in them, that they control the vote entirely. In spite of the fact that some think that the pupils' contact with each other is conducive to a more accurate vote, the majority tends to think that the teachers, being older and more experienced, are able to offer a more impartial vote such as they have so ably done in the past.

Booster Club Aids In Various Activities Of School Curricula

The Booster Club of South Side performs many duties for the benefit of the students and organizations about the school. The members of the Booster Club are always ready to help and to do whatever they can.

The Booster Club sponsors the Tea Dances which are held regularly in our cafeteria. During school games the members also sell candy, pop, coca-cola, pepsi-cola, gum, cream puffs, school purses, pop corn, peanuts, pom-poms, neckties, ice cream, and hot dogs, among many other things that make the football and basketball tilts really complete.

The Booster Club also decorates each year for the National Honor Society Banquet.

The money received from these various sales goes to the Booster Club treasury, which in turn helps buy many things for the school. Last year money from the Booster Club treasury was used to buy the yell leaders' suits and sweaters. It pays for all advertising and decorating for the games. At present the Booster Club is helping in paying for the stage and curtains in the gym.

Safety Essay Rules To Be Made Today

Definite plans for the essay contest to be held in connection with the Safety Week campaign will be made at a meeting which is scheduled for today. The teachers of the English department and other departments of the school will be present at this meeting. Mr. Benjamin Null, head of the English department, is chairman of the affair.

The temporary plans are to have the students in the various English classes contribute essays on the subject of Safety. These essays will be judged, and the best one picked from the contributions.

In addition to the English department contest, there will also be contests conducted for other departments of the school.

Robert Pence, 1929 Graduate, Is Worker On Washington News

In a letter from Robert Pence, '29 graduate, Miss Rowena Harvey learned that he was working in the circulation department of the Washington, D. C., Daily News, a Scripps-Howard paper. He explained how the circulation is managed in the East. The department is divided into two sections, home delivery and street sales. He wrote that the city is divided into ten districts. Each district is in charge of a supervisor. The district is sub-divided into sub-districts. Robert is one of the station managers in charge of one of these districts. The office puts up prizes, some of which Robert has won.

The American's Creed

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people, whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established on those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution, to obey its laws, and to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.—The American's Creed by William Tyler Page.

George Washington's Words

Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all. Religion and morality enjoin this conduct. And can it be that good policy does not equally enjoin it? It will be worthy of a free enlightened, and at no distant period, a great nation to give to mankind the magnanimous and too novel example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence. Who can doubt that in the course of time and things the fruit of such a plan would rightly repay any temporary advantages which might be lost by a steady adherence to it?—George Washington in his Farewell Address.

Witnesses Of Accidents Give Descriptions Of Their Reactions

The number of automobiles dealing death and injury this year is appalling. These deaths and injuries are usually the result of careless, inhuman driving. People do not yet seem to realize that liquor and driving do not mix, and that the few minutes saved in speeding are not even comparable to the loss of time incurred in a serious injury.

This desolate truth, that accidents in our country are too many and too horrible, has come to South Side also. When asked about accidents they had seen, an utter repugnance for the subject was noticed. Many have seen disastrous accidents, however. Some of these follow.

Bernadette Dygert, well known girl around school, saw a bad accident on Highway 24. While driving in the rain a man from Illinois, in trying to avoid hitting a car driven by a drunken man who was on the wrong side of the road, slid on the slippery pavement, and the car turned over several times. Luckily, no one was seriously injured, but the man's wife suffered a broken leg.

Another Accident Given

Another person, who did not wish his name mentioned, saw an accident at the intersection of Creighton and Fairfield Avenues. A drunken driver was speeding south on Fairfield; another car was going west on Creighton. Neither stopped. They met in the middle of the intersection and both cars were badly damaged. All the occupants of the cars were bruised, and one man suffered severe lacerations about his head. This was another case of rank carelessness; the accident could easily have been avoided had either of the drivers attended to his driving and watched out for the other fellow.

Teacher Has Experience

Miss Hodgson, teacher of mathematics, in reply to the reporter's question, said she had never seen an accident, but she had come very close to having a serious one herself. While driving on a narrow road in the country, she saw two cars coming towards her at full speed, racing. One was just a little ahead of the other, and was trying to pass him. When they went by Miss Hodgson, the running board of her car was knocked off. This is the closest Miss Hodgson has come to seeing or being in an accident in her twenty years of driving, and she says that most of the accidents today are caused by speeding, reckless drivers, and that no driver under any condition should exceed the speed of forty miles per hour.

Times Campaign Being Carried On

Subscriptions To Times May Now Be Secured For 50 Cents; Notes To Be Paid This Week.

The fall semester fifty cent Times campaign, which went under way Friday, November 1, has so far met with moderate results. Approximately twenty subscriptions have been added to the regular campaign total of one thousand five.

The campaign is being carried on in every home room in South Side by the room agents and is under the general direction of Harriet Yapp, Times circulation manager. The five divisional subscription books are being supervised by the circulation assistants, who are Julia Crabill, Ina Claire Chappell, Eleanor Vesey, Helen Anderson, and Ruth Henline.

Special attention of all students who subscribed during the regular campaign, is called to promissory notes. A total of seventy-five cents has been due since November 1. Home room agents are being instructed to collect money this week for all unpaid notes.

Why Go To School Is Question Put To Many Pupils

Why are you going to school? Why didn't you quit school on your sixteenth birthday or are you planning to do that when it comes?

After speaking with only a very small portion of the total enrollment at South Side, it was amazing to discover that a very large percent of them would answer: "I have never thought of it; I guess I am here just because I have to go to school."

During this week when we are celebrating National Education Week, the many advantages of higher education are brought to our mind, but still most of us haven't thought seriously about our education.

Yes, we agree that a high school education at the very least is a necessary factor in one's life. But why is it necessary?

The real purpose of it is for the betterment of humanity and not merely for the improvement of one's self, which would really be considered a selfish motive.

Many students are eager to graduate from South Side so that they may go out into the world and support themselves. Some have an ambition which requires a high school and college education. Their work will be a direct benefit to others. This is a fine attitude to have according to the real purpose of a higher education.

Now is a fitting time to think about you and your future. Is it going to be one that will benefit humanity? It should be.

States Vary In Support For Schools

Number Of School Districts In States Vary Greatly; Many Tutors Poorly Paid.

In 1933-34, the average salary for the teachers and school officials in Mississippi was $406. There were 84,000 teachers throughout the United States who taught for less than $450 a year.

Maryland, with a land area of about 10,000 square miles, has only twenty-four school districts, while Connecticut with half of Maryland's area, has seven times as many school units. Utah, with 82,000 square miles of territory, operates only forty school tax units; its neighbor, Wyoming, with but little more area, has ten times as many school districts. Louisiana has only sixty-six school districts, Arkansas and Oklahoma, less than fifty percent larger in area, have respectively, forty-nine and seventy-five times as many school districts as Louisiana.

The total estimated wealth of the United States was in 1930 about $325,000,000,000. Nearly forty percent of this amount was claimed by five states. In 1930 six states paid three-fifths of the federal income tax.

It is highly significant of conditions as a whole that in Chicago the school budget for 1933 was cut approximately thirty-five percent, while the average reduction in municipal expenditures was 10.3 percent. In other words, our public school system of which we have so often and so loudly boasted is suffering considerably more as a result of the economic crisis than are communities in general.—Editorial in "Nation," April 18, 1934.

Accidents May Occur Anywhere, Anytime If You're Careless

Speed does not pay! Many drivers have found this to be very true. During the year 1934 the rate of death per accident on highways was more than 100 per cent greater than the average for all accidents combined. Curves seem to be the most dangerous obstacles, as 31 per cent of the deaths occurred in this manner.

Street intersections seem to lead the parade of automobile accidents. In 1934, 336,040 accidents occurred at street intersections. Exactly 286,650 accidents took place between intersections. Highways claim a total of 167,380 accidents while 42,340 of them took place on curves. Rural intersections are the cause of 28,220 mishaps while 12,350 take place on bridges. City and county road crossings are the cause of 5,290. Driveways of residents were responsible for 3,530 accidents which took place last year.

The total number of accidents for the year of 1934 were 882,000 in which 36,000 were killed and 954,000 were injured.

Miss Thorne Speaks At U. S. A. Meeting

Miss Mabel Thorne was the featured speaker at the last U. S. A. meeting held in the Greeley Room, Thursday, at 3:30 o'clock. The subject of her talk was "School Days in Labrador." Pictures and a doll called Becky Burden, with clothes typical of Labrador, were shown with her talk.

Several pictures were of large icebergs which, she explained, frequently turned over. The children go to school about four months in the summer in a building used for a school and church combined. The children like to play make-believe in a large boat in front of the school, usually pretending that they are their fathers on a fishing excursion.

Midterm Grades Issued

Midterm grades were issued Tuesday in all of the classes except gymnasium. The grading period which these marks represent ended Friday. The second set of S and U cards will be issued December 13, and the final grades will be issued on January 17.

Math-Science Club Hears Mr. Mathews

Talks On Local Waterworks; Club Invited To Visit Plant; Ruth Roadcap Gives Speech.

Mr. R. L. Mathews, supervisor and head engineer of our Fort Wayne Waterworks, favored the Math-Science Club of South Side by giving a very interesting speech on the subject, "The Chemical and Mathematical Side of the Waterworks," at a regular meeting held Friday evening, November 8, at 7:30 o'clock in the Greeley room.

Mr. Mathews has been the supervisor of the Fort Wayne Waterworks since its opening in January, 1934. Previous to that time he was in Andover where he helped plan the water plant. Mr. Mathews has had ten years' experience as an engineer and is a graduate of the University of Michigan.

Shows Water Course
By the help of a chart he showed the course of the water from the time it goes into the plant until it leaves. In addition, Mr. Mathews gave some very interesting figures as to the average amount of water used per day by every person in Fort Wayne, this average included, of course, the amount used by industries which is 75 gallons per person. The average amount of water used for 11 months in 1934 was 8,800,000 gallons per day.

A cordial invitation was extended by Mr. Mathews to all students to come down and visit the water plant, and see at first hand just what happens.

John Bex, president of the club, presided at the business meeting. The secretary and treasurer's report were given and the roll call was called. Lois Wyneken, Inter-club Congress representative, gave a report.

Totem Pole Planned
It was voted by the club to have one page in the Totem for 1936.

John Bex also announced the members for a song investigation committee. They are Robert Harruff, chairman, Bernadette Dygert, Mildred Foellinger, Ruth Berning and Jim Sweet. It will be the duty of the committee to write a song for the club if investigation proves that one is desirable.

The meeting was then turned over to Ruth Adler, who introduced Mr. Mathews. Following his speech, Ruth Roadcap gave a most interesting talk on the life of Einstein and his theory.

Eleanor Crosby took charge of the rest of the program, which included the playing of some games. Refresh-

Traffic Rules Of South Side Must Be Practiced In Halls

"Traffic? Yes, we have traffic—a regular pre-Christmas jam in the halls between periods. Common decency is the only rule that we have so far to regulate it, but some people at times seem rather short of common decency." With these words the Green-book, official South Side handbook, introduces the traffic subject to the minds of freshmen who enter Archer portals for the first time.

In a city with a population of around two thousand, it is imperative that certain traffic rules, however few they may be, be enforced. South Side may be compared to such a city, yet few of its citizens know, or much less obey, its traffic rules.

Traffic Rules Given
A few things which would help make hall passing between periods more pleasant are pointed out in the rules following:

Never run in the halls.
Keep to the extreme right.
Don't walk three or four abreast with arms interlocked.
Go into your classroom when you get there.
Don't clutter up the halls in groups.
Don't saunter—others are behind you.
Don't carry your notebooks and materials in such a way as to injure someone.
Don't try to roughhouse or wrestle. Remember the other fellow.
All these rules, it will be observed, resemble closely the regulations set forth by a city or town government. All of them tend for the lessening of confusion and accidents. All of them may be stated in the words of the last, "Remember the other fellow."

More specific rules are stated in a bulletin which is issued to teachers at the beginning of each new semester. These pertain mainly to passing during class periods and presence in certain parts of the building at such times. They are:

1. Pupils may enter the building when they arrive in the morning and are at liberty to go where they please until time for the first class.

South Side Teachers Define Whom They Consider Pet Peeves

All of us South Siders are a human sort of people, extremely so, and undoubtedly everyone of us has certain things that irk us, things which we call our "pet peeves." It is interesting to know those pet peeves of our teachers, perhaps they will give us a few pointers.

Miss Rose Marie DeLancey readily replied that a student who does not listen to the assignment and then asks questions about it after it has been given is one pet peeve of hers.

About this time of year nearly every English teacher discovers one of her pet peeves is the student who comes after he knows that the time for book reports is up and asks for "just one more chance." One can see the position in which it puts a teacher. Perhaps a melodious crooning of "Just One More Chance" might help matters a bit; but, by the way, one of Mr. Benjamin Null's dislikes is directed straight in the direction of crooning itself, so there you are!

Miss Gertrude Oppelt dislikes the students' not talking distinctly. However, do not think that you can get by with just a husky voice, for then you would turn yourself from one pet peeve into another. No teacher likes the bluffer; he is a common pet peeve.

"Mumble, mumble," running constantly through the library is most annoying to Miss Emma Shoup; it probably makes her think she is in a hospital with groaning patients all around her. "Love me, love my books" might be said to be her motto, for people who mark their places by turning down the corners of the pages are a source of irritation to Miss Shoup.

Mr. Herbert Voorhees wants a little more quietude. "Students' tearing the house down before the bell rings and taking several minutes to quiet down after it rings are my pet peeves," says that gentleman. During laboratory period, he also finds that silence helps a great deal.

Those pupils having "double trouble" in the classroom, that is, doing something else while class is in session, irritate Mr. Murphy more than any other one thing. He considers it not only discourteous to the teacher in charge of the class, but also unfair as far as actually putting in five hours each week in earning an economics credit.

The governors of forty states issued American Education Week proclamations in 1934 calling upon citizens to visit the schools and to direct their attention to the improvement of educational opportunity. These proclamations constitute the most comprehensive expression of American official opinion ever made on the value of the schools to the economic and social life of the nation. In many cities the mayors also released statements urging the public to co-operate with the schools in observing American Education Week.

In 1931 there were 50,000 students enrolled in correspondence or extension courses.

Times Staff Plans Potluck In Cafe

Program, Foods, Orchestra, and Clean-Up Committees Listed; Tentative Date, November 23.

The members of the South Side Times Staff will hold a potluck in the cafeteria some time during the week of November 17. A tentative date has been set at November 23.

The program committee consists of Gwen Horn, chairman; Louis Bonsib and Lois Wyneken.

Food committee is headed by Helen Kelsey. She is assisted by Betty Wolf and Georgianna Martin.

Food committee number two consists of Ann Abbott and Jo-Anne Smith and their assistants.

The clean-up committee is under the direction of Miss Rowena Harvey. Assisting her are Mildred Foellinger, Dick Helm, Jim Sweet, John Bex, Bryce Minier, June Haeger, Leona Menze and Ruth Garrison.

Bob Storm is the chairman of the arrangements committee. He is assisted by Myron Jones, Joan Bonsib, Martha Zelt and Marjorie Turner.

The orchestra committee is under the direction of Myron Jones.

The menu will consist of baked beans, potato salad, fruit salad, scalloped potatoes, meat loaf, sandwiches, pickles and olives, potato chips, cream puffs, ice cream, and Coca-Cola.

Takes Part in Play
Warren Zelt, a senior at South Side, had a part in a play given by St. Paul's Walther League in the school hall of St. Paul's Lutheran Church. He took a character part in this play and has been promised the lead in one of the Shakespeare plays directed by Miss Baldwin.

Mr. Reeves Now Added To Faculty

Will Teach Freshmen Students Art Of Woodworking; To Be Assistant To Mr. Chappell.

A new teacher, Mr. Leslie Reeves, has been added to the faculty of the industrial arts department of South Side. Mr. Reeves started teaching woodworking to the 9B manual training students this week. He teaches two classes in the morning to take some of the teaching burden off Mr. Bex and Mr. Chappell.

Our new pedagogue was born in Muncie, Indiana, and received his education there. He was graduated from the Ball State Teachers' College in 1927. Then Mr. Reeves, or "Red" as he is called on account of the shade of his hair, (a brick red,) got a position teaching at Geneva High School, near Decatur, where he stayed for about two years. From Geneva he went to Yorktown and taught there for an additional year.

Taught At Lafayette Central
Five years ago Mr. Reeves came to Fort Wayne to follow his profession. He began teaching at the Lafayette Central High School, near here. There he taught commerce and industrial arts; however, now he teaches manual training only.

Mr. Reeves says that he enjoys the teaching profession immensely. His ambition is nothing else but to continue the work he is doing. We hope he is successful with this.

His hobby is hunting and fishing, which he does whenever possible. The new teacher goes fishing in the regions which offer better fishing, to the north of Fort Wayne. However, he does his hunting mainly in Allen County.

Interested In Football
Mr. Reeves also takes an interest in football, which is his favorite sport. He played on the varsity team at college, and was captain of the team one year. He sees all the South Side games and has always admired our teams on the playing field. Mr. Reeves is interested in basketball and baseball and took an active part in both while at Ball State.

He married four years ago and is leading a happy married life. He is also a member of the Methodist Church and an active Mason.

Mr. Reeves, on being asked his opinion of the teachers at South Side, replied, "I am very grateful to the teachers of South Side for their consideration and friendship. Those with whom I have come in contact have been very considerate and have shown a friendly spirit towards me."

Everyone in South Side wishes success and good luck to Mr. Leslie Reeves, the new industrial teacher.

More Boys Enrolled
More boys than girls are enrolled in Lincoln High School of Lincoln, Nebraska, 1,351 of the 2,670 pupils being boys, 1,319 girls. There are 88 teachers in all. In that number are 69 women and 19 men teachers. The average attendance for boys is 1,298.225 and 1,277.8 for girls.

He sees all the South Side games and has always admired our teams on the playing field. Mr. Reeves is interested in basketball and baseball and took an active part in both while at Ball State.

He married four years ago and is leading a happy married life. He is also a member of the Methodist Church and an active Mason.

Mr. Reeves, on being asked his opinion of the teachers at South Side, replied, "I am very grateful to the teachers of South Side for their consideration and friendship. Those with whom I have come in contact have been very considerate and have shown a friendly spirit towards me."

Everyone in South Side wishes success and good luck to Mr. Leslie Reeves, the new industrial teacher.

More Boys Enrolled
More boys than girls are enrolled in Lincoln High School of Lincoln, Nebraska, 1,351 of the 2,670 pupils being boys, 1,319 girls. There are 88 teachers in all. In that number are 69 women and 19 men teachers. The average attendance for boys is 1,298.225 and 1,277.8 for girls.

South Side Teachers Define Whom They Consider Pet Peeves

All of us South Siders are a human sort of people, extremely so, and undoubtedly everyone of us has certain things that irk us, things which we call our "pet peeves." It is interesting to know those pet peeves of our teachers, perhaps they will give us a few pointers.

Settlement In Kentucky Built By Stearns Coal

Educational Advantages, Religious, Social Life Are Maintained In Colony.

In order to understand the social, religious, and educational life of the Stearns Coal and Lumber Company family, which includes all employees, it is necessary to know about the setting of the company.

The property is located in the foot hills of the Cumberland Mountains, covering some 120,000 acres in McCreary County, Kentucky, and in Scott, Fentress and Pickett Counties, Tennessee. Stearns, Kentucky, is the headquarters for the operations and is located on the Southern Railway and on the Lookout Mountain Airline highway No. 27. It is centrally situated for the territory it serves since it is 200 miles south of Cincinnati, 156 miles north of Chattanooga, 170 miles southeast of Louisville, 90 miles north east of Knoxville, and 200 miles north east of Nashville. Although the products are coal and lumber, there are excellent possibilities for oil and gas.

Family Life Lazy

When the Stearns Coal and Lumber Company came into this section, they found natives, descendants of the English who wandered westward from Virginia and who make up, in all probability, the purest distinctly American stock to be found in the United States. Southerners called them mountaineers. The main occupations at that time were hunting, fishing, and a little farming but since coal and timber resources have been developed.

Large families were regular—they lived in log cabins, the made whisky and drank it—the fought each other but welcomed the stranger. They were free backwoods people, untrammelled by the more civilized world. The men folk were prone to leisure and did not at once or easily adopt themselves to industrial routine. However, as the years rolled by and with regular and profitable employment they developed habits of industry—and along with them came better housing, better schools and churches, and a greater participation in the comforts of life. The employees of the Stearns Coal and Lumber Company of today are a class unequalled elsewhere in the South. There are no foreigners and but a few colored families who have adopted the company as their employer.

It can readily be seen that it was a considerable task to develop an industry employing some 2,000 men, involving a population of more than 10,000 people in a mountain section, bereft of roads, towns, schools, churches or even labor to perform the work.

Advantages Are Listed

A railroad, now 50 miles in length, had to be built in order to log the timber and fetch it to the saw mill at Stearns and to mine the coal on a dozen different sections of the property. Towns with houses, school, commissaries, bath houses, and tippling had to be laid out in each of those mining locations. And at headquarters a power plant, chops, supply houses, wholesale grocery, restaurants, drug store, picture house, offices, hotel, boarding houses, a complete telephone, heating, water and sewage systems had to be constructed. In the end it was found necessary to operate thirteen commissaries to supply the needs of the people. Incidentally there are recreational halls, baseball park, tennis court, and last but not least, a splendid nine-hole golf course. These are merely accessories to this far flung industry, which does not confine its activities to Stearns, Kentucky, alone, but to various cities from the Great Lakes to Atlanta, Georgia, and markets its products in a board belt covering the Central portion of the United States and even abroad.

In 1919 the Stearns Coal and Lumber Company built a school for twelve grades. Now there are 550 children attend this school. The company has also built schools at all of its mining camps including including two high schools. The children, numbering approximately 1,500, are housed in eleven buildings. At first the company paid all expenses for the schools, but now they are self-sustaining.

Churches, Health Developed

Three churches have been organized—the Baptist, Congregation and Holiness. The schools are used as churches and Sunday schools on Sundays.

For years Stearns has fostered first aid to the injured and mine rescue training. Today practically every employee has had first aid training. It was one of the first mining companies in Kentucky which trained first aid teams among its miners.

The company also has set aside 100 acres of land for a demonstration farm. Various experiments with plants are conducted on their farm every year. The Stearns Coal and Lumber Company urges their employees to have garden and even small farms.

Stearns is the headquarters for the McCreary County Health Unit, consisting of a doctor and a registered nurse. Medical affairs are under the jurisdiction of the Stearns Sick and Accident Association, which includes all employees as members. The Association employs five doctors, graduates of accredited medical schools, to minister to the sick or injured. Ten percent of the fund is used to care for needy employees, while ninety percent is used to pay for the doctors. The company was one of the first coal companies in Kentucky to construct better houses at its mines. It also supports a complete Red Cross chapter.

The officials of the company have not overlooked recreational facilities for its employees. A baseball park costing in excess of $6,000 has been built, since baseball is the favorite sport. A splendid hall with the largest court in the county is used to conduct contests in and to use for dances, plays, and public assemblages of all kinds. Tennis courts have always been provided, and pool parlors and a picture theatre are part of the recreational program. The Stearns Company also has one of the best nine-hole golf courses in the state of Kentucky.

Employees Work Hard

Stearns boasts both Boy and Girl Scout organizations, a literary club, an enthusiastic American Legion post, a Mason lodge, and a Junior Order have a splendid membership.

It is not a surprising fact that the relationship of the employees is splendid since the company has always paid the highest wages in the district and operates under a contract with the United Mine Workers. The foremen of the company have always been persons who have worked themselves up from a smaller job. Employees are given the opportunity to acquire stock in the company. The house of Stearns has never been divided against itself.

The Stearns Coal and Lumber Company maintains its own telephone system—its own bank—its own newspaper—its own wholesale grocery—in fact, everything that is necessary to the comfort, happiness and health of its employees has ever been the chief concern of the Stearns Coal and Lumber Company.

Will Stage Rodeo

The music department of Kokomo High School, Kokomo, Indiana, will give a unique rodeo. Stunts by magicians, German band, tumblers, and amateur hour impersonations will be included in the program.

Kroger Stores Marked Contrast To Yesterday's Food Markets

Great strides have been made by Kroger in presenting the modern up to date Kroger Foods Markets—it is a far cry indeed from the old fashioned store of not so many years ago, with its open cracker barrel, kerosene flavored foods and flies in abundance, to the modern, sanitary, efficient Kroger Store of today.

The guesswork of food buying so prevalent a few years back has been eliminated. Today, the modern housewife goes to her Kroger Store, she knows she can shop there conveniently, receive efficient, courteous service and can be sure she is getting quality food products. Kroger's guardian of quality—The Kroger Food Foundation—is ever present to guard, inspect and approve the food products she buys. All Kroger merchandise must pass the rigid inspection of this Foundation, it must be right to be sold in a Kroger Store.

An army of trained, efficient buyers are ever on the alert to bring to your table the finest foods obtainable and at the lowest possible prices consistent with their high quality.

A new service to Fort Wayne housewives, inaugurated by Kroger's recently, is the Kroger Food Foundation's "Thoughts for Food" recipes; new, tried and proven recipes are issued weekly now at all Kroger Stores; they bring you the unique as well as the old standbys in recipes for seasonable dishes.

And convenient indeed is the additional feature of this recipe service in that the Food Foundation welcomes inquiries as to your food problems, what to serve; menus for limited budgets and large families, parties, etc. Your inquiry will be promptly answered. This service is free to Kroger customers.

The new issues of this recipe are issued every Monday; you will find them full of interesting news and timely recipes; get your copy today.

Many Homes Using Electrical Appliances

Better education has brought the public to the realization of the benefits to be had by employing the use of electrical servants in their homes. Science has now harnessed electricity that we can now enjoy it in every office and in our home, electric lights, mixers, refrigerators, ranges, dishwashers, washing machines, and all other servants contributing to an electric home. General Electric Company, through their large research laboratories and unlimited resources, have been able to contribute in a large way to things electrical and are working and striving at all times to improve electrical living. You are welcome to visit the salesroom where you will see the latest creations in electrical servants, say the managers of the E. A. Barnes Electrical Appliances, Inc.

Issue of Times To Be Entered In Competition

Wins 1935 Memorial Award; Ursula Morton Manager; Education Issue Planned.

Last year, among the many hundreds of high school papers entered in the contest for school papers contributing most to education during 1934-35 the South Side Times was ranked as the most outstanding. For this extraordinary and honorary position, it was awarded the Tercentenary Memorial Award.

Clippings from the 1934 American Education Week issue were then assembled on one sheet of paper and sent to every high school in the country. Charts, maps, cartoons, pictures, stories, and heads were exactly copied and made up into a veritable treasure of information, small but the most important.

This year, the South Side Times is again planning to enter this contest. Specifications and suggestions for the Special Education number of school publications in the observance of American Education Week, November 11 to 17, 1935, were sent out to all high schools interested. The rules for entering are: (1) Any special number of the school newspaper or magazine published in connection with the observance of the 1935 American Education Week may be entered; (2) Two copies of the paper together with the enrollment blank must be sent to the National Association of Student Editors, before December 2, 1935. Some suggestions are given, such as; Use a great many pictures, educational cartoons, and charts; and try to publish the governor's proclamation and the like.

The papers are judged on art, literary, and news material, attractiveness of physical appearance, activities of school presented in a style of writing which will be understood and appreciated by both pupils and adults, appreciation of ideals, high standards of achievement, and worthwhile activities and achievements of the school.

Miss Rowena Harvey is the faculty adviser, with Virginia Vesey having general management of the American Education Week news. The whole staff is assisting in making the paper a big and complete edition.

Our public schools and other great institutions of learning have become the most potent influence upon citizenship and government and the most powerful agencies for the promotion of human prosperity and happiness.—Henry Horner, Governor of Illinois.

Upon the shoulders of our youth rests the future prosperity of our country. The educational opportunities which are being provided for them should be the immediate concern of all our citizenry.—Oscar K. Allen, Governor of Louisiana.

Mr. Snider Invites Visit From Parents

R. Nelson Snider cordially extends an invitation to all parents of South Side students and others interested, to visit the school at any time during National Education Week. Mr. Snider extended this invitation once at Back-to-school night; of course, parents are always welcome, but especially so during the two remaining days of this week. Many parents have already availed themselves of the opportunity of becoming better acquainted with the school to which they are sending their children. Questions concerning grades may be answered through parents having a talk with the teachers. This often benefits the student and is a wise act on the part of interested parents.

Construct Driving Range

In order that the students of Brackenridge High School, San Antonio, Texas, may better their game of golf for the future tournaments, the physical education department is constructing a driving range.

French Club Skate Planned At Meeting

Famous Parisian Buildings Discussed Playlet Is Given; Miss Perkins Shows Slides.

Famous Parisian buildings were discussed at the last meeting of the French Club, which was held in Room 8. The program proved very interesting, the various speeches touching upon all the well known architectural masterpieces of Paris.

Dorothy Newell presented an interesting report on La Place de la Concorde, La Opera, and several other more familiar buildings of Paris. She stated in this talk that most of the buildings were built on the Gothic style of architecture, but that some were planned on the Greek and Roman style. Another point made was that almost all the Parisian buildings are very old.

Irene Ehlinger Speaks

The talk given by Irene Ehlinger presented the Notre Dame Church, the Arc de Triomphe, the Eiffel Tower, and other famous churches and bridges known to every Parisian. She described the buildings both from the exterior and the interior; and gave facts about their history and origin. One important fact told in the talk was that the Eiffel tower was the highest tower in the world, and that one must take three elevators in order to reach the top.

The two girls then presented a short drama entitled, "An American Girl in Paris." The play dealt with the buildings just given in the talks and told other facts about the buildings. Dorothy Newell took the part of the American girl, while Irene Ehlinger took the part of the French girl.

Vivian Hickman Is Representative

Miss Perkins then showed some slides of the buildings, explaining each one as the picture was shown on the screen. There were street scenes, bridges, churches, and others in the collection.

During the business meeting which preceded the program, tickets for the skating party to be held at Bell's Rink on November 30, were distributed to the members of the club. Vivian Hickman was elected Inter-Club Congress member for the club for this year. Theo Schuereberg, president, appointed an attendance committee to take charge of the prizes to be given at the skating party. It is composed of the following: Vivian Hickman, Marion McAtee and Nancy Newell.

Junior Class Mothers Have Afternoon Tea

Theme Of Annual Affair Was "Armistice Day"; Mrs. Storm In Charge.

The mothers of the members of the Junior class were entertained at a tea given in their honor last Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the high school cafeteria. The theme of the affair was Armistice Day. Mrs. T. Storm was general chairman of the group and was assisted by several committees.

"The parents of high school pupils should be helping to select the college which their boy or girl is planning to attend," said Mr. R. Nelson Snider in his talk before the mothers. He also told them that to anyone wishing help or information on this subject, he would gladly furnish details. Various events that are happening or that are going to happen were also discussed. Mr. Snider spoke on the subject, "Planning for College."

Miss Pittenger Speaks
Miss Martha Pittenger, our dean talked on "Personal Opportunities and Welfare Work." The main part of her speech is as follows: "We have organized clubs and societies to accommodate various interests of the pupils of South Side. The purpose of these organizations is to help the boys and girls discover their talent, to give them an opportunity to plan and execute a program of their own choosing, to develop in them a sense of leadership and co-operation, and to give them happy associations. These clubs are available to all pupils. Belonging to a club is an experience; and parents should urge their children to take part in them because they mean growth and development. Welfare work is the theory of South Side. Every child should have the right physical condition. The Parent-Teacher Club makes it possible to take care of under-privileged here at South Side."

Ruth Garrison and Vernon Miller were the student speakers at the tea. Ruth's talk was on Armistice Day. She said, "Every war in which the United States has participated has brought about some important step in the advancement of civilization. While we honor our World War soldiers on Armistice Day, we cannot point out a single step that was gained in civilization by the World War. The step which should have been gained by this great war was to form some sort of a contract to secure world peace. The people of the world fought for this idea, then turned it down when the result was within easy reach. Now the plea is being made to give this problem of world peace serious consideration and revise our efforts in this matter."

More Talks, Music Given
National Education Week was discussed by Vernon Miller. He stated in his speech that education is a great help to democracy, and that people should look forward to more education. Another important point made by Vernon was, "The main part of National American Education Week is in its future and not what it meant in the dim, dark past." He also said that people who have a good education are less apt to get into difficulties than those who do not possess this valuable knowledge.

Music for the tea was furnished by the Little Symphony under the direction of Mr. Wainwright. After the musical portion of the program, time was permitted for questions and answers.

Those helping Mrs. Storm at the tea were Mrs. C. D. Hoff, program; Mrs. Roy Rippe, hostess chairman, assisted by the Mesdames C. G. Cleaver, C. G. Geyer, A. L. Foellinger, N. Zehr, C. Strawbridge, E. D. Lehman, and F. Bandtall.

Between seventy-five and a hundred mothers were present at the tea.

Affairs of Schools Managed By Trustees

Ben F. Geyer

Mrs. D. S. Vesey

Dr. Victor Hilgeman

A well co-ordinated and delicately-adjusted school program, arranged by the superintendent of schools, Merle J. Abbott, and properly attended to and carried out by five persons of Fort Wayne, is responsible for the well running mechanism of the school and its possibility of continuing as such. This board, officially called the Board of School Trustees, is appointed by the mayor of Fort Wayne and serve for a period of four years.

The members of the school board at the present time are all well-known and prominent people both in business and chosen professions. They are Mrs. David Vesey, Judge David E. Smith, Dr. Victor Hilgeman, William McKay, and Ben F. Geyer, the president. They meet the first and third Tuesday of the month at 7:15 o'clock in the School Administration building. Their work is the general but complete business of running the school.

Superintendent Arranges Program
A program arranged by the superintendent is gone over by the board. They approve all bills, approve all pay rolls, approve all contracts with teachers, and provide for building and repairing of the public school buildings; in general, then, to see that the school business is properly and smoothly run.

The different members of the school board agree in most things about which they were questioned, at least in general opinions. Mr. Ben Geyer, the president of the board, enjoys his duties and finds them interesting enough to attend every meeting. He has no children in school, but he, himself, taught school in 1901, 1902 and later in 1906-1907.

Geyer Expresses Opinion
He takes an interest in child problems that may arise during the course of a school year, and seems to sympathize with them quite freely. However, being president, his interest lies mainly in the business of running the schools. The following statement expresses his earnest opinion:

"The depression affected the operations of the school exactly as it affected other operations. There was less money for operations and that put more work on the teachers. The teachers, however, very willingly accepted the additional work. As to National Education Week, any activity in school work that brings to people generally a better knowledge of school work is helpful to the entire school system. National Education Week is a very commendable thing."

Mrs. Vesey Enjoys Duties
Mrs. David Vesey, the only woman on the school board, also enjoys her duties on the school board, but is sometimes slightly overwhelmed by the responsibility of her position. She has missed only twice in a year of board meetings. She declares that she has enlarged and broadened out in knowledge of school intricacies, but still believes she is only on the surface.

"Merle Abbott is probably the best source of information on it," is her comment. She taught in high school for two years and now has three children in school. "The thing that has impressed me most is that all our school children of today, in spite of the near $1,000,000 cut in budget from more prosperous days, have not been deprived of a single educational advantage. This is probably due to excellent administration and loyalty of school employees," is her final statement.

Hilgeman and Smith Agree
Dr. Victor Hilgeman thinks his duties are very interesting but would not like to be a teacher. He prefers his job as a dentist. He finds study of child problems necessary but has stuck mainly to business in running the schools. He thinks, "There is a great deal of improvement in running schools. The system and method of teaching is improving and begins to show directly on the school child."

Judge David E. Smith also finds his duties very interesting and sees no reason to skip meetings unless for a very definite, urgent reason. Being a lawyer, and interested more in statistics, he has chosen the business of running the school for a deeper study but he does like children. In 1888-89 he taught school in a country school and now has two daughters teaching. His comment follows: "We've had to economize in every department to meet the present times, but we've gotten along very well and I still approve of my duties."

McKay Is Pleased
The remaining board member is William T. McKay. He is in the wholesale grocery business, but, nevertheless, finds school business interesting. He has kept in pace with the local situation and is interested in school budgeting. However, he thinks he could hardly qualify for a teaching position and will stick to groceries. He has two girls in Central High School and is quite in the midst of many school scenes.

His statement is: "From my experience as a member of the School Board, I think Fort Wayne is fortunate in its course of administration. I am well pleased with the success of my children in college, which I think proves its proficiency."

30,000,000 people visit the larger museums of the country each year. There are 325 major institutions of this kind in the United States today.

Industrial Course Has Rapid Growth

Department Increases In Size; Many New Subjects Added; Mechanical Drawing Taught.

The Manual Training Department has increased greatly since it was first started, both in the subject matter taught and in the enrollment.

Formerly, manual training was taught only from the 9-A to the 10-A. Now, there is a manual training course of four years.

The subjects that were first given to the manual training students were wood-working in the 9-B, wood-turning in the 9-A, forging and machine work in the 10-B, and mechanical drawing in the 10-A.

There have been many subjects added to the course, and now in the 9-B bench wood-work and blueprint work is given; in the 9-A, wood-turning, shop-sketching, bench work. In the 10-B, general metal work, which includes working a mill machine, machine lathes, moulding, pattern-making, and sheet metal work are given. In the 10-B, cabinet work, operating mill machines and making larger projects in wood-working is done.

Mechanical drawing, which was formerly a one-year course, is now taught for three years. It includes machine drawing, pattern making, and architectural work.

Volleyball, Handball, Boxing Are Gym Sports

Volleyball, handball and boxing are the major projects of the boys' gym classes. Practices are being held in all three under the instruction of Mr. Briner. Regular competition will be started soon.

Volleyball teams are arranged in the physical education department according to weight. Those players of 115 pounds and under are listed as lightweights, and those of over 115 pounds are classified as heavyweights. Mr. Briner personally gives each team instruction on fundamentals and technique. Practice tournaments will be continued for several days, until the final tournaments begin. The two teams in each class winning their respective class eliminations will be matched to determine the champion of the school.

Handball practices are held in the handball courts by those interested in that sport.

Those who are especially desirous of participating in more than the class games enter the handball tournament held by the intramural department. Any boy may enter this tournament by signing up with Mr. Briner before November 15.

The education of our youth is not only a state but a national obligation and of vital importance to the existence of our nation. Education has long been recognized as essential to an enlightened and free democracy.—J. M. Futrell, Governor of Arkansas.

Millions To School
Twenty-two and a half million dollars will be appropriated for the school system of Los Angeles, Cal., if the school bond election is successful.

Class Room News

As Mr. Wilburn Wilson's civics students have been studying citizenship recently, Mr. Wilson and fifty-five of his students visited a class of forgers who are studying for their naturalization papers. The class met in the large classroom of the Neighborhood House at the corner of John and Wallace Streets. Mr. L. B. Harper, an attorney, was the teacher of the class that evening; former Judge George Leonard was the guest speaker. The subject for discussion was "The Constitution."

Mr. McClure uses a different type of assignment for his history pupils. Instead of giving his pupils questions to answer, he gives them an outline of the next day's lesson. He thinks that this type of assignment is much more satisfactory than the question type, because the pupils will probably have to read the entire lesson to obtain sufficient knowledge about the outline.

"On the east coast of the step house," remarked Mr. Furst in his commercial law period 3 class recently, when he was explaining to the class where the sheriff sales are held. He, of course, meant to say that they are held on the east steps of the court house. In trying to cover up his remark, he told of an experience which happened to a teacher at the Harmar School. The teacher having had the pupils to do work on the board was going to tell them to erase the board and take their seats; instead she said, "Take the board and erase your seats."

A program is being planned by Miss Oppelt for her second year Latin class. She has an apparatus called a lantern-slide with which she can show the class pictures of Roman life. Special reports, concerning the slides, will be given by various pupils of the class. She hopes to complete her plans and have the program ready by the latter part of November.

Wayne Bennett was honored with a birthday party in his public speaking class recently. The party was suggested by Wayne as a surprise on himself.

Mrs. Welty's home room is planning to have a talk on the history, display, and salute of the flag to be given by Howard Miller. There was a talk Wednesday by Mary Lou Moffet on the Value of Education.

Norma Clauser, Jane Clark, Joe Close, Roland Dettmer, and Frances Crawford in Mr. Flint's home room planned a series of programs for National Education Week.

In one of Miss Kiefer's English classes, Robert Groves, while reading a play, read "Oh, my bethrothed" instead of "Oh, my betrothed."

And then we found out that Wade They's gesture speech was just another "fish story."

In a recent Burke test held in Miss Demaree's class Virginia

Hardboiled Males Of Archer Faculty Are Getting Literary

Curiosity? Ah yes! That is what led many students to peer into the men's restroom after having read the important looking sheet that was posted outside the door of this room. The paper was written in red ink, so that no one could possibly miss reading it.

The paper reads as follows: "Women of the Faculty—Any old time you want to clear out the Greeley Room, or any other old nook or corner of any junk you don't want, just move it into the men's rest room. We are good natured and really enjoy having our room filled with junk."

Indian Case Moved In
When the curious people look into the men's rest room the first thing they spy is something that looks like a coffin, which fills up the whole room. It fits in perfectly lengthwise. Goaded on by the above-mentioned impulse, they proceed farther and discover that the creepy looking object is just the showcase of Indian stones which is usually kept in the Greeley Room, and up to this semester had its appearance in the front hall.

Right across the hall from the men's room is the office of Mr. Null. He was able to lighten our spirits quite a lot concerning the matter. He said that a couple years ago, a highly decorative chair made its appearance in the room. Although they would not have minded this addition in the least if it had been usable, the chair proved to be as smooth as the Ozark Mountains (quoting Mr. Null). The back of the chair protruded in such a way that if the person occupying the chair leaned back, he would receive a bump on the head. Mr. Wilson added that it was suitable to rest the feet on.

Instructors Completely Disgusted
With the recent appearance of the showcase, the men are undecided as to whether they should squeeze themselves around the object to get to their mailboxes, or use field glasses and spears to see and retrieve their mail.

Another suggestion to enlighten our souls was that the students might think that the faculty might get along better under such handicaps. This person gave us his assurance that they are entirely mistaken, and that something had to be done.

It is said that the two most hard boiled members of the male faculty dictated and wrote this document. So, get on your thinking cap to get to the bottom of the whole thing. No amount of persuasion will make anyone tell who the hardboiled people are.

Gardner, Mary Martha Hobrock Virginia Zieg, and Harry Yoap made over 90.

Anyone desiring to hear a Scotch joke, just visit the fourth period public speaking class and Donald Backofen will present one of his series.

Miss Van Gorder's home room had an Armistice program. The chairman was Louise Closs, and the others on the program were: John Bex, Eleanor Krosky, Robert Brown, and Virginia Hemmer.

Week's Theme Of Democracy, Schools Timely

Successful Hope Of Keeping Popular Rights Lies In Part On Work Of Schools.

National Education Result Democracy

Period Is Nearly Attained When Most Citizens May Have High School Benefit.

"The School and Democracy," the theme for American Education Week of 1935, is to be considered especially timely because of its emphasis upon the fundamental purpose of our country as implied in the words "the school," and "democracy."

This year, in particular, during trying times of international warfare and strife, in anything connected with the independent ideals of a nation, or, for that matter, anything which strives to emphasize the desirability of preserving a country's democracy, particularly appropriate.

Democracy Is Fundamental

But not only does democracy pertain to nations, states, and city governments. The schools, South Side High School, for example, depend on democracy for some of their fundamental teachings. Democracy, applied to nations, stands for the brotherhood of man and the determination to work out an order in which the people themselves shall control the conditions under which they work and live. Democracy then, as applied to South Side, should imply the relationship of the student body, its plans for a better school city, and its determination to help the faculty enforce the rules and regulations of a superior group.

The pursuit of democracy, whether it be in a government or a school, is a daring and difficult goal. The wonder is that with centuries of despotism and special privilege among nations woven into men's lives, our forefathers should have had the courage to try a new form of government. Since the public school is a direct outgrowth of a democratic government, however, there is nothing surprising about a liberal, democratic educational system; such as the one in which South Side is proud to claim itself a part.

The men who founded this nation's government and who played such an important part in the inauguration of democratic schools must have known that the battle to elevate human rights was hardly begun. They must have known that greed and lust for power would take advantage of the weaknesses of man. And yet they had such faith in the rightness of the common man that they laid the groundwork for a democratic government and civilization.

Time has proved their wisdom. By building a government upon the idea of the golden rule, they realized immense new forces in the lives of the people. Each new gain awakened the aspiration of multitudes. Greatest of all aspirations has been the desire for education; until elementary schooling has become universal, and secondary schools enroll seven out of ten of high school age.

We are now at the great turning point in our American government. Until now the mass of the future population has been educated upon an elementary-school level with relatively little attention to the problems of government and the social and economic life. We are rapidly entering a period when the masses of voters will have a high school education or more. Twelve million young people have come of voting age since 1929. Almost one million of these are college graduates; at least half are high school graduates. We are at the point where the balance of power rests in the hands of more broadly educated people.

Youth Is Nation's Hope

These young people, of whom South Side's student body is representative, are coming onto the scene at a time when democracy throughout the world is fighting for its very life. In the United States, there is no program before the country with any prospects of early adoption which would restore to the entire people their economic security, personal rights, political liberties, and representative institutions.

Democracy, as instituted by our forefathers, therefore, will be compelled to survive periods of argumentation on standards of exchange, interstate business regulations, concentration of power, idea-spreading machinery in the hands of monopolies, and corporate control of industry. All of these conditions, in some manner, will tend to affect the student body of the schools.

The nation's hope of successful maintenance of democracy lies in the power of intelligent, reinforced by the work of the schools. A double program of action for students and teachers during the year is suggested by Joy Edward Morgan, editor of the Journal of the National Education Association. Mr. Morgan's plan is as follows: "First, let us resolve to study our social and economic problems. If the people will work at their problems and seek to understand them they will find a way. Second, let everyone ask himself what kind of a civilization he wants. Then let him ask what he can do to help develop such a civilization. To teachers, to do personal work with both children and adults as though the very survival of democracy depended upon that teaching, the only course open to those who cherish their economic security, their personal rights, their political liberties and their representative institutions.

Mr. Null, head of the English department, is chairman of the committee making arrangements for the essay contest to be conducted by the English department in South Side in connection with the safety campaign to be held here.

Many Teachers Have Worked Their Way To College Diplomas

Many teachers who are the most proficient in their various subjects are those who have had the greatest struggle in getting their education. Upon questioning various teachers concerning the manner in which they obtained money to pay for their college education, many unique answers were received.

The most practiced way of earning money was to work for six months and then attend school for six months, continuing this until they completed their college career. One of our well-known teachers worked his way through both high school and college, proving that if we desire an education it is ours if we are not afraid of a little work.

Waited On Tables

Borrowing money and returning it as soon as they had secured a job, was another favorite way. Many preferred to balance trays by waiting on tables at the various fraternity houses, clubs, and hotels. Mowing lawns, fixing tennis courts, caddieing at golf courses and other odd jobs about the campus and town also added to their list of means to earn money.

A dry cleaning and pressing establishment which was composed of two people, one of our outstanding teachers and his room mate, was one of the most unique ways of earning money.

Worked At Odd Jobs

Clerking in a book store, selling school supplies, furniture and juggling sodas for their fellow students made up another part of their routine.

Being night watchmen was one of the more strenuous jobs, but those who needed money did not shirk any available job. Helping professors in their various subjects by grading papers, cleaning up the class rooms and any other job the professor might have was a very profitable occupation. A very "sweet" job was that of clerking in a confectionery and bakery.

For those who were extraordinary good swimmers, was the job of supervising the college pool. Students who were not able to complete their work offered jobs as tutors for many excellent students. One of our more numerous teachers stated that he "slung hash" in one of the boarding houses on the campus.

Pupils Find Jobs To Occupy Time

Variety of Occupations Chosen; Students Work On Saturdays; Many Employed In Stores.

When we think of students working their way through school our minds immediately turn to the period during which our fathers and mothers went to school. We seldom associate the students of today with the students of yesterday, most of whom worked their ways through school; rather we think of the students now as spending their leisure hours in saving a good time. In reality many of the students of South Side are working after school and on Saturdays at some worthwhile job.

Some of the pupils work in grocery stores, department stores, bakeries, libraries, filling stations, furniture stores and drug stores. Others usher at theaters, pass bills, work for teachers, deliver milk, sell magazines, deliver newspapers, play in orchestras, each piano and other musical instruments, give dancing lessons, take care of children, do housework, and work at any other odd jobs.

Education is a debt which each generation owes in full measure to the succeeding one. To function most effectively in a progressing state and nation it must be constantly revised, improved and adapted in form and administration to the needs of a changing social order.—Louis J. Brann, Governor of Maine.

Public education in a democracy plays a most significant part in the life of government as well as the lives of individuals. The progress which his state has made and the outlook of our people in general reflect the contributions of our schools to the general welfare.—Hil McAlister, Governor of Tennessee.

The value and importance of an education to the youth of our country, as well as to our government, has long been established, and the fact is well recognized that education of the citizens is the foundation upon which a democratic government must rest.—Ruby Lafoon, Governor of Kentucky.

Hausmann Speaks To German Group

Former Berlin Resident Talks About German Customs Before War At Meeting Nov. 6.

Mr. Hausmann, a former resident of Berlin, Germany, spoke before the German Club Wednesday, November 6, on the customs of that country before the war. He was born and raised in Berlin, where 35 years ago there were few trees, little grass, and not many flowers, but mainly stone buildings. Now, of course, there are many parks in Berlin.

He explained the school system of the gymnasiums, to which he was sent, and the public schools, to which went only the children of parents who could not afford private schools. The school he attended was the Royal French Gymnasium, which he did not enjoy because of the large amount of work that was necessary even during vacation which lasted only four or five weeks. The boys and girls, he explained, were taught in different buildings; and if a student failed more than once, he had to quit the gymnasium, which is just another name for a classical school, and attend the public schools.

Youth Movement Started

"The youth movement which was started about 35 years ago was a revolt of the German youth against the materialistic world created by their elders," Mr. Hausmann continued. This movement called 'Die Wandervogel,' meaning 'Wandering Birds,' was organized for the youth of the cities who knew little or nothing about the country and village life, about the birds and trees, and about the songs and legends of old Germany. This effort to get away from harsh civilization was a great success, spreading from Berlin to the rest of Germany. On these trips to the country, no teacher or parent was taken along, but the rules were strict. There were no public school children allowed; there was no smoking, drinking, or dancing. Their pleasures were derived from art, botany, books, music and history. The old songs and legends were collected on these trips and printed."

He further added that these hiking clubs gradually adopted a special costume, the color of the cap of each student representing the different schools. Also girls' clubs were organized but always kept separate from the boys.

"This youth movement, as it is called, is still going on in Germany. In different parts of the country, the government has erected 'Jugendherbergen,' youth shelters, where the young people can cook their meals and spend the night free of charge. The result is: improved health and strength in the youth of the whole country," Mr. Hausmann said.

The next meeting of the German Club will be on November 20, when Miss Alma Buechner will present a program of German folk songs in costume. Miss Buechner, who is a teacher of piano, has made a special study of German folk music and her presentation is sure to be very interesting and enjoyable.

Symbol Of American Liberty Concealed, Built By Frenchmen

By Oscar Eggers

With throbbing hearts tingling with a new-born feeling of freedom, immigrants from foreign countries look upon the beautiful Statue of Liberty as they come into the harbor of New York to begin life anew as American citizens. Little do Americans today realize the significance of that picture of freedom, and little do they know of its origin and the time and labor expended in having it constructed.

The statue was the idea of M. La-boulaye and a group of guests he was entertaining at his home near Versailles, France, in 1865. One of the guests was a young sculptor from Alsace, Frederic Auguste Bartholdi, who gave twenty of the best years of his life to make this symbol of America's dearest asset in commemoration of the centennial of American independence.

French Send Money

He encountered tasks which seemed almost insurmountable. Never before, never afterward, had such an undertaking been attempted. Besides engineering and technical art problems, there was the trouble of raising the immense sum of money needed to construct this masterpiece of sculpturing. The money was not donated by the French government; it was given out of the none-too-willing pockets of the French people themselves to promote international good will.

On the other side of the water in America there was trouble gathering money from the skeptical people for the purpose of building a fitting base for the statue, and Congress turned a cold shoulder on proposals to appropriate money.

Bartholdi Finishes Work

In spite of these obstacles, Frederic Bartholdi worked on for years, and in 1884, finished the great work. It was formally presented to the United States Minister Levi P. Morton on Independence Day of that year, eight years after the day it was to commemorate.

Mainly through the efforts of Joseph Pulitzer, editor of the "New York World," to whom nothing was more precious than liberty, funds were collected for the base of the statue.

Now it stands in the bay at New York City, a monument to what has been to Americans their greatest legacy, and to foreigners their greatest hope. It stands bearing the torch of liberty whose beams stretch across the water to the oppressed people of Europe, who, seeing them, try to improve their own country, or who come across the water to the "melting pot of the world" to partake of its blessings of freedom and independence.

Girl Student Leaders Are Important In Gym Work

Members of the G. A. A. are again acting as student leaders this year. The student leader class is purely an extra-curricular activity in which all the work is done voluntarily. The group meets every week, usually on Tuesday night.

The object of this course is to train girls in leadership of groups, to train them in all athletics, and to teach them how to officiate at games. A special notebook must be kept for this work. The student leaders are helping in all affairs of the gymnasium department as well as in the athletic program. They are responsible for the neat appearance of the locker and shower rooms, and are in charge of the equipment used in the athletic department.

The student leaders this year include: Anna Marie Baumgartner, Ruth Berning, Mervyn Bohne, Jeanette Braun, Betty Burhenn, Virginia Busse, Margaret Green, Janet Hartman, Margerie Hower, Helen Meese, Lida Millberg, Leona Menze, Eleanor Rarick, Barbara Raymond, Margaret Rehm, Frieda Schubert, Loretta Weikert, Anita Affolder, Dean Hocken-smith, Marjorie Cartwright, Mildred Close, Marjorie Moore, Velma Yoder, Enita Snively, Rosalind Stehle, and Maxine Morrison.

Our schools must have a continuing sympathetic support if their influence is to survive. A first-hand acquaintance with conditions under which they operate and an appreciation of the ideals which they represent should be our common possession.—Clyde L. Herring, Governor of Iowa.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi, San Francisco, was among the many city officials throughout the United States who issued an American Education Week proclamation. The proclamation was lettered by two high school art students.

"It is fitting that patriotic, educational, religious, civic and fraternal organizations should join hands in the coming observance of American Education Week, November 5-11, in accordance with suggestions of the United States Office of Education, the American Legion, and the National Education Association"—Mayor Rossi.

War As Killer Overshadowed By Accidents

Auto Crashes Responsible For 36,000 Deaths And 1,000,000 Hurt In 1934.

In 1934, the United States experienced its worst automobile accident record. Statistics prove that this thing most common to us all, is worse than war. Around 36,000 persons were killed and nearly a million injured as a result of 882,000 personal injury accidents. The deaths represented an increase of 16 percent over the 31,078 fatalities reported in 1933.

Better built cars, streamlined designs, closer checks on gas, oil and brakes seem to have no influence on percentage of death and automobile accident rates. The greatly increased speed maximum of cars seems to allow the philosopher to say, "a minute gained at the cost of an accident is no bargain." This is not appreciated by the drivers, however.

Automobiles Increase Rapidly
Automobile registrations last year increased between five and six percent over 1933, and gasoline consumption increased approximately six percent. The 16 percent increase in deaths, therefore, cannot be attributed altogether to the more extensive use of automobile last year. Take, for example, the 1931 automobile accident experience, which until last year was the high mark in fatalities. Registrations in 1931 were three percent greater than in 1934 and gasoline consumption about one percent greater, but deaths from automobile accidents in 1931 were almost eight percent less than last year.

Thus it is that the main reason for so great an increase in deaths is because many motorists drive too fast, too much of the time. Speed has been a dominant factor in the recent trend toward more serious accidents, and so it was last year. Many this past year have been interested in finding out the relation between automobile accidents and the use of intoxicants.

Liquor Causes Accidents
Such records as are available show that 3.16 percent of the drivers involved in accidents were declared to have been under the "influence" in 1934 as against 2.43 percent in 1933. This is an increase of nearly one-third. The same records show that 4.47 percent of the pedestrians involved in accidents in 1934 were declared to have been under the "influence" as against 2.99 percent in 1933. This is an increase of 49.5 percent.

As the automobile has increased in speed, so have all other commonplace things in every day life. Thus the driver of the automobile must be doubly careful. Statistics show that 48.3 percent of accidents are automobile to automobile accidents, proving that the greatest number of accidents are because of careless driving—38.3 percent are pedestrian accidents.

Other types of accidents are horse drawn vehicles .7; railroad train .6, street car 1.6, other vehicle 1.0, fixed object 6.6, bicycle 2.2, non-collision 5.3, and miscellaneous .4. Thus safety is required on all sides and in all instances. Why let the poor street cleaner fly through the air, his cart flying around in shattered bits, and wrathfully exclaiming "Gimme the good old horse and buggy days."

Accidents Increase With Times
Times have improved greatly from the horse and buggy days, inasmuch as our transportation has been greatly improved, but the death rate has been greatly increased. Or the idiot who stops his car on the railroad tracks and begins fixing it and then gets angry because everyone stops to stare at him. Such carelessness invariably leads to accidents, and thus thoughtfulness and consideration and a slight use of one's brains would also help in giving greater safety to everyone concerned.

A few auto suggestions, courtesy of Bill Holman are: check the wheel, make sure that a loose nut isn't holding it. Be sure that the Miss in the motor is at your side. Don't race trains to the crossings—if it's a tie, you lose. For jay walkers—every year is a leap year. Be sure the only crank in the car is in the tool box. A pedestrian is a man who missed the payments on his car. If you must have a blowout have it at home. A bird at the wheel is worth two in the ambulance. Beware of green drivers on red lights.

Recklessness Is Crime
Recklessness is a species of crime and should be so regarded on our streets and highways. The optimistic driver believes in taking chances; the pessimist has a sadder life, but a longer one. It is very well to enjoy the sights, but don't be one. Thus all concerned have lost some of the feeling of responsibility which should accompany one's every minute.

Unavoidable accidents are bad enough, but the ever-rising tide of death and injury which traces directly to individual responsibility and lack of law and order, should raise public indignation. There is a great need for safety which should be adhered to by all.

Students Able To Save Two Cents On Sundaes

Crossed fingers has always meant to bring good luck, but most of the times it hasn't worked.

Murphy's ten-cent store gave to the South Side Times an ad by which they could find out just how many students would observe their advertisement. The conditions were: "Cross your fingers when you order the delicious Jumbo Banana Split, then you will have to pay only 10 cents. Otherwise the price will be 12 cents."

"Try it! You will not only get a good Banana Split, but you also help the Times."

Lost, Found Articles Returned To Office

The lost and found department of South Side is very efficient. Pupils are asked to remember that all property is valuable to the owner, so that if any articles are found, they should be taken to Miss Pittenger's office at once. If a pupil loses anything, he should call for it at once. If it is not there then, he should not think that it will never be found, but go back often to find out if it has been returned.

All books, notebooks, and other articles are returned at once to a pupil, if his name is on it. In Miss Pittenger's office there is a large assortment of gloves, caps, scarfs, pencils, and pens that have never been claimed. There is also an assortment of jewelry. Most of the pupils are very honest about turning in all the articles that they find, and Miss Pittenger appreciates this.

Mrs. Victor Rea Has Been Interested In P.T.A. Long Time

Although Mrs. Victor Rea, the newly-elected president of the Parent-Teacher Association, does not favor personal publicity, she kindly conceded to answer our various questions. It is always interesting to learn just what caused a person to start in a certain work; therefore, we wondered how Mrs. Rea happened to enter into parent-teacher work. She explained that as a teacher in the Fort Wayne Normal School, she naturally took part in the affairs of that organization.

P.T.A. Aids Co-operation
It is her belief that "the Parent-Teacher Association is a very fine movement." She says of it, "I feel that every mother of children in school should be affiliated with the parent-teacher organization." The cause for Mrs. Rea's going back to parent-teacher work is the fact that she had children of her own in school. As she pointed out, "There are two sides to the association. As a teacher, I feel that it makes a splendid way of getting acquainted with the parents of the school; for if the parents and teachers know and understand each other, they can co-operate. As a parent, I believe by belonging to the Parent-Teachers that I understand very much better what the schools are trying to do for the children."

Other Qualities Listed
We wondered if there was any other desirable quality of being affiliated with the Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Rea replied, "Yes, it is one place where a mother may become acquainted with the mothers of her children's friends." Before serving as president, Mrs. Victor Rea has filled several other places, committee chairman, work at Highland School, etc.

We asked her what she enjoyed about serving as president. "I am enjoying the opportunity of meeting so many different people," she replied. She hopes that students will make it clear to their mothers that even though they are not reached by the telephone committee, every mother should attend the teas given for them.

Many Good Jokes Seem To Originate In Library Period

If you enjoy a good joke, it seems the best place you can go to find funny incidents is the library.

Take, for example, the case of the boy who came into the library the other day and asked for the book called "The Red Rooster." After many inquiries, Miss Shoup finally found that "The Scarlet Cockerel" was the title of the book he wanted.

Another cause of bewilderment is made by students who come in and ask for "the big, green history book you gave me yesterday." The book usually turns out to be red or blue.

Mrs. C. A. Bex Substitutes For Miss Nell Covalt

Mrs. Bex has been substituting for Miss Covalt this last week in the commercial department. Due to the serious illness of her mother, Miss Covalt is unable to be here. Mrs. Bex also substitutes in other departments besides the commercial. She says that she likes to teach school and is having a grand time here in South Side. Mrs. Bex is a graduate of Indiana University. Among the schools in which she has taught are North Vernon and Bloomington High Schools. She has been principal of Wayne Township, and Huron High schools. As you all know, Mr. Bex is a teacher here in South Side, too.

Dr. Vincent To Speak At Senior Hi-Y Meeting

At the Senior Hi-Y meeting to be held at the Y. M. C. A. tonight, the members of the club will be honored by having as their guest speaker, the Rev. W. N. Vincent of the Third Presbyterian Church. Although his subject is unknown, it promises to be a good one, as he is well known as a speaker. Dr. Vincent is the second in their series of speakers whom they will hear this winter. Plans for the skating party to be held at Bell's Rink on November 29 are complete, and it is probable that the tickets will be on sale by Monday.

Entrants For Contest Hold Recent Meeting

At a meeting of all entrants and coaches of the freshman-sophomore speech contest held Wednesday, November 6, Miss Benner emphasized several important points for the contestants to keep in mind. She said the students should start working on their speeches immediately. If they have any questions at all concerning their speech or the contest in general they are to consult their respective coaches.

The first eliminations for the contest will begin November 25. It has not yet been decided whether the freshmen or the sophomores will speak first.

After the meeting the entrants met with their coaches.

Y.W.C.A. Planning Social Calendar

Boys As Well As Girls Invited To Attend Weekly Social Dancing Classes; Fee Is $1.

The Y. W. C. A. activities council, in collaboration with the Inter-Club Girl Reserves council, is planning a series of varied activities for the winter. All girls, especially Girl Reserve members, are invited to participate in the activities.

High school boys are included along with girls in the social dancing classes which will stress fundamentals and etiquette of the dance. The classes, which opened on November 6, will be held each Wednesday from 4:30 to 5:30 p. m. The fee is one dollar for eight weeks. Mrs. Isobel

Stockberger, a dancer and teacher with many years of professional training under America's foremost teachers, has been procured to teach the classes.

Other Classes Held
Junior classes will be held to develop healthy and graceful bodies through tap dancing, rhythmic, and ballet. Children's beginning classes will be held on Saturday from 10 to 11 a. m. Advanced sessions are scheduled to be held from 11 to 12 on Saturday.

Swimming classes, which are taught by Mrs. Ivan Clem, are open to all girls of grade, high school, or working ages. Prices for the lessons are as follows: One dollar ticket, good for four class lessons; five dip lessons or seven dips. Three dollar ticket good for twelve class lessons; fifteen dip lessons, or twenty dips. This ticket is also transferable. With either one dollar or three dollar tickets, the single class lessons are twenty-five cents, dip lessons are twenty cents, and dips are fifteen cents. Private lessons are one dollar each, or six lessons for five dollars.

Dance Is Planned
Anyone who desires to take lessons at the "Y" pool is required to take a health examination. Suits and soap are furnished, but students must bring their own caps, towels, and rubber shoes.

The Inter-Club Council, which is composed of officers of the various Girl Reserve clubs in the city, is planning a dance which is to be held sometime in the near future. All high school students will be invited to attend. Miss Jeannette Lampson, secretary of Y. W. C. A. activities, is aiding the council with the planning of the affair. Several mixer dances for high school pupils, in addition to the special affairs, will also be held during the winter.

Annual Club Dance Is Planned By Lettermen

The annual Lettermen's Club Dance was discussed by the club at a recent meeting which was held in Mr. Flint's room. They also discussed the possibility of having a college football coach to speak to them towards the latter part of the month.

The unusual economic and social problems with which we of today are confronted bring forcibly to our attention the magnitude of the tasks which face the men and women of tomorrow, and we realize that in order to meet squarely the demands of a new economic and social order the boys and girls of today must be adequately educated.—Tom Berry, Governor of South Dakota.

Wo-Ho-Ma Club Plans Parts For Installation

A talk on "The Life of Helen Keller" by Audrey Jeffries will be the feature of the Wo-Ho-Ma Club meeting this evening in the Greeley Room.

A report will be given by each of the group leaders in the membership contest which is being conducted by the club. The Inter-Club Congress representative will give her report during the meeting. Parts for the installation service, which will be the feature of the next meeting, will be assigned to various members of the club. The question of whether or not to include Italian hemstitching as a project for this semester will be discussed by members of the club.

After the business meeting, games will be played under the direction of Eileen Bohn and Esther Selzer.

How Far Should America Go To Stop War?

Peace Ballot

If one foreign nation insists upon attacking another should the United States join with other nations to compel it to stop? If you voted "Yes," which measures would you favor:

Economic and non military measures only?

Military measures if necessary?

More than 11,000,000 citizens of England . . . nearly half as many as vote in a general election . . . a few months ago voted eight or nine to one in favor of international co-operation to prevent war. They voted approximately three to one in favor of using military methods if necessary.

How do citizens of the United States feel about these same questions?

Puritans Founded American Schools

Earliest Education Goes Far Back To Period Ancient Egyptians, Greece, Rome.

The Egyptians were largely responsible for the very earliest education. They were followed by the Greeks and Romans. Only boys were allowed to go to the earliest schools, as the girls were supposed to stay at home and work and did not need an education. Later still England established colleges. Formerly there were only the elementary school and a few high schools.

The first schools in America were of the religious kind that were founded by the Puritans. Besides these Puritan schools, there were "Dame Schools."

Few Subjects Taught

The words that best describe the earliest schools are, "reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic." It was believed in the earliest days that these subjects were all that were needed to have an education. Learning a century ago was supposed to be a hard business and the teacher, who was almost always a man, did not spare the rod, or "hickory stick," as it was more famously known.

In the backwoods, the school house was a one-story affair made out of logs. The teacher was sometimes a "traveling master," who taught two or three months in one place and then went on to another village to teach. Slates had formerly been the only method of writing, but large blackboards came into use and then the tablet of paper and the pencil.

Schools Lack Support

When the public school was first introduced, the people who had no children did not want to pay taxes to help support the schools. But gradually they were won over, and the public schools have prospered. Horace Mann, a lawyer, took a leading part in the bringing about of public schools. It was a long, hard struggle to bring the people to see that girls and women should attend school. After the right was won for the girls to go to the lower school, then there was further struggle to have them able to go to the higher grades. Vassar was the first college for women, founded in 1861. Women, since then, have become lawyers, doctors and scientists and have gone into other fields as well.

Kindergarten Started

Friedrich Froebel was the originator of the kindergarten. When he was a small boy, he had a hard life, and so when he had grown to manhood he remembered his early life and formed a school for children not old enough for the elementary schools. Present day schools are far ahead of those old-time schools. There are well-equipped play grounds and school libraries, and some lower schools even have auditoriums.

Modern children are taught far more than just the "three R's." Geography, history, higher mathematics, normal training and art are some of the advancements. A great number of the high schools have a school paper, which is a great asset to the school.

President Gives Message

Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, says, "Our ultimate security, to a large extent, is based upon the individual's character, information, skill, and attitude, and the responsibility rests squarely upon those who direct education in America."

G. Wells says, "The only measure of success is the ratio between what a man is and what he is doing; and what he might be and might be doing."

Public School Centenary To Be Celebrated

Barnard Is Chief Organizer Of Movement; Made First Fundamental School Law.

The centenary of the renaissance in American public school education is near. There is some doubt as to the date on which the centenary should be celebrated because the movement was so wide-spread and because the work proceeded through years of effort.

Even if there is no agreement as to the date, it is still worthwhile to consider reasons for the renaissance, to evaluate the gain for public education and to honor one of the noblest characters in the movement—Henry Barnard.

Barnard sought no recognition during his lifetime; in fact he is left almost without a memorial. He himself said, "For me, I mean to enjoy the satisfaction of the labor; let who will enter into the harvest."

It is not easy for one who knows the public schools only as they are in the twentieth century, to appreciate them over the lowly estate of public education one hundred years ago.

Mann and Young wrote of most of the public schools in Massachusetts and New York as being so untenable that any decent family would not send their children there.

Success in Rhode Island

Henry Barnard accomplished great works in the improvements of the public schools in Rhode Island after failing after five years of work in Connecticut. Before his movement was started, a survey of schools disclosed one-third of the schoolhouses as "totally unfit for school purposes."

When Barnard completed five years in Rhode Island, the state was dotted with splendid school houses. Later he did this same good work in Connecticut.

The effect of all the speeches he made was found in the enthusiasm with which the people of Rhode Island responded and the action which they took to improve the school house, the schools and the status of the teacher.

Barnard's work in Rhode Island included the drafting of a fundamental school law, so perfect in principle that the Rhode Island school system has continued to operate under the Barnard law even after the passing of ninety years.

Author of Journal

Henry Barnard was the writer of the "American Journal of Education." It remains, a monumental work in thirty-one volumes, the largest encyclopedia devoted to any profession except law. This journal brought to the teachers information from world-wide sources about every field of education.

Barnard had achieved international fame as an educator, although he continued his inclination to self-effacement. It was because of his reputation already established that he was called to Wisconsin to become chancellor of the university, to St. John's College to become president, and to Washington, D. C., to be the first U. S. Commissioner of Education.

After retirement he was to continue for thirty years more a dominating leader of American education.

Must Be Able To "Take It" To Take Pictures, Says Fan

(This story was written by a junior who is very much interested in photography.—Editor's note.)

A person who takes pictures sees many queer people and hears about everything under the sun. "Oh, I'll break the camera" is one of the most common expressions I've ever heard. After I heard the expression several times I felt like breaking the camera, only by throwing it at the person who says it.

Subjects Delay Picture Taking

Whenever I have been in a hurry to take a picture of some person a few times and nearly every time, I've been delayed in some way. If the person whom I intended to photograph was not dressed to suit himself, I'd have to wait until satisfactory clothes were put on. It is not the clothes that are important but the subject. Most people have to comb their hair before a picture is taken, but then they look natural when they are natural. My subjects always want to know why their picture is being taken. The answer has to be thought of quickly enough to keep them from getting their own idea of why I want their pictures. Sometimes I tell them that I want to finish a roll of films, that I would like to have their photo for my collection, or that I want their picture for my rogues' gallery. I tell eachers especially that I want their pictures for the rogues' gallery.

Some people, especially girls, get queer ideas when you make any kind of a remark about their cameras or knowledge of cameras. I once received his reply, "Say listen, hot stuff, when you think you can get up and tell as such about taking motion pictures as did, I'd like to hear it."

Times Are Changing

Times must be changing considerably nowadays. Once I had asked a person if I could use his equipment. He said, "Learn how to operate it first." It's too bad some people don't have as much confidence in others as they have in themselves.

I have taken many pictures that most people think are a waste of time, such as the moon, rain, clouds, lightning, trains, etc. I was once told that I was "cracked" about photography once I had asked a person to go with

Students Driving Cars Must Secure Permits

All students who drive to school are requested to secure a special slip at the office, fill it out, have their parents sign it, and return it to the office. This is a special regulation which is ordered by the Bureau of Safety. Another regulation is that any student who drives to school with another student should fill out a similar slip, having it signed by his parents, and returning it to the office. It is hoped that everyone will comply with these safety measures.

me on my bicycles twenty miles to get a view of a certain train. Maybe I am a little cracked about photography. Incidentally, after I pumped over to the railroad, the picture was a failure. "So the wheel of fortune spins, and where it stops nobody knows."

Meets Eccentric People

Some of the people whom I have met are rather eccentric. One person, after I had taken a good view of her, wanted another picture with a different background. After a person has had his picture taken gratis, why should he make a pest of himself by asking for another? After I told a person how I make the prints, she asked if I couldn't make them differently.

If ever you want to meet all kinds of people, just take pictures and you will get your "fill." However, be able to "take it" before you start taking pictures.

Formal recognition of education and its institutions can do much to further its influence and effects and its ability to safeguard the American Commonwealth and the American traditions.—Alf M. Landon, Governor of Kansas.

Club Congress Helps Improve School Building

Has Member From Each Club; Started Three Years Ago; Aids Chamber of C

Having been organized only a little over three years, the Inter-Club Congress has done much to improve the South Side school building in appearance and the students in school spirit.

Several years before the forming of this club, which is now composed of a representative from each school club, the Letterman's Club carried out some school projects with the assistance of a few of the other clubs. From this start, it was decided that a school congress should be established having in its membership one person from each school club. Mr. Verne Flint became its adviser.

In 1932 for the bicentennial celebration of Washington's birthday, a tree was planted in the memory of the Father of our Country. One year later a regular clean up campaign was sponsored. The clean up of the lockers was done in a special period of the day, dandelions dug out, grass seed was sown, and evergreen trees were planted, under the direction of Mr. Elma Gould, in the urns at the north and Calhoun Street entrances.

Beginning of Courtesy Day

Co-operating with the Chamber of Commerce, Inter-Club Congress again directed a clean up campaign in 1934 when dandelions were dug up and shrubs and flowers were planted. At this time several graphs were made to show the increase in value of the property after these improvements were made. For the first time at South Side, a Courtesy Day was held. All students were labeled with their names printed on them. This was a splendid opportunity for everyone to get acquainted.

Only tentative plans have been made

Young People Have Chance To Practice Democracy

Americans have always believed in liberty and for this reason have established a government which assures them of this privilege. They speak of their government as a democracy. The democratic idea is that the people shall decide the form of their government and the policies it will pursue.

The younger citizens also have a part in preserving American democracy and making it successful. They have many opportunities in high school to gain information that will aid them in intelligently forming opinions. Through their daily contacts in school and with community life they can prepare themselves to be intelligent and efficient in later life when they will be required to assume the responsibilities of the government.

A young citizen has many opportunities to become acquainted with his community, state, and nation and learn facts that will enable him to form intelligent opinions on public problems. Many young people have the opinion that there is no need to take an interest in political, social, or economic questions until they are old enough to vote.

Opportunities Always Present Year after year during political campaigns, opportunities arise for discussing and developing opinions and ideas on political, social, and economic questions and issues and in this way broaden his knowledge. Then when the student comes of age to vote, it is very likely that his vote will be cast more intelligently than if he had taken no interest in public questions and issues.

A young citizen of a democracy can actually render service that will be valuable to his community. During the days of one's school life many opportunities are offered for active participation in community movements. What a student does to make his school life as effective as possible is for the organization this year. For the first time in its organization, the school congress has elected its own officers. Bryce Minier and Morgan Harrison are its president and secretary, respectively, for this term. Without a doubt, a clean up campaign and several other projects will be carried out as in former years.

Preamble and Code Given

The club has a preamble and a code which the students are supposed to follow closely.

Preamble: We, the representatives of the Inter-Club Congress, speaking for the students of South Side High School, have adopted a code of citizenship for all students, for the purpose of guiding our actions in and about school.

Code: As a student of South Side High School, I believe in upholding standards of good citizenship in and about the school; I believe that a good citizen is courteous, clean, and generous in co-operation.

These standards should be carried out in the class room, at assemblies at games, in the halls, in the cafeteria, and on the grounds.

Public education is the very cornerstone of American democracy. This has been true from the earliest days of the nation but has been appreciated in its full significance only in these more recent years. The increasing responsibilities which these latter days have placed on the citizens in every community throughout the commonwealth are obvious. It is for this reason that the program of education in our democracy must have our full co-operation and be readjusted from time to time if our children are to be adequately trained for the responsibilities of manhood and womanhood.—Herbert H. Lehman, Governor of New York.

Math Sharks To Meet

In Room 16 Tonight

A meeting of all the students who are interested in advanced mathematics work under the direction of Miss Pledler will be held Thursday evening after school in room 16. All students planning to continue with mathematics are invited to come to this meeting. The only requirement is that the students must have taken algebra 3 and 4 or at least be taking algebra 3.

The purpose of the organization is to drill in fundamental and advanced work in algebra. They will spend time on special topics for which there is no time in regular classroom work.

I urge that our citizens avail themselves of this opportunity to become better acquainted with our schools and the work thereof, and by the manifestation of such interest add to the encouragement of those engaged in the noble work of education—the bulwark of our future citizenship.—C. Ben Ross, Governor of Idaho.

Educational Group Does Improvement

N.E.A. Purpose To Help Schools; Now Chartered By Congress; 200,000 Members Enrolled.

The National Education Association is an organization which provides information to help teachers and patrons who are working to improve their schools. It was organized at Philadelphia in 1857 and is now chartered by Congress. It enrolls approximately 200,000 men and women who are teachers or school officials, or who are otherwise engaged in educational work. During the 78 years of its existence, the organization has played a great part in the outstanding advancements in education.

The association is supported by the dues of its members, and is in no way connected with the Federal government. It maintains a headquarters staff of special workers in its own seven-story administration building located a few blocks from the White House in Washington.

Some facts compiled by the organization are that more than 687,000 children go to school every day in buildings which public authorities have condemned as unsafe. Also, that more than one-fourth of the nation's teachers get for their services less than $750 a year.

Does Much Work

The National Education Association is continuously engaged in collecting information on the prevention of crime, the promotion of good citizenship, moral welfare, and new methods of economy and efficiency, which are of great value to persons interested in educational improvement.

The National Education Association publishes millions of pages each year in the form of books, magazines, and bulletins. The official monthly magazine is the Journal of the National Education Association. It has a circulation of 200,000 and may be found in nearly every important library and educational institution throughout the United States and the world. Five research bulletins, in addition to many special pamphlets are issued each year. These contain valuable information for students who are preparing to teach school and for teachers who want to improve their methods of teaching.

Every week, a program called "Our American Schools" is given on a coast-to-coast network by the association.

Sponsor Education Week

The organization sponsors American Education Week, observed in November each year. The purpose of this celebration is to bring teachers and parents together to study the problems of the schools. About 6,000,000 people in 4,000 communities took part in the occasion last year.

Twice a year, the National Education Association calls its members together for counsel and discussion in a great convention. More than 16,000 teachers, deans, principals, and superintendents have been known to be in attendance at one of these meetings. The printed proceedings and addresses of these conventions tell the story of the schools and education in America.

The National Education Association has as its objective, "A Fair Start in Life For Every Child," and to this end works diligently in order that the objective may be accomplished.

Wolf And Dessauer Store Has Window Display For Safety

Wolf and Dessauer's department store had a very unusual display arranged in one of their show windows during Safety Week.

The display consisted of two traffic signals in operation and models of school boys standing nearby. The models were wearing the regulation school safety patrol belts and badges.

Posters which urged pedestrians to walk safely and motorists to drive carefully, were also a part of the display. There were also pictures of accidents in which persons were fatally injured. Another very interesting feature was a board calling attention to the thirteen deaths and to the 365 persons injured in the total of 312 traffic accidents which have occurred here so far this year.

This display was arranged with the co-operation of the Fort Wayne Police Department and the Fort Wayne Motor Club.

Education Is Low Priced Indeed

SCHOOL COSTS AND GOVERNMENTAL COSTS, 1926-1934

Each Completed Symbol = 1 Billion Dollars

Some people say that government costs are too high and that the people would all be ruined if the government tried to run things. They argue that taxes are already too high in proportion to what is received from the government.

Yet if these same people would stop to think how much it would cost them if they had to hire policemen to protect their homes, companies to pave and keep clean the streets, and a service to collect their garbage, or if they had to maintain by themselves the schools, hospitals, playgrounds, and parks, they would see how erroneous their reasoning had been.

The picture above shows two bills. One is for services provided by the government, while the other is from four private companies. Suppose that a certain man in New York pays a total of $365 per year for taxes, including federal, state, and local taxes on income on property. This makes an average of a dollar a day; this same amount is spent by the same man merely for electricity, gas, telephone services, and gasoline for his automobile. Thus he gets much more for his money from the government than from private concerns.

Waste Means Failure
Naturally government expenses have been much higher since the depression, because the government has had to help the banks, railroads, insurance companies, farmers, building and loan associations, mortgage companies, business men, and home owners, as well as the unemployed of the country. Of course, much money was needed to help all these people, but they had to be helped by the government since it was the only agency that could do it.

Service should be the purpose of economic activity instead of profit, therefore, the work of a thing should not be measured in terms of whether it can be sold. Wealth includes a number of things—factories, motors, natural resources, raw materials, inventions, railroads, trained minds, artistic ability, libraries, and theatres—in fact everything that can be used to make life happier, more interesting, and more comfortable. The only real test of economic activity lies in the proper use and distribution of wealth. The waste or neglect of any part of this wealth means great inefficiency and tragic failure.

Useful Men Unemployed
During the past five years an average of ten million men, who might have been employed in a hundred different ways to improve living conditions, have been unemployed. During these same years factories have been shut down, resulting in the non-production of goods and services worth 287 billion dollars, thus making the country that much poorer. Services and plant capacity are wasted when men are unemployed and factories are idle, not producing needed goods.

This waste was not due to the inefficiency of the government, but to the inefficiency of a system of private industry that is organized for personal profit and not for service. Private industry is the victim of its own methods. In order to profit, it reduces the costs by hiring fewer men and paying less wages; while all this time industry can survive only if these people have the means to buy the goods that are produced.

Hence it is necessary for some agency chiefly concerned with the social good to take charge of those fields of activity essential in providing men and women with the necessary things of life. The only such agency is the government.

Stress Of Education Week Placed Upon Democracy Ideals

The purpose of National Education Week, November 11-17, 1935, is to enable citizens to become better acquainted with the schools. The general theme around which the observance is built is "The School and Democracy." In announcing this theme, the National Education Week committee says: "In a period of readjustment the inter-relation of education and the success of democratic institutions must be kept clearly before the people."

National Education Week is officially sponsored by the National Education Association, the American Legion, and the United States Office of Education. Each year these agencies invite other national, regional, state, and local organizations interested in the welfare of children to participate in the observance.

Adults Take Part

Last year approximately 1,000 adults took part in National Education activities at South Side. The idea was to make them better acquainted with the ideals, aims, and problems of education.

The topics this week with their purpose, for discussion for various programs about education during the week were: Monday, November 11, "The School and the Citizen," to pay tribute to those who have served their country in peace and war; Tuesday, November 12, "The School and the State," to inform the public on the progress and needs of education; Wednesday, November 13, "The School and the Nation," to study federal aid to education; Thursday, November 14, "The School and Social Change," to discuss education as a factor in American life.

Topics Are Listed

The topics and their purpose for the rest of week are, Friday, November 15, "The School and Country Life," to show inequality of educational opportunities that exist between city and country; Saturday, November 16, "The School and Recreation," to emphasize the importance of recreational skills; and Sunday, November 17, "Education and the Good Life," to emphasize the part the church plays in education.

This is the fifteenth annual observance of National Education Week. The National Congress of Parents and Teachers, with a million and a half members, is emphasizing the observance of American Education Week in its own program. Hundreds of newspapers take part in the event, and radio broadcasts take National Education Week into millions of homes. There are a million teachers and thirty million students to take the lead and to arouse the interest of fathers and mothers and other citizens.

In the life of a government as well as that of individuals, education has a most significant part. The progress of this state and the highest degree of literacy of any state in the nation reflects in no small manner the contribution made by our schools to the welfare of the people.—B. B. Moeur, Governor of Arizona.

Bob Blomker, '35, Sees Own Operation

Midshipman Watches Surgeons Remove Appendix When Local Anesthetic Is Given.

Bob Blomker, salutatorian of the class of 1935, and now a midshipman in the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, is credited with experiencing a new and different type of operation. Wednesday morning, October 30, Bob underwent a necessary appendicitis operation.

Instead of the usual ether to ease the pain, he was administered a local anesthetic. He then proceeded to watch the entire operation in a conscious state by a system of mirrors. He reported that it didn't hurt very much, but we are doubtful as to whether or not to accept his word.

The nurse talked to him during the whole operation and thus probably disturbed him from watching as much as he cared to. This was the first time that he had been out of uniform for so long a period, and it probably will be some time before he gets back into it.

He has missed several games and will miss several more before he gets well, but he hopes to be able to attend the Army-Navy football game and make up for lost time. This will probably keep him out of the marching for some time. He's optimistic about it, though.

"Package" Coal Is New Home Convenience

Package fuel, made of original Pocahontas coal ("O. P." cubes), is the latest convenience being offered to the public of Fort Wayne, for heating purposes. The highest grades of Pocahontas coal are used for the manufacturing of this fuel. For absolute cleanliness and convenience in the home, package fuel has no equal. Student Relates Woeful Tale Of Locker Which Fell Apart

By Mary Louise Lankenau

With a smile on my face, humming the latest tune, and thinking of what a pretty day it ought to be because of the lovely weather, I started to work the combination of my locker. After five minutes of hard labor, the combination worked and the lock fell on the floor.

After I had hung my coat on the hook, I stuck my head in the locker to get some books I needed, only to have a bolt fall on my head. The circular piece of iron with a hole in the middle of it seemed to have worked itself loose from its accustomed place.

Although I took all of my books out of the bottom of my locker to look for the bolt, it was of no avail, for it had completely disappeared. I finally quit searching for the bolt because the first bell had already rung and I was afraid I might be late for class. When I came back to my locker the next period, I opened my locker to find the little bolt, but now the whole one side of the shelf was all loose and I was greeted with the falling of a history book upon my head, as though it merely was trying to knock some of its knowledge into my head that way.

This aroused my temper and I then slammed my door shut with a bang. When I came back the next time between periods, all of my books, which had been on the top shelf, had fallen down to the bottom of my locker because all of the bolts and screws had worked themselves loose and disappeared.

By this time the shelves in the lockers on both sides of mine were coming loose. I left my locker with the shelf turned upside down before going home for dinner.

By the end of the last period, I was so disgusted with my locker that I would have sold it for a dime on the spot if anyone had offered me that much. All of my woe vanished however when a janitor fixed it after I had asked him. I wouldn't have sold my locker then for twice the price I paid for it. I left school with a smile on my face, humming the latest tune and the thought of what a nice day it had been.

Rosalind Enz, '35 Alumnus, Dies Recently At Hospital

Rosalind Enz, a prominent member of the class of 1935, died at the Lutheran Hospital Monday evening, November 4, at 10:50 o'clock of a throat infection. She had been ill only a short time before her death. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Enz, 2503 Oliver Street. Rosalind was 18 years old.

While at South Side, she was prominent in extra curricular activities. She was a member of U. S. A., So-Si-Y, Travel Club, Glee Club and the vice-president and secretary of Pebble Pups. Rosalind won her triple triangle degree and also her music letter for four years' activity in the music department.

Before coming to South Side she had attended schools in Greencastle, Ohio, and Richmond, Indiana.

Education is the foundation upon which life's structure must be raised. Indeed, it is more than that; it is a part of life's structure itself.—Henry H. Blood, Governor of Utah.

Good Government Essential

But First You FATHERS AND MOTHERS—Just A Minute

When your children's last "Goodbye Mother" is said and they're off to school, turn for a moment and consider their health and comfort. Good clean dependable heat is so essential. Do not neglect it. Where can you find a dealer who will send you good, clean fuel and not fill your bin with dust? Will he fill my orders in a prompt and courteous manner, and supply me the kind of fuel I order? Will he send me 2000 pounds in every ton, and throw in another lump for good measure?

Congressman Lundeen Talks On Education

Representative Lists Eleven Crimes Against Nation's Youth On August 7, 1935.

"Retrenchment, retrogression, and ruin are three R's of 'Economized' education," stated the Hon. Ernest Lundeen in the House of Representatives on August 7, 1935. His informative and warning speech was well received and aroused much comment in Congress and the entire United States. The gist of the message was told in the opening lines: "The economy ax is cutting away the foundations of the American school system. This is the eve of the 1935-36 school year. How many bells will fail to ring this fall? How many doors will never open? How many thousands of American children will be denied the bare essentials of education and be handicapped for years to come?"

Conditions Are Deplorable

Conditions of the educational system are deplorable due to great lack of funds, according to Mr. Lundeen. Due to the organized retrenchment campaign of those seeking drastic reductions in government expenses, allotments for educational purposes have been so curtailed that all children suffer in immense neglect of education. Teachers, not only in Chicago, but all over the country were not paid. There are 200,000 teachers unemployed, yet there is an endless number of children who need and desire an education.

Over 5,000 condemned school buildings in 18 states are still in use. Thousands more should be condemned. More than 1,300,000 children are housed in unsafe and unsanitary buildings. Under the short-sighted appeal for economy, these conditions are allowed to exist, although billions are appropriated for armies and navies to "meddle and muddle" in countries across the sea. Suggestions for retrenchment or curtailment were actually planned by the United States Chamber of Commerce, or were disseminated by it in a nation-wide appeal.

"Crimes" Are Listed

The speaker calls these the "eleven crimes against the nation's youth," which are:

First—Shorten the school day an hour.

Second—Increase the size of classes.

Third—Increase teaching hours.

Fourth—Suspend all increases of salary.

Fifth—Reduce salaries.

Sixth—Shorten the school year by one year.

Seventh—Discontinue evening classes.

Eighth—Discontinue kindergartens.

Ninth—Reduce elementary school by one year.

Tenth—Reduce the high school from four to three years.

Eleventh—Charge tuition for high school students.

In addition to this, the same interests wish to cut out the "frills and fads" of education, which are foreign languages, physical education, health, and several other actual necessities of education. The sponsors of this retrenchment movement, according to Lundeen, are the big business men and the wealthy who have to pay a large amount of taxes. This organized campaign has been a success from the point of view of the sponsors.

Enrollment Shows Increase

Teachers were the first victims of the economy guillotine, according to further statements of the representative from Minnesota. Incomes were cut below any NRA standards. Thousands continued rendering their services with absolutely no pay. Classes were increased to the point where classes of over 45 are common in city schools. In fact, classes are so large that discipline overshadows the subjects taught. Many students attend school part time because of inadequate housing facilities. About 2,700,000 pupils are improperly housed.

All these deplorable conditions and many other serious ones are the result of curtailment of educational funds. A steady decline has been made in such expenses during the last four years. Furthermore, 200,000 more have been enrolled in that same time. The cost per child in 1930 was $90.22, as compared to the cost per child in 1933, which was $67.33. Apparently we are increasing the amount allotted to schools, for in 1934 the approximate cost per pupil was $68.47. Nevertheless, at this rate it will take about 25 years to climb to our previous standard, he said.

Ignorance Is Expensive

Education is a thing that cannot be overlooked. It is our strongest ally in this struggle between progress and decay. Denied today, it is forever lost. What is the result of retrenchment? Half-truths for 30,000,000. Education cannot be taught by any teacher with any salary.

"Economy? It costs $400 for each prisoner in an institution per year, but it costs $100 per child in a school," the congressman said. "Yet 17 per cent of the prisoners received more than an education in the elementary schools. For 15 per cent of the prisoners, high school was the last attended. We see that the more education received, the less a person is apt to be a dangerous and expensive public care. Is it not best to spend a comparative little on education than such on crime? Ignorance will be more expensive than any of the most visionary programs of broadened education. To declare a temporary moratorium on education would set us back from 25 to 50 years, and many educators warn that continuation of the retrenchment policy will eventually destroy our Government altogether. These are the high costs of ignorance. Can we by any means afford them?"

Problem Is National

"Education is a national problem. School expenditures vary from $188 per child in the District of Columbia to $33 in South Carolina. Yet it is proved by census reports that half of the children leave the state they were born in before they are 20 years of age. So we see that the unequal amounts spent by the various states on education is to disadvantage of the entire nation. States cannot spend much more on education due to tax limitation laws and the inability to raise more revenue on account of the already heavy taxes burdening the local governments that now support education. Deficits in school funds have appeared everywhere and deficits are expected again."

To combat partially these deplorable conditions, Representative Lundeen introduced a resolution in that session of Congress granting federal

Speaking Class Shows Growth In Enrollment

Attendance Gains From Group Of 21 To Almost 120; Activities Are Many.

Since the introduction of public speaking into the curriculum of South Side, the enrollment in this course has grown considerably. At first there was one class with only twenty-one students, while at the present time there are four classes with an average enrollment of thirty in each one.

During the first years of public speaking at South Side the school engaged in inter-scholastic debating. The last year the school was in the debating league the team won the county and district championships and was eliminated in the finals by the team that won the state championship.

Student Speaking Encouraged Since the school has not entered into inter-scholastic debating, student speaking in school, church, and civic clubs has been encouraged. In this way more outside instruction and more opportunities to speak can be given.

The school still participates in inter-scholastic forensics by entering the Woman's Club oratorical contest, the state discussion contest sponsored by Indiana University, and the city extemporaneous contest.

Last year the school won second place in the oratorical contest. Manuel Rothberg represented the school in this contest. In the state discussion contest we won first and third in the county and tied for second in the district contest. Richard Schannen and Robert Klopstein represented the school in these contests. South Side won first place in the city extemp in which it was represented by Van Perrine.

Activities Are Listed

Public speaking activities within the school include the semi-annual extemp contest, freshman-sophomore speech contest, and the local state discussion contest.

The growth of the number of students entering speech contests is remarkable. At first only students entered the extemp contest while at the present time an average of forty students take part in this contest.

aid to education. In addition to stating this bill in this speech to the House, he mentioned several other resolutions introduced pertaining to the same problem.

Education Determines Future

Foreign nations have not curtailed educational expenditures, he said. Thousands of Mexican rural schools have been established in the last ten years. Australia reports that there has been no curtailment of expenditures. In England and Wales, adult education continues to expand. Belgium, France, Denmark, and Italy are among numerous European nations that have maintained their school systems in spite of the depression and panic.

"The future of America will be largely determined by the progress of education," further stated Representative Lundeen. In closing, he admonished, "When a long perspective is considered, there is no more important function of the National Government than to provide education. The very life of democracy depends upon it. . . . There is no such thing as over-production in these non-material things of life which education produces. . . . Our culture . . . is the future which lies before us if we modernize and expand our systems of education, both for children and for adults. The enemies of education must be dethroned. Retrenchment must be halted. The race between civilization and catastrophe must be won. To entrenched wealth and the selfish Money Trust we say you shall not crucify the youth of America upon your cross of greed and gold. We defy them and we will win."

"Indiana Children Should Be Educated," States Dr. Bryan

"What people need and demand is that their children shall have a chance—as good a chance as any other children in the world—to make the most of themselves, to rise to any and every occupation, including those occupations which require most thorough training. What people want is open paths from every corner of the state, through the schools, to the highest and best things which men can achieve. To make such paths, to make them open to the poorest and lead to the highest is the mission of democracy."

These words of Dr. William Lowe Bryan, Indiana's foremost educator and the president of Indiana University, sums up the policy and endeavors of his illustrious career.

He has given his life to help more persons to gain a chance at getting higher education and in return has the respect and praises of the people of the entire state.

First Is Indiana Instructor

After graduating from Indiana in 1884, he became an instructor there the following year and has served the college ever since that time. One cannot help but look with admiration upon the man who has so capably managed the affairs of our state college for 32 years, having taken office as president in 1902, and who is still serving in that capacity.

His great experience, excellent training, brilliant mind, and oratorical ability are the factors which have succeeded in firmly entrenching him vitally in the history of education in Indiana. He obtained his Ph. D. from Clark University and has studied abroad in Berlin, Paris, and Wurzburg. The great speaking ability that he has acquired has made him more and more influential. In many books on education are to be found quotations from the speeches of Dr. William L. Bryan. He himself has written several excellent books on topics of education.

Teaches Students Ideals

However, his pupils are the means of his influence. The ideals and noble thoughts he has given to his pupils are his most lasting monument. Those pupils of his, having talked and discussed subjects with him, know better than most other persons the kind of man the president of our university is. They are more lost in admiration of him since they know him, than are even we who hear his praises sung.

In the affairs of the university he has shown his excellent common sense and diplomatic ability. On several occasions when petty arguments and greed have threatened to break off the friendship of members of a department, he has by that diplomatic ability and excellent sense reunited that department of the university.

All this importance hasn't affected him in the least. His humility and modesty only make him seem more important in the eyes of everyone.

Not only the members, students, and graduates of Indiana University but the whole of Indiana pays tribute to Dr. William Lowe Bryan. May he always be remembered as one of Indiana's great men.

Bex Is Delegate

At noon a luncheon was served at the Lucy Rowland Hall, at which the 125 delegates were guests. John Bex, advertising manager on the Times staff, was the delegate attending from South Side. The principal speaker at the luncheon was Claude "Cactus" Mahoney, a special writer from the Indianapolis Star and a member of Sigma Delta Chi. The awards were given to the various papers at this time. Fort Wayne was well represented in this contest, besides the Times being awarded first place, the North Side Northerner was given third place in the general contest and first in the advertising contest.

Teacher Addresses Philatelists

Mr. D. J. Ferguson, an ardent stamp collector who formerly taught history at Harrison Hill grade school, gave a talk at a recent meeting of the Philatelic Society. Plans for a stamp auction to be held in the near future, were also discussed.

Teacher Is Absent

Miss Nellie Covalt, commercial teacher at South Side, has spent the past two weeks at her home in Kokomo, Indiana, where she is taking care of her mother who is believed to be dying. Short notes have been sent to her by some of the students of her classes. Mrs. Bex has been substituting for her during her absence.

N.E.A. President Speaks On Radio

Life Of Lansing Hatfield Is Dramatized; John Lang Also Gives Talk On Program.

The eighty-fourth program of "Education in the News," which was presented last Monday evening over the radio, was dedicated to National Education Week. The program is presented each Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock from the Washington studios.

"When I say, 'Visit the country schools,' it is a wonderful opportunity for people to get better acquainted with the work and progress that is going on within our schools today," was part of the National Education Week invitation issued to the radio audience by Mr. John Lang, superintendent of Public Instruction of the state of Iowa.

"Visit The Schools"

Miss Agnes Samuelson, superintendent of schools for the city of Des Moines, and president of the National Education Association, came from Des Moines to be in Washington during Education Week. Miss Samuelson described the National Education Association as an organization which enrolls two hundred thousand teachers, principals, and school officials from all over the country. The invitation given by Miss Samuelson is as follows: "Let us not disregard this invitation to visit the schools during this National Education Week. We ask you to come to our schools; to talk with the teachers and principals; to see the pupils in their daily work; and to note the progress that goes on from day to day, for schools are the service stations for procession of humanity upon the nation's highways."

L. Hatfield's Life Dramatized

The life story of Mr. Lansing Hatfield was dramatized as another benefit of education. The story told of Mr. Hatfield's rise from a former school principal to an operatic singer. Ever since he was a small boy, Mr. Hatfield has sung. Upon entering college he joined the glee club, and became a tenor when his natural singing voice was bass baritone.

Several months ago he entered a national singing contest. The winners of the contest were to receive a scholarship to the Peabody Conservatory of Music. Mr. Hatfield won first place in the contest with his singing of "Deep River." Thus was portrayed another example of education helping those who have worthy talents to succeed. Mr. Hatfield has received many interesting offers, but has rejected them all to finish his course at Peabody.

The program was concluded with the orchestra playing "America the Beautiful," the theme song of American schools.

To Honor Champ Writer

Quill and Scroll will award on June 1, a trophy to the champion high school news writer of the United States. This trophy will be engraved with the name of the winner and his achievement. A similar trophy will be awarded to the champion high school sports writer at the same time.

New Grading System Used For Girls' Gym Classes

Pupils, in the gym classes, were graded for the first time this semester. They were graded by three methods. They had to have mental capability, physical capability and capability in situations.

The Student Leaders assisted Miss Smith and Miss Patterson in testing the pupils. Written tests were given in the classes and corrected by the pupils themselves. Personal skill tests on speedball were given to the students in the gym. These tests were given in such things as punting, drop kicking, penalty kicking, dribbling, and goal making.

This type of grading makes it easier for the teachers to give the final grades. They also give a chance to persons who are not physically fit, to be able to prove that they have some knowledge of the game. It also proves whether those who are physically able to play the games really have the right idea about the rules and regulations.

Social Economic Aims Of America Are Given In List

Physical, Economic, Mental Security Should Be Had; Equal Rights Necessary.

Pupils Urged To Learn Objectives

Freedom, Fair Play, Flexible Personality, And Suitable Occupation Are Needful.

Schools are urged to make a special study of the social-economic goals of America. The committee on social-economic goals for America of the National Education Association states the following ten objectives of American life:

1. Hereditary Strength—The development of individuals capable of the deepest enjoyments, and the building of a culture which will enrich the personalities of great numbers of people are determined in part by the characteristics passed from generation to generation through heredity.
2. Physical Security—To be "well-born" is but half. To have these in-born capacities conserved is the other half.

3. Participation in an Evolving Culture—The skill and knowledge and vision accumulated through the experience of the race are the rightful heritage of every individual. It is the privilege of every individual to improve this heritage so he may make a richer bequest to his children.
4. An Active, Flexible Personality—Successful living requires personal initiative, discriminating judgment, a willingness to co-operate, tolerance in thought and conduct, and an active, flexible personality which adapts itself readily to social changes, while still preserving those individual differences which give life significant variety.

5. Suitable Occupation—Society should provide the guidance and training necessary to enable each individual to be placed in a vocation in which he can earn a living.
6. Economic Security—Economic security is the right of any individual. It may be achieved through employment planning, legal minimum wage, a legal dismissal compensation for industrial accidents and disease, old-age insurance, and similar devices.
7. Mental Security—The right to learn and speak the truth is essential to further progress. Individuals and society as a whole have a right, as well, to protect themselves against obvious misuse of facts to promote the interests of selfish groups.

8. Equality of Opportunity—Our nation has its birth in a struggle for equality as opposed to special privileges. Equality of opportunity begins in the right of every child to a fair start in life. It continues through the fullest possible development of the individual to maturity and old age. It is predicted upon a free and universal system of education, from the kindergarten through the university.
9. Freedom—Society should assure to every person the widest sphere of freedom consistent with equal freedom to others. Freedom of speech of the press, of the screen, of broadcasting, of assembling, of demonstrating, of organizing is essential. Particularly to be cherished and defended are freedom of research, of experimentation, and of teaching.

10. Fair Play—Justice in the courts and good sportsmanship in the game of life are requisites to happy living. Fair play is the Golden Rule boiled down to two words. It is the practice by the individual of his duty as a member of society to act in conformity with the highest good of all other members of society.

Miss Mary Paxton, a very prominent and well-liked teacher, came to South Side when the faculty was first organized. She had formerly taught in Bloomington, Indiana, and Central High School of this city. Miss Paxton enjoys teaching at South Side very much. As a teacher of mathematics, her greatest difficulty is giving final grades, although she is fond of explaining constructions and grading papers.

Miss Paxton decided to teach mathematics and while studying this subject, she thought neither of sleeping nor eating. Most of her time was devoted to mathematics. She prefers teaching geometry, for she likes to see young people learn how to reason for themselves. It seems logical that a person cares as much for mathematics, as in Miss Paxton's case, as a musician cares for music.

Students Make Elections

Final elections for their next semester's programs were made by all students last Tuesday in the home rooms. Here everyone received mid-semester grade cards which were filled out by the teachers in their respective rooms.

Declamation Contest To Be November 18

The meeting of Wranglers next Monday is a very important one as it is an annual affair, the declamation contest, in which any member of Wranglers may participate if he wishes. Last year, Frank Montgomery succeeded in placing first by giving Patrick Henry's "War Inevitable" speech. Each person may choose his own declamation, which may be either a speech or poem. As the contestants keep in mind that they are to entertain the audience, this meeting always proves to be a very enjoyable one. The winner will be honored by being presented with a medal at the annual Wrangler's banquet in the spring.

Students Use Voorhees And Greeley Rooms

Many Clubs In School Hold Regular Meetings There; Also Used For Parties.

The Greeley Room and the Voorhees Room, the busiest rooms in the school, are used daily by a great number of South Side students. These rooms are used not only by a large number of clubs and school organizations, but also for home room classes and for parties.

The various clubs of the school hold regular meetings in the rooms. Every Monday the Torch Club has a meeting in the Voorhees Room. On alternate Tuesdays the Junior-Math Club under the sponsorship of Miss Paxton holds a get-together to discuss mathematics and science. The next evening, Wednesday, the Philatelic Society and the German Club take turns at using Room 65.

On Thursdays the Societas Romana or Latin Club, with Mr. Rothert as the sponsor, uses it every other week, and the French Club uses the room on the evenings not taken up by the aforementioned organization. The Social Science Club holds its meetings every other Friday in the Voorhees Room. At night and over the weekend parties are also held in this room, but the Greeley Room is more popular for this use.

The Greeley Room, which is located on the main incline near the offices, is used quite frequently for club purposes also. On Monday evening after school, the Wranglers, a public speaking club, and the Philatelic Society, more commonly known as the Philos, take turns at using the Greeley Room. The Meterites and the So-Si-Y, both clubs for South Side girls, hold meetings on alternate Tuesday afternoons after school has let out for the day.

On Wednesday the Art Club holds its meetings every other week, as does the Travel Club, one of the biggest organizations in the school.

Newly Painted Green

The Greeley Room has recently received a coat of blue-green paint to brighten it up and add to its attractiveness.

Thursday sees the meetings in the Greeley Room of the U. S. A., a club devoted to Girl Reserves, and the Wo-Ho-Ma Club, a girls' society devoted to homemaking. The Math-Science Club meets on alternate Fridays after school. The S. P. C., or Student Players Club, also holds monthly meetings in this meeting place on the first Friday of each month.

Literary Theme Is Continued At Philo Meet

New York Group Discussed By A. Abbett, S. Liff, H. Doenges On Program.

America in Literature, the Philatelic theme for the semester, was further developed at a meeting held Monday evening, November 11, in the Greeley Room. The meeting was in charge of Mary Martha Hobrock, program chairman, Ann Abbett, Selma Liff, and Helen Doenges.

Poets' Lives Reviewed

The subject for this particular meeting was the New York group. Selma Liff opened the program with a very interesting report as to the important things that were going on during this creative period. This was followed by the history of Washington Irving's life, who is the most important figure in this group. Other important figures of this group were told of by Ann Abbett; they are: Rodman Drake, Greene Holbeck, and William C. Bryant. Helen Doenges concluded this part of the meeting by a report on the life of James Cooper, author of "The Pioneer" and "The Pilot."

Ruth Adler presided at the business meeting. Mary Martha Hobrock, ticket chairman of the dance committee, reported that all the tickets were not turned in as yet and should be turned in at once.

The dance held Saturday evening, November 9, was quite a success. The theme was The Archer's Ark and the decorations were carried out in accordance. Animals in black and white surrounded the room and made a beautiful appearance against the green wall. Black cages with animals adorned the lights. The dance was further made a success by the prizes given by the Marrow Nut House, the Heit Candy Company, Baber's Jewelry, the Numode Hosiery, the Martha Washington Candy Company, and the Coca-Cola Bottling Company.

Chaperones Are Listed

The chaperones for the dance were Miss Pittenger, Miss Demaree, Mrs. Adler, Mrs. Doyle Anderson, Miss Miller, Miss Oppelt, Miss Mott, and Mr. Flint.

The Philatelic Thespians will hold a meeting Thursday evening after school to practice for the play to be given at the next meeting on November 25. Those taking part in the play are Maxine Howard, Joan Kennedy, Gwen Horn, Maxine Mariotte, Elizabeth Davenport, Selma Liff, Bernadette Dygert, and Geneva Shearer. Others not taking part in the play but who are assisting are Helen Doenges, Theo Schromberg, Louise Closs, and LaVerne DeKeel.

Commercial Course Aids Alma Nitzsche To Obtain Position

Combining the efforts of worthy commercial teachers and hard working commercial students leads to success for many worthwhile students in commercial work after graduation from South Side High School.

Alma Nitzsche stands high on the list of successful commercial students. She is now employed at the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, doing secretarial work, and reports that she likes her job very much. She is most interested in law and would some day like to attend college and take up this subject. This, she believes, is an advantage in working before attending college, as you then know what you really like.

Subjects Taken Here

At South Side, she took the entire commercial course with electives permitting her to go to college. Her entire two years of shorthand were under Mr. Murch and typing was under Miss Nellie Covalt and Mr. Murch. Her favorite subject was business English, which was also under the tutelage of Mr. Murch.

She thinks that commercial work benefits speech and spelling probably more than anything taught at South Side. She intends to someday work in a law office and thus gain will her training be put to use. What success she has attained, she claims to be because of hard work and good training.

Active in Clubs

Alma was quite active in extra-curricular activities at South Side. She held membership in 1500, Wranglers, Art, Math-Science, Philo, Student Players, and served as Meterite secretary, Times managing editor, Totem sophomore editor, and senior play committee chairman. She received the German award, bookkeeping awards, and was a member of four-year honor roll, Quill and Scroll, and National Honor Society.

Mr. Murch remembers her as being probably the most accurate typist of his classes. She could get her transcripts out more rapidly because of this fact. Alma, however, sums it up by saying, "Many people think the commercial course is about the easiest course in high school. Well, it isn't, it's very difficult, but probably the most worth-while."

School Library Has Five Times Increased Size

28,680 Books Circulated During Entire Year; New Books Are Available.

With the enormous increase in the enrollment at South Side High School, the library has had to take long strides in order to keep abreast. There are at the present more than five times as many books in the school library as there was on the opening of South Side High School. In September of 1922, the first year of the school, there were 1,100 books and 1,021 pamphlets in the library. However, to this number was increased to 1,636 books and 1,780 pamphlets in the same year.

Two Librarians Needed

The school library was at that time in what is now the Greeley Room. There were two librarians, Mrs. Tourist Thompson and Miss Emma Shoup. Mrs. Thompson remained only half a semester, after which time Mrs. Rex Potter assisted Miss Shoup until 1931. After this time students helped in the library. It was in February of 1934 that the Library Club was formed and a merit system is based on two years' membership and a two year service period. Points are earned by attendance, service, serving on program committee, punctuality, and taking part in a program.

There is a possible 106 points to be earned. Twenty-five points entitles a member to a bronze pin, fifty to a silver pin, and 100 to a gold pin. Such is the manner in which the club is organized to help take care of the 5,808 books, 1,833 pamphlets and 7,169 pictures which make up the school library at the present time.

Circulations Are Rated

In the first year of the library, when it was still in what is now the Greeley Room, there was a circulation of 8,814 books during the entire year. Last year the book circulation was a goodly 28,680.

The books are supplied through taxation; occasionally, however, there are books given to the library as gifts. Many new books have been added to the library this year. Among these is a new set of World Books and the new Americana. Many new economics books have also been added to the library within the last few weeks.

For new material and information concerning the present up-to-date subjects, South Side's own library offers an abundance of reading matter. Here one can find the latest magazines and clippings from a New York paper and The Christian Science Monitor.

Faculty Is Thanked

South Side Started With 892 Students Back In Fall 1922

Rhythm Is Theme Of Friday Tea Dance

Not "College Rhythm" but "High School Rhythm" will be the prevailing theme song of our South Side students and their friends this Friday, for once more our school orchestra will provide music for a tea dance. The orchestra is South Side's own and consists of Bob Phillips, Elmer Webb, Bob Haruff, Arnold Metsch, Dale Burgener, Frank Elder, William Nickerson, Lester Yoder, and Raymond Errsman.

As a special feature, there will be a skit given, "Dot Entertains Her Big Sister's Beau," and the things she tells him are a "plenty." Harriet Yapp will take the leading part; the other part will be played by one of the other prominent members of our school.

The committee serving for the affair is composed of Rosemary Lehman, Harriet Yapp, Virginia Vesey, and Bernadette Dygert.

Twinkle Your Toes For South Side Has A Dance Orchestra

Eureka! At last we have it, a real sure South Side dance orchestra! For years this has been in the minds of many as the ideal way to solve the problem of securing an orchestra for tea dances and other functions here in South Side.

A group of boys still in South Side, or just graduated last year, have been brought together under the direction of Dale Burgener, '35, to furnish music for the afternoon frolics and other occasions when it is necessary for a band of that type to play.

This band of ambitious boys was brought into being about six weeks ago. During these six weeks they have had frequent rehearsals and have already played at one tea dance where they were very well liked. They have, as yet, not decided on a name, and have no theme song, although they would like to have "The Desert Song," but it is not obtainable for dancing.

Following are the members of the orchestra and the instrument each plays:

Bob Phillips, alto saxophone; Frank Elder, alto saxophone; Raymond Crisman, tenor saxophone; Elmer Webb, drums; Bob Haruff, piano; Arnold Metsch, trombone; William Nickerson, trumpet; George Glen, trumpet; Lester Yoder, brass, and Dale Burgener, the director, violin.

Increase Is Shown In History Classes

In the beginning of the social science department a very important division of South Side, there were only two teachers, Miss Miller and Mr. Murphy. Only about 300 pupils chose to take social science.

As the school became larger, the number of teachers in the department increased. The new teachers who were added to the teaching staff included Miss Smeltzly, Miss Mary Crowe, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Robertson, Mr. Fields, Mr. McClure, and Mr. Tudor.

The department at first offered American History and Government. Later two years of European History, one year of General History, one year of Government and Economics, and one year of Citizenship and Occupations were offered.

Principal States Importance Of National Education Week

R. Nelson Snider

National Education Week, sponsored by the National Education Society, the American Legion, and the Department of Education of the Federal Government, is designed to call the attention of all citizens to the importance of the training of boys and girls throughout the nation. During this week these sponsoring organizations hope to have at least twelve million people visit the various educational institutions to see what is being done to make better and more efficient citizens of the youth. It is the hope of everyone connected with the schools that all parents who can at all will make an effort to become better acquainted with the training places of their children.

South Side High School will be particularly happy to have the parents of its students visit the school during this observance, and to discover what efforts are being made here to train boys and girls in the art of better living. No special occasion is being planned, but the classes are always open for visitors. Perhaps parents could get the best glimpse of the type of training secured here, by visiting some of the extra-curricular activities. It is in these activities that our students secure some of the best citizenship instruction and practice in the school.

We should also like to emphasize the fact that South Side is always happy to have parents visit the school, and to ask questions concerning any phase of its activities.

Conducted As Grade, High School Until 1925 When New Building Opened.

Largest One-Story School In Country

Twenty-One Of Former Faculty Of Thirty-Nine Still On Teaching Staff Here.

South Side High School, the largest one-story type school in the United States, is now passing into its fourteenth year; it was opened in the fall of 1922.

South Side, however, in 1922 was more than a high school; it was a combination of a high school and grade school, and continued as such until the fall of 1925. At that time Harrison Hill School was opened and the grade school moved there.

The principal of the grade school was Mr. Agnew, and Mr. Harris was the principal of the high school. Mr. Agnew is still principal of the grade school at Harrison Hill. Mr. Harris continued as principal of South Side High School until the fall of 1925 when Mr. Snider became the principal, and Mr. Harris became the principal of James Smart School.

Occupied Before Completion

Teachers and students of South Side moved in before the building was completely finished, and the first month was accompanied by the noise of hammers, saws, and concrete mixers. This building is of fire-proof construction. The ground floor covers an entire three acres. The gymnasium seats 2,000 spectators, and its stadium capacity is 3,200. The architects were Mr. Griffith and Mr. Goodrich.

While the grade school was here, their classes were held in the south end of the building. The library was not there at that time nor was the Voorhees Room. The Voorhees Room was then the office of Mr. Agnew, the grade school principal, and the library was then in what has since become the Greeley Room.

In September of 1922, the enrollment was 892 and there were thirty-nine teachers. Of these thirty-nine teachers twenty-one are still members of the faculty. They are: Miss Pittenger, Mr. Chappell, Miss Demaree, Miss Fiedler, Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Gould, Miss Harvey, Mr. Hull, Miss Ley, Miss Miller, Miss Mott, Mr. Murch, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Null, Miss Paxton, Mr. Parks, Miss Rhinehart, Mr. Rothert, Miss Thorne, Mr. Voorhees, and Mr. Whelan. The enrollment and number of teachers then is quite a contrast to the present enrollment of 1852 students and only 62 teachers.

Basketball, Times, 1922

The first basketball game of South Side High School was played in the gymnasium on December 8, 1922, against Shortridge High School. The score of this game was 8-7 in favor of South Side.

The career of The South Side Times began in the same year, and the first published paper was on October 6. The Times was a five-column issue at that time.

Many Changes Made

Many changes have been made in some of the rooms since the building was constructed. The office was once just one big office. Now there are really three. Mr. Null's office was once used as a doctor's room. The library was once in the Greeley Room. In June, 1923, there were 1536 books in the library. In 1926, when the library was moved to its present location, there were 3,296 books, and in June, 1935, there were 6,182 books in the library.

Three Awards Are Announced By Universities

Cincinnati Has Save-A-Year Plan; Rockford, Goucher Each Offer Scholarships.

Two new scholarships and a new Save-a-Year plan were recently announced by three prominent universities of the country. The institutions are the University of Cincinnati College of Engineering and Commerce; Rockford College, and Goucher College for Women. The announcements were made public at South Side by three bulletins in the front hall.

New Plan Given

Under the new Save-a-Year plan, which is being instituted by the University of Cincinnati, any January graduate of a high school may enter the college on January 6, 1936, and continue until August 1, 1936. By that time, the members of the class will have completed the whole freshman curriculum and will be as far advanced next September as if they had entered in September, 1935.

The Save-a-Year plan is open to students interested in aeronautical engineering, chemical engineering, civil engineering, commercial engineering, electrical engineering, geological engineering, mechanical engineering, and business administration.

For further information, students who are interested in the Save-a-Year plan are asked to write to the College of Engineering and Commerce University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio. An illustrated booklet will be sent on request.

Rockford College of Rockford, Illinois, is offering a new competitive scholarship to students of distinction and prominence chosen from selected areas. Awards will be given on the basis of the applicant's record in secondary schools as expressed by grades and recommendations and a competitive examination.

Types Of Scholarships Given

The scholarships are available in the fields of art, music, French, German, mathematics, Latin, writing, and Spanish. Information may be obtained from the president's office at Rockford, Illinois.

The Goucher regional scholarships, which are offered in the areas of New England, Southern states, Middle Atlantic, Northwestern states, and California, will be awarded on a competitive basis by a scholarship committee on the basis of school records.

Times Edition Highly Honored

This photographed copy of the front page of last year's South Side Times for the National Education Week issue, actual size, was sent to thousands of schools all over the United States in a special manual prepared for high school students to be used in connection with this year's observance. The back page contained a brief summary of the rest of the paper.

Hosiery Should Be Selected With Care

By Ruth Adler

Choosing your hosiery wardrobe will solve many problems. The trouble with most people is that they do not wear the correct hose for the outfit they are wearing. A sheer hose is as much out of place with a sports outfit as a wool or lisle hose with an elegant evening gown.

For country or extreme sports wear one should select a lisle, wool, or a twelve-thread silk hose. For general hard wear or walking, one should choose a semi-service or seven-thread hose. For a somewhat dressy sports outfit, a finer thread hose is permitted.

scholastic aptitude, industry, and other pertinent information.

To be eligible for the award, the applicant must have been previously accepted as a freshman by the committee on admission of Goucher College, and she must be planning to reside in the residents' hall. Application blanks and further information may be obtained from the president of the college. The applications must be received before May 1, 1936, and the awards will be announced on or before June 1.

ted. This hose, in weight, is between a chiffon and a mid-weight. A four-thread chiffon hose is suitable for afternoon and evening wear.

Besides considering weights of hose, one should consider if she is a person who requires a special type of hose. There are extra-long hose for the tall, extra-short hose for the short, outsize hose for the larger people, two-way stretch top hose for an active person, and junior-miss hose for the tiny person.

It is wise to consider the place in which you purchase your hose. Be sure that they always have new stock, that they carry a reliable and complete brand of hose, and that the clerks know their hose. Usually you get the best results by buying at a hosiery specialty shop. Fort Wayne has only one such shop, The Neumode Hosiery Shop.

Modern Wardrobe Must Have Shoes For All Occasions

By Martin and Wolf

Oxfords, brogues, gillie and side ties, and the moccasin compose the wide variety of fashions in shoes for every occasion of the modern sub-sub-deb of this season. For less practical moments the choice runs to smartly turned high-heel dress oxfords and pumps in interesting shades in antelope fabric, bucko and suede. Attractive styles are also being shown in combinations of suede and patent leather and of antelope fabrics and the patent. In formal slippers combinations of silver and gold as well as tinted shades to blend or contrast with the dress remain popular.

Oxfords with or without the Kiltie tongue appear in brown and black calf with attractive perforations, stitching, and two-toned leather effects. For comfort the elkhide of moccasin in brown or black with a heavy yet flexible sole is chosen.

For Sunday evening and informal parties low-heeled sandals in attractive leathers, suede or dressed kid which suggests moire silk, are worn. The high-heeled oxfords of suede with a variety in trimmings are appropriate for the matinee or afternoon tea.

For evening, silver and gold sandals are the most popular. However, interesting effects are also produced by tinting satin styles. The multi-color brocade sandal shod and piped with gold will match several frocks; black crepe sandals trimmed in gold or silver are of the very newest. Styles in suede and patent are permissive, but are not appropriate for evening as they are more for afternoon.

For school the conservative, low-heeled sport wear is most appropriate. For other occasions types of heels vary according to one's taste.

Since this season presents a variety in shades, it is important that the shade be chosen with careful consideration. Green and duobonnet suede complete attractive outfits in rust, green, brown, and plum.

A footwear wardrobe is not complete without the gaytees or boots for cold and damp weather. They are fleece-lined and lace up the instep. They are not bulky looking; so, wear them and be comfortable. Fur trimmed gaytees are shown in white for evening wear. A few are also shown in black and brown fur trim for daytime wear; however, they are very dressy.

The new styles described here are on display and in stock at Bobay's.

Dictatorship Destroys Peace.

Nation Doubts As Election Near.

Doctor Stirs Medical Circles

Reds, Facists, and Nazis all have staged dramatic demonstrations in the last few weeks, showing the world powers that they have developed a coercive system of control over their peoples that in case of a world conflict they will be prepared to out-manuever their foes. Each year recollections of the World War drift into our minds as the annual celebration of Armistice Day rolls around.

Each year the inevitability of war grows more and more vivid. This year pours forth a series of indications that the world is on the verge of another world-wide catastrophe. Undue pessimism is not called for at this time but can the world long wonder when the organized forces of peace prove to be match-stick frameworks in the hands of these organized factions who bend it as is their will, into any shape that fits their desires. The Hague Tribunal and the League are principles on the right form of complete peace accomplishment, but they are lacking in that feeling of "common brotherhood" that goes so far to bind incoherent people into coherent powers.

Communism, Facism, and Nazism are all the arch-enemies of peace and seem to be the doom of the world behind its work. Peace is a priceless jewel and in that capacity it has caused every nation grief in seeking to attain its goal.

The battle front moves west into the realms nearer home. Elections and their ultimate result have stirred the nation into heated debates and discussions as to the advisability of the New Deal. Despite George M. Gallup's nation-wide poll which indicates the odds in favor of Roosevelt and his administration, the majority was 53-47.

The polls of the nation registered a heavy setback to the New Deal which caused the rise of the question of whether this non-partisan fact-finding poll is accurate or whether it is, as other polls, incomplete in its scope and very incapable of reaching the masses in its drive for accurate statistics. It seems that the nation is "on a saw-saw" and cannot make up its mind as to which party to give its adherence.

Both political groups are marshaling their battle lines for the struggle that is sure to occur when the "presidential campaign" swings into force.

A stir in the medical circles attracted the interest of the English nation and that of the world when a newspaper article quoted an anonymous doctor as having killed five human beings for "humane reasons" and was prepared to face "any tribunal in the land" to answer for his actions. Immediately the question of whether persons who are doomed to death or embeccility should be disposed of by the hands of medical advisers arises. Arguments flowed for both sides. Those

Small Fire In Sewing Room Shows Need Of Carefulness

"Do you smell smoke?"

"Yes, I wonder where it's coming from?"

"I don't know. Let's find out."

We made our way to the door of the Times room, where we had been folding papers Wednesday night about 8 o'clock, and very cautiously peered outside. The halls were filled with smoke, and we jumped back coughing and choking. After a while, we gathered up sufficient courage, and after tucking our collars and handkerchiefs well up around our faces, we started upon a tour of investigation.

As we neared the sewing room, the smoke grew denser. We were standing outside the room debating whether or not to go in, when someone suddenly came out. We leaped back in fright, but, much to our relief, it was only one of the janitors. We inquired of him about the fire. For answer, he turned and pointed to the other side of the room. We drew closer in interested expectation. At first all we could see was the floor, and then we discovered we were looking through a large hole in an ironing board. Burnt remnants of cloth lay around it and on the blackboard ledge sat a smoking iron.

We plied the janitor with questions, and in answer he told us that he, too, had smelled smoke, and after going to several other rooms, he finally discovered the fire in room 38. The room was quite filled with smoke, and after some difficulty, he managed to reach the ironing board, which was on fire, and to extinguish the flames. He had left the door of the room open to allow the smoke to escape. This is what had attracted our attention.

We then noticed several dresses were hanging on the wall directly above the board. As the thought of what disaster might have occurred if the janitor had not arrived when he did, we shuddered. We also decided then and there that we would always be more careful and see to it that who claimed practical-mindedness favor this form of weeding out the undesirable of the race and in many cases the person wishes to be mercifully taken from his afflicted life. The consensus of opinion on the other side is that it is not for man to take what God has given. This action on the part of this London physician has placed the seed of thought in many minds.

nothing like that would ever take place by a similar act on our part.

Twin Sweater Sets Are Very Practical For School Wear

Twin sweater sets in solid color, also in contrasting shades, are prevailing in present fashions. High necklines and snug-fitting styles catch the eye for the well dressed girl. Attractive styles are "slip-ons" in rabbit-yarns and metallic woven wools. Wools with gorged skirt fullness with pleated inserts are shown in a range of colors. Plaid skirts are particularly smart for sport wear.

Blouses are featured for sport, afternoon, and evening wear. Tailored styles are shown with plain, high neck-lines, vests and tucked fronts. The dressy mode in blouses shows the extreme full sleeves, shirred yokes, corded trims in both satin and silk, and the more popular materials. Tunics are demanding attention in both military fashions with frogs and braid trim, and in the evening blouses of silver and gold lame. The cocktail blouse is pattern for the dress-suit or separate wool or velvet skirt. The lame and dull gold and steel satins take the outstanding lead in this fashion. Smart, short sleeves with fraped waist lines in Grecian effect make these popular styles irresistible.

For a more complete description of the sports blouses, skirts, sweaters and tunics, it is suggested that you drop in at the Maudie Shop on the second floor in Frank's and satisfy yourself by a personal inspection.

Choose Your Formal Wisely For Sophistication, Romance

By Bernadette Dygert

As the Thanksgiving season is drawing near with its formal affairs, girls are naturally very much interested in "what to wear." Of course, formal attires will answer the question, but the main problem is "just what kind?"

A suggestion is a lovely peach, quilted taffeta formal of plain, Grecian style. In the front, there is a Renaissance clip of pastel blue shade; the drop shoulders fit in attractively with the low collar reaching down the back to the waistline, from which small covered buttons extend to the bustle back.

Moire Is New

Moire, a very new and youthful material, makes up a dark blue, bustle-back dress. The dress has a Little Princess yoke effect and is pleasingly full in front. The full skirt, together with a jacket having short, puffed sleeves, give the formal a quaint, old-fashioned appearance.

A very sophisticated affair of plum velvet is outstanding in its beautiful simplicity. Three rows of pearls are at the neckline and on the cuffs. The front and the back of the formal are shirred daintily; long sleeves, puffed at the top and fitted from the elbow on down, complete the dress' sophisticated air.

In contrast, is a tailored formal of purple and silver lame. The dress has a tunic effect and covered buttons down the front to the waist. Short sleeves with cuffs carry out the tailored idea which is also shown by a clever purple velvet bow at the neck and by a belt of purple velvet.

Taffeta Entrancing

Under night lights, changeable taffeta is peculiarly entrancing. One of orchid, which can be worn as a dinner dress or as a formal, is indeed charming. The straps are cleverly arranged so as to fasten around the neck and button there, then to cover the bustline to the waist, where there is an attractive bunch of flowers blending beautifully with the dress. A short jacket with full puffed sleeves may be worn with it as the occasion demands.

Lady, Be Smart And Be Warm In A Smart Swagger Fur

Fur previews show a large and varied assortment in the styles of coats and jackets. There are the trotteur, the loose swagger, the almost straightline, and the streamline. Swaggers and fitted lines divide the honors, but the molded silhouette still predominates in the conservative all-occasion garment. You may wear any length and the odd length for sophisticated smartness. Individuality may be secured through the style of the collar, sleeves, metal clips, shade of fur, length of coat or jacket, and pockets.

Interesting things have happened to collars. By various simple adjustments of the new collars, the entire appearance of the coat may be altered. Collars are mostly small, convertible, and smart. Sleeves vary in fullness, cuffs, and armhole-cut. They may be extravagantly full at the elbow with tight wrists, mandarin types, balloon, bell, or ruffled. Armholes are lower and squarer for formal wear.

Swaggers, in particular, must have pockets. Fur swaggers are ultra-new for sports wear. New shades have been introduced in furs, in linings, and in those accessories which complete the perfect fur ensemble. Muffs and hats of fur are strongly advocated.

Swaggers For Action

Suppleness and pliability are emphasized. The slim swagger coat in Hudson seal is designed for action. A trim rolled collar can be worn several ways on this swagger coat. Full shaped sleeves are wide enough for plenty of action. This coat may be slightly changed by a flattering "apool" collar, and gathering the sleeves into an interesting cuff.

Unrelieved black caracul is very much in favor. All the bright young people are wearing swaggers. A novel Peter Pan envelope collar, saucy ruffled half cuffs, full sleeves, and slashed pockets are the distinguishing as well as attractive features of this model. Slight modification may be made by placing a back yoke creating the favored loose back. Further modification is possible by the addition of mandarin sleeves that lap on the cuffs. A smart hat and muff to match completes this outfit.

African Kid Fashionable

New knee length sub-deb coats in Blue Fox African Kid has survived the fashion struggle with its loose swagger dash. Double buckles fasten the pointed collar and the coat at the waist. Raglan sleeves are unusually plain. The double-breasted closing is very young, especially smart when the coat is that new dark grey African kid. Both sleeves and collar point to chic.

High School Speciality

—Courtesy News-Sentinel

Unusual fasteners, alias metal leaves, serve as an attractive feature as well as an important one at the neckline of the above model. The "dressmaker" collar is unusually "becoming" to the high school girls' fur coats, especially in Russian caracul. The swagger fullness is allowed for at the shoulders very smartly. A tiny bit of the same fur is worn as the suggestion of a beret and is trimmed with a wisp of a black silk veil.

Place Accent On Lovliness In Your Winter Wardrobe

By Helen Kelsey

"Lovely to look at" is not only the title of a song, but also is the aim of every miss as she selects her wardrobe. Foreign accents are exceedingly popular in the fashion plates of today. For a good example of the correct dresses of the hours, let us look through the fashion plates sponsored by Fishman's Woman Apparel.

On the first page we view a black and white shirtwaist dress, suggested for Sunday evening wear. The blouse is of silver metal-shot white crepe. Rectangular-shaped brilliant buttons adorn the front of the blouse. Grace and poise are added by the large accordion-pleated bishop-sleeves. The floor length skirt is of black crepe.

"Number" Is Described

Across the page we see another black and white "number." Unusually large quilted lapels, better named wing sleeves, and a Peter Pan collar of the same quilted material give the blouse of the dress a military effect. Further interest is drawn to the large black buttons down the front of the waist.

On page three we see two dresses suggested for formal teas: One of floor length and one of street length. The longer is entirely of white crepe with a detachable white crepe jacket designed with crystal beads. The dress itself is cut low in the back with a small tailored collar across the back close to the nape of the neck. Brilliant color and variety is provided for in the form of a wide red velvet belt. The other dress, slightly shorter, is of blue metallic cloth waist and a skirt of duobonnet wool crepe. Four round and crystal brilliant buttons hold the blouse together from the neck to the waist. The blouse was not belted, merely closely fitted.

Modern Sport Clothes Have Utmost Smartness and Style

By Gwen Horn

"Four score and seven years ago, our fathers brought forth into this continent" a small group of frightened and bewildered pilgrim women, who were dressed in as monotonous colors and styles as the bleak, cold country into which they were entering.

Years passed and women draped themselves in everything from a flower garden on the top of their heads to shoes which buttoned up to their knees. In the nineties, it was a common thing to see blushing belles playing tennis in long, trailing skirts and petticoats.

The modern trend of sport clothes has reached the pinnacle of smartness, style, comfort and versatility.

Wolf and Dessauer gives us a selection of sport dresses and accessories, which certainly give the modern miss nothing to sneer at.

Green Important Color

First in color importance came the various shades of green. Everything from the rich olive shades to the palest of pea greens are popular.

An olive green wool is the first dress to greet our eyes. The cloth is dotted with gold thread and sixteen gold buttons march down the front of the short tunic blouse.

Next, comes a bright green frock of soft, angora wool. It has a smartly tailored jacket and skirt, having as its only accessory a lip-stick red ascot scarf.

One of the very smartest of all the greens is Louise Mulligan's original model of the "Here Comes Cookie" dress. Miss Mulligan's models are exclusive with Wolf and Dessauer. The dress is made up of heavy dark green crepe. It has a shirtwaist blouse with a shirred yoke. The collar is a scarf effect, and the belt is brown kid with a large buckle made of dull gold.

Other Important Colors

Next in color, importance are the warm browns, tans, and yellows.

A clever tile crepe is the first in these colors to catch our eye. The main features of this dress are the three triangular pockets stitched in brown thread, arranged on each side of the blouse. The neck is buttoned by two wooden "Scotties."

A practical dress would be the brown woolen V-necked dress, adorned with a three-cornered tie of yellow and brown stripes. Two buttons of the same yellow stripe fasten the belt.

A warm brunette would fall in love with a canary yellow dress found in Wolf and Dessauer's Junior Department. It is two-piece and has wooden buttons in the form of a jockey on a horse. The double collar, cuffs, and pockets are fringed in three tiers.

Last, but not least in color importance comes black. One may believe that black is a much too severe and sophisticated color for the sweet sixteen of today to wear. But we may say, "If the freshness of youth cannot wear black, how can age wear and be enhanced by it?" Besides, these styles are so original that they can't be resisted!

Others Are Described

Two more creations by Louise Mulligan, head the list of blacks. The first one is called the "Ice Man." The neck is adorned with three huge crystal buttons resembling ice cubes, and at the belt hang a small pair of silver ice tongs.

The second dress is of heavy black moire. It is called "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary." If you've ever seen anything sweet in your life, this is the sweetest of them all! A huge black bow fastens the neck, but the cleverest accessories of the whole dress are the buttons. There are three on each pocket, and each one is shaped like a flower basket with various flowers protruding from them.

Of course, purples, lavenders, grays and blues are seen this fall on quite a few chic young ladies, but these colors do not seem to give the warmth and smartness for winter sport wear that the colors above mentioned, do.

If you want to step out with the best of them this winter, be sure to stop at Wolf and Dessauer's first.

Sports Coats To Be Colorful Affairs For Coming Season

"Vogue" shows that swaggers and fitted styles are dividing the honors in sport coats this season. Fabric designs are being shown in small pin checks to six or eight inch blocks. Some of the most attractive styles, however, are the swaggers with the indistinct block design softly blended in brown, rust, and other popular shades.

Most of the fitted styles are belted. Some are made with the "Clark Gable" back and balmain sleeves. They are attractive in the plain rich colors of rust, green, and grey checked patterns of brown.

A very striking model shown is of a smart green ambr fabric with a racoon collar. The collar makes the coat wearable for dress wear as well as for sports wear. This particular model has the bias seam down the center of the back. This feature makes the coat hang longer in the back than in the front, tapering on the sides. A small ascot tie of the material is sewed on the inside of the neck giving a very smart appearance as well as providing for those cold snowy days ahead. Beaver is also used on sports coats.

The typical swaggers are those of bright greens, tans, browns, and duobonnets with which the large patch pockets are extremely popular. Another characteristic is the Peter Pan collar and "saucer" size button. Buttons may be either wooden, metal, bone, or cloth covered. The composition matters not; the size matters much. They must be large.

Five Star Final

Our November sale of fur trimmed coats has specialized in those stunning dressy styles with choice furs, which heretofore only capitalists' wives have been able to afford! However, the November reductions bring them right down within reach of your budget—with Persian, lynx, fox, and caracul trims! $13, $23, $33.

The mix 'em and match 'em idea in skirts and sweaters originated for the college crowd, but so many business girls, housewives, and sportswomen have taken to the fad that we've increased our selection of styles and colors to please you all! New colors make winter look so much brighter! $1.98, $2.98.

We have particular admiration for the very smart young moderns who are first with every new fashion. For their special benefit, we have a selection of the newest dresses—simple, but grand—with jewel trimmings in the East Indian manner, and interesting sleeves with the new below-the-shoulder fullness.—$4.44, $6.66, $10.98 up.

Don't say shirtwaist frocks are always the same—for this year's version is entirely new! It leads in jersey, it picks as its favorite neutral tone—gray—and runs the full gamut of deep, Italian colors. It has a smocked yoke forming a neckline reminiscent of Russian influence, and it will be our sellout at $3.66.

If you and your best girl friend are angling for the same football hero—one way for you to win him all for yourself, is by putting in your appearance in our fleecy tweed and man-tailored coat. Its trim fitted lines, deeply notched collar and smart buttons will make him say—you're a man's girl! In a choice of weaves. $10.98, $16.98.

Prospects Good For Strong 1936 Edition Of Archers

Football Squad Will Get Back Many Players

Majority Of Second Team Will Fill Gaps Left By Graduation Of Regulars.

Backfield To Lose Only 4 Members

Ellenwood, Ostermeyer, Lee, Makey, Bennett, Wilson, Kruse, Parmalee Finish.

South Side's football team will not suffer as many losses by graduation this year as it did last year. The heaviest loss will be in the line, as only one of this year's regulars will not be back in uniform. The backfield will suffer but four major losses. There are good prospects available to fill all the vacated positions next year in both the line and the backfield.

The team's success this season was in its passing attack, and the passing attack was made a success largely by the services of Jim Ellenwood, stellar end on the Archer eleven this year. Jim has been twice All-City tackle and it seems likely that he will again be on the All-City squad this time as a wingman. Ellenwood has also shown running ability on end-around plays, scoring on many occasions. Jim graduates this year, and his position will undoubtedly be the hardest one to fill.

Captain Will Graduate

Fred Ostermeyer, defense wizard who has held down the center position on the Archer eleven for the past few years and who is adept at both snapping the ball and playing a tight defensive game in the Archer 6-2-2 defense, also graduates.

Coach Lundy Welborn will also be without the services of this year's captain, Fred Nye, veteran tackle on the Green Wave. All season Nye has held the forward wall together and should be a sure bet for the All-City squad.

Makey, Bennett, and Wilson, who have all performed very notably this year, breaking up plays and opening holes in the line of opposing teams, will also be lost.

Gordon Parmalee, formerly halfback, was converted into a quarterback this year when an abundance of good halfbacks turned out and no adept quarterback was in uniform. "Gord" has for the entire season shared the passing and punting burden with Lee, and has shown ability at each. Coach Lundy Welborn will have a tough job filling his position next year.

Other Regulars To Go
Another position which will be hard to fill is the fullback post which is to be vacated this year by Bud Lee, Archer four-year man. Bud has done the greater share of the punting and part of the passing.

Fred Meyers, diminutive quarterback on the football squad, who has the brains but not the brawn, has filled the quarterback post as well as could be expected.

Another loss will be that of Ed Kruse, halfback on the eleven. Ed has throughout the season shown brilliance as an open field runner as well as a blocker.

Although a large number of the Archer regulars graduate this year, there is very little difference between the first and second teams, and the prospects for the coming year may be defined as "good."

Joyce Spencer Keeps Medalist Rating Again

The Girls' Rifle Club met last Wednesday at the range. Two rounds were shot. Joyce Spencer again was awarded high point medal by defeating LaVon Cook by a score of 8 to 38. The N. R. A. rules and membership was discussed after which the meeting was adjourned.

Warren Zelt Wins High Bowling Score

Eleven Boys Participate In Three Practice Games Played During Week At Scott's.

Bowling enthusiasts are practicing for the annual fall tourney to be held in a few weeks. Eleven bowlers have already signed up, and several others are expected to post their names with Mr. Briner soon.

Eight participants held a practice session and bowled three games, in which Warren Zelt was high man. Practices and tournaments are held in Everett Scott's Recreation Hall, which is located at 1223 South Calhoun. A small charge is required of each participant for the privilege of playing at this place. The names and the scores of the players in the first practice session follow:

Robert Tapping58	117	113
Ray Ballweg98	85	88
Eugene Schmidt75	83	85
Warren Zelt, first place	111	141	130
Kenneth Allway65	72	103
Bob Hawkins89	67	94
Charles Zent89	90	94
Jack Kreider87	85	135

Roy Orr, Melvin Fuhrman, and Nate Hotzberg did not compete, although they had signed up by the time of the practice.

Lettermen Plan Annual Dance On December 14

Plans were made at the Lettermen's Club meeting Friday for the Lettermen's dance, a date for which is set temporarily for December 14. Committees were appointed for the affair by Fred Nye, president of the organization. As yet, no particular theme has been decided for the dance. It was also decided that, rather than change the name of the dance every year, it will in the future be known as the Lettermen's Prom.

Fred Nye and Merl Norris were chosen to ask Mr. Burl Friddle, basketball coach, to give a talk on basketball at some future club meeting. A suggestion was made to have a football game between the senior players and the underclassmen. If it is played, it will be sometime soon after the Howe game.

Although the South Side Archers did go down to a 27-7 defeat Saturday against Central, some consolation was derived when the Green broke up Central's "unscored on" record by chalking up a touchdown in the second quarter on a pass, Lee to Parmalee. Above we see Ed Kruse carrying the ball through the line for a gain.

Ruth Berning Writes Up Varsity Struggle With Columbia City

It will probably be news to South Siders to know that for the second time in the history of the Times, a girl has written up an Archer football game. This girl was none other than Ruth Berning, a popular G. A. A. member and girls' sports editor on the Times.

In previous work on the Times Ruth has excelled in all her assignments. She started as a girls' sports writer and climbed to girls' sports editor.

Although Ruth stated that it was not an easy task to keep track of all the events of the game, there is no doubt that her story on this week's game can be rated among the best stories previously written on the varsity games.

Seniors Will Tackle Underclass Gridders

South Side's senior gridders will meet the Archer underclassmen next Tuesday afternoon immediately after school in the stadium. The game, something new at South Side, is being sponsored by the Lettermen's Club.

Plans have not yet been completed for the contest, but the lettermen are hoping to have several Archer teachers as officials.

Ten cents admission will be charged, the proceeds to go to the Lettermen's treasury.

Girls Form Ten Volleyball Teams

Captains and Players Are Announced; Juniors and Sophomores Organize Four Each.

Volleyball, the second major sport of the season in the G. A. A. routine, was the subject discussed at the general G. A. A. meeting Friday afternoon. Although this sport is not the most popular one in the routine, enough girls signed up to have two senior teams, four junior, and four sophomore teams.

The captains and their teams are as follows: Senior 1, Marjorie Hower, captain, Marjorie Cartwright, Lillian Winkler, Lillian Warren, Velma Yoder, Jeanette Braun, Mary Jane Redding, Eleanor Schrenser, Dorothy Roubush, Van Detta Clay, Ruth Reitz, Virginia Baumgartner, Helen Wight, Virginia Ayres, and Jane Loomis. The Senior 2 team is headed by Betty Rison, and her team includes Margaret Dickmeyer, Mary Ann Fark, Doris Rindchen, Vivian Hickman, Delores Miller, Helen Pawlisch, Irene Becker, Doris Rohrer, Rowena Bevington, Lillian Hachmeyer, Martha Franz, Virginia Busse, Ruth Adler, and Mary Schaffer.

Junior Teams Given
The Junior 1 team consists of Margaret Ruhl, captain, Margery Ruhl, Ruth Eysenberg, Dorothy Scheele, Annabell Haines, Ada Schuelke, Hazel Noll, Mildred Close, Barbara Von Gunten, Betty Beyrau, Bernice Springer, Evelyn Lehman, and Evelyn Kruse.

The Junior 2 team consists of Leona Menze, captain, Ruth Goggin, Helen Humke, Sue Wallace, Barbara Scheele, Dorothy Zaegel, Betty Bond, Louise Phillips, Beatrice Meyer, Mary Ellen Kilpatrick, Helen Clark, Marjorie Meyer, and Louise Closs. Edna Disher's Junior 3 team includes Betty Harnish, Anna Baumgartner, Ruth Berning, Dorothy Foltz, Phyllis Barrows, Iona Schuler, Mary Lee, Thelma Erwin, Loretta Krauss, Geraldine Dush, Irene Ehlinger, Frances Knight, and Dorothy DeHaven. Junior 4 team is headed by Winifred Locker, and includes Forrestine Valentine, Dorothy Aldridge, Lida Millberg, Margaret Green, Mary Connell, Mary Wilkins, Marjorie Gould, Betty Schultz, Virginia Hemmer, Evelyn Chandler, Clarissa Coburn, and Margaret Rehm.

Sophomores Are Listed
Betty Eisenacher's Sophomore 1 team includes Dorothy Ellenwood, Dorothy Estep, Madeline Kern, Vivian Blum, Betty Broderick, Margery Crago, Dorothy Elfer, Betty Williams, Clara Thompson, June Telly, Helen McCormick, Pauletta Steibarger, and Mary Staley.

Team 2, headed by Helen Meese, includes Mary Ellen Blauvelt, Vera Walker, Lillian Roe, Florence Peters, Mabel Redding, Vivian Rindchen, Helen Forker, Joan Kennedy, Sheila Stehle, Rosalie Houston, Betty Griffith, Margaret Eser, Eleanor Libby, and Mary Zimmerman.

Mrs. Friddle Attends Games Because She Enjoys Sports

By Leona Menze

Wives of teachers of history, health, economics, mathematics and other well-known subjects, seem to be temporarily set aside by a quick insight into the woes and wails of a basketball coach's wife. Conversation over a poor connection in the telephone system and the hearty noise of Room 18, probably made the interview much more interesting to both of us.

To begin with, Mrs. Friddle is quite a basketball fan herself. She attends all the home games and also the out-of-town games when she can somehow manage to get there. As that isn't quite enough for the true fan, she gets all the "inside info" direct from Mr. Friddle via the supper table over the steaming food for a hungry husband.

She takes an interest in most all sports such as track and football, but her favorite sport remains basketball. She claims her knowledge of the game to be rather limited, but it was spoken with a deceptively modest air. However, she did say that she knows all the general rules and some of the plays, but gets rather mixed up on some of the more complicated plays.

Takes Sport Seriously
She claims that during basketball season, they eat, sleep, drink, and talk basketball; in general, they live on basketball. It seems that many arguments would arise over basketball and its technique, but Burl Friddle's knowledge seems to tower over Mrs. Friddle's knowledge of the game so impressively that the discussion is concluded before it has a chance to develop into a fruitful argument.

She accepts late and irregular meals as a part of a coach's job and doesn't even mind them. Phone calls from students are as yet not so numerous as basketball is not yet in full swing; however she expects them. Mrs. Friddle never makes a conclusive statement about basketball when she's out in a group of people as she doesn't

Country's Best Turning Eyes To Rose Bowl

Countless Outstanding Grid Teams Hope For Invitation To Annual Classic.

The Rose Bowl beckons and while California and Stanford meet this week in an all important clash and decide the Western defender, the schools east of the Mississippi are still in the midst of a scramble in which as many as ten schools stand out for Rose Bowl recognition.

On the Pacific Coast, California is the only undefeated team but the Golden Bears will meet their real test this week when Stanford's injury-wrecked squad attempts to clinch a Rose Bowl bid for the third successive year. Stanford has been defeated only by U. C. L. A. this season, and the lone defeat occurred when the Indians were playing without the services of Capt. Bones Hamilton Bobby Grayson and Frank Alustiza for three years their backfield mainstays. Grayson has been playing for the past two weeks, but Hamilton and Alustiza are still on the crippled list with but small hope of them playing against California.

Princeton Favorable Team

Should California be defeated by Stanford and that possibility seems imminent, the Rose Bowl committee will be forced to pick between them. Washington also has a strong team this year but since the Huskies have tasted defeat both at the hands of California and Stanford, Washington is almost out of the picture.

In the East the situation is even more complicated, with some ten teams worthy of representing the East in the New Year's classic. Dartmouth is enjoying one of the best seasons in the history of the school and the big Green team has steam-rolled every opponent who has had the ill fortune to run up against them. Let by Carl Ray, huge center, the Dartmouth team has not even been pushed this season.

Princeton has also enjoyed a singularly successful season, and probably the leading contender for the Rose Bowl will be forwarded when Dartmouth and Princeton meet in two weeks in one of the leading battles played this season in the East. Princeton may be prevented from accepting a Rose Bowl bid by an ancient agreement with Yale which prohibits post-season games by the two schools.

New York Undefeated

New York University and Syracuse have also gone without defeat, but both teams have been favored by a comparatively easy schedule.

In the South only one team stands out sufficiently for Rose Bowl recognition, the North Carolina Tarheels, who have risen from out of nowhere to smite the leaders in the South. Led by a halfback named Don Jackson, who has been terrorizing his opponents, the Tarheels have been the scourge of the South and it seems that the University of California leans quite a bit toward giving the Rose Bowl bid to North Carolina.

In the Southwest Texas Christian and Southern Methodist are undefeated but they both have the toughest part of their schedule ahead of them.

In the Mid-west Marquette has gone undefeated through a tough schedule, and with the Guepe brothers and Ray Buivid they seem headed for an undefeated season. When the West issues the Rose Bowl invitation they will probably lean to the team that should make the turnstiles in the big Pasadena bowl click, and this tends to lower the stock of Marquette and North Carolina, who might not prove so strong as drawing cards. Notre Dame was played up as the probable favorite from the East and their defeat at the hands of unheralded Northwestern eleven startled the entire football world.

Minnesota Also Strong

Minnesota and Ohio State have two of the best teams in the country but both schools are prohibited from the Rose Bowl by a much-disputed and seemingly meaningless Big Ten ruling which reads that Big Ten teams may play no post season games. Minnesota demonstrated their real power and abundance of material this year when, after losing both Julie Alfonso and Captain Glenn Seidel, their two ace backfield men, they

Makes It A Dozen

Lundy Welborn

Coach Lundy Welborn will complete his twelfth year as coach of South Side's footballers when the Archers' journey to Howe to play the Cadets Saturday.

South Side Is Only High School In State Scheduling Hockey

"I know of no high school in Indiana other than South Side that includes hockey in its athletic program," stated Miss Alice J. Patterson, teacher of physical education, and adviser of G. A. A. Hockey is one of the most rigorous and most popular sports in South Side. Both boys and girls agree that it is one of the roughest sports in G. A. A.

In its primitive form, hockey is one of the oldest ball games in the world. Records of it are known as far back as 1330. The name is thought to have been derived from the name given the looked stick that is used in the game.

Development Is English

The modern development of the game is distinctively English. No attempt was made to form rules prior to 1875, when an association was formed of hockey clubs near London, and a few rules were formulated, which formed the basis of the later development of the game. One of the most distinguished features of the English play, and probably the large secret of its popularity, has been the effort to keep it a purely amateur game, by prohibiting all matches for raffles.

The game was introduced in the United States in 1901, by Miss Constance M. K. Applebee, who in that year started it in several of the leading colleges, Vassar, Bryn Mawr, and Smith.

Layout Is Given

Field hockey is played on a large level field covered with turf, and marked with white lines. In the center of the line a goal is erected consisting of upright posts with a cross bar.

The field is divided through the center by a line parallel to the two end goal lines, and each half is defended by a team of eleven players. The game is played with a small cricket ball made of leather, about the size of a baseball, and painted white. This ball is played entirely with a curved stick; it is never kicked or played by hand. A goal is scored each time a team puts its ball through the opponent's goal, with a shot made from within the striking circle, an area marked in front of each goal.

The ball may not be played on by any attacking player who was between it and the opponent's goal when it was last hit, unless at least three of the opponents are nearer their own goal than this player.

In general form the game is almost identical with soccer football, though the ball, and the method of playing, are radically different.

were able to call upon their shock troops and develop replacements almost as good as the originals in the form of Babe Lavoit and the spectacular Tuffy Thompson.

Tuffy Thompson, Ohio State, ballyhooed as national champions ever since the beginning of the season, is a powerful club but their championship dreams came to an abrupt end when they were defeated by a courageous Notre Dame eleven that simply refused to be beaten. Ohio State has ample replacements returning next year and the Buckeyes should prove to be almost unbeatable in the next campaign.

More Points Required For G.A.A. Letter

Girls' Athletic Association Decides To Increase Required 1200 To 1500 Points

Of the suggested amendments to the G. A. A. constitution, the most important, that of changing the number of points required for a varsity letter "S" from 1200 to 1500 points, was passed at the general meeting of the association last Thursday. This amendment was deemed necessary because of the added opportunities in which to earn points.

Virginia Menze, a popular freshman, was elected representative of her class on the executive board of the association. An amendment which will decrease the amount of work required by the secretary is that of classifying mid-semester pupils as follows: 10A's, as freshmen, 11A's, as sophomores, and 12A's as juniors.

Members will welcome the swimming meet amendment. It was decided that this be an annual affair, and that points be awarded as in a track meet. The amendment concerning the dancing club, that of awarding 100 points a semester to the participants, was postponed until a later date because no decision could be made.

Basketball Team Practices For Play

Twenty Are Eligible For Sport; Three From Football Squad May Be Given Positions.

Coach Burl Friddle has again cut his basketball squad down to about twenty boys. Friddle says that he has nearly all of his material picked except for the boys who are out for football.

There are about three boys on the football squad who will probably claim places on the varsity squad. They are Fred Ostermeyer, Bud Lee, and Jim Ellenwood.

The practice up to this time has consisted mostly of practice shooting, dribbling, and scrimmage. Many of the fellows who are out this year are sophomores and juniors. This means that we will probably have very good material next year.

Some of the first team who will graduate this year are Fred Ostermeyer, Jim Ellenwood, Bud Lee, and Joe Close. In spite of this fact, Friddle has many good up-and-coming underclassmen.

North Side Shares In Crown For First Time

In the fall of 1922 began the rivalry of a city champion that is still in full swing. It was first started between Central and South Side, but as the years passed, North Side and Central Catholic became engaged in these fiercely contested grid battles.

South Side was the first city champion by virtue of her defeat of Central. She successfully defended the title for two years and then in 1925 lost to Central. In 1926, South Side did not play thus giving the title to Central. South Side then won the title in 1927, but was not possessor of the title until 1932. In 1934, she lost a game to Central, but was city champ by beating North Side and Central Catholic. This year the Archers lost to North Side and Central, who each claimed a share.

This year is the first year that North Side has had a share in the city title. Central Catholic has never been a city champion.

South Side Suffers 27-7 Loss To Central's Powerful Bengals

With the ball in midfield on second down early in the third quarter, South Side's Archers elected to try a pass. Mourning of Central appeared out of nowhere to intercept the toss. On the next play, Brown skirted his own right end on a double reverse and outran several Archer secondary men for 58 yards and a touchdown. And thereby hangs the tale of South Side's defeat by a strong Central aggregation by a score of 27-7.

The Tigers had scored first midway in the first period when Brown carried the ball around right end. L. Sitko had kicked the extra point and Central led by seven points.

Archers Score On Pass

Late in the second period the Archers took a punt on the Tiger 46. On the next play Benz tossed a short one to Norris, who cut back across the field and carried the ball to the 20 and scoring position. Two plays netted a first down and placed the leather on the 7-yard line. After three running plays gained one yard, Lee tossed a short pass to Parmelee, who went over the line for the first score made against Central all season. Lee converted the extra point to tie up the ball game.

Shortly afterward, the Archers got the ball and made one first down, taking the ball to Central's 30 as the half ended. At this point it began to look as though the Archers might pull an upset.

Mud Cleats Help Tigers

In the second half, Central came back into the ball game wearing mud cleats. From then on the game was all Blue, for the Archers as well as the Tigers. Brown scored the second touchdown for his team on that fatal 60-yard run. S. Sitko passed to Stanski for the extra point. The Tigers led by seven points. However, South Side was still very much in the running, at least until Sitko intercepted a pass on the Green 36. The Tigers carried the ball to the 25-yard stripe and tossed a pass which was complete on the 15. Central then pulled the identical play that had scored the previous touchdown, Brown again going around end. L. Sitko kicked the point; the Tigers led, 21 to 7.

That settled matters. South Side lost its fight and the battle was lost. Had the Green been able to stop the thrust for the third touchdown, they might have had the stuff to stage a comeback and tie up the game. However, the squad seemed to realize it was useless after the third marker.

Bad Play Brings Score

The fourth and final Bengal score came as a result of a rather foolish play on the part of the Green. Central kicked out on South Side's 12-yard stripe. Foolishly the Green elected to pass while deep in their own territory. The feared happened and a Tiger grabbed the pass and returned the pill to the 10. Immediately, Charlton skidded around right end for the touchdown. The try for extra point was unsuccessful.

The Archers finally pulled out of their spell a little and recovered a Central fumble on the Green 40. Kruse made two first downs on running plays and then tossed passes for two more, placing the ball on the 7-yard line. However, four plays fell one foot short of the goal and Central punted out. Parmelee then passed to Ellenwood on the 10 to put the ball back into the deep Blue territory. The Green then tossed two unsuccessful passes over the goal line, automatically giving the leather to the Tigers as the final gun sounded.

Girls Devote Time To Gym Office Work

A great deal of credit should be given to a number of girls in the girls' athletic department. These are the office girls. There is one for each period of the day, each girl working one period.

At the close of each season, there are always points waiting to be recorded for some particular sport, and the girls help with this. There are also errands to be run, occasional typing to be done, and bulletins to help make.

Towards the end of the school year, there are costumes to be made for the demonstration by the physical education department and the office girls assist those on the costume committee in making these.

Besides this, when a person is to be found, they usually get the job. They also have charge of the office when Miss Smith and Miss Patterson are not there.

The girls and their periods are: first, Betty Kaade; second, Ruth Berning; third, Helen Meese; fifth, Marjorie Hower; sixth period, Mildred Close, and Lillian Warren. Ruth Berning takes care of the scrapbook.

Underweight Girls Privileged
The Lincoln High School of Lincoln, Nebraska, has a special physical education class for girls that are underweight, have heart ailments, or have conditions that require modified activities.

Pigskin Passes

Central had everything they were touted to have. It was no disgrace to lose to a team which clicked so consistently. We believe they had one of the strongest teams shown on any Fort Wayne gridiron for many a year.

Concerning Central's comparatively poor showing in the first half, we lay the blame of that on the fact that Central players did not have the advantage of mud cleats. This is an important factor on a muddy field such as the one Saturday. South Side wore them throughout the game. We believe the score might have been much higher if Central had had these said mud cleats during the first half of the game.

We saw Saturday what we believe to be one of the best worked-out and performed plays that have been seen in Fort Wayne this season. It is the reverse play which Central used to shake Brown loose or two touchdowns in the third quarter. The play is practical as well as effective, there being no great amount of risk to take in running it off. When Brown started around his right end he had superb interference, the Archer line being drawn to the left on the play. It went for two touchdowns, both by Brown around his right end, one after a 59-yard sprint and the other a 15-yard run.

We would consider the All-City team as picked by the Journal-Gazette a good one. We agree decidedly with the selection of Shumm, S. Sitko, McDonald, and Ellenwood on the first string. We think, however, that Ellenwood should have been put at end, his position this season. Congratulations to Benz, Ellenwood, and Ostermeyer of South Side on their appointment to either the first or second squad. We note that Central placed eleven men which is equivalent to a complete team on either the first or second squad, one man at each position.

South Side received some consolation, however, due to the fact that they were the first team able to punch over a score against the Tigers this season. This came after fine playing on the part of Benz and a touchdown pass from Lee to Parmelee. Lee made the conversion.

Central is now trying to obtain a state championship play-off with any other unbeaten Indiana team. Memorial of Evansville appears to be the only other undefeated team, but no decision concerning a game has yet been reached. Whatever happens, Tigers, we wish you lots of luck!

Assemblies Feature Sports
The Girls' and Boys' Leagues of Oakland Technical High School, Oakland, California, are planning assemblies to feature the world of sports, the assemblies coming during the noon hours.

C.C. Ends Season With One Victory

Score 12-0 Win Over Garrett; Have Two Scoreless Ties, Four Losses During Play.

Central Catholic gridders ended one of their most unsuccessful seasons with one victory, this being over the lowly Garrett Roaders by the score of 12-0. During the season they scored only 25 points to their opponents' 112.

They started the season very favorably by holding the Decatur Yellow Jackets to a scoreless tie. In the following game they again showed good defensive power against Portland, but lacked power in all the departments on the offense to again finish the game in a scoreless deadlock.

They then took a week off before meeting the powerful Tigers from Central. They left the game on the short end of the 40-0 score.

They then took on North Side's Redskins, and fell before the powerful running attack of the Northern school, but not before they had chalked up their first marker. The final score was 28-6.

The Irish next went to Howe Military Academy, where they were duly tamed by the Soldiers by the score of 19-0.

Bill Barrett's charges then invaded the Archer gridiron to meet Lundy Welborn's Green Wave. They were submerged 25-7.

The Irish then won their only victory of the season from the Garrett Roaders.

Redskins Score Five Grid Victories

Three Losses, One Tie Complete Fairly Successful Season For North Side's Football Eleven.

North Side has enjoyed a fairly successful 1935 grid season, winning five, losing three, and tying one, the tie being to Central's powerful Tigers.

They scored a total of 157 points to their opponents' 60. In their first game of the season, they lost to a powerful, veteran eleven of Corbin, Ky. They then defeated South of Lima, 27-0. A powerful Goshen aggregation stopped the Redskins 7-0. Auburn then travelled to the Northern Field to be beaten 1-7.

After beating Central Catholic 28-6, the Redskins held Central to a scoreless tie. The Redskins then suffered a letdown and were beaten by Decatur 13-12. They won the last two games on their schedule by defeating the Archers 26-7 and the Huntington Vikings 39-7.

It will be interesting to note that the Redskins have averaged 17 points per game, while their opponents have not quite averaged 7 points per game.

Three Archers Are On All-City Football Squad

Ellenwood And Ostermeyer On Journal-Gazette First Team; Benz On Second.

Bud Manth, Journal-Gazette sports editor, recently announced the Journal-Gazette All-City football team. Two of South Side's gridsters appeared in the first string, while one was listed on the second team.

Jim Ellenwood, a popular athlete of South Side, was put at left tackle. Jim has played varsity for four years, the first season playing center and tackle. In his second and third years he held the position of tackle. This year he was an end. For the past two years Jim has been placed on the All-City team.

Benz New To Varsity

The other Archer who qualified for the first string was none other than Fred Ostermeyer. Ostermeyer has been a center on the varsity for nearly four years, and has been on the second All-City team.

Harold Benz, a new backfielder on this year's varsity, broke into the second All-City team as fullback. His excellent playing in the back field this year for the Archers put a thorn in many an opponent's back.

Lineup Is Given

The complete lineup is as follows:

First Team
D. Shilts, North Side	L.E.
J. Ellenwood, South Side	L.T.
B. Mourning, Central	L.G.
F. Ostermeyer, South Side	C.
P. Bojinnoff, North Side	R.G.
J. McDonald, Central	R.T.
L. Sitko, Central	R.E.
S. Sitko, Central	Q.B.
J. Shumm, North Side	L.H.
D. Bourne, Central	R.H.
J. Carlton, Central	F.B.

Second Team
A. Barile, Central Catholic	L.E.
J. Goodman, North Side	L.T.
A. Krajewski, Central	L.G.
Cris Dixie, Central	C.
E. Derheimer, Central Catholic	R.G.
L. Alceuse, Central	R.T.
F. Kabish, Central	R.E.
D. Lieberum, North Side	Q.B.
R. Brown, Central	L.H.
R. Poorman, North Side	R.H.
H. Benz, South Side	F.B.

Lettermen Clear Seven Dollars From Emblems

The money taken from the Lettermen's Archer emblem sale was counted at the last meeting held in room 138. The stickers brought a total of seven dollars to the treasury. If anyone wants to buy stickers, he should see any of the Lettermen or go to room 138.

Boy's Arms Broken

Bob Geller Billy Kruse, and Ralph Spaide have been seen about school lately with one of their arms in a sling. Wonder if they think it is rather comfortable with their arms in the sling or do they believe that they can get out of some school work that way. Speedy recovery, boys!

Named On All-City Eleven

Jim Ellenwood

Fred Ostermeyer

Jim Ellenwood and Fred Ostermeyer were named on the Journal-Gazette's All-City first football team. Jim plays end for the Archers, but was named all-city in the tackle position because he plays this equally well. Fred has played center for three years. Harold Benz, a newcomer to the squad this year, was named fullback on the second team.

Skirts and Sports

The hockey season ended with a bang on November 6, when the Senior 2's defeated the Junior 3's 1-0. Although this game was not official, due to the insufficient number of seniors who turned out, the players were first divided evenly into two teams, one consisting of seniors and a few juniors, and the other of only juniors.

Volleyball has just started, and this season promises to be an exciting one as every team will have plenty of competition. We all wonder who will win the tournament this year.

Beware of the Ruhl twins when they start socking that volleyball around, because they mean business, especially as they are both on the same team.

Lillian Winkler, Marge Hower, Betty Rison, Marge Cartwright, Mary Jane Redding, Van Detta Clay, Margaret Dickmeyer, Vivian Hickman, Mary Anne Fark, and Jeanette Braun are among the senior volleyball players who promise to give plenty of opposition this season.

Edna Disler, Margaret Ruhl, Leona Menze, and Winnie Locker have been

Pep Meet Feature Is Talk On Football

Coach Lundy Welborn Is Speaker; Team Demonstrates Plays; Jim Kirby, '33, Leads Yell.

South Side yell leaders turned the entertainment part of the pep session held last Friday afternoon over to Coach Lundy Welborn, who talked on football and the football team which showed the school body several plays later used against Central.

After Welborn told how spiral and tumbler punts were kicked, Bud Lee, assisted by Bud Feichter, Ed Kruse and Fred Ostermeyer, demonstrated how they should be done. We agreed with the girls next to us who said that Ostermeyer, who played center, reminded them of L'il Abner Yohum.

Later all the football players came on the floor dressed in half-dressed pants, muddy sweat shirts and gym shoes. The duties of each member of the team were shown.

Jim Kirby, '33, introduced a "new" yell of his own making. It was the old Silent yell which didn't turn out to be so very silent.

Band numbers, competition yells, regular yells, and the school songs filled out the remainder of the program.

electd junior volleyball captains. Under their leadership the tournament games will be very close.

Cats, Blackhawks Football Winners

Yanks, Goons Are Defeated In Intramural Tag Ball; Archers Take Game By Forfeit Method

The intramural tag football schedule is slowly being caught up, two games having been played, and one forfeited last week.

The Archers received the forfeit from the Goons, therefore winning by the official score of 2-0.

The Cats, in a close, well-fought lightweight game, defeated the Yanks by the score of 14-6.

The heavyweight game between the Goons and the Blackhawks was rather one-sided, with the Blackhawks winning 20-0 over their opponents. The scoring in the Blackhawk-Goon game was done by Hinton, Meyers, Brown, and Piepenbrink. End sweeps proved to be too much for the Goons, thus the Blackhawks were able to take their time and were never hard pressed, as the score indicates.

The game between the Cats and the Yanks was much more interesting because the teams were equally matched. The Yanks scored the first touchdown, but the conversion for the extra point was unsuccessful. From this point on, the Cats took possession of the ball, and scored two goals. On a long pass from Miller, Staigt made the first touchdown. Late in the third quarter the second goal was made on an end sweep with Wagner carrying the ball. Proving his ability to convert for the extra points, Miller scored on both goals.

Tigers Conclude Season Undefeated

Have Record Of Nine Victories, One Scoreless Tie; Opponents Score Only Seven Points.

One of the most successful grid seasons that a Fort Wayne team has ever enjoyed was completed Saturday by the Central Tigers when they defeated the South Side Archers by a score of 27-7.

Their hopes for an unscored against season were shattered Saturday when the Archers completed the only touchdown to be scored against the Tigers. In the entire season they made 33 touchdowns against their opponents' one.

They made 30 of these touchdowns before they were scored against at all. The Tigers have nine victories and one tie to their credit. They were held to a scoreless tie by the North Side Redskins Friday, October 11.

In all their other tilts they came out far ahead of their opponents. The scores are as follows:

Central 36, Bluffton 0.
Central 6, Riley, South Bend, 0.
Central 18, Columbia City 0.
Central 26, Elkhart 0.
Central 40, Central Catholic 0.
Central 29, Decatur 0.
Central 28, Central of Lima, O., 0.
This was the best season that Central has ever had. In fact, it was the best season that any Fort Wayne team has ever enjoyed. They have not only annexed the city championship to their crown, but have a chance for the state championship.

Sportlights

Maybe Joe Louis isn't the world heavyweight champion yet, but he does hold the title of champion eater. A close friend claims that Joe eats five whole chickens with all the trimmings for one meal. The night of the Baer massacre he ate a $7 dinner of just "plain victuals" and then took a nap before getting married and topped the evening off by knocking Baer out. Sharkey says he might fight him, but that seems to be a lot of money for a one-round fight, for that's all the longer Sharkey could stay.

Each Saturday, upsets appear in the gridiron results. Everyone seems to agree that Northwestern's victory over Notre Dame tops the list. Let's hope that the Army doesn't upset the Irish. Some people believe they might.

Undefeated Minnesota rolled relentlessly on toward National and Big Ten football championships again this season as they downed Iowa's undefeated eleven. The question of who could stop Ozzi Simmons, Iowa's slippery negro fullback, was answered in this clash.

Louisiana State's eleven wrecking the Mississippi gridsters proved to be the greatest upset in the southern states. Mississippi has conquered both Army and last year's national championship holder, Alabama, so far this season.

Minnesota's gridsters have turned tables on Coach Bernie Bierman. It seems the coach often used the expression "Now when I was at Tulane—" but it's of no avail to his Gophers now for they have conquered the Tulane eleven by a 20-to-0 score.

Sportsmen of the country are of the opinion that there are only three outstanding teams left in the undefeated list. Of course there are many other undefeated teams, but they have not had hard enough schedules this season.

In the East Princeton is considered the number one eleven, for they have just gained their sixth victory of the season in crushing their ancient rivals, Harvard. The Minnesota Gophers are leading the Midwest teams. They have just won their fifteenth victory in a three-year period by defeating the powerful Iowa eleven. Good old North Carolina holds the lead way down in the South. They are untied and unbeaten so far this season.

Central Considers Post-Season Game

Central's undefeated gridsters are seriously considering playing a post-season game to further their unofficial claim upon the state football crown. At the time of this writing, nothing definite has been planned, but it is likely that the Tigers will meet Memorial of Evansville, which also possesses an undefeated eleven.

Should The United States Enter The 1936 German Olympics?

A question which is facing every sports lover in the United States at the present time is the questionable advisability of sending a team to represent our country in the 1936 Olympic games at Berlin, Germany.

It seems that the American athletes have no yearning whatsoever to face a Nazi firing squad simply because they were able to defeat Adolph Swartzenheimer or one of his comrades in the hundred yard dash. And that seems to be the popular consensus of opinion as to what will happen should one of our Yankees prove himself superior to one of Hitler's stalwart Teutons. The Jews especially are quaking in their shoes while the amiable Mr. Hitler sends out numerous reports asking why the United States should hesitate, after 39 years of participation, in entering the 1936 Olympic games.

Is Meeting Of Nations

Which brings up a pertinent question. Why shouldn't the United States compete this year just as they have done for almost a half century? These are numerous people who advocate the United States abstaining from competition in this year's games, but as yet they have advanced no logical reason to back up their contention. How would the people in the United States feel if Germany refused to enter the Olympic games here simply because our people called themselves Nazi's and paraded their entire army every day or so. True, Germany is a political hot-bed, but what connection can that possibly have with the Olympic games?

The classic which was started by the ancient Greeks is a meeting of all the nations of the world, each nation represented by its finest crop of manhood, each nation eager to prove itself real world champions in the good clean hard sports which make up the Olympic games. If 48 other nations labor under the opinion that the 1936 Olympics are fit for their young men to participate in, there is certainly no reason strong enough to prevent the United States, which has heretofore been a leader in international competition of this sort, from entering this year's edition of the Olympics.

Two Countries Undecided

The United States and South Africa are the only sections who have expressed doubts as to the advisability of entering the Olympics and all of the other nations including Germany are asking why. Outside of Italy, which has flatly refused to enter this year's Olympics, mainly because they are too busy shooting Ethiopians, the United States and South Africa stand alone. In this case there is very little honor in being original and unless some much more logical reasons are advanced, the United States Olympic team should be en route for Germany in a few months.

In the education of the youth of our country rests the foremost foundation of future prosperity; the very safety of the government itself stands upon the pedestal of an enlightened electorate.—Geo. C. Peery, Governor of Virginia.

Primitive Tribal Dance Interest Of Dance Club

Promoting a further interest in new techniques as demonstrated by modern dance is the object of the new girls' dancing club. Familiar floor patterns and fundamental movements have been put together in different combinations, which are done to the accompaniment of a drum. This gives a new and different emphasis to the rhythm.

Membership has been restricted to those who show the most adaptability to all types of dance which will be given throughout the semester.

The pattern which the members are working on at present is suggestive of ancient forms of combat.

The dancers go into battle, with shield and lance and salute their opponents. This is begun from two parallel lines, about thirty feet apart. After returning to their original position, they charge with their lances, lock their shields, and finally throw the shields aside. Charging again with their spears, they circle, and march on. After another charge, the beat of the drum is changed to dignify a change in spirit.

They go into tribal formation to have a caucus. They start marching around, and finally end triumphant in a small circle, standing tall, with arms flung above the head.

Miss Thorne To Talk To U. S. A. At Meeting

Miss Thorne, mathematics teacher, will be the speaker at the next U. S. A. meeting, Thursday, in the Greeley Room at 3:30. The subject of her talk will be "School Days in Labrador." Miss Thorne spent eight weeks of the summer in Labrador, and will illustrate her talk with pictures. The committee in charge of the meeting is Betty Burhenn, chairman; Jean Rarick, Rosella Koehler, Ethelda Koch, and Marjorie Macke.

Girls To Meet With College Representative

On November 13, a representative who will be sent from Rockford College, Rockford, Ill., will be here to talk to any girls interested in a woman's college. In this institution, certain scholarships are available. Any girl who is interested in meeting this representative and discussing the possibility of a scholarship, should leave her name with Miss Alderdice as soon as possible.

Public education is a vast co-operative enterprise of society and was established in this country of ours to safeguard and maintain the democratic ideals upon which American society was founded.—C. D. Buck, Governor of Delaware.

Senior Mothers Hear Talk Of Prof. J. Schutz

Mr. Snider Also Gives Talk; Mrs. Victor Rea Explains Aims Of P-T. Association.

Mrs. Knudson Is Chairman Of Tea

Many Committees Assist In General Arrangements; L. Bonsib Discusses '36 Tote

Prof. J. Raymond Schutz, of North Manchester College, was the principal speaker at the Senior Mothers' Tea held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the cafeteria.

Mr. Schutz's subject was "After College, What?" His objective was to set forth some of the principles that should be kept in the minds of all parents in the careful planning of their child's future after the completion of the four-years' high school course. Mr. Schutz stated that students now receive an education in high school equivalent to that which was taught in the colleges twenty to twenty-five years ago; but that now the demands are higher. A college education is of great importance in this age of competition and a parent should not feel his duty is done upon the child's completion of the high school course, Professor Schutz said.

Mr. Schutz stated that persons who can not afford the expense of board and room away at school are fortunate in having 1. U. Extension right here at their very door.

Ten Points Stressed

In helping the parents to select the most suitable college for their child Mr. Schutz listed ten points that should be kept in mind. They are: Shall it be a large or small school? liberal arts, technical, or business college? What does society want? Coeducational or non-coeducational? Location in small town or large city? Shall he make vocational choice before going to school? Shall he go to institutions having fraternities and sororities? Should he work while in college? Should the institution have any definite philosophy? Mr. Schutz concluded by showing the very great importance of the transitional period between high school and college.

Mr. Snider also gave a very interesting speech on the activities of students who do not go to college.

The Little Symphony Orchestra provided music from 2:30 to 2:45 o'clock.

Mrs. George Knudson acted as chairman for the tea. She introduced Mrs. Victor Rea, president of the Parent-Teacher Association, who told of the aims of the association.

Louis Bonsib gave a speech telling of the Totem and its value to the student.

Mrs. George Knudson, general chairman of the group, was assisted by the hospital committee, Mrs. Fredeig, chairman, Mrs. Rufus Roth, Mrs. Philip Green, and Mrs. D. A. Polhuis; and by the program committee, Mrs. H. Horn, chairman; Mrs. Marie Abbebt, and Mrs. Louis W. Bonsib.

Vegaleus Speaks To Social Science

Stresses Importance Of American Legion In National Affairs; Advocates Vets' Bonus.

The regular meeting of the Social Science Club was held in the Voorhees room last Friday evening. Mr. Vegaleus of the American Legion gave a talk on "American Education and the World War." Mr. Vegaleus has been very active in American Legion work since he is past post commander of Post No. 47, here in Fort Wayne.

As long as gold is our god there will be war," stated Mr. Vegaleus in his speech. "Wars are fought because of the tremendous profits which are received. Over 14,000 people were made millionaires overnight in the World War."

He also said that the Legion believes in an adequate national defense. During the World War, men from the United States went overseas in July, 1918, and were killed in September, because they were not prepared to fight.

In March, 1919, a caucus was held in Paris to form an organization to promote peace. However, it was at the St. Louis convention in May, 1919, when the actual constitution was drawn up. The American Legion is the largest peace-time organization of its kind in the United States. It has a charter from Congress and its principle is to foster and promote Americanism.

According to the Constitution, any man is eligible who has had an honorable discharge from the army for service during the World War.

The American Legion is very active in combating Communism, since its principles are not strictly American. Communists advocate the overthrow of institutions which keep out of war, and would injure the very guns that we use to defend ourselves.

Besides fostering Americanism, the American Legion takes an active part in community service, in the welfare of disabled veterans, in child welfare work, and decorates Flanders Field every year.

Since Mr. Vegaleus had to speak at the colored Legion Post, the business meeting was held at the conclusion of his speech.

Ruth Roaden, Inter-Club Congress representative, gave a report. Jim Sweet and his committee, which is composed of Catherine Allendorph and Bryce Minier, formed a new constitution for the club. The committee for the next meeting of December 13 is made up of Bob Storm, chairman; Thekla Leininger, and Helen Doenges.

The Safety Council shown above is directing the Safety Campaign at South Side. It is sponsoring the essay and poster contests.

Club Congress Will Sponsor Clean-up Drive

To Appeal To Students' Pride; Plans Discussed; Next Subject, Christmas.

South Side's annual clean-up campaign was the main subject of discussion at the meeting of the Inter-Club Congress Monday in room 138. Bryce Minier, newly-elected president, presided.

Instead of having the school building cleaned by students, it was decided to appeal to the pride of all students in regard to the appearance of their school and its surroundings. All representatives are to get from their clubs suggestions or slogans which will be published in The Times.

Campaign Committee Announced

Lois Wynken, chairman; Margaret Crankshaw, and Theo Schurenberg formed the committee in charge of this year's campaign.

At the last meeting it was decided that Inter-Club Congress should be organized as a regular club, which, therefore, should have officers, a constitution, and a regular time of meeting. All of these have been taken care of, formed as to who may be in need of a basket, the Inter-Club Congress suggests that the distribution be done by her, with the credit being given to the club making the donation.

Clubs To Decorate

With Christmas only about one month away, soon all clubs will be adding their bit to the decoration of South Side's two club rooms. It was suggested that if the clubs go together in decorating, the rooms would have a much better appearance. Clubs are to offer definite suggestions for this plan by the next meeting.

Meterite Initiation Comes At Potluck

Freshman Members Will Be Inducted Tuesday; Program To Include Dancing, Pantomime.

The freshmen who have entered the Meterite Club this semester will be initiated at the annual Meterite potluck, which is to be held in the cafeteria next Tuesday at 5:30 p. m. Several stunts for the freshmen have been planned for this purpose.

During the program several music and dancing selections will be given by Meterite girls. A pantomime, under the direction of Joan Bonsib will be given. In this pantomime, the name of which is "The Lighthouse Tragedy," there are seven characters.

Betty Pugh, president of the club, will serve as toastmistress.

The decoration committee for the potluck is composed of Phyllis Culver, chairman; Martha Zelt, and Anna Lou Kowalski. The general arrangements will be in charge of Margaret Ann Ruckel. The food committee is composed of Betty Lee Wilson, chairman; Betty Neely, and Margery Rapp. The program committee is as follows: Joan Bonsib, chairman; Margaret Null, and Lois Rea.

All Meterite members are urged to attend this affair.

Advanced Math Club To Meet Again Today

The second meeting of the newly-organized Advanced Math Club will be held this afternoon in room 16. Miss Adelaide Fiedler, adviser of the club, announced.

At the meeting held last Thursday evening, a rather large number of pupils interested in furthering their knowledge of algebra 3, geometry 3, and trigonometry responded.

Miss Fiedler invites any one interested in advanced mathematics to attend the meeting tonight. Plans for the semester's work will be discussed.

Students Visit Institutions

The Latin students of Mamoroneck High School, Mamoroneck, New Jersey, visited New York City in a body. They visited noted institutions.

Senior Hi-Y Club Plans Skate On November 27

The next activity of the Senior Hi-Y will be a skating party to be held on Wednesday, November 27, at Bell's skating rink. The feature attraction of the evening will be the giving away of a turkey as an attendance prize.

Tickets for the affair are twenty-five cents and can be secured from any Hi-Y member. The skaters' bus will be at the Rialto Theatre to furnish transportation for anyone desiring such accommodation. The charge for bus transportation will be ten cents.

Travel Club Takes Evening For Fun

Members Participate In Amateur Show; Only Three Get Gong; Helen Gray Is Winner.

With an amateur show headlining the evening's entertainment, the Travel Club held its annual night party, Friday evening, November 15. The party was held in the Greeley Room and lasted throughout the evening from 8 to 11 o'clock. The chairpersons of the affair were Miss Martha Pittenger, Miss Amanda Hemmer, and Miss Mabel Thorne, the club adviser.

The evening was spent in ping-pong and cards with the amateur show taking up at about 9 o'clock, followed by social dancing and refreshments. The Central-Evansville game was also tuned in from the radio in the Greeley Room. Betty Kiene, the program chairman, introduced the mistress of ceremonies for the evening's amateur show, Leona Menze.

Betty assisted in the show by holding the gong which was struck but three during the evening by Leona, who wielded the mallet. The entertainers were asked questions and responded with answers in the usual Fred Allenish manner. Marjorie Dancer started off with two songs accompanied by Marjorie Glass on the piano.

The second performer was Helen Gray, who did a tap dance. Kathryn Allendorf, as Aunt Kate, told a pleasing bed-time story to the assembly of little dears. She got the gong. Dick Miller played a selection on the piano, which was followed with the recital of a simple little poem. He managed to forget the last word and was rewarded with the gong.

Marjorie Meyer gave some good imitations of Betty Boop, Greta Garbo, and Portland. Ruth Goggin followed with a selection on the piano, a very bad selection, and also received the gong. Jacqueline Hench concluded the program with a tap dance. The prize was awarded to Helen Gray by audience applause.

Refreshments consisted of sandwiches, cake, and ice cream, and thus the evening was concluded with everyone helping in a general clean-up.

Goddess Inspires Romana Meeting

Juno, Patroness of Wedlock, Is Theme Of Latin Program; Mock Wedding Is Presented.

A Roman mock wedding was the feature of the Societas Romana meeting Thursday. The program was woven about the goddess Juno, patroness of the laws of wedlock.

Elinor White opened the program with a talk on the attributes of Juno and her influence in the world today. Billie Bichacoff, program chairman for the meeting, read the procedure of the wedding ceremony while different members of the club acted it out in pantomime. The following members took part in the play: Irene Becker, bride; Eugene Schmidt, groom; Joseph Bex, priest; Margaret Null, flute player; Robert Shmel, Donald Shafer, and Max Wagner, torch bearers; Marjorie Cartwright, mother of the bride; Virginia Greiner, maid of honor; and Rosemary Lehman Alice Karn, and Catherine Howe, attendants.

Pieces of the Roman wedding cake were served for refreshments.

Robert Shmel was elected by the club to be the regular Inter-Club Congress representative from Societas Romana.

Mr. Rothert explained the awarding of the Alpha Omicron Pi plaque to the student with the highest average in Latin for the four years. The plaque was given by the organization to the Latin department last spring.

"Seven To One" Will Be Given At Philo Meet

Potluck, Talks About New England Literature Also To Feature Next Meeting.

A review of the New England Group in American Literature, a play "Seven To One," and a potluck will be the features of the Philo Thanksgiving meeting which will be held Monday evening, November 25, in the Greeley Room.

The New England Group in American Literature will be presented by Verna Holtman, Constance Haag, and Eva Allison. An introduction to the New England Group and the literary and social movement of the period along with the life of Ralph Emerson will be given by Verna Holtman. Eva Allison will continue by telling of the influence of slavery on the literature of New England and then in addition she will give the history of the famous William L. Garrison and Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Oratories To Be Reviewed

The oratories of the period will be reviewed by Constance Haag. Because the New England Group is so very comprehensive, the rest of this unit will be continued at the first meeting in January, at which time another play will also be presented.

"Seven To One," a one-act play, will be a special feature of the Thanksgiving meeting. The students taking part in the play are Maxine Howard, Gwen Horn, Bernadette Dygert, Geneva Shearer, Selma Liff, Maxine Mariotte, Joan Kennedy, and Betty Dierker.

Those members of the Thespian Players who didn't get to take part in this play will have their chance to be in a play to be given on January 6, called "No Men Wanted." The play "Seven To One" has its setting in a college dormitory and there is plenty of humor supplied throughout the scene.

The Thespian Players will have a potluck supper and a play practice this evening in the Greeley Room at 5 o'clock. All Thespian members, whether they are in this play or not, are requested to be present.

Those who are planning to attend the meeting Monday evening and the potluck should sign up in Miss Deemaree's room some time this week. Those who attend this meeting will be sure of having a good time.

Mary Michaels, who has charge of the programs which are being made for the Philalethian members, announced that they would be ready to distribute at the December meeting. She is assisted by Selma Liff, Elizabeth Simminger, Helen Doenges, Margaret Crankshaw, Violet Garton, Thekla Leininger, and Helen Anderson. The programs are to be done in white and gold with very clever arrangements. These programs will contain among other things the yells, songs, motto, and program for the complete year.

Play To Be Feature Of Sunshine Meeting

"Thanksgiving" will be the theme of the next meeting of the Sunshine Club, which will be held in the Voorhees Room next Tuesday. The program will be under the direction of Marcella Brackmann.

The main feature of the meeting will be a play entitled "The Postmaster Dreams." Members of the cast for the play are as follows: Einar, Nancy Valentin; Axel, Norma Martin; Belgium, Triby Mueller; Denmark, Lois Hagemann; Ireland, Mary Ellen Kilpatrick; Japan, Doris Reinking; South America, Mary Garton; South Africa, Marcelle Passe; Sweden, Dorothy Tobianski, and Christmas Seal, Dorothy Ringenberg.

As a part of the program, a Thanksgiving song will be sung and games will be played.

Teacher's Father Dies

Mr. Thomas Perkins, father of Miss Perkins, French teacher at South Side, died at the home of a son in Cleveland last Sunday morning. His son is the principal of a junior high school near Cleveland. Surviving besides Miss Perkins are a son, Hugh, and a daughter, Stella. Mr. Perkins was buried at Decatur, Indiana, yesterday. The Times extends its deepest sympathy to the relatives.

Driving Rules For Auto Are Listed Below

After Students Are Familiar With Material Test To Be Presented To Find Winner

To Review Facts In Home Rooms

Information Concerning How To Drive, Qualifications For Licenses, Given.

In connection with South Side's Safety Campaign, a group of lessons on the drivers' license and the automobile has been compiled, so that students may be better acquainted with the rules and regulations.

After some time has been spent on them in the home rooms, a test will be given and the winner of this test will be awarded a valuable prize. Therefore it is suggested that everyone study and practice the following rules:

1. Who has to have operator's or chauffeur's license?
All except
a. Drivers of road roller or road machinery.
b. Drivers of farm tractor temporary on road.
c. Drivers in service of army, navy, or marine corps, when operating official motor vehicle.
d. Non residents of state when they have valid license from own state.
e. Non residents of states which have no license but require registration may operate not more than 60 days in any one year.
2. What persons shall not be licensed?
a. No operator's license to person under 16—except
(1) Under 18—application must be signed by father, mother, or guardian.
(2) Between 14 and 16 for exclusive purpose of going to and from school—except in limits of first or second class cities.
b. No chauffeur's license to person under 18.
c. Person whose license has been suspended or revoked—until time limit expires.
d. Habitual drunkard or user of narcotics or other habit-forming drugs.
e. Insane, idiot, imbecile, epileptic, or feeble-minded—until officially declared okay.
f. Physical or mental disability or disease.
3. What items are required on application for operator's license?
(See sample.)
4. What special requirement for securing license?
Poll Tax receipt.
5. Where must license be kept?
(With driver)
6. Length of licensing period.
(January 1 to December 31.)
7. Suspension of license?
a. Court reports convictions to Department of Motor Vehicles.

Mr. Flint Talks To Junior Math

Topic Of Speech Is Mathematics; Club Discusses Initiation; Christmas Party Is Planned.

Mr. Verne Flint, mathematics teacher, gave a talk on "Mathematics in the World Today," at a recent meeting of Junior Math Club. In this talk he said that mathematics is mainly historical, not being much different now from what it was hundreds of years ago.

There are two distinct branches of mathematics, he explained, the algebraic equation branch, which is a powerful instrument of analysis, and the geometric branch, which is essential in many fields such as architecture and art. Besides this, he said that a person can not get far without a knowledge of mathematics, and that a person without such knowledge can't even be a good newspaper reader.

The club was entertained by some musical selections presented by Georgiana Jane Jones, Donna Lou Fautz, Velma Laymen, and Janis Baumgartner. A game, fizz-buzz, under the direction of Richard Woehr, was also enjoyed by the club.

Several important business decisions were attended to at this meeting. Club colors of gold and black were selected. It was decided to initiate new members in the near future. The club is planning to hold a white elephant Christmas exchange. A report on the recent Inter-Club Congress meeting was given by Bernadine Shearer, the club representative.

The program committee for this week consisted of Janis Baumgartner, Beatrice Craig, Carl Goebel, and Richard Woehr.

Pebble Pups To Study Nature In Club Meets

The next meeting of the Pebble Pups Club will be held on Monday, October 25, in room 14, it was announced by Mr. Lloyd Whelan, club adviser. At a meeting of the club, held Thursday, October 7, the members decided to broaden the field of study in the club and study not only rocks and minerals but other topics of nature study as well. Among the topics to be discussed are rocks, stars and constellations, lakes and streams, state parks, and other topics under the heading of general nature.

The next meeting will feature talks on the topic for the meeting, which is to be fossils, by June Bly and Doris Rindchen. At the meeting following this the subject will be Indiana state parks.

All those students who are interested in nature are cordially invited to these meetings, which are held every other week.

Junior "Pumpkin Pow-Wow" Fete Set For Friday

Clubs, Individuals To Fill Baskets

Inter-Club Congress asks that all students who are members of clubs which are donating Thanksgiving baskets, to help in this contribution. However, if you are not a member of any club, or a member of one which is making no collection, you may bring your donation to Miss Pittenger's office from which all baskets are to be sent out.

Safety Contest Being Planned By South Side

Essays, Posters, Scrapbooks To Be Entered; Prizes Offered By Business Men.

In observance of the safety campaign there will be a poster contest. Any art student who is interested may enter the contest. In poster designing the affirmative idea is usually used, but this year the art students are resorting to the negative idea, and the theme of the contest is to depict the horrible results of careless driving.

Many students are very interested and have already started their work. They are trying to give warning by filling their posters with much horror and by portraying the hazards of speeding, racing, crowding, and all other forms of careless driving. Several students have mentioned that working on their posters has already influenced their driving and has made them think more about safe driving. Thus the purpose of making the posters is being fulfilled.

This contest for the safety drive includes three other phases: a contest of scrapbooks; one of essays; and one over the knowledge acquired in home room discussions.

Scrapbooks Part Of Contest

Anyone interested in the contest for scrapbooks should begin saving from newspapers and magazines, articles, headlines, pictures, and advertisements concerning accidents and safety work. Everyone will compete in the essay contest. In the home rooms, further details will be given, and each morning the program will be based on the study of certain phases of operating an automobile. At the completion of these programs a test will be given over the material used in the home room discussions.

The students will be given a period of about four weeks in which to complete their posters, essays, and scrapbooks.

Valuable Prizes Awarded

Mr. Snider stated that there will be very fine prizes to award the winners of each of the four contests. Included among these are a beautiful tan wool and fur laprobe valued at $32.50, which is being given by the Packard Fort Wayne, Incorporated; a battery, from the Baker-Miller Company; a flashlight, from the National Mill Supply Company; a vanity mirror, presented by the Oldsmobile Agency; a rear view mirror, given by Chester G. Schiefer; an auto compass, from the Main Auto Supply Company; five gallons of motor oil, from Bill Gouty; and from the Vettors Auto Company, a Goodrich tire.

Art Works Shown At Tea Exhibit

Stillwater, Minn., Colony Contributes To "Arts Afternoon"; Pupils Give Entertainment.

The "Arts Afternoon" which was presented Wednesday afternoon, November 13, by the Art Club, was part of the city-wide observance of National Education Week. Sonia Velkoff and Georgianne Jacobs were in charge of the arrangements for the affair, and they were assisted by Miss Erma Dochterman and the various club members.

The exhibit from the Little Art Colony of Stillwater, Minn., where Miss Dochterman studied during the past summer, was hung on trellises in the Greeley Room. This exhibit was secured through Josephine Lutz, head teacher at Stillwater and instructor in the art education department at the University of Minnesota. Water colors by Miss Lutz on display included "St. Croix Valley," "St. Croix Boat Landing," "Phlox," and "Little Farm House."

The program was announced by Sonia Velkoff. The South Side ensemble under direction of Bob Wiehe, during the afternoon. Marjorie Dancer presented a vocal solo, and Betty Kreischer played a harp solo. Ann Abbebt, representing drama, gave a clever monologue called "Renting an Apartment." Betty Rose gave an unusual classical tap dance "Poet and the Peasant."

This program was followed by a tea with Georgianne Jacobs and Elizabeth Linhart presiding at the tea table. Members who served as hostesses during the afternoon were Ann Hull, Joan Bonsib, Martha Franz, Judy Kroeff, Maxine Roth, Maxine Mariotte, Virginia Vesey, Rosemary Chappell, Mary M. Hobrock, Ellen Woods, Marie Mitchell, and Francis Craig.

The hospitality committee for the event included Joan Bonsib, Louis Bonsib, Delbert Leininger, Georgianna Martin, and Norman Miller.

Cafeteria To Be Decorated With Pumpkins, Lattices, Cornstalks, Indian Heads.

To Feature Food And Entertainment

Jerry Zehr To Be Master Of Ceremonies; Miss Miller, Mr. Whelan Are Advisers.

"Pumpkin Pow-Wow," the theme of the Junior Class banquet to be held in the school cafeteria Friday evening, November 22, at 6 o'clock, will be carried out in food, entertainment, and decorations. "If it isn't ten little Indians, it will be ten little pumpkins or more" might be a byline of this year's banquet.

The cafeteria will be decorated with cornstalks and pumpkins with lattices holding huge Indian heads, around the steam tables. Pumpkins around the lights will also help to carry out the theme. Individual favors will be walnuts gaudily decked out in a crepe paper Indian head dress with a smiling face peering out.

Decorations Carry Out Theme

Song holders will be in the form of pumpkins with the printed songs inside it. They are original verses set to some popular or well-known banquet music. Folders with a laughing Indian on the outside will be alternated at table places with one of a smiling pumpkin faced Indian also with a multi-colored headress.

Ticket sales are being carried out through home room representatives. The final date for the purchase of a ticket is tonight, and only 220 tickets may be sold. The capacity of the cafeteria is hoped to be attained. Everyone must have his ticket bought at an early date, if he expects to get a ticket for the banquet.

Jerry Zehr, the master of ceremonies, has announced an interesting program for the evening, which is expected to last till 8:30 o'clock. Speeches will be given by Miss Pittenger in the form of "Wishes from the 22nd of the Tepee." Mudgekewies, the father of the winds of heaven, in the form of Mr. Snider, will offer a bit of information.

Talks To Be Varied

Mr. Merle J. Abbebt, superintendent of schools, will speak as Getchamano. The two class speakers, Leona Menze and Vernon Miller, will represent the past and future of the present junior class. Vernon Miller will be the reader of the Totem and Leona Menze will act as give the Prophet of the Nation. Helen Gray will offer a tan dance as her contribution to the evening's performance.

Reginald Gerig and Kathleen Witter will play a two-piano number. A skit is being worked out by Maxine Rippe, Mary Louise Helms, Don Sparkman, and Charles Hart. Bob Schupurger will sing, and an original dialogue will be presented by Don Sinish. The singing between courses will be by Richard Rastetter. Sue Wallace and Eleanor White have made most of the plans and drawings for the clever decorations and have carried out a great deal of them.

Ticket Sellers Listed

Tickets may be purchased from any of the following people in home rooms: Ned Henslie and Miles Porter, study hall; John Staley, gym; Ruth Berning, room 70; John Bex, room 64; Leona Menze, room 36; Richard Dent, room 46; Alfie Kettler, room 98; James Dern, room 56; Harry Zehr, room 85; Barbara Scheele, room 28; Donald Sinish, room 80; Mildred Hoff, room 91.

More Enemies, More Ambition

A reputation is a queer thing. If you are going strong, people make allowances and help you; if you are not making progress, few pay you any attention or help you.

A sincere effort to lift yourself from a rut makes friends, but there are always those who are only outwardly friendly. Their bright and smiling faces surround you when you have something they want, but when you are no use to them, they throw subtle obstacles in your path and go their smiling way.

It takes years and years for these people to eliminate themselves from your life, for reputations are not built or lost in a day. They may think they are hindering you, but they are only hurting themselves; any smart person can turn his disadvantages into assets. Enemies may indeed be a decided asset to an ambitious person, for each unfriendly act results in redoubled ambition to offset it!

But the smart person is not hostile to others. He realizes that the only way to gain prestige is not to have any enemies at all. His friendship is genuine, not put on for exhibition purposes. It is not a means to an end; it is an end in itself. His friends do not hear reports that he is belittling them behind their backs. He is absolutely unprejudiced; he recognizes hostile people's talents and gives them credit for them.

Unless his self-appointed enemies realize the error of their ways, their reputations go through an opposite process; they lose prestige with each unfriendly act, they are rated hypocrites when they profess friendship for others, and their critique is questioned when they criticize genuinely good work.

It can only work two ways.

Safety Campaign

Congratulations are certainly due to our school administrators for the splendid effort now being put forth in the interest of safety. The safety council is serving well in its capacity and the generosity of the firms which gave donations as prizes is also very commendable. We should give all these that are worthy of it a big hand.

But, the best and only true method of showing them that we appreciate their work is by supporting the campaign. Let us not do our cheering on the sidelines; let us get into the cause of safety with might and main, as real South Siders should. The traditions of our school hold that most of the projects we have attempted were thoroughly successful. Such an important campaign as this one should be no exception.

However, the fundamental idea of a safety campaign is not especially to please officials, but for the students' own good. Never believe that when you support this campaign you are only doing your part by serving someone else. You are making the town a safer place to live in and by doing so you are naturally preserving your own personal safety.

Those who have read this paper the last four weeks know that The Times has been an ardent advocate of safety. In two of our writings, people were asked their opinions on the subject. Our object is to stimulate thought on the subject. If we are in any way successful in our efforts we will be amply repaid.

British Fleet and Elections

Is it plausible that the British fleet is in the Mediterranean Sea principally for electioneering purposes? Election time is all over now in England. The present government office holders may have used the most graphic means they could to make the situation appear to be more serious than it really is, so that the party leaders could advise the voting public not to change the government in the time of danger. It also gave Great Britain a reason to spend a huge sum of money in strengthening their sea power.

It was rumored that when the election was over the British will withdraw the fleet from the Mediterranean. If the Britains do withdraw the war ships after the election, the political party has endangered the world with an extraordinary and risky piece of campaigning. If the fleet remains, it is reasonable that Benito Mussolini and Italy will pay dearly for the African Adventure. What will England do now that the British elections are over? This question has all nations, large and small, pondering.

Carrying On

With Rosemary Chappell

"Isn't This a Lovely Day" to be sitting and thinking of something to write, and stuff. At least, the weather part is all right. Nevertheless, I am sitting and thinking, or should I say, trying to think. Going through the halls yesterday, I had the good luck to overhear some of the choice remarks made by many South Side personalities. Don't blame me. (Just took out a new insurance policy.)

The hit of this week is aimed at Janet Fisher. It seems she has quite a habit of day-dreaming (it's being done) in one of her classes on Monday mornings. But then, Janet, don't forget that men are like street cars, and here's always another one coming along. (Who was the famous person who invented this quotation? Only three guesses.)

Some popular questions are: Why does Betty Wolf always know so many secrets which she won't divulge? ... What makes Marjory Turner so conceited? ... Who is this boy from Chicago who gets all of Sybil Knudson's fan mail? ... Is Dorothy Crabbill the attraction for Bill Wilson at the Totem office during the fifth period? ... Why are all North Side boys so stuck up? ... Did Max Roth really stop going steady with "Bugs" Jurgensen? ... What happened to Phil Green and Gerry Getz? ... Is Fred Eakin as cute as they say he is? ... Does Dick Busch like to dance the rumba with Marvel Maxwell (a Centralite)? ... Why is Bob Harfuff always asking questions about Mary Benninghoff? ... Isn't Martha Zelt 'larling'? ... Who's the boy Dorothy Golden has been seen with lately? ... Is Betty Wainwright coming home from college? ... Does Irene Marshall make a habit of trading dates? ... Where does Polly Borton hail from, and where have we seen her before? ... Well, enough is enough, sez I.

How about Virginia Vesey for official timekeeper? It seems that she kept track of all the weeks, days, hours, minutes, and seconds until J. D. (the last name is Sharp) came up from Peru to see her. We don't want to seem too curious, Virginia, but how many seconds is it until his next visit—and what happened to Skippy Phillips?

Have you ever heard the tale of the good-looking boys from Chicago? Just ask Gwen Horn and Betty Wolf about them. Betty even rated a picture. Well, that's what comes from publicity. (Times adv.)

That big, bad man, Junior Ballweg, has been pestering her girls again. But why pick on Julia Crabbill, Junior? My suggestion is that you join me and become a hermit. Mary Shaffer's theme song is, "No Strings and No Connections," but she recently was seen with Bud Fairweather. Great going, Mary, but what became of Bernard?

Louis Bonsib seems to attract the girls from North Side. Now I know why they come to our tea dances. Congratulations, Louis, or do you think so?

I vowed not to mention Beanie Dyer's name, but you just can't stay out of print, can you, Beanie? Sure, I think Johnny Dolan is swell, but George Perkins isn't so bad, either. And those Purdue dances seem to be quite the stuff... Max Rippe and Don are still hitting it off. Keep it up, kids! ... Did you all know that Roseanne Certia is now going steady with Herb Kramer? Well, she is, anyway... Bonnie Craig certainly has a strange effect on Bud Schrom in chemistry class... At a recent North Side dance, Harriett Yapp was reported to have been getting along okay with Stan (Romeo) Needham... Why does Jean Creighton address all her letters to Purdue? It couldn't be Brower, could it?... Is Anita Catlett still going with Junior Chidester?... Why is Kenny Scott always asking questions about Maria Haven and Mary Ellen Woods?... Who was the boy Helen Doenges was with at the Philo dance?... Where did Betty Jo Wilkinson get her artificial finger nails?... What's happened to Mary Jane Waggoner and Catherine House? Haven't seen them for a long time.

Do you remember when Alice Karn and Delbert Dickmeyer were always seen together? Now, Alice seems to be interested in the Y. M. C. A. camp, and Delbert directs most of his attention to Central... One of the nicest girls I know—Marie Mitchell... Jean Bollman and Bud Mahurin, do you remember that flat tire near Pretty Lake?... Did you all know that Dick North is back in town? Ask Ruth Stoner for the details... Peggy Kilpatrick and Billy Korte are still getting around... Didn't Ruth Adler look cute at the assembly? Why, shore!... Hazel Kuttler is occupying most of Bob Gargett's time at the present moment... Ginny Gross and Dick Hobson are still getting along swell. Let's see, how long has it been?... How does Sue Wallace make all those cute little doggies?... What was Barbara Arney got to be so conceited about?... A cute little girl—Barbara Noble... Leona Menze really should get a medal for her clever speeches in public-speaking class.

When Bill Shakespeare's play fails, it's probably because a certain line is weak.

"Life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Too bad we're not all good sprinters.

Nowadays it's quite different than the days of our fathers. Imagine a father telling his son he could have the buggy for the night if he would buy the feed for the horses.

Shirley Temple's earning power is about as high as that of the president. We wonder if they would like to swap jobs.

William Randolph Hearst, whose annual income is estimated at about four million dollars, is leaving California because the income tax collectors only leave him a million or so a year. Poor fellow.

STUDY vs. SLUMBER—We once heard a senior lass say that she studied in bed until 3 a. m. with the radio going each night.

Perhaps it's because that's the only time of day when there's a minimum of noise. In fact, the quiet may have been so disconcerting that she had to turn on the radio to make it sound natural.

There are those who play five musical instruments and imitate Zazu Pitts all at one time. Some infant prodigies can divide 18.957 by 197.384 and bring it out to the fifth point in their heads.

But we are not an infant prodigy. Our concentration is limited to pursuing some very excellent dreams while our mamma all but pours water on us in the morning.

It isn't will power; it's won't power.

SPEECHLESS—A little silence now and then can accomplish astounding things. It has been said that the government elected in Alberta which pledged itself to put into effect a brand new untried scheme was elected without its sponsors saying anything about it. Future Art Will Show Amount Of Creative Power Possessed

WHAT WILL OUR STYLE BE?
By Erma Dochterman

Throughout its whole development, art has been an expression of contemporary life and points of view. The art expression of any period is "the Modern Art" of that period, born out of the truth, feelings, and emotions of the times. It is an expression of experience.

The Greek style as we know it, grew as the Greeks built. It was their modern art. The Gothic style, through its whole development, expressed in its form even the slightest gradations of contemporary life and thought.

Today we are living our modern life and it is not logical that "our modern style" should express the characteristics of "our" times? We have as yet no modern style, but we have some very strong tendencies toward a "style." A style always has a fundamental principle, around and within which, it develops. In our "American Art" today simplicity seems to be characteristic. Directness, "clean cutness" and vitality in these tendencies, have been gleaned from the machine of this age.

Today's art not only satisfies our craving for beauty but answers our present requirement for a "functional" art. The development of the "streamline" has been greatly influenced by economic necessity. Mr. Egmont Arnes, industrial designer, stated recently that a new and living art, as important as any of the past, is unfolding before our eyes. He stated that the modern dirigible is as truly expressive of beauty as the architecture of the Greeks. The importance of art is now recognized as an element in the life of our own time and our country. It is a living vital force.

There has been a great modification in the attitude toward art in the last decade. The American people are now "art conscious." They demand beauty as a permanent element in the things they buy and use. Manufacturers are spending vast sums of money in re-designing their products to meet the demand for beauty of line and color. Similar development is seen in the new design in architecture, furniture, textiles, glass, and even printing.

Archers Complete 1935 Grid Season With Fair Success

Chalk Up Five Wins, One Tie Three Losses

South Side '35 Eleven Has Poor Year, Lacking Veteran, Capable Material.

Green Loses Title After Three Years

Forfeit City Series Crown To North Side-Central, But Score On Tigers.

Handicapped by inexperience and sadly lacking in capable material, South Side's gridriders have just completed their 1935 season. Behind them lies a record of five victories, three losses, and a tie. Thus South Side completes one of the poorer records in the history of the school.

Attempting to gain the city crown for the fourth successive year, the Green team won its first city contest, against Central Catholic, only to go down in their other city games against North Side and Central. This is probably the worst record any Archer grid team has ever had in city competition.

Games Are Described.

In contests other than in the city series the Green won four, lost one, and tied one. For the whole season, they scored a grand total of 138 points against their opponents' 91. Twice the Kelly Klads were held scoreless; three times they shut out their opponents.

In the Archers' opening game of the season against the Polar Bears of Toledo, they showed great deal of defensive strength by holding Woodward to a scoreless tie. The Archers gained revenge in some measure for the 27-0 defeat they suffered last year at the hands of the Polar Bears.

In their first home game of the season the Archers won a decisive victory over the Buckeyes of Van Wert with the final score reading 26-0. In this game the Archers showed a very strong offensive which was not expected by the crowd.

Next were the Maroons from Mishawaka who seemed to be too strong for the South Side Archers, the final score reading Mishawaka 18, South Side 0. The Archers relied almost wholly on a passing attack which did not materialize. The Maroons relied upon a strong line and an alert backfield.

In their game with Peru, the Archers passed their way to victory over the Tigers coming out on the long end of a 13-6 score. The Archers' passing attack was working almost to perfection.

Lose City Title

The next game was with Central Catholic, which was the first city series game in the Archers' season. South Side successfully defeated the Central Catholic team by a score of 25-7. This was the Archers' first step towards the city series title.

South Side's hopes to gain the city series title were shattered in their game with North Side when they went down in defeat against the powerful Redskins by a score of 26-7. At the half the Archers were leading by a score of 7-6 but the Redskins came back in the last half to win the game by making three touchdowns and completing two extra points.

The Archers in their next game of the season defeated the Columbia City eleven by a score of 34-7. The Archers allowed the Eagles to score only once and this was when Coach Lundy Welborn was giving the reserves some experience.

The Archers' next game of the season was with the undefeated Central Tigers. The Archers held the Tigers in the first half with the score 7-7. But in the second half the determined Tigers came back to score three touchdowns making the final score Central 27, South Side 7. The Archers had one consolation: they were the only team up to this time to score on the powerful Central Tigers.

The Archers finished their football season by defeating the undefeated Cadets of Howe Academy by a score of 24-0.

In Season's Last Grid Game South Side Humbles Howe

In the final game of the grid season last Saturday South Side had practically no trouble in defeating Howe Military Academy on their own field by the score of 24-0.

The Archers, counting on passes for most of their ground gaining during the season, switched to running plays and made them click for one touchdown in the first quarter, two in the third period, and one in the final quarter.

The first touchdown came early in the game after Howe punted the ball practically straight up and South Side recovered on their opponents' 3-yard stripe. On the first play, Ellenwood swept around left end for the first score.

The second quarter was fought on fairly even terms, with South Side gaining the most yards from scrimmage but being unable to score when deep in enemy territory.

The Archers found their speed and form early in the third period, and on power plays took the ball down to the 4-yard line, where Feichter went across on a reverse from Parmelee. Soon after this, Feichter broke loose from the 50-yard line and with good blocking ran through the entire Howe team for a touchdown. It looked like another touchdown in this quarter, when Ellenwood broke loose on an end-around for a 50-yard gain. However, the Howe team held staunch, and did not let the Archers get this goal.

Late in the last quarter, Hosier shook loose all tacklers and ran 23 yards for a touchdown. The Archers were due for another touchdown on the 8-yard line when the final gun went off.

The three placekicks for extra points by Lee were unsuccessful. The attempted pass from Parmelee to Harrison was also a failure.

Central To Open Net Season Friday

Tiger Basketballists To Take On Newcastle Five In Initial Tilt; Close Game Expected.

Fort Wayne scholastic basketball will get underway tomorrow evening when Central's fighting Tigers meet a veteran Newcastle five in a game that promises to be a thriller from start to finish.

Although Central will be without the services of Lyle Neat, Dick Warfield, Bob Altekrose, and other stars of last year, many varsity players from last year are back and signs point to a favorable season.

Last year Newcastle invaded the Central gym and were turned back after a very tough battle by the score of 31-27, but the game this year shows signs of being even closer.

Coach Murray Mendenhall will put on the floor a veteran five who have had very little practice this year due to the length of the football season, but there have been tough scrimmages and other practice in the last week which were made very strenuous to whip the team into shape for the opening clash.

Senior-Underclassmen Grid Game Postponed

The football game tentatively scheduled to be played between the seniors on the football team and underclassmen has been postponed.

Coach Lundy Welborn, who has been coaching the underclassmen while the seniors were idle, had taught his understudies the double wing back formation to use against the seniors. He did not hesitate in stating that if the game had been played, the seniors would have taken the beating of their life.

Handball Games Show Progress

Light, Heavyweight Leagues Play During Past Week; Many Winners Are Named.

Handball has been progressing rapidly during the past week. The lightweight league has been moving along rapidly after having gotten under way to a slow start. In the above-mentioned league, Bassinet defeated A. Ferguson, 15-8, 15-4. In the next round, Bassinet could not cope with F. Knight, as the latter won 15-1, 15-12. K. Erne then fell before Rid-nath by the lopsided scores of 15-1, 15-4. G. Cassidy then shellacked Burnside, 15-0, 15-0. Kolkman, after a hard battle, defeated R. Ferguson, 15-14, 11-15, 15-4. In the middleweight league, Kutsh was defeated by Botz 15-1, 15-7. Trulock then vanquished Elliott, 15-7, 14-15, 15-8. Orr then fell before Melchi, 15-6, 4-15, 15-6. Helmsing was defeated by Nussbaum in the second round of play. Vogelsang also defeated Heckman in the second by the lopsided scores of 15-0, 15-0.

The heavyweight division started off with Kelsow whitewashing Dammeyer by the scores of 15-0, 15-1. A hard-fought game was finally won by J. Allen who defeated V. Miller, 15-12, 15-14. R. Craig had little trouble in disposing of J. Kreider by the scores, 15-4, 15-4. Jackson then won over Racine, 15-8, 15-6. Steiner and McAllister then fought very hard with the victor finally being McAllister, 15-10, 13-15, 15-8. Harold Roberts had little trouble in winning over Edwards, 15-0, 15-1.

Archers Named Title Winners In Tag Football

Defeat Chumps 6-0 In Thrilling Intramural Battle; Lauer Scores On Pass.

In the championship game of the intramural football season, the Archers were crowned champs by defeating the Chumps by a score of 6-0.

In the first five minutes of play, the initial and only scoring was done. This came on a pass from Close to Lauer on the 50-yard line. Evading all runners he scored the touchdown. The attempt at conversion after the touchdown was not successful.

The Archers then kicked off to the Chumps, and the Chumps ran the ball back to the 40-yard line. After two unsuccessful power plays Voight tossed a pass which was intercepted by Stalter on the Archers' 35-yard line.

On the first play, Brown took a lateral from Close, ran around the right end for a gain of 15 yards. The next two power plays proved unsuccessful so Luyben punted the ball out of bounds on the Chump's 20-yard line.

After this play, the Chumps began clicking. In three plays they brought the ball to their own 45-yard line.

The Chumps kicked off to the Archers after the half, Stalter receiving the ball and running it back to the 35-yard line. However, one of his own men had clipped on the play and the ball went back to the 20-yard line. On the next play, Jones took a pass from Close on the 30-yard line, and ran to the 40-yard line before he was held by Voight of the Chumps. This caused a 15-yard penalty to be awarded the Archers, thus bringing the ball down on the Chump's 45-yard line. Close tried another pass to Jones; the pass was intercepted by Voight on his own 35-yard line. Voight then tried two passes which were both incomplete. On the fourth down with two minutes to play, Voight completed a pass to Mertens who was tagged on the Archers' 40-yard line. A pass which would have been complete to Lepper on the goal-line, was knocked down by Stalter, Brown, and Close as the game ended.

Fresh Girls' Volleyball Teams In First Games

Freshman teams 1, 4, and 5, led by Virginia Menze, Dorothy Bloemker, and Marjorie Wallace respectively, successfully inaugurated the G. A. A. freshman volleyball season by winning the first games of the series.

Virginia Menze led her team 1 to a 37-to-23 victory over team 3, led by Norma Martin. Dorothy Bloemker led her team 4 to a closely contested victory over team 6, led by Gwen Roberts. The end of the game saw team 4 on the long end of a 17-to-24 score. At 4 o'clock on the same day, a very decisive victory was gained when Marjorie Wallace's team 5 defeated Virginia Porter's team 2, 49 to 20.

Memorial was just too tough. In beating the Tigers of Central they proved themselves to be the strongest team in the state. They had fast, hard-driving backs who couldn't be stopped. The Bengals battled their hearts out as true Tigers but to no avail. Tony Stansky, Central diminutive halfback, provided the feature of the game when he caught Steve Sitko's pass which was thrown from Central's goal line and raced to Memorial's 24-yard stripe before being thrown. Memorial in beating Central held intact their reputation of not having lost a game since being downed by Clinton in 1933.

We wish to compliment the record of our 1935 grid warriors. The team was a combination of players that had never before this year played together. They met defeat by the hands of Central, Mishawaka and North Side but defeated the strong Peru team, Columbia City, Central Catholic, Howe, and Van Wert. They also played to a scoreless tie with Woodward of Toledo, Ohio. This was almost a more successful season than the dope sheets could have possibly predicted. More power to you, Archers!

Many Teams Are In Boys' Volleyball

Twenty-Seven Entrants In Popular Intramural Sport; More Expected To Sign Up Soon.

"If any more teams enter this tournament a new gymnasium will have to be built," stated Mr. Louis Briner, when he announced that twenty-seven teams have so far signed up for the intramural volleyball tournament. With still more entrants expected, volleyball will be one of the outstanding intramural sports of the year.

With the large number of teams making progress slow, only eight contests had been played up to November 20. Two out of three games are played to decide the winning team in each contest.

Game scores are as follows:
Bombs over Chumps ... 15-11 15-8
Spartans over Slugs ... 15-6 15-3
Cardinals over R'kyd's ... 15-5 15-12
Never Wins over Stooges ... 15-11 15-11

Students Are Told How To Further Peace

The Rev. C. Houser Speaks To So-Si-Y On Futility Of War; Charity Is Planned.

"If you, as the youth of today, do not kill war, war is sure to kill you sooner or later." In this manner the Rev. Charles Houser, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church, summed up his talk and discussion on world peace and the projects which further it at the meeting of So-Si-Y held on Tuesday evening in the Greeley Room. The theme of the gathering was "Crossroads of the World."

In the course of his talk the Rev. Mr. Houser pointed out some important statistics which show how appalling wars are. The figures were of the World War debt, which amounted to three hundred fifty billions of dollars.

Students Can Help

"With this money," said Mr. Houser, "one could buy every family in France, Belgium, Germany, Italy, Spain, Russia, England, and the Scandinavian countries a five-acre plot of land, a two thousand five hundred dollar home, and furniture for the home amounting to the total of fifteen hundred dollars. In addition to this use, one could equip every city in all the important European countries with a library, a university, a more complete elementary school system and a nursing staff to further the health of the population."

Several suggestions as to how girls and boys of high school ages can help to further the cause of peace were included in the talk. They were: "Make the attitude toward peace felt by registering it so that it will be perfectly clear to the government of our country and other countries; emphasize the value of peace that make for peace and call down all the forces that in any way make for war; and finally, talk peace to others to create peace in the minds of all."

Mary Michaels was chairman of the meeting. Her committee members were Helen Anderson, Marjorie Dancer, Betty Tuerschman, Dorothy De Haven, Mary Ellen Strunk, Mary Anne Park, and Ruth Rose.

During the business meeting, it was announced that the Y. W. C. A. activities council is planning a dance to be held on January 16 at the "Y". Further announcements as to the arrangements will be made later. A new plan for distributing the official Girl Reserve ring was also announced by Verna Holtman, vice-president. A "Ring Circle," to meet on the second Monday of each month for the next five months will be open to attendance for all girls who are interested and willing to work for their rings. Requirements for receipt of the ring is to attain a senior classification in high school, regular attendance at the Ring Circle, and activity in the Girl Reserves chapter to which one belongs.

The So-Si-Y Thanksgiving baskets, which this year are in charge of Ruth Rietz, service chairman, will be filled during the remainder of this week and the beginning of next. Girls are asked to bring their contributions to room 6 not later than next Tuesday morning.

Symphony Orchestra To Play On Sunday

The Fort Wayne Civic Symphony Orchestra, which will give four concerts during the season, will present its first one Sunday at Concordia College at 4:30 o'clock. The other three will be held January 19, March 15, and May 3.

The members of the orchestra consist of pupils from all three high schools who are in their own school orchestra or band. South Side will be represented by Miriam Lickert and Reginald Gerig.

Miss Eleanor Smeltzley is sponsoring this project at South Side. Tickets may be purchased in room 6 or from her other helpers, Miriam Lickert and Reginald Gerig. The tickets for adults are $1.25 and for students 75 cents. Miss Smeltzley hopes that many members of South Side and their friends will attend these concerts.

Many To Attend Scribes' Potluck

About Seventy-Five Expected; Next General Manager Of The Times To Be Announced.

South Side Times staff members will hold their semi-annual potluck, Monday, November 25, in the cafeteria. It will be a very gala affair with about seventy-five in attendance.

The main business of the meeting will be the announcement of the general manager of The South Side Times to succeed Bryce Minier after Thanksgiving.

The program committee is comprised of Gwen Horn, chairman; Louis Donsib, and Lois Wyneke. The purchase of food is in charge of Helen Kelsey, as chairman; Betty Wolf, and Jeorgianna Martin. They will obtain potato chips, Coca-Cola, cream puffs, and ice-cream. Ann Abbett and Joanne Smith have charge of the menu.

The menu will consist of baked beans, upside down cake, potato salad, fruit salad, escalloped potatoes, meat loaf, pickles and olives, and sandwiches.

The ever-needed clean-up committee is in charge of Miss Rowena Harvey. She will be assisted by Mildred Feolinger, Jim Sweet, John Bex, Bryce Minier, June Haeger, and Ruth Garrison.

Bob Storm, Myron Jones, Joan Bonib, Martha Zell, and Marjorie Turner will be in charge of the arrangements. Dancing will be held after the potluck with the school dance orchestra furnishing the music. The orchestra will be guests at the potluck.

French Club To Hear Talks About Bordeaux

Bordeaux, one of the principal seaports of France, will be the topic of discussion for the program of the French Club meeting to be held today in the Voorhees Room.

Anna Bremer and Marion McAtee will speak on the various industries, customs, fashions, foods and other things in connection with the city. Reports from the various committee chairmen for the skating party will also be given during the business meeting.

Plan Citizenship Week
The students of Hyde Park High School, Chicago, Illinois, will participate in Hyde Park Week, sponsored by the student government. Citizenship pins will be sold and many different assemblies will be held. The money from the week's program will be used to buy school necessities.

Promissory Notes Due
All promissory notes on the Times were due last Friday, although there are still many notes that are not yet paid. All students who owe this money are urged to pay it as soon as they possibly can.

Mr. Laney To Speak Before Leaders' Club

Mr. Loy Laney, public speaking teacher at North Side High School, will speak at a Thanksgiving program to be given at the Folsom Leaders' Club meeting next Sunday evening.

A Bible exhibit, sponsored by this organization, was so successful last Sunday that it is planned to repeat it next Sunday morning in the church lobby.

All high school young people are cordially invited to attend the meetings of this club, which are held each Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock at Plymouth Hall. The meetings are comprised of a social half hour followed by a program at 7 o'clock. New members are especially welcome.

Club Hears Talk On Helen Keller

The Wo-Ho-Ma Club met Thursday evening, November 14, in the Greeley Room. At this meeting, it was decided that the club should become a part of the state organization. Ruth Morris, Wo-Ho-Ma's Inter-Club Congress representative gave a report. An interesting discussion of the life of Helen Keller was given by Audrey Jeffries. Miss Rehorth has consented to teach the members of the club Italian hemstitching.

Two Girls Win Way Into The 1500 Club

Betty Pugh and Leona Menze were introduced as the two newest members of 1500 Club for work on the Times staff. Betty and Leona both received all their points by simply writing a great many stories. Betty is a sophomore and has stuck mainly to news stories and covers.

Leona is a junior and has piled up her points by feature and news writing. Both are active in other extra-curricular activities.

Injury To Youth Shows Need Of More Careful Car Driving

Waldemar Fortreide, a South Side sophomore, is now in the Lutheran Hospital with a fractured leg as a result of careless driving. Junior, as he is more commonly known, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fortreide, who reside at 1113 Cottage Avenue.

Sunday evening, at 9:30 o'clock, a crash was heard; and, on investigation, I saw a human body hurtling through the air. It landed in the direct path of an on-coming street car on Broadway. The conductor saw the body just in time to stop the car three feet from it.

Two men picked the body up and carried it to a neighboring lawn where the housewife quickly covered the person with blankets. Rushing out of the house, I went next door, called the ambulance, and went over to see if any help was needed.

A young boy lay there in blankets in a great deal of pain. His face was skinned and bruised. Bending down, I took his trembling hands; and calmly talking to him, asked if he felt pain. "My leg and face hurt terribly," he said, and lay very quiet until the ambulance came. He calmly gave his name and address to one of the policemen and then was taken to the Lutheran Hospital.

I went to his home just around the corner where his parents had already been told of the accident. His mother

Archer Statuettes Again Will Be Sold

Archer statuettes will be sold again this year in Room 61. These make an attractive gift of any kind, especially a Christ-mas gift. Every student should have one, for they are the em-blems of South Side. In several weeks they will be exhibited in one of the show cases in the front hall. They are priced reasonably at fifty cents.

P-T.A. Sponsors Band Concert Next Tuesday

Basketball Boys Also Will Show "Stuff"; Five Cent Fee For Welfare Work.

The Parent-Teacher Association is sponsoring a band concert which is to be held Tuesday evening, December 3, in the gymnasium. There will also be a basketball game between two teams made up of all boys who have gone out for the game. It will give the public an opportunity to view our school team and to meet our new coach, Fred Fiddle.

A fee of five cents will be charged and no children will be admitted un-less they are accompanied by their parents. The funds which are made will be used for welfare work in this school.

All are urged to attend this unusual program as it will prove to be very in-teresting to both lovers of music and sport.

Teacher Speaks On German Folk Songs

Alma Buechner Gives Speech To German Club; Members Will Give Food For Thanksgiving.

Dressed in a costume of Germany, Miss Alma Buechner, a music teacher in Fort Wayne, gave an unusually in-teresting talk about German folk songs before the German Club Wednesday, November 20. She was introduced to the club by June Haeger.

In her talk, Miss Buechner stated that there are three types of folk songs. First, there is the song whose author and composer are unknown, but which has been handed down from parents to children and so was kept alive. Then there is another type, the popular song; and the third type is what is really an art song but which people have liked so well that it is regarded as a folk song.

Miss Buechner sang and explained five songs, which are: a dance song which comes from a southern province of Germany, which was sung in dia-lect; a cradle song, an example of a popular song; "Hilde Roslein," writ-ten by Goethe and composed by Schu-ber; "The Spinning Song," a song of the eighteenth century; and "Hans und Liese," which is a true folk song.

Verna Holtman, Inter-Club Con-gress representative, gave a report of the last meeting of the Congress and stated that any food to be donated for Thanksgiving baskets should be taken to Miss Pittenger.

At the next meeting, which will be held December 4, a Christmas film will be shown.

S. P. C. To Hold Meeting In Greeley Room Dec. 6

Student Players will hold their De-cember meeting on December 6, in the Greeley Room at 3:20 o'clock. An interesting program, with Christmas as its theme, has been planned.

The committee in charge of the program is: Cliff Schorn, chairman; John Edwards, Emily Lepper, Dick Helm, Sally Rea, and Ruth Rose.

Posters Teach Safety Lessons

Pupils Make Contribution For Safety Week Contest; Auto Accidents Are Featured Topic.

Safety Week has brought forth much work from the various students. The bulletin board in the front hall is the scene of many interesting posters. "What Drivers Were Doing When Accidents Happened," made by Maxine Morrison, is one of the many. Making right and left turns, going straight ahead, stopping, parking, and stopped in traffic are among those shown.

"Manner of Collision in Fort Wayne" is also another poster. This was made by P. Shorb. Angles, head-on, rear end, backed into, side swiped, and banked into are among those list-ed. The sex drivers is also listed on one of the posters. The male sex leads with 360 accidents and the female sex are the winners with 41 accidents. Dorothy Ellenwood was the maker of this poster.

"Ages of People Killed in Acci-dents" was made by Mildred Franz. The age from 0-4 has the least while 25-64 is in the lead. Robert Reinks-myer has made a poster showing at what time the accidents occurred. Aletha Davis also made one of this type.

"Type of Motor Vehicle in Acci-dents" was made by Grace Kellar. Passenger cars lead; and they are fol-lowed by trucks, taxis, busses, and motorcycles. Maurice Cornell made a poster showing that forty accidents occurred from trucks and that one was fatal. Ten accidents occurred from taxis, but there were no deaths. Motorcycles caused two accidents and no deaths. Buses were the cause of one accident with no deaths.

The number of Fort Wayne people injured by automobiles in 1935 from January to October is also featured. Collisions with motor vehicles, with trains, with electric cars, with bi-cycles, and with fixed objects were among those listed. These were acci-dents in which the driver was to blame.

Public Library's Book Exhibition Date Is Set

The dates for the annual display of Juvenile books have been announced as November 17 to December 20. The display is being held in the Children's Department of the Public Library. There are many interesting books on exhibition, and in addition, there are eight book scenes being arranged by junior high schools and a Parade of Book Characters by all the public and parochial schools. Other organizations that work with children will also give contributions. Parents, teachers, and children are cordially invited to attend. Teachers planning to take whole classes should make their reservations soon.

New General Manager

Ann Abbott, outstanding journalist of the class of 1936, has been appointed to the position of general manager for a period of six weeks. Ann has held almost every position on the editorial side of the Times, and she also is the senior editor of the Totem.

Safety Project Covers Tests And Essays

Mr. Null In Charge Of Essay Contest; Home Rooms Are Issued Third Safety Tests.

Art Students Are Designing Posters

Series Of Assemblies Are Being Held; Ruth Adler Is Head Of Arrangements

The third in a series of safety tests was issued this week for study in the home rooms in preparation for the safety test which will cover everything pertaining to safe driving and walk-ing material. Mr. Benjamin Null, head of the English department, is in general charge of the essay contests.

No reports from the entrants of safety scrapbooks have been obtained, but the number of contestants is ex-pected to be large, according to Miss Dorothy Alderdice, office clerk. The office staff is in charge of that contest.

Many advanced and elementary art students have begun the work on their safety posters, which will portray in graphic and pictorial form the hor-rors of speeding, crowding, and gen-eral carelessness in driving. Miss Erma Dochterman and Miss Mary Helen Ley, art teachers, are directing the poster work.

Another in the series of the four safety assemblies, which are being planned by the school's safety council, will probably be held next Wednesday morning. Ruth Adler, head of the council, is in charge of the arrange-ments.

One new prize has been added to the award list by the Chevrolet Agencies of Fort Wayne. The prize is a safety spotlight. The other prizes and their donors are a lap robe to be given by the Packard Fort Wayne, Incorporated, a battery from the Baker-Miller Ford Agency; a flashlight from the National Mill Supply Company; a vanity mirror donated by the Oldsmobile Agency; a rear view mirror pre-sented by Chester G. Schriefer; an auto compass from the Main Auto Supply Company; a five-gallon can of oil from the Bill Gouty; and a Goodrich tire donated by the Vetter Auto Company.

R. Nelson Snider Is Speaker To Travel

Principal To Talk On Forming Good Club Program; Mem-bers To Discuss Seattle, Wash.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider will be the main speaker for the Travel Club pro-gram, Wednesday afternoon. The route for the Travelers is really to Seattle, Washington, and at this stop, Mr. Snider steps in and tells them how to form a good club program. The cancellation of the last Travel Club program because of an error in dates, will be made up at a future time.

The stop at Seattle, Washington, will be emphasized by refreshments suitable to the place. Lorraine Meyer, a committee member, is in charge of the refreshments. The whole program is in charge of Eliza Bess Lucas and the committee helping her is Anna Scholper, Walter Prange, Beth Ellen Chadwick, and Betty Rison.

The committee in charge of the Thanksgiving baskets is going to de-liver them after the program. The committee includes Harriet Basford, chairman, Mary K. Smith, and Mar-jorie Dancer. Miss Mabel Thorne, club adviser, will also help.

Miss Smeltzly Speaks On Russia To Sorority

"My Impression of Russia" was the subject of Miss Eleanor Smeltzly's talk given at a recent meeting of the Associate Chapter of the Tri Kappa Sorority at the home of Mrs. Allan McMahon, 1157 Oakdale Drive.

Miss Smeltzly's talk was based al-most entirely upon the education and economic conditions of Russia during the last few years. She exhibited her stamps, coins, jewelry, newspapers, and the Russian flag.

X, Y, Z Solved By Organizing Math Wizards

Advanced Work In Mathe-matics To Form Purpose Of Newest Local Club.

Adelaide Fiedler Is Group Adviser

Contests To Be Feature Of Meetings; Three Teams Will Be Formed Soon.

Mathematical teams were formed at vember 22 in Miss Adelaide Fiedler's room, and a new organization is ad-ded to the list of others at South Side. The X, Y, Z's is the name which may be decided upon by this new group. The different kinds of problems to be used in the contest.

This new organization was formed for the purpose of providing review and drill in advanced work in algebra three and four for such students who intend to continue their work in the field of mathematics.

The topics for review at the various meetings will be selected by the teacher in charge and announced pre-vious to the meeting so that there will be plenty of time for review for those who so desire. At each meeting there will be a discussion of and a drill on each different time of problems pre-vious to each contest.

Membership Is Limited
Contest teams have been decided upon as the form of organization in order to bring speed and accuracy into the drill. There will be three definite teams formed at the next meeting which will be on Thursday, December 5. Each team will be com-posed of one captain and not more than five other members. Thus the group membership is limited to eighteen.

The captain of each team will be selected upon the basis of scholarship, leadership, regularity of attendance, and fair-mindedness. These selections will most probably be made at the next meeting. Each captain shall in turn select the members of his team.

In the contest itself not more than three members of each team shall take their places at the board at the same time. As soon as the student has fin-ished his problem he will take his seat. Time will be called as soon as the fourth student is seated. The score will then be first, seven points; second, five points; third, three points; and fourth, one point. On condition of two teams the score will be five, three, and one.

Constitution To Be Formed
These scores for each member as well as the team score will be kept by the captain and the teacher.

All drill work will be such as has (Continued on page 6)

Quill and Scroll Winners Named

JoAnne Smith, Ruth Garrison, And Jim Sweet Awarded First Places In South Side Contest.

The South Side entries for the group Quill and Scroll contest have been decided, and these representa-tive entries are to be sent to partici-pating in national competition. Any-one who succeeds in winning prizes in this contest will receive national recognition.

Jo Anne Smith, who has been a very active member about school and on the school paper ever since she first en-tered South Side, received first place in copy editing and will also be entered for editorials. She began as a report-er, then graduated year by year to mailing manager, editorial writer, as-sistant copy editor, copy editor, and managing editor.

Ruth Garrison, who is our present, efficient news editor, will have an entry under news evaluation. Of course, Ruth, too, started at the bot-tom of the ladder and climbed upward.

Along with Jo Anne's editorial ar-ticle will be that of Jim Sweet, who has been an outstanding member of the Times staff for a year. Jim has been a reporter, an editorial writer, a proofreader, a copy reader, a column-ist, a news editor, and editor.

Mathematics In Home To Be Club's Subject

Puzzles and music will feature the entertainment at the next Junior Math meeting, to be held Tuesday in the Voorhees Room.

An outside speaker will probably talk on Mathematics in the Home. The committee for this week is Al-len Garrison, chairman; Patti Pfeiffer, Harry Fisher, Jesse Freeman, Eric Seibt, and Max Spencer.

Mr. Snider Reminds Students For What Things To Be Thankful

As this vacation approaches we should "take stock" of our situa-tion, and decide for what we should be thankful. These things should be remembered by all:

First, we live in one of the few countries in the world where per-sonal freedom still exists.

Second, we live in a country where the right to consider the re-lationship between the individual and the Creator in accordance with the individual's preference is not only guaranteed, but also encouraged.

Third, we live in a country richly endowed by Nature.

Fourth, we have lost none of the fundamental wealth of our land during even the darkest days of the economic crisis.

Fifth, there are appearing many evidences of a return of our usual economic prosperity.

Sixth, the traditional courage and energy of our people do not seem to have been weakened seriously.

All of these things, together with the personal benefits which we enjoy, should make us the most thankful people in the world.

Two Skating Parties Are Scheduled For Vacation's Calendar

Gobbler "On The Hoof" Will Be Attendance Award At Hi-Y's Social Tonight.

Bus To Provide Transportation

Sale Of Tickets Satisfac-tory; Pasteboards May Be Obtained In Front Hall.

A turkey "on the hoof" will be given away as a prize tonight at the Hi-Y skating party. Tickets can be obtained from any member of the club or during the fifth period in the front hall.

The party will begin at 8 p. m. and will end promptly at 11 o'clock. A bus will be provided for the transpor-tation of skaters to the party. A charge of 10 cents will be made for the trip. The bus will start from the Rialto Theater, at the corner of Calhoun and Pontiac, at 7:30 o'clock.

Committees for the party are as follows: Tickets, Herman Makey, chairman; Dick Snook, John Staley, publicity, Paul Boyer, chairman; Fred Ostermeyer, Dale Shupe.

Mixer Dance Discussed
Club members who sold tickets in the hall during the fifth period are: Paul Boyer, Harry Taylor, and Mar-jin Sowers. Officers of the club are: Dick Dochterman, president; Don Faux, vice-president; Ed Leitz, treas-urer; and Miller Makey, secretary.

The sale of tickets so far has been quite satisfactory. Final arrange-ments for the skate were made at the meeting of Hi-Y last Thursday, No-vember 21.

"High School Athletics" was the topic of the meeting. During the dis-cussion on the value of athletics in high school, it was decided that they are important because they stimulate mental alertness, organic vigor, and sportsmanship and take up leisure time.

Andrew Cordier Speaks To Group

Social Science Teachers Hear Talk On Crisis In Europe; Discuss New Plans For Work.

At the dinner meeting of the Fort Wayne Academy of Social Science Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A., Dr. Andrew W. Cordier of Manchester College, gave an address, and the com-mittee for the year were appointed.

Dr. Cordier, in his speech "Present Crisis in Europe," told his audience of ninety history teachers about the underlying causes since the World War that have brought about current political and economic problems.

Plans were discussed for rewarding outstanding scholastic work in the senior and junior high schools. The committee named to consider the pro-gram in the junior high school is: Wil-liam Weller, Franklin School; Bertha M. Bickhart, Harrison Hill; and Lela Troyer, Smart School. For the senior high committee, Eleanor Smeltzly, South Side; Hazel E. Plummer, North Side; and Leah Austin, Central, were named.

Other committees chosen are: Li-brary, Rolo E. Mosher, North Side; Maude E. Huber, Adams; and Kate Voss, Harmar; historical committee, Sadie B. Hatcher, Forest Park; Maude A. Gaskins, Washington, and Willis Richardson, Central; social education, Maurice E. Murphy, South Side; Robert Wyatt, Central, and Merton G. Kimes, North Side. P. W. Haley of Central, president of the club, had charge of the meeting.

Booster Club Plans Banquet Decorations

Very original decorations will be provided by members of the Booster Club for the city-wide Lettermen's banquet which is being sponsored by the South Side Lettermen's Club.

These decorations will consist of candles representing goal posts as a centerpiece, and figures of football players around them.

As favors suede booklets containing the menu and program will be made. Insignias of the different colleges represented will decorate the outside of these booklets.

The members of the decorating com-mittee are Evelyn Kruse, Georgianna Jacobs, Betty Wolf, Virginia Griener, Bob Lee, Anna Bremer, and Ann Hull.

French Club Will Hold Its Skate Saturday Evening At Bell's; Bus Chartered.

Attendance Prize To Be Presented

Discussion Of Bordeaux Features Meet; Group To Aid Christmas Decorating

Both students and outsiders are cor-dially invited to attend the annual skating party to be given by the French Club at Bell's Skating Rink on Saturday, November 30, at 8 o'clock in the evening. There will be several attendance prizes given to the persons who hold the winning tickets.

The skaters' bus will be in front of the Rialto Theater, at the corner of Calhoun and Pontiac Streets, at 7:30 o'clock. The price of the bus accom-modation is ten cents. Tickets for the event are twenty-five cents apiece and will be sold by various club mem-bers in the main hall during the fifth period today. A large crowd is ex-pected as it will be given during Thanksgiving vacation.

Committee Is Appointed
Theo Schurenberg is general chair-man for the event. Other committees are as follows: Prize committee, Viv-ian Hekman, Nancy Newell, and Mar-jan McAtee; ticket committee, Nancy Newell and Violet Garton. The offi-cers of the club who have worked to make the party a success are presi-dent, Theo Schurenberg; vice-presi-dent, Lillian Gable; secretary, Anna Bremer; and point recorder, Violet Garton.

The theme of the semester was con-tinued with Bordeaux being the third city discussed. The location of Bor-deaux on the Garonne River gives it admirable facilities for trade and com-merce. Anna Bremer spoke on the history and general facts about the town. She said that there was an old and a new part of the town which is separated by a beautiful, wide street. The old part of the town pos-sesses most of the old buildings for which the city is famous. Anna stated the chief exports as wine, brandy, drugs, and dyes; and the main imports as sugar and wool.

Vineyards Are Revived
Marian McAtee was the second speaker on the program. She spoke on the wines of Bordeaux. She said the wine industry was the most im-portant in France and possibly the greatest in the world. The vineyards are divided into five districts, each according to the kind, flavor, and size of the grapes. Marian explained the progress of the grapes from the first picking to the time when they become delicious wines.

During the business meeting which proceeded the program, an Inter-Club Congress report was given. The club also decided to contribute to the Christmas decorations which are to be arranged by the Inter-Club Congress members. Theo Schurenberg appointed the following to serve on the Thanksgiving basket committee: Mil-dred Rudig, Maria Haven, and Earl Paxton.

Robert G. Feustel Given Certificate

Former South Side Student, Now At Northwestern, Is Honored For High Scholastic Ability.

Robert G. Feustel, a former student at South Side High School, has been awarded an honor certificate for high scholastic achievement at North-western University. The Honors Con-convocation is unique at Northwestern and is part of the university's method of granting recognition to outstanding students.

One hundred forty-eight students received similar awards at the recent Honors Convocation, held at the First Congregational Church of Evanston. Students who attain high scholastic distinction are also eligible for a number of scholarships that are awarded each year.

To be eligible for an honor award, a student must have ranked in the upper five percent of his class during the previous school year. The deans of the various schools presented the de-serving students to President Walter Dill Scott, who in turn made the cer-tificate awards.

Feustel is the son of Mrs. Robert M. Feustel of 522 Willow Road, Win-netha, Illinois. He is a sophomore in the college of liberal arts.

"Women Pathfinders" Theme Of So-Si-Y Meet

"Women Pathfinders" is the theme around which So-Si-Y's next meeting, to be held next Tuesday, December 3, will be built.

Ruth Rietz is chairman for the pro-gram, which will include several re-ports by members of the committee on women's civic organizations in Fort Wayne. The main feature will be an outside speaker, a woman prominent in civic affairs in the city, Virginia Baker, a member of the committee, will sing several songs.

The committee in charge of the pro-gram, besides Ruth Rietz, is Leona Menze, Ruth Bormuth, Mary Kay Smith, Irene Becker, Eleanor Schrem-ser, Betty Jeanne Bond, Ruth Road-cap, Marjorie Schuman, and June Haeger.

The club's Thanksgiving basket, which was in charge of Ruth Rietz, service chairman, Mildred Rudig, Eleanor Schremser, Irene Becker, Helen Doenges, and Barbara Von Gun-ton, will be delivered today.

South Side Aids In Carrying On City-Wide Drive

Auto Supply Dealers Offer Awards To Winners Of Local Safety Contest.

South Side's safety drive, which is under the direction of the school's safety council and is now in its third week, has so far been featured by two home room information sheets besides the first assembly which was held last week.

The first test sheet, which was issued last Thursday, includes nine major points. They are: Persons compelled to have operator's or chauffeur's license, persons who shall not be licensed, items required on application for operator's licenses, special requirements for securing licenses where operators' licenses must be kept, length of licensing period, suspension of licenses, some extra violations of license provisions, and how licenses are secured. The second of a series of the sheets was issued on Tuesday of this week.

Contests Are Progressing
The various contests on safety which were planned by the newly-chosen safety council are gradually progressing. All English class pupils in the school are planning their essays, poems, or original stories which will be submitted as regular class projects, but which will be judged on a competitive basis as contest entries.

A poster contest under the direction of the Misses Erna Dochterman and Mary Helen Ley, art teachers, is also under way among art students. The posters may also be counted as regular class projects, if the student so desires.

The scrapbook contest, for which interested students are asked to submit scrapbooks containing material on anything pertinent to safety, is also expected to hold the attention of a large number of students.

Prizes for the various contests are being offered by several prominent Fort Wayne auto supply dealers. The firms and their prizes are Packard Fort Wayne, Incorporated, an automobile lap robe; Baker-Miller Company, a battery; National Mill Supply Company, a flashlight; Oldsmobile Agency, a vanity mirror; Chester G. Schriener, a rear view mirror; Main Auto Supply Company, an auto compass; Bill Gouty, five gallons of motor oil; and Vetter's Ford Agency, a Goodrich tire.

Safety Display Featured
Several front hall displays pertaining to the safety subject are being featured this week in the main entry way to the school. In the south glass-covered case, six pictures illustrating the horrors of accidents with the following captions are shown: "He paid no attention to the 'stop' sign," "He tried to save time by going fast," "Both drivers claimed they had a green light," "The train won the race," "He thought 'stop' just meant 'slow up,'" "The results of another's reckless speeding," "The result of mixed alcohol and gasoline," and "Another race won by the train." The lighted bulletin board contains a clever stage setting depicting the dangers of mixed alcohol and gasoline, and the bulletin space above the lighted display contains a new poster.

Assisting Mr. R. Nelson Snider and Miss Martha Pittenger as heads of the safety drive are Ruth Adler, safety council head, and all sixty members of the safety body.

Home Room Holds Interesting Contest

Prizes To Be Given To Winners; Will Select Their Rewards; Participants To Have Party.

A very interesting and educational contest is being held in home room 94. Mr. Ora Davis announced. This contest is to extend over a period of four weeks. Mr. Davis gives out ten titles which may be of paintings, novels, essays, hymns, poems, biographies, or religious and historical books.

There are four points given for each title, two for the author's name and one point each for the author's nationality and the classification of the title. This group of ten titles with complete information about each one is due to be handed in one week from the day on which they are given. The perfect score at the end of the four weeks is eight hundred. The students find that it is very interesting to participate in this contest.

Mr. Davis also announced that several prizes will be given the students who have the highest number of points at the end of the contest. The student who has the highest number of points will have the privilege of selecting his prize from the list of these two hundred titles which were given. Also there will be second, third, fourth, and fifth prizes given. Some of these prizes include tickets to the North Side and Central games. In conclusion, Mr. Davis stated that he will also give a party for all those who participated in the contest.

Play, Discussion, Food For Philo

Varied Program Entertains Members Of Literary Society At Gathering On Monday.

"Seven To One," a one-act comedy, was the main feature of the Thanksgiving meeting of the Philaethian Literary Society held Monday evening in the Greeley Room. The story is that of seven girls who all ask the same boy to a tudge party. The climax of the story comes when at the last moment he is unable to come and all the girls are without a date.

The characters for the play are Joan Ainslee, who is an all-round college girl; Madge Allen who is the good friend of everyone, especially Jo; Clarin Rutherford, who is somewhat inclined to be snobbish; Barbara Kingston, who is athletic; Dulcie Dale, who gushes and talks baby talk; Vivienne Carey, who is a society butterfly; Virginia Howe, who frequently uses slang; and Elizabeth Grey, who is studious and bashful. Those taking these parts are in their order: Gwen Horn, Geneva Shearer, Selma Liff, Maxine Howard, Bernadette Dygert, Maxine Mariotte, Joan Kennedy, and Betty Davenport. Those who assisted in the play are Helen Doenges, Theo Schuereberg, LaVerne Deekel, and Louise Closs.

Another part of the meeting was the review of the New England Group in the theme America in Literature. This was led by Verna Holtman, who gave a general review of this period along with the life of Ralph W. Emerson. This was followed by Eva Allison's telling of the influence of slavery on the literature of New England, and then she gave the history of William Garrison and Harriet Beecher Stowe. Constance Haag concluded by giving the oratories of the period.

The program was followed by a potluck. The menu was meat loaf, potato salad, bean salad, sandwiches, pickles and olives, potato chips, fruit, salad, cup cakes, cookies, pie, and Coca-Cola.

The next meeting of the Philaethians will be held on December 9 and at this time will be in the form of a Christmas party. Some very novel ideas for this gathering are being worked out by the president, Ruth Adler, and the program chairman, Mary Martha Hobrock.

Mary Michaels, who is the chairman of the committee for the making of the Philo Year Book, announced that these would be ready to distribute at that meeting.

Two Graduates Hold Journalistic Positions

Two of South Side's former graduates, Jane Vesey and Elinor Sieber, who are now students at Indiana University, are members of the staff of the "Bored Walk," a university humor magazine. Both girls were very active while in South Side. Jane was a member of Meterites, Philo, the Sophomore Social Council, Booster, 1500, Junior secretary, student welcome council, Wranglers, Student Players, Times, National Honor Society, Quill and Scroll, and the four-year honor roll. She was graduated in 1933.

Elinor was a member of Meterites, Math Science, Travel, Wranglers, 1500, Philo, Art, French, National Honor Society, Quill and Scroll, Times, and Totem. Elinor was graduated in 1934.

Teacher's Son Ill
Jack Wainwright, son of Mr. Wainwright, music teacher at South Side, is confined to his home with a helpless leg. It will be necessary for him to discontinue his studies for one year.

Can You Translate This Story Into English From The Latin?

Following is a story written in Latin by Helen Cox, a sophomore Latin student. The translation of the story will appear next week.

Fabula in Latina

Olim filia regis, quae puella pulcherrima erat, ab adulescente pulchro et forti in matrimonium duci cupere constituit.

Pater eius dolore commotus est, ubi vidit suam filiam caram discedere, sed nihil facere poterat.

Eius filia, Iulia nomine, virum petens magnarum opum qui filius regis erat et pulcherrimus, in matrimonium illum ducere se in animo habebat.

Itinere longo facto, ea ad terram quae non sciebat veniebat. Ea verba populi intellegere non poterat, et cum eis loqui non poterat.

Ea apud vias huius urbis novae in equo albo pulchro petens locum irebat. Ea sic petens, amicam, puellam quae et haec verba et verba Iulie intellexit videbat. Amica Cornelia nomine erat.

Cornelia locum in sua casa et cibum Iulie dabat. Ea Iuliam verba incolarum huius urbis dicere docebat. Iulia mox ea discebat.

Ambulans in urbe cum Cornelia, Iulia adulescentem pulchrum videbat. Et gratissimus erat, et cum statim amabat. Is nomen eius et domum cognoscere constituit. Marcus nomine erat, et filius regis illius terrae. De Iulia cognoscebat et tum eam in matrimonium ducere constituit.

Iulia Marcum domum cepit, et ibi patrem eius videbat. Tum Marcus Iuliam in matrimonium ducerebat. Et Iulia et pater eius laetissimi erant.

Christmas Seal Drive To Begin

T. B. Death Rate Cut One-Half; Camps Established By Sales Of Anti-Tuberculosis Seals.

The girls of the Sunshine Club of South Side have contributed a larger amount of time and energy than any other group in helping mail the Christmas seals. They have worked in the office for five weeks under the supervision of the Misses Edith and Mary Crowe.

The tuberculosis death rate in Fort Wayne and Allen County has been cut in half by the organized warfare of the Anti-Tuberculosis League. Also the Anti-Tuberculosis League, also hundreds of children and adults, are being cared for at the league's clinic, and many under-nourished and air and sunshine-starved children are being brought to health at the league's Christmas Seal Camp.

Through its educational work the league has helped thousands to avoid the "Great White Plague." The Christmas seals are the only source of revenue for the league, and all of its activities depend upon the annual sales of seals.

During the year of 1934-1935 there were 58 clinics held, 794 patients examined, 248 Mantoux tests were given, 2,629 homes visited, 104 children in nutrition camp, 1,150 on the calling list, and 262 X-rays taken.

Graduate To Be Star In Lake Forest Play

Robert Klopfenstein, who was graduated from South Side High School in the class of 1935, has been awarded the lead in the freshman play at Lake Forest College. The play is to be given by the Garrick Players under the direction of R. C. Tomlinson.

"Bob" was active in dramatics as a member of our high school, for he participated in many of the public speaking contests and was a prominent member of his senior play cast. As in high school, dramatics are not Klopfenstein's only interests, for he is quite active on the Lake Forest campus, being affiliated with the publicity service, having taken several amateur contests, and having pledged to Phi Pi Epsilon fraternity. In South Side, Bob was president of Torch, Junior Hi-Y, and vice-president of Torch and Travel. He was a member of Latin, Junior Math, Wranglers, Senior Hi-Y, Boys' Glee Club, and Student Players and received a music letter. He was active in intramural sports. Klopfenstein also received one of the highest honors which the school bestows upon a person, for he was chosen a member of National Honor Society.

Rowena Harvey Is Awarded Recognition

Miss Rowena Harvey, journalism instructor and faculty adviser of the Times and Totem, has been chosen one of the five leading career women in Fort Wayne. She was picked from the field of education. Helene Foellinger, '28 graduate from South Side, and a former general manager of The South Side Times, was named the leading newspaper woman in Fort Wayne.

Marionette Play Cast Is Selected

Production "Chu Chin Chow" Lead Taken By Kenny Scott; Work On Puppets Starts Soon.

The parts for the annual Marionette production were assigned at a called meeting held by the Marionette Club Thursday evening in room 140.

Matters relative to taking better care of the workshop and supplies were also discussed, although no regular business meeting was held.

The name of the production was changed from "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" to "Chu Chin Chow." In the latter play, the plot will be more closely modeled after the moving picture, "Chu Chin Chow," although basically the two are the same.

The cast for the production has been announced as follows: Ali Baba, Kenneth Scott; Abdulla, Tom Sellers; Morgiana, Eliza Bess Lucas; the robber chief, John Bex; Kasim, Norman Eude; the little tailor, Mary Ann Park; Kasim's wife, Lorraine Meyer; and the spy, Doreen Russell. Other parts, those of the robber band and servant girls, will be announced later.

At the last regular meeting of the club, which was held on Thursday, November 14, the members continued work on the puppets which are to be used in "Chu Chin Chow." Miss Mary Crowe, faculty member, was a guest of the club. She aided in the casting work for the marionette heads.

After the Thanksgiving vacation, work will be begun on the bodies and controls of the puppets. An entirely new plan is to be used this year in the puppet manufacture. This plan is expected to give more life-like properties to the characters.

Activity Director Speaks To U.S.A.

Topic Of Speech Is "Highways;" Program Consists Of Play; Club Takes Part In Games.

The regular meeting of the U. S. A. Club was held in the Greeley Room last Thursday. The main event of the meeting was a talk by Miss Lampton, activity director of the Y. W. C. A., on "Highways." Her speech was followed by a potluck which was held in the cafeteria.

Eldora Buesching, Inter-Club Congress representative, gave a report. Julia Crabill, U. S. A. president, announced that U. S. A. would donate two baskets of food to poor families this year on Thanksgiving.

The business meeting was concluded with the collection of pennies for a gift to Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, caretakers of Camp Yarnelle at Winona Lake, who were so kind to the girls who went to Camp Yarnelle last summer. Girl Reserves from over the entire city will contribute to this fund.

The business meeting was followed by the program which was carried out in a Thanksgiving theme. A playlet was given entitled "Thankful Heart." The following persons took part in it: Lillian Patton, "Elsie"; Velma Connett, "Thanksgiving"; Joan Barick, "Mercy"; Virginia Menze, "Indian Girl"; Ruth Gerber, "Hebrew Boy," and Mary Anna Newell, "Greece." Fruit-basket upset and other games were played.

Ruth Adler Escort For Mrs. Roosevelt

President Of Philo Club Named As South Side Representative; Lecture To Be On December 2.

Ruth Adler has been selected to represent South Side as one of the escorts of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. on December 2, when she will visit Fort Wayne to give a lecture at the Shrine Auditorium. The program will begin at 8:30 p. m., the admission being fifteen cents.

The faculties of different schools in Fort Wayne have appointed one girl from each school to be one of Mrs. Roosevelt's attendants. Other girls that have been chosen besides Ruth Adler are: Virginia Heller, representing Central; Margaret Johnson, North Side, and Clementine Ley, St. Augustine's Academy. These girls will be under the supervision of Mrs. Bernard Swanson and will be expected to meet Mrs. Roosevelt at the train, be ready to serve her in any way, and sit on the stage when she gives her talk. After the program a reception will be held at the Keenan Hotel.

Journey With President

Mrs. Roosevelt's vivacious personality and friendliness made her one of the most attractive and beloved "first ladies" ever to invade the Governor-General's mansion in the Philippines. With her husband she took a great interest in the life of the people and usually accompanied him on his journeys about the islands on official business. This gave her an insight into the habits and customs of the natives and the opportunity to study social problems and to make many interesting pictures which have been made into stereopticon slides to illustrate her lecture on "Life in the Philippines."

Mrs. Roosevelt's lecture, "Visit Asia With Me," is based upon her extensive travels in the Eastern Hemisphere with Colonel Roosevelt. She had special opportunities through her introduction to make very unusual photographs, particularly in Afghanistan, a land rarely visited by foreigners. In Nepal she became an inexperienced tiger huntress.

Was Overseas In War

Mrs. Roosevelt is a great niece of Mrs. Herron M. Saunders, who forty years ago founded the League for Political Education in New York. In 1934 Mrs. Roosevelt addressed this distinguished organization in Town Hall, and so vivid was her presentation and so enthusiastic her reception that she was immediately asked to address other groups.

During the first American war, Mrs. Roosevelt was the first American woman to go overseas for the Y. M. C. A.; she served eighteen months in France. She was cited by General Pershing on behalf of our government for her distinguished service, and France awarded her the Palmes Academiques.

Mrs. Roosevelt speaks with refreshing spontaneity, bringing to her listeners a first-hand, authentic picture of those far places of the world with which she is so familiar.

Secretary Leaves School

Betty Peters, 1935 graduate of South Side, who has been Mr. Wainwright's secretary in the music department since that time, has left her work here to help her mother in the beauty treatment business. While in high school she was very much interested in music.

Mark Twain Began Career As Reporter For Newspaper

One hundred years ago on November 30, 1835, Samuel Langhorne Clemens, more widely known as Mark Twain, was born at Florida, Missouri. Probably no writer of American birth stands out as more truly representative of the land of his nativity than does Mark Twain. The people of today demand the works of this great author. His soul still lives in American life. His cynicism, tenderheartedness, humor, and seriousness are as well-loved now as they were on the day of his death, April 21, 1910.

The parents of Samuel Clemens were of the restless, unprosperous type who wandered from place to place through Kentucky and Tennessee, finally settling in Hannibal, Missouri, where Mark Twain gained much of his inspiration and material for his tales of the Mississippi. When his father died in 1847, Mark Twain went to work in the office of the Hannibal Journal, where he served for six years as printer and assistant editor. In 1853 he left Hannibal and worked his way for three or four years as printer in St. Louis, New York, Philadelphia, Keokuk, and Cincinnati. In the year 1856-7, Clemens laid plans to collect coconuts at the headwaters of the Amazon and in the spring of 1853 as a first step, left on the Paul Jones for New Orleans. Aboard the boat, however, Clemens became attracted by the life of a pilot and in return for $500 taken out of his wages was taught "by heart" the entire Mississippi from New Orleans to St. Louis and became a licensed pilot.

Began As Reporter

The Civil War brought about a closing of the river; and Clemens decided to aid the Confederacy, which he did for five short days, after which he championed the cause of the Union with characteristic strength. In 1861, Clemens journeyed to Carson City, Nevada, where he attempted to get rich quick, only to effect the opposite result. Commending himself by a number of letters signed "Josh," he was given, in 1862, a position as reporter on the Virginia Enterprise at $25 a week. In signing his stories he used the name "Mark Twain," which previously had been used by a correspondent on the New Orleans Picayune.

Here Mark Twain worked until a duel in 1864, provoked by journalistic animosities, made safer climates desirable. He left for San Francisco and wrote for the Morning Call, The Golden Era, and the Californian; the latter edited by Bret Harte, whose literary abilities afterwards showed their impression upon the works of Mark Twain.

Fame Spread Quickly

From then on the name of Clemens became more and more widely known. Various commissions were given him and he kept on writing bits of everything, from odds and ends of satire to historical novels. The lecture platform called and Clemens answered it, to leave it now and then to engage in some newspaper or magazine venture.

Fifteen Men Lost To Varsity Football Squad

Eleven Linemen, Four Backfield Men Will Graduate; Several Players Remain.

Just as Coach Lundy Welborn was forced to rebuild his grid team almost entirely for the recently concluded season, so will Lundy again need to make a new squad for the 1936 season. South Side will lose fifteen varsity griders by graduation. Last year the Green lost twenty-two griders. Although fifteen is about the normal number of graduates, their loss will be felt in a degree out of all proportion to their number because thirteen of these were on the first two teams this year.

Eleven linemen will not be available to the squad next year. These include the entire first-string line with the exception of Don Faux at one of the ends. Three second-team linemen will graduate, two ends and a tackle, a third string end and a center will not play next year.

In the backfield Coach Welborn must get along without the services of four of his best used men. Two quarterbacks, a half, and a full will no longer be in school. At ends, Jim Ellenwood, one of the stars of this year's team, Merl Norris, Morgan Harrison, and Carl Brandt will be out of action. This leaves Don Faux as the only returning end.

Herman Makey, Fred Nye, and Allen Faux are the tackles who graduate. Bill Wilson and Wayne Bennett are the graduating guards. Two reserves from this year, Jim Dorn and Kenneth Miller, will be back, however. Fred Ostermeyer and Dick Dochterman, centers this season, will graduate. However, Bob Miller, capable substitute for Ostermeyer, will be back to fill Ostermeyer's shoes.

Gord Parmelee and Fred Meyers, first and second string quarterbacks, Ed Kruse, capable halfback, and Bud Lee, punting and passing fullback, will not be available next year. To replace these men Lundy will have Feichter, Woodhull, third string quarter, Chuck Berry, Bob Hosier, and Jim Phelps, who did not see action this year because of an injury sustained at camp.

Altogether it appears as though next season's Archers will present a faster backfield with a lighter, less experienced line. In the forward wall the center and guards will be the strongest spots.

Large Growth In Latin Department

Mr. Rothert, Miss M. Work Head First Latin Department, Colateral Reading System Used.

When South Side was first organized, the Latin Department was also begun. There were only two Latin teachers at first, one of whom we all know. Mr. Rothert, who still teaches Latin, and Miss Milocent Work, who does not teach here any more, were in the department. The two were in charge of over two hundred pupils. The system of collateral reading was not adopted in the beginning, but as the department grew the system was used. Today one hundred Latin books can be found in the South Side library for outside work.

Now, Mr. Rothert, Miss Oppels, Miss Woodward, and Mrs. Welby, who works only part time on Latin, are in the department and are in charge of five hundred pupils. The first and second year Latin books have been changed, but the third and fourth year of Latin books are still the same as they were in the beginning.

Warren Zelt Rolls High Scores At Scott's

Warren Zelt, an expert bowler winning the first two practice sessions of the tournament, won the third and final practice session by two out of three games, making scores of 145, 134, and 165. The regular tournament will begin next week.

Those who desire to enter the bowling tournament should see Mr. Briner by next Tuesday. The bowling will be done at Scott's Recreation Hall, which is located at 1223 South Calhoun. A nominal charge is paid by the participants for the privilege of using these alleys.

The names of those who attended the final practice session and their scores follow:

Warren Zelt	145	124	165
Robert Tapping	110	91	110
Eugene Schmidt	121	117	110
Kenneth Allway	125	99	127
Robert Hawkins	75	53	92
Charles Zent	95	100	136
Tom Piepenbrink	117	144	115
Dan Schoenbein	127	95	119

Jack Kreider was unable to bowl at this time as he had a sore thumb.

IHSAA Makes Many Changes In Net Tourney

Board Plans Other Arrangements As Parents Protest Three Games In One Day.

The Indiana High School Athletic Association has made a change in tournament arrangements for the basketball season of 1935-1936. There has been much criticism against the playing of three basketball games in one day. The proposed tournament schedule avoids this object which many people think is a health hazard. The board thinks that the playing of three games a day does not prove to be detrimental to health. Of course, the players must be in good physical condition.

The officers are just as determined as ever to have adequate physical examinations in order that the participants are physically fit. They also state that it is imperative that the medical profession co-operate to the fullest extent. Every year they receive cards that claim the participant is in the best of health, but where no examination has been made. The parents do not desire this; the athletes are harmed by it. As far as the board knows, the Life Insurance Companies have not increased rates to the applicant because of competitive athletics. This does not mean that there are not abuses in athletics. A broad-minded view of this will show that a method of control should be devised. Although many people complain against athletics in the high school, they approve the games played in the sandlots, town halls, and in church gymnasiums. The participants in these sandlot games play from morning until night, yet there is no criticism against them.

New regulations in basketball tournament are that no more than two three-minute extra periods may be played in one game. In case of a tie score at the end of the second period, each player actually participating in the game at the end of this period shall be given one free throw at his own basket, the team making the most points being declared the winner of the game. The general order of throwing shall be as follows:

- Team drawing first—two boys.
- Team drawing second—two boys.
- Team drawing first—three boys.
- Team drawing second—three boys.

Rooters Adding Pep To Volleyball Games

The volleyball games being played in the gymnasium during the fifth periods have caused much excitement among the large number of spectators who watch the close games.

Different sections take sides and yell for one team or the other, thus making the games more interesting because of the pep they inspire in the players.

Some teams have become outstanding in their play, as the scores will indicate, and the weaker teams will soon be eliminated. The scores of the games played last week are as follows:

Archers over Scrubs	15-6	15-11
Spartans over Spikers	15-13	15-10
Dopes over Dukes	15-11	15-13
Potatoes over Slugs	15-1	15-2

Archers over Craiglets... 15-8 12-15
Potatoes over Spikers... 15-6 11-15
Chumps over B'ern'ks... 15-8 15-4
Anythings over Kochs... 15-5 15-7

In making their 1935 record of five victories, one tie, and three defeats, Archer griders defeated Van Wert, Peru, Central Catholic, Columbia City, and Howe. Above is pictured a South Side back, tackled after making a sizeable gain against Van Wert, a game which the Green took by a 26-to-0 score.

Skirts and Sports

At a recent volleyball game, Velma Yoder appeared with a green rubber bathing shoe on one foot and a gym shoe on the other.

Marge Hower and Betty Rison are already showing signs of their ability to play volleyball. Even though they have just played one game so far this season, each of their teams won its game.

Edna Disler seems to play a good game of volleyball on any part of the floor. She can do her stuff when playing in the back or front line, and also at the net.

Even if Leona Menze does fall down sometimes when she is playing volleyball, she always is ready for whatever may come.

Aren't some girls' senses of direction funny? Just ask some of the players on Junior 2.

The swimming meet went off with great success. About twenty-three girls participated, watched by quite a large audience. Miss Patterson and Miss Smith both appreciate the wonderful success of the first meet of this kind.

Marjorie Hower certainly went to town in the swimming meet. She amassed a total of 20 points, taking first places in the backstroke and underwater swimming, and in diving.

Everyone was surprised, especially Marjorie Hower herself, when she swam two lengths in the underwater contest. Barbara Scheele and Virginia Noble each made one and one-half lengths.

A note of weirdness was struck when the underwater lights were turned on at the "Y." The swimmers can be discerned only as greenish-yellow hues, gliding along through the water.

Now that volleyball is started, the question of lighting the gym is an immediate problem. Remember, girls, the switches are in the set nearest the south gym door. The three uppermost switches on the right hand side, and the two uppermost on the left are those used. Please don't play around with the others.

Betty Harnish surely is tops in volleyball. She is especially apt at serving the ball, which accounts for a large number of her team's points.

Miss Smith has a weakness which came to light lately when she was taking a number of G. A. A.'ers home. Before they could start, they had to join in the hunt for the car. Miss Smith had forgotten where she had parked it.

Stooges over Craiglets... 15-8 12-15
Potatoes over Spikers... 15-6 11-15
Chumps over B'ern'ks... 15-8 15-4
Anythings over Kochs... 15-5 15-7

Fred Nye Played In Every Grid Game

Fred Nye, veteran tackle and captain of the 1935 Archer grid eleven, was South Side's most consistent player this year. He appeared in every game and led his team to a successful season. During the entire season, Fred played thirty and one-fourth quarters or 453 minutes to compile a total of 242 points.

Next in line comes Bud Lee, stellar fullback, who ran a close second to Nye by playing exactly thirty quarters, or 450 minutes, and piling up 240 points. Third comes Fred Ostermeyer, Archer All-City man, with 234 points.

Central To Meet Anderson Dec. 3

Tigers To Play State Champs At Anderson, After 35-31 Defeat At Hands Of Newcastle Five.

Central's Tigers will play the Anderson Indians, state basketball champions of the 1934-1935 season, Tuesday, December 3, at Anderson. After a few practice sessions under their belt, the Tigers should give the Indians a good battle.

In their first game of the season, Central bowed to Newcastle by the score of 35-31. The Trojans gained revenge for the setback they received at the hands of the Tigers last year. Although the Tigers were weak on defense and fumbled the ball, they were speedy and showed ability in connecting their shots. The Blue staged two rallies, but they both were in vain.

Marvin Huffman started the scoring by getting three early baskets that helped give his team a 10-1 lead. Steve Sitko finally throttled Huffman, but Huffman fed the ball to Gil and Perkins, and enabled them to pace the Trojan's attack. At the end of the first quarter, Central was trailing only 12-10; they came back to tie the score at 16-all. Near the end of the second quarter, they were ahead 18-17, but at the end of the half they were trailing, 21-18.

In the third quarter, the Trojans held 10-point leads twice, but Central came to trail at 33-27 as the third quarter ended. In a wild last quarter, Newcastle put up a tight defense and held the Tigers.

In 47 halves at the hoop, Central completed only 12; Newcastle had a better average as they completed 13 times out of 38 shots. The Blue made seven of their free throws, whereas the Trojans converted nine of their sixteen. Each team committed thirteen personal and one technical. Paul, of Central, left the game late in the last quarter on personals.

The Central reserves also bowed to Newcastle, the Trojan seconds nosing out of 26-25 decision after trailing 10-8 at halftime.

School Turns Attention To Burl Friddle

New Net Mentor Diving In Job Of Producing Good Team This Year, Next.

As basketball comes once more into the limelight, Burl Friddle is more or less "on the spot," all eyes being turned on the first squad that the new mentor will put on the floor.

Mr. Friddle seems to run into a singularly tough situation in this, his initial season, as only four of last year's varsity squad have returned. These veterans, Ellenwood, Close, Lee, and Ostermeyer, will form the nucleus of this year's quintet.

A somewhat new system of play has been introduced by the new coach, and it will take time for the Archers to adapt themselves to this new style of play. A number of last year's reserve squad have graduated to the varsity and a brilliant pair of sophomores, Carl Hall and John Hines, who played with the Wavelets last season, will probably resume their scoring activities with the varsity this season.

Mr. Friddle is concentrating a great deal of his attention on building up a squad for next year and as a consequence he has spent a great deal of time working with freshmen and sophomores who seem destined to develop into real ball players in a year or two.

Among those who are bidding for positions without any previous experience on the reserves or the varsity are Ray Speaker, Don Wiley, and Ed Miller, a senior who has come up remarkably to give the veterans a real run for their money.

For a good many excellent reasons, the first Friddle-coached team will not be a world-beater but they will nevertheless win a good percentage of their games. The Archers this year lack the experience which has characterized the teams for the past few years, and it will take a few games before their new system will click efficiently and consistently. South Side might not win all of its first few games, but their efficiency should mount with each game.

P-T. A. Executives Meet To Discuss Activities

The main feature of the Parent-Teachers' Association meeting held in the Greeley Room last Thursday morning at 10 o'clock was a discussion of future activities of the organization. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Victor Rea. Ideas for ways and means to get parents better acquainted were discussed. Plans for a scrapbook which will include all of the activities of the P-T. A. in South Side High School, were made.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. H. F. Kelsey. The members then planned for a party to be given for the faculty of South Side High School. This party is to be sponsored by the executive board and their husbands. It will be held December 9, in the Greeley Room.

Pilgrims Had Three Days To Offer Up Their Thanks

Tomorrow, the last Thursday in November, millions of people will go to their respective churches to give thanks for all the blessings received during the past year. This custom is probably the outgrowth of the old harvest-home celebrations of England long ago. The first Thanksgiving Day in America was back in the time of the old Plymouth Colony. After a most terrible winter in which one-half of the colony's population died, the colonists, with renewed energy and vigor, planted their crops in the spring. In the fall, after the corn crop was gathered, Governor Bradford decreed a day of thanksgiving throughout the colony. This was in 1621.

There were immense preparations made. More than eighty of the neighboring friendly Indians were invited to join the festivity. They had a great feast, a custom which is carried on by most families today, besides the prayers, sermons, and songs of praise and thanks. This first Thanksgiving lasted for three days. Later the custom spread throughout all the colonies.

During the Revolutionary War, eight special days for giving of thanks were set aside, and Washington, in 1789, issued a general proclamation for a day of thanks.

There was no recognized day, however, and each year different states would proclaim different days for Thanksgiving, and some had none at all. Finally, due greatly to the work of Mrs. Sarah Joseph Hale, a journalist, President Abraham Lincoln, in 1864, appointed the last Thursday of the month of November as the day for the giving of thanks throughout the nation.

From then till now each succeeding President has made the announcement, and each state governor has issued the proclamation that the last Thursday of November be Thanksgiving Day.

Martin Rothert Has Varied Career As School Teacher

Mr. Martin Rothert, head of the foreign language department at South Side, has had a very interesting teaching career, varied with the teaching of fifth and sixth grades, the principalship of two high schools, and the teaching of Latin and German in various high schools. He became interested in Latin at normal school and majored in it at college.

Mr. Rothert's eventful career was started by being a teacher in a district school. In contrasting the customs and events of that school with South Side, he stated that in the former school, the teachers were expected to do their own janitor work.

Humorous Events Occur
It was Mr. Rothert's task to open the school doors every morning before school started. In those days it was the custom of tramps roaming about the country to help themselves to the shelter of the schoolhouses for their night's sleep. Upon arriving at the school one morning, Mr. Rothert was much surprised to see a tramp jump out of the window. Entering the building, he discovered that the tramp had slept upon one of the school benches and had used some of Mr. Rothert's books as a pillow.

At these country schools a recess period was held each morning and afternoon. The children said that they liked to come to school because they had so much fun playing at recess. Although they had many different games, competitive athletic contests such as we have today were unknown at this school and also at later schools in which Mr. Rothert taught. Another interesting feature of the school was that attendance was not compulsory.

Mr. Rothert's next position was at a grade school where he taught fifth and sixth grades. Several years later he became principal of the Boonville High School in Boonville, Indiana, where Mrs. Welby and Miss Mellen of this school have also been teachers. He then resigned from this position and took a year's post-graduate course at Indiana University, where he had the honor of receiving his A.M. degree.

Next, Mr. Rothert again served as a principal, this time at the Edinburg High School, Edinburg, Indiana. After several years at this high school, he received a position at Central High School, then known as the Fort Wayne High School. Here he taught Latin and German.

In 1922, when South Side was built, Mr. Rothert was transferred here, where he has been teaching Latin since. He formerly taught German also, until Miss Schmidt came.

This interesting career, briefly sketched here, shows how high a person may climb up the steps of success in teaching if he sticks to the job.

Archer Netters To Participate In Twenty Engagements

Team To Play Several Fives For First Time

Michigan City, Froebel Of Gary, Goshen, Central Of South Bend New Teams.

Fourteen Games Scheduled Here

City Series Will Open When Archers Take On Central Catholic On December 27.

South Side's net squad will play a twenty-game schedule this year, fourteen of them in Fort Wayne and six out of town. The Archers will participate in eight N. E. I. C. contests. In addition they will play, as is the custom, Central and North Side, both conference members, twice each. For the first time in history, the Green will meet Central Catholic's Irish twice in the same season.

The Green will tangle with several new opponents this year, including Michigan City, Froebel of Gary, Goshen, and Central of South Bend. Three of these four new opponents will be played out of town. Thus, Archer fans as a whole will be deprived of the opportunity of seeing these teams, and will see the netters only against previous opponents.

Tough Tilts Ahead
The Archers will not open their city series schedule until December 27, when they take on Central Catholic's Irish. The Green will meet North Side's Redskins on the following Friday night. After a rest of nearly two weeks from city competition the Green is scheduled to play the potentially powerful Central Tigers. This game will be played on the night of the end of the grade period as usual.

During February the squad will really meet the tough opponents. They will take on Hartford City on the seventh and North Side the next night. One week later, on February 15, the Green meets Central for the second time. On the following Friday, Goshen will provide the opposition with Central Catholic scheduled for the following evening. The Green will wind up their regular season in preparation for the sectional tourney by playing Central of South Bend on February 29.

Complete Schedule Listed their season next week with two games. They will meet Butler at South Side on Friday evening and Michigan City there on the following night.

The complete schedule follows:
December 6—Butler, here.
December 7—Michigan City, there.
December 13—Bluffton, here.
December 20—Auburn, here.
December 21—Piercetown, there.
December 27—Central Catholic, here.

February 15—Central, there.
February 22—Goshen, there.
February 29—Central Catholic, here.

Decatur Captures Conference Title

Yellow Jackets Close N. E. I. C. Season With Four Victories; Central Wins Second Place.

Decatur's Yellow Jackets have captured the Northeastern Indiana Conference grid title for the second consecutive year, according to a bulletin issued recently by W. Guy Brown, principal of Decatur High School and acting secretary of the conference.

The jackets finished the season with a record of four wins, no losses, and no ties. Although Decatur had clinched the crown several weeks ago, the conference schedule was not yet completed at that time. These games, although they had no bearing on the title, evidently delayed issuance of the bulletin.

Central's Tigers, the almost-champions of the state, finished second in the conference standings with a record of three wins and a tie, the scoreless affair against North Side. Central did not play the Jackets in an N. E. I. C. game this year, thus losing their chance to win the crown.

South Side's gridriders participated in only three conference games this year. Two of these were the games against North Side and Central. Consequently, the Green did not make much of a splash in the conference, winging up in fifth place with one win and two defeats.

The complete standing: W. L. T.
Decatur 4 0 0
Central 4 0 1
North Side 2 1 1
Bluffton 2 2 0
South Side 1 2 0
Auburn 1 3 0
Columbia City 0 4 0

C. C. Waterloo Tilt To Be December 6

Season's Squad Rather Weak; Probable Positions, Players Listed; One Veteran Remains.

Coach Bill Barrett has little hope for an outstanding basketball squad this year, for the Irish were hard hit by graduation by losing Angenbroad, Bobay, Morrison, McArdle, Schott, Hock, and Grout. The only one left with experience is Buzz Romary, a guard.

Although the Irish are plenty scrappy, they lack the experience to down the first few contenders, but after they play a few games they will probably be considered a dangerous contender by their opponents.

Although two lads are contending for the center position, Jap Voirel will undoubtedly hold down this position. Jap is six foot two inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. He can shoot with either right or left hand and is a good jumper. At the forward posts are Bill, five feet eleven inches, and Mudd, five feet eight inches. Both of these lads are fast and good shots. Two other contenders are Bobay and Morris. Among the Barrettmen, Romary and Barile, both five feet nine inches, will be at the guard positions. Although there are many others for these places, the only one who might have a chance is Gallavin, a five foot ten inch junior who Coach Barrett believes to be the best ball handler on the team, but who lacks experience. Central Catholic opens its season against Waterloo at the Central Tigers' gymnasium on Friday, December 6.

The Big Ten race came to a close last Saturday as Minnesota and Ohio State shared the honors. Minnesota completed their third consecutive season of being undefeated as they downed Wisconsin by a wide margin. Although Ohio State also won all of their Big Ten Conference games, they lost to Notre Dame which is not in the Big Ten.

Berse, a Minnesota fullback, is the leading scorer in the Big Ten this season as he put over two touchdowns in the Wisconsin game last Saturday. This season he has made six touchdowns and one point after a touch down, making a total of thirty-seven points. Thompson, also of Minnesota, shared second place with Heekin of Ohio State. Each made five touchdowns totaling thirty points. Berwanger of Chicago came third with four touchdowns and three points after the touchdowns.

Notre Dame again upset the Saturday gridiron results when they defeated the powerful Southern California eleven. Southern California was expected to be one of the leading contestants for the National Championship. It now leaves the race between Southern Methodist, Princeton, and Minnesota.

A certain George Butler died of a heart attack as Indiana put over a touchdown that won the game for them when they clashed with Purdue last Saturday. This game, although it had no important bearing on any championship titles was a keen upset in the gridiron results. Vernon Huffman will be the talk of Bloomington this week after he put their winning touchdown over.

Baseball has lost many stars this year. The one that will be most felt will be that of Frank Navin, president of the Detroit Tigers. Len Koenekke of the Brooklyn Dodgers died in a plane over Toronto, Canada. Two stars of the past also died. They were Steve Brodie and Billy Sunday, who is well known in Fort Wayne and was a star for three big league clubs.

All-City Team Includes Two South Siders

Ellenwood, Ostermeyer Are On News-Sentinel Honor Grid Team of '35 Season.

Two Archers, five Tigers, three Redskins, and one Irish star were elected to the Fort Wayne All-City grid squad for 1935. The official team is picked annually by a board whose five members are Lundy Welborn of South Side, Murray Mendenhall of Central, Bob Nulf of North Side, Bill Barrett of Central Catholic, and Ben Tenney, sports editor of the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

Jim Ellenwood and Fred Ostermeyer were appointed to positions on the first team at left tackle and center respectively. Fred Nye, Archer captain and tackle was chosen on the second team as a tackle. Ellenwood and Ostermeyer were almost unanimous choices of the board. Both are heavy, rangy and veterans. This is Ellenwood's third year as a tackle on the All-City first team, a feat which is very uncommon.

Sitko Unanimous Choice
Steve Sitko, Central quarterback, was the unanimous choice for the team's field general. His leadership of a team and his signal calling were enough to give him a place on the squad. But in addition to this he was a deadly blocker, fast and able when on the defense, a fair passer, and the most consistent punter in the city. In addition to his quarterback job Sitko was made captain of the 1935 eleven.

The remaining backfield posts were awarded to O'Conner of Central Catholic, Charlton of Central, and Joe Shumm of North Side. O'Conner is a good punter and passer and he hits the line harder than any other back in the city. He is the fullback. Charlton and Shumm were given the left and right halfback positions respectively. Both are excellent runners, hard to hit and harder to drop.

The guards presented the most argument to the board. Ben Mourning of Central, Bojnof of the Redskins, Derheimer of Central Catholic, and Alex Kradjewski were the four high candidates and there was little distinction between them. Due to the fact that guards are more important on offense than defense in the newer systems of football, Mourning and Bojnof, who are slightly better in this department received the positions.

Ostermeyer, Dixie Chosen
Picking of the center and tackles involved little difficulty. At center Fred Ostermeyer of South Side had it over Dixie of Central and was given the job. The tackles this year are the same as they were last year. Ellenwood, though he played end where he was needed more for the Archers, was a unanimous choice and McDonauld, who is defensive star of Central's line, was elected to the other tackle post.

The ends complete this year's team which is as strong as any ever picked. Don Shills and Louis Sitko, brother of Steve, after due consideration, were given the left and right end posts respectively.

Redskins To Play Masonic Saturday

North Side To Open Net Season Against Indians From Franklin; Red Favored To Win.

The Redskins from North Side will open their 1935-36 basketball season next Saturday, November 30, against the Indiana Masonic Home of Franklin. North Side will enter the game a ranking favorite although the boys from the Masonic Home have always shown great fight and may spring a surprise in their opening contest against a school of a much larger enrollment.

North Side has a very tough schedule this year, and will have to battle every inch of the way if they wish to have a season as successful as in previous years. The complete schedule follows:

November 30—Masonic Home, here.
December 6—Central, here.
December 13—Decatur, here.
December 14—Peru, there.
December 20—New Haven, here.
January 3—South Side, there.
January 11—Marion, here.
January 7—Central Catholic, here.
January 25—Hartford City, here.
February 1—Central, here.
February 7—Auburn, there.
February 8—South Side, here.
February 14—Columbia City, there.
February 15—Kendallville, here.
February 21—Bluffton, there.

Court Capers

The Archer basketball team this year took it on the chin from graduation. Only Close, Ellenwood, Lee, and Ostermeyer of last year's varsity have returned to grace the court during the first term of our new mentor, Burl Friddle.

The new ruling which reads that no man may play in the foul circle for more than three seconds has greatly inconvenienced many attacks including that of our own South Side teams. A great many leading teams last year utilized a stationary pivot man who would play on the foul line or under the basket and who would be used for either block or pivot plays. A tall pivot man playing under the basket is the hardest possible man to guard. Once the ball came into him, it was almost impossible for the man guarding him to block his shot without fouling him. By the new rule the stationary pivot man has been almost entirely eliminated.

There are still a few ways to get around this ruling, and South Side will probably make use of one of these ways during their season. This will find the pivot man playing opposite the foul line, but outside of the foul circle from which point he can block for the forward on which ever side of the circle the pivot man happens to be, or he may be used for pivot plays.

Another new ruling which is somewhat drastic is the abolishment of the center jump after a foul shot has been made. The team scored upon will take the ball out of bounds under their own basket instead of the ball being returned for a center jump. Many criticize this ruling as they think it will lead to the entire abolishment of the center jump. Universities on the Pacific Coast have tried successfully the system of eliminating the center jump except at the beginning of each half. When a field goal is scored, the ball is given out of bounds to the team scored on instead of going back to center.

G.A.A. Volleyball Series Continues

Junior Teams 3 And 4, Soph 2, And Senior 2 Victorious In Hard-Fought Games Friday

Upperclass G. A. A. volleyball games last Friday started with the Sophomore 2 team of Helen Meese and the Sophomore 4 team of Anita Aifolder playing at 3:30. Helen Meese's team capturing the game by the score of 35-24. These sophomore teams showed marked abilities in their plays, and Anita Aifolder's team put up a good battle.

The next game was between Junior 3 and Junior 2, captained by Edna Disler and Margaret Ruhl respectively. Edna Disler is like a dynamo to her team, spurring them on and making points herself. The Ruhl twins played a grand game for Junior 2. The final score was 37-29 in favor of Junior 2 team.

Betty Rison's Senior 2 team and Leona Menze's Junior 2 team clashed and sparks certainly flew. "Dolly" Scheele was certainly an aid to Leona Menze's team while Betty Rison had a number of good players on her team. The juniors led at the half, however, in the last minutes of play the game was taken over by the seniors 35-29.

In the last game played Friday the Junior 4 team, under the leadership of Winner Locker, overcame the Senior 1 team, captained by Marge Hower, to even the score of the other junior-senior game. The Junior 4's thoroughly trounced the seniors with the final score 43-23. Winner Locker and Marge Hower were the outstanding players of these respective teams.

Lettermen Plan To Honor High School Athletes

Dinner Planned For Dec. 5; Fred Nye In Charge; Athletes, Principals Invited.

With the purpose of promoting better sportsmanship and more friendliness among athletes of South Side, Central, Central Catholic, and North Side High Schools of Fort Wayne, a dinner is being planned for December 5 by the Lettermen's Club of South Side. All lettermen and athletes, principals, and coaches of the four city high schools are invited to the banquet, which will be held in the South Side cafeteria.

Fred Nye, president of the club, is in general charge, and is expected to preside. Other officers of the sponsoring organization are: Bud Lee, vice-president; and Joe Close, secretary. Mr. A. Verne Flint is the adviser of the club.

Invitations have been sent to athletic directors and coaches of Purdue, Indiana, Notre Dame, Northwestern, and Michigan Universities, and Manchester College. Noble Kizer of Purdue, was the first to accept, and plans to bring with him all Fort Wayne boys out for athletics at Purdue.

Officials of the other Fort Wayne high schools had previously expressed enthusiasm about the plan, and promise to be on hand with large squads.

Marjorie Hower Best Of Mermaids

Wins Twenty Points In Swimming Meet; Sophomores Take Honors By Scoring 29 1/2 Marks

Marjorie Hower was high point girl in the G. A. A. swimming meet, held Saturday at the Y. W. C. A. She earned the greater part of her twenty points by taking firsts in the plain backstroke and underwater swimming, and also diving. However, the sophomores took class honors with a total of 29 1/2 points.

Other individual honors went to Betty Jo Wilkinson, with 18 points, and Virginia Berter and Barbara Scheele, each with eleven points. The freshmen were second in class honors with a total of 28 points, seniors third, with 20 points, and juniors last with 19 1/2 points.

The very able judges included Miss Hilda Schween from North Side, Miss Mary Jane Helping from the Catholic Community Center, Miss Margaret Spiegel from Concordia High School, and Miss Alice Patterson and Miss Gretchen Smith from South Side.

The list of events and the girls who placed in each are as follows:
Speed: The free style three lengths —1. Barbara Scheele. 2. Virginia Porter. 3. Martha A. Bacon. 4. Peggy Woodhull.

Miss Patterson Has Pictures To Aid Her In Dance Selection

When a new dance is started in the dancing club or in the gym classes, the girls may be assured that the type of costume, coloring, and history of the dance is well in the mind of Miss Alice J. Patterson. One factor which aids Miss Patterson greatly, is her unusual collection of pictures, which includes twenty-three nations.

Those countries which are represented in the collection are Africa, Argentina, Bengal, China, Cuba, England, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, France, Germany, Greece, Hawaii, Holland, India, Japan, Yugoslavia, Mexico, Poland, Rome, Russia, Spain, Switzerland, Sweden, and the United States.

Miss Patterson has collected these pictures from books, circulars, papers, and magazines, including the Vogue, Vanity Fair, Sportsman, and Harper's Bazaar. These pictures have been collected by her to aid in costuming, dancing, and setting.

Ten Handball Men In Quarter-Finals

Ranks Of Three Divisions Cut By Games; After-School Play Will Begin In Near Future.

Handball enthusiasts are competing in the annual handball singles tournament sponsored by the intramural department. Those who desire to take part in the handball doubles tourney or boxing should sign up for participation in these sports with Mr. Briner on December 2.

Only fourteen of the original thirty-one enlisted in the heavyweight division are still in the race. Four of these have reached the quarter-finals. The heavyweights include those players of 120 pounds and over. Six of the previous twenty signed up in the middleweights, which consists of those with weights between 100 and 120 pounds, are now playing in the quarter-finals. Five of the sixteen lightweighters are yet in the sixteen of their class tourney.

The following participants have reached the quarter-finals of their respective divisions: Nussbaum, Vogel-sang, Bennett, Trulock, in the middleweights; Klotz, Griffin, Adams, Roberts, in the heavyweights. Knight and Cassidy have reached the semi-finals of the lightweighters.

"All handball players who cannot play during the noon hour but can do so after school should report to me tonight if they wish to enter the singles tournament," stated Mr. Briner. He also requested that the handball which have been borrowed for practice be returned immediately in order that they can be used in the tournament.

Joyce Spencer Noses Win Over Opponents

The Rifle Club held its last meeting Wednesday at the range. Practice was held and high point medal was again awarded to Joyce Spencer, who was very nearly defeated by Carolyn Sidle, who lost by one point, her score being 79 and Joyce Spencer's 80. Lavin Cook was third with a score of 78. All the girls in the club are showing marked improvement.

Junior Banquet Theme Depicts Life Of Indians

Decorations, Dinner, Program Carry Out Indian Theme Friday Evening.

Pittenger, Abbott, Snider Give Talks

Amateur Show Is Held; Totem Pole Prophecy, Two Piano Duets On Program.

Indians are coming, Indians are coming! Instead of hearing the rhythmic beat of a tom-tom, all pathways leading to the school cafeteria echoed with the rhythmic beat of hurrying feet. Our class of 1937, having chosen Pumpkin Pow Wow as the theme of its annual class banquet, patterned it after the gay pow wows of the Red-men.

The evening's theme was much in evidence throughout the room. Two large Indian silhouettes, surrounded by golden yellow ears of corn, formed the background for the "Big Chiefs" table.

Wigwams and fruit-filled pumpkins were the table centers. English walnuts, decorated with bright feathers, transformed into attractive Indian maidens, served as the favors. A pumpkin-shaped book held the songs which were appropriate for the occasion.

Covers for the menu and program folders were decorated with brightly colored dancing warriors and pumpkin papooses. The menu consisted of veal patties, mashed potatoes, corn, cabbage, and grape salad, olives and celery, rolls, ice cream and wafers.

Junior Songs Featured

Between the courses, Bob Augspurger and Louise Cline, accompanied by Millie Hoff at the piano, led the group in songs which were written by Bernadette Dygert.

Jerry Zehr, class president and the banquet toastmaster, having greeted the guests and students, introduced Vernon Miller, who read some very interesting inscriptions from the Totem pole. He reviewed the example, of some of the juniors, for example, the achievements of the boys who were outstanding in football, girls who were working for their G.A.A. letters, and students interested in the tribal paper.

Princess of the totem, Miss Pittenger, spoke many "Words of Wisdom." She told of the primitiveness of the Indians and how our present generation had changed from those old ideas.

"Be sure the things you desire and strive for will survive through the times," was the advice offered by Mr. Merle Abbott, who was a guest at the banquet. He later added that all should have fine courage for further achievements. The other thought stressed by him was that of loyalty.

He used for examples, an editorial which appeared in a recent issue of the Times, and also the boy from Chattanooga, who died after displaying such wonderful loyalty.

Reginald Gerig and Kathleen Wittmer then played a piano duet on two pianos.

After giving amusing inside dope about some of the juniors, Mr. Snider told four things which we should be getting out of school. They are: To remain in good physical condition, learn things which are valuable to us later on, acquire proper type of civic relationship and take advantage of mental training. He also said that this banquet was one of the best and biggest so far. Over two hundred persons were fed.

Leona Menze Prophet

The Indians had their prophets, therefore there was one present at the Pumpkin Pow Wow. It was Leona Menze, "The Prophet of the Nation," who prophesied the future of several members of the junior tribe.

We never have read in history books about Indian Amateur Hours; but probably most of the present day Red-men have progressed with our civilization and are gathering around the camp fires to judge the talents of the other tribesmen, giving the "tom-tom" to those who didn't rate very high on the Flying Cloud Sound Recording Machine.

The first of the contestants in this amateur hour was Helen Gray, who, accompanied by Georgianna Jane Jones, gave a tap dance. Harry Ertel and Don Hickman played a trumpet duet. A humorous Indian dialogue was presented by Don Sinish and William Schafer. After dropping the gong several times Jerry Zehr finally hit it very hard when Maxine Rippe tried to entertain with a song. In keeping with the Indian theme, Bob Augspurger sang "The Indian Love Call." Just imagine what things will be like when the time comes when the women earn the living for the family while their husbands take care of the house. This idea was depicted in a humorous skit by Don Sparkman and his company, which included Ben Woodhull, Ned Henslee, Bob Storm, and Charles Hart.

Committees Are Listed

The officers, Jerry Zehr, president; Ned Henslee, vice-president; Virginia Fathauer, secretary; Jean Creighton, Bob Storm, and Dick Dent and the advisers, Miss Miller and Mr. Whelan, were assisted by the following committees: Tickets, Nick Henslee, Miles Porter, John Staley, Ruth Berning, John Bex, Leona Menze, Dick Dent, Alfred Kettler, James Dorn, Jerry Zehr, Barbara Scheele, Don Sinish, and Miller Hoff; program, Don Sinish, Charles Thorne, James Dorn, Miller Porter, Mary Louise Helms, Charles Mahuren, Barbara Scheele, Ruth Garson, Maria Haven, Lois Wyneken, Joe Nussbaum, Sally Rea, Wilbur Scherer, and John Bex.

Wranglers To Hold Declamation Contest

A very important meeting of wranglers will be held Monday when the declamation contest, which was postponed, will be held. It is an annual affair in which about ten members of Wranglers are participating; and all entries are optional.

Last year, Frank Montgomery succeeded in placing first by giving Patrick Henry's "War Inevitable." Similar and varied declamations have been chosen by this year's contestants.

Outside judges will be chosen by Miss Benner, the club's adviser, and the winner will be honored by being presented with a medal at the annual Wranglers banquet in the spring. This meeting is one of the most enjoyable of the year both for the entertainers and the entertained.

Dorothy Fathauer Finds Commercial Course Is Useful

Concluding a brilliant high school record with an immediate and well-liked job is probably only the beginning of a successful career.

Dorothy Fathauer, valedictorian of the class of 1935, Dorothy took special interest in secretarial work in high school and was rewarded for her labors by placing first in the state shorthand contest. She was also a member of the South Side team that also took first place.

Secures Position

The contest was followed by a job at the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, employed by an attorney for secretarial work. Her hours are from 8 to 4:30 o'clock with a one-hour lunch period. She is very fond of her work and thinks it quite interesting. She would like to take up law and get a better position in a law office.

Her commercial training at South Side is the principal factor for her obtaining the job. She took a commercial course with electives permitting college entrance. Her junior and senior years were employed by the straight secretarial course. Dorothy's average in scholarship was nearly 97 percent and she claims as her easiest subject, mathematics, her hardest subject, chemistry, and the best-liked subject a tie between mathematics and English.

Commercial Course Most Practical

Mr. Murch reports her as being one of the best students of shorthand work that he has ever had. He can remember only about one mistake out of all her shorthand tests and considered grading her paper a waste of time in a fruitless search for errors.

She says that she was nervous at the state contest, in spite of the fact that he tried not to be.

At South Side, Dorothy was active in Philo, Meterite, Altin, Math-Science, Times, and Totem. She placed third in a state Latin contest, and was a member of the four-year honor roll, Quill and Scroll, and National Junior Society. Dorothy concludes with, "It seems to be that the commercial course is the most practical, but a person should base his decisions on subjects in high school as to his future plans."

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

Mr. Gould's beginning botany classes have finished their study of seeds. He now has corn, bean, and pea seeds growing in his room. They will take these up next week.

His advanced classes have finished their study of wheat rust.

Don Sinish was the principal speaker in Miss Hodgson's home room for National Education Week.

Mr. Heine asked a girl in one of his biology classes to name two insecticides, substances that kill insects. Two insecticides are paris green and arsenic of lead. In her stage of daydreaming she wistfully answered for one of her examples, "Phil Green."

On Tuesday, Robert Miller, chairman of home room 36, conducted a review of Lesson 1 on Safety.

The lowest grade that Viola Yancy has made on any paper in 9B Latin thus far is 96.

On Monday morning in home room 32, Stephen Shea, Virginia Shidler, and Bernadette Shearer gave their speeches which they prepared for the freshman speech contest.

During one of Miss Kiefer's freshman English classes, the pupils were assigned to write different kinds of polite and thank-you notes. They also could write "bread-and-butter" notes.

When Miss Kiefer asked what a "bread-and-butter" note is, one boy raised his hand and quite eagerly exclaimed, "It's a note which your mother sends with you when you go to the store."

In one of Miss Crowe's history classes, a title of a paragraph in the chapter they were studying read as follows: "Jefferson Organizes a New Party," and the one following read: "Which Is Barely Defeated in the Presidential Election." After several names of prominent men were given in connection with this chapter, Miss Crowe asked for another. One girl raised her hand and answered, "Mr. Barely."

In Mr. Murphy's economics classes, the first and sixth periods, Mary Michaels and Ann Abbott prepared a report on an article from the American Magazine, "What Fixes the Size of Your Pay Check?" by Neil Carothers, Professor of Economics and the Director of College and Business Administration at Lehigh University.

Several home room pupils in room 85 were greatly amused by the following note which was found on one of the desks: "Pay water, light, phone. When you go after glasses, get me a pair of 39c house slippers at Grant's. Empty wash machine. The money is in your white pocketbook. Milk is on the back steps."

Miss Van Gorder's citizenship class has been getting acquainted with their community. They have visited "Shantytown," Wheatley Center Neighborhood House, and the College Club Day Nursery. When they return they give reports on what they have seen.

Miss Rinehart's classes have handed in their safety themes.

The gym classes are finishing the volleyball season and are going to start the basketball season after Thanksgiving.

In Miss Covalt's typing 2 class, the following pupils wrote a ten-minute test without an error. Margery Ruhl, whose speed was 61.5 words per minute; Margaret Ruhl, 56; Eileen Mentzer, 48.6; Leroy Rusher, 36.2.

At the end of first half of the semester, the students of Miss Fiedler's algebra 1 class who had highest score in their daily work are John Chidester, Samuel Anderson, and Mary Lou Moffat. The students who had the highest average on tests and examinations are Roger Neff, Kenneth Warren, Mary Lou Moffat.

In an achievement test given by Mr. Furst to his junior business training pupils, Marjorie Clapp and Imogene Fabian made 100 percent. In addition the following made 94 percent or better: Marion Ehle, Edna Volz, Annemarie Hausmann, June Holzworth, Eileen Hoffman, and O'Lily Kensler.

Mrs. Russell Furst Furthers Education Through Husband

The knowledge of a former bookkeeping assistant and present bookkeeping teacher seem to do away quite satisfactorily with any problems confronting Mr. Russell Furst, South Side's bookkeeping teacher, and his wife, Mrs. Russell Furst, a former bookkeeping assistant.

Mrs. Furst was educated at Muncie, Indiana, and went through grade and high school there. She got a bookkeeping job but forsook it upon moving to Fort Wayne.

The common house problems, such as balancing the budget, are undertaken in a systematic manner through the combined efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Furst. Mrs. Furst makes her home here to a few small outside clubs. She professes to be an ordinary woman, one well up on current events and the latest news, and holds moderated arguments from time to time on clashing views, but she does not have any radical beliefs or theories.

The possibility of forgetting all one ever knew on a subject is ever imminent to some, but not so to Mrs. Furst. All the latest angles and methods of bookkeeping are kept well in the front of Mrs. Furst's mind by her well-informed husband. This, she claims, is one advantage of having her husband a bookkeeping and commercial teacher. Then, too, she has learned more about it from time to time and her knowledge is much greater at the present time.

Has No Pet Peeves

Mr. Furst seems to have no especially bad habits or ever-present pet peeves, being declared a really good-natured husband by his wife, which, by the way is a tribute to any man.

December 16; Seventy Prizes
Are To Be Given For Essays.

All students who are participating in the essay contest on safety must have their essays turned in to their respective English teachers before December 16 because the English teachers must have picked a winner from each class by then.

There will be sixty-five winners since there are sixty-five English classes this semester. The winner from each class will receive a small prize. These sixty-five winners will then be grouped according to classification.

After this elimination, a freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior winner will be picked. Each of these class winners will also be given a prize. These four winning essays will then be judged to determine the best essay in the school. This winner will also receive a prize. This will make a total of seventy prizes.

No date has been set as yet for the final judging of the essays.

Latin Classes To Hear Talks And View Interesting Slides

Oh for the life of a Roman! Perhaps you do not realize how much fun it was to live in the olden Roman days. If you don't, you should drop in at room 56 some day. Of course you know that this is the domain of Miss Gertrude Oppelt. Miss Oppelt in attempting to make more real the life of the ancient Romans to her pupils has resorted to slides. This is going to make a lot of work for somebody. In order not to place so much work on the hands of one person, Miss Oppelt has arranged for each member of the class to contribute something. Each person in the class is given a topic and incidentally, a slide. His first duty is to hunt through numerous Latin books for material pertaining to his subject. When he has written a good theme, he is to learn it.

The topics are exceedingly interesting. For instance, there is a slide on Slaves. You have always thought the life of the American slave was hard, but the Roman slave found it just as difficult to exist. The Roman slave market was perhaps the most cruel and inhuman place in all history. No one could possibly exceed the Roman slave drivers in harshness. Then, of course, there is a slide pertaining to the ever famous aqueducts of Rome.

To Give Exhibition Here

Dr. William Harwood, wild animal trapper and famed humorist, will give a program at South Side Friday morning.

Prize Contest Victors To Be Named Soon

Snider To Present Awards
Poster, Essay, Scrapbook
Contest In Assembly Soon.

Club Contest Will Climax Campaign

Group That Leads Assembly
Demonstration Of Rules
Of Safety To Get Prize.

The Safety Campaign which has been the main topic under discussion, will come to a close near the end of the semester. The prizes for the poster, essay, and scrapbook contests will be awarded by Mr. Snider at an assembly in the near future. The judge for the essays will be under the direction of the English department. The other judges have not been decided yet. The essays contest, which is one of the important phases of the campaign, is being held among the English students. A separate contest is being conducted for the freshmen sophomores, juniors and seniors. Each English teacher is choosing the best essay turned in to him and will pass them on to Mr. Benjamin Null. Mr. Null will decide upon the four or five in each class group which he considers best. The winners in each division will be awarded a South Side safety sign for an automobile license. A grand prize will be given for the best essay of the four or five winners.

Posters Are Exhibited
A poster contest is also being held, for which all art students are eligible. The work was done in the art classes under the supervision of the teachers. A few exceptionally fine ones are being shown in the display case in the front hall. Students whose work is being exhibited are: Sue Wallace, Paul Boyer, Hubert Nichter, and Mary Martha Hobrock. A first and second prize will be given.

A scrapbook contest which is open to all students who wish to enter is another contest being held. Anything which might tend to increase safety observance by pointing out the disaster resulting from accidents may be pasted in the book. At the end of a certain period to be named later, the books will be collected and judged and a prize given for the best book.

Test To Be Given
Daily lessons are being studied in the home rooms. These lessons, which are prepared on mimeographed sheets, were obtained from information sent.

Geneva Burwell Speaks To Club

North Side Teacher Of English
Talks Before So-Si-Y Group
On Place Of Business Woman.

"Women in the professional world not only occupy important places in the modern business world, but they have also proved their prowess in handling responsible positions through the ages," so stated Miss Geneva Burwell, English instructor at North Side, whose talk on woman's place in the world was the feature of So-Si-Y's regular meeting, which was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Greeley Room.

Miss Burwell stated that as far back in history as Biblical times, women filled responsible positions. She gave as illustrations: Deborah, the prophet- ess; Sappho, the Greek poetess; Cleo- patra, the Egyptian queen; and Por- tia, the lawyer in the "Merchant of Venice."

The theme of the meeting, for which Ruth Reitz was chairman, was "Wom- en Pathfinders." Leona Menze, a mem- ber of the committee, read as devo- tions, "Portrait of Grandmother." Betty Waldrop played several selections on the piano; and Virginia Ba- ker, accompanied by Ruth Baade, sang several songs.

Several members of the committee presented reports on the various city civic organizations which are under the auspices of women. These girls and other subjects were: June Haeger, Daughters of the American Revolu- tion; Marjorie Schueman, College Club; and Inez Thompson, Business and Professional Women.

During the business meeting, an announcement was made of the annual Christmas party, at which the Polar- y Club of North Side will be the guest of So-Si-Y. Plans for the club's safety skit were also discussed.

Eagle Scout Award Is Given To Robert Hirschy

Another South Side student is to re- ceive a singular honor. Robert E. Hirschy, a sophomore, is to be made an Eagle Scout, the highest award a Boy Scout can receive. Robert is a member of troop 25 which meets at the South Wayne School. He will receive the award from L. L. Hotchkiss, the Scout executive in the Anthony Wayne Area of Boy Scouts, this evening at the Chamber of Commerce Building during the Court of Honor. Robert is one of the two boys to be made Eagle Scouts during the Court of Honor this evening; the other boy, however, does not attend South Side.

Another Tea Dance To Be Held Friday

Another tea dance will be given Friday, December 6, pre- ceding the South Side-Butler basketball game. The main fea- ture of the dance will be a play given by Richard Vogelsang, Harriet Yapp, and Rosemary Lehman. The newly organized South Side orchestra will play. The chaperones for the dance will be Miss Pittenger and Miss Kiefer. The committee in charge of the dance consists of: Virginia Vesey, Bernadette Dy- gert, Harriet Yapp, and Rose- mary Lehman under the super- vision of Miss Oppelt. Another tea dance will be held before Christmas.

Wild Animals To Be Feature For Assembly

Scheduled For This Friday;
Dr. Harwood To Give Talk
On Many Jungle Beasts.

Picture Campaign
For Totem Begun

January Is Date Planned for Underclassmen; Charge Is To Be Twenty-Five Cents.

Friday, December 6, will be the date for an assembly to be held by the 1936 Totem, which will feature Dr. Harwood, who has just returned after twenty-five years in Africa's darkest jungles. The assembly will be held at 10-20, and pupils will be excused from their classes to attend this entertain- ment, which will cost ten cents.

Dr. Harwood will give a humorous talk and bring onto the floor of the gymnasium some of the wild animals which he has captured. The entire profit from the meeting will be used to help clubs to pay for their pictures in the Totem. All of the money made from the affair will be divided evenly among them.

This interesting wild-animal trapper will give the talk and description of his experiences and thrills in an in- teresting and humorous manner. Tickets will be sold in the home rooms and by clubs in the school.

The underclassmen picture drive was started last week under the di- rection of Mary Martha Hobrock. Un- derclassmen are to pay to their home room agents who are listed below, twenty-five cents for the publishing of their picture in the yearbook. The pic- tures will be taken at the school when a sufficient number of pictures have been paid for by underclassmen. The present schedule provides for the tak- ing of these pictures sometime during the first part of January.

Any underclassman who wishes to buy additional pictures before Christ- mas may have his picture taken at the Jefferson Studio by paying twenty-five cents to the home room agent and presenting at the Jefferson Studio in Calhoun and Jefferson, the ticket given to him by his agent. This en- titles him to two proofs or four proofs if an additional fifty cents is paid. The pictures are the same price as senior pictures, one dozen, four dollars and fifty cents; one-half dozen, three dol- lars. The list of home room agents follows:

Faculty And Wives To Be Entertained

Executive Board Of P-T. A. Will Entertain December 9, During Special Party In Greeley Room

Members of the school faculty and their wives will be entertained by the Executive Board of the Parent-Teachers' Association at an evening party, Monday, December 9. The party will take place in the Greeley room with a suggestion of Christmas decorations and favors. It will start at 8 o'clock and will carry on through the evening until 10 o'clock when refreshments will be served in the cafeteria.

The party will probably be contin- ued in there. The Executive Board of the Parent-Teachers' Association in- cludes all the presiding officers of each class and the chairmen of all commit- tees. It is described as an annual af- fair, in which the general idea is to have an enjoyable time.

Last year the party was such a grand success that a larger crowd and a better time is assured this year. The entertainment for the evening will not be in the form of a stiff program, but rather it will be informal in nature and one in which everyone partici- pates.

The teachers are the guests of the association and the expense for the evening will be paid for individually by the Executive Board. The even- ing's entertainment and program is in charge of Mrs. Horace C. Horn, and refreshments are in charge of Mrs. Harry F. Kelsey.

Mineral Collections Are Large, Attractive

Mrs. Whelan's beginning physical geography classes have recently com- pleted their study of rocks and min- erals. Many of the collections handed in this year were exceptionally large and were arranged in especially nice boxes. The largest and best arranged collections were made by Ruth Pow- ell, Chris Kruckeberg, Adah Baum- gartner, Carl Banks, James Botz, Harry Erle, Melvin Kessling, and Robert Broderick.

All Lettermen To Be Guests At Big Affair

Is Banquet Chairman

A. Verne Flint, faculty adviser for the Lettermen's Club, is supervising preparations for the banquet to be given by the organization in the cafe- teria tonight.

A. Verne Flint

Some of the outstanding personages to be present are: Noble Kizer of Pur- due, who is bringing about six South Side graduates with him; E. C. Hayes, track coach at Indiana University, and Carl Burt, director of athletics at North Manchester College. North- western, Michigan, and Notre Dame will also be represented.

The ensemble of South Side will also provide entertainment.

The athletes should feel right at home at the banquet, because of the furs representing football, basket- ball, and track stars parading between the candle goal posts and the menus which have the insignia and colors of the schools represented painted on the outside.

Much credit is due to the members of the Booster Club who served on the decorations committee. The members who served are: Ann Hull, Anna Bre- mer, Bob Lee, Evelyn Kruse, Virginia Greiner, Betty Wolf, and Georgianna Jacobs. These people worked all va- cation on these decorations.

The officials of Fort Wayne who were contacted before the dinner was announced, seemed to be very en- thusiastic over the idea. They also promised to have good sized dele- gations on hand for the affair.

The cost of the banquet is to be forty cents per plate.

Math-Science Plans Potluck For Members

Miss Mary Paxton To Speak About Calendar; Meeting
Scheduled Friday Evening

The Math-Science Club will hold its regular monthly meeting on Friday, December 6 in the Greeley Room. This meeting, however, due to the basket- ball game which is scheduled for the same evening will begin at 5:30 with a potluck. This will be followed by a very interesting program under the direction of Ruth Adler, vice-presi- dent.

Miss Mary Paxton will speak on the subject of calendars and will tell of the different kinds, especially those of the Aztecs. This will be followed by a speech by Ruth Fowler. She will tell of the formation and types of fossils. In addition, she will give the principal types and the ages. Also there will be picture illustrations.

Those members who are planning to attend this meeting should sign up im- mediately in room 16. The menu will consist of meat loaf, potato salad, sandwiches, pickles, olives, cakes, coo- kies, fruit salad, potato chips, and Coca Cola. Members are requested to please come promptly at 5:30 so that the meeting may get underway early since there is a basketball game the same evening.

A nominating committee has been chosen to select candidates who will be elected at the next meeting, which is in January. Those on the com- mittee are Mildred Foellinger, James Sweet, Jim Dern, and Selma Liff. This committee, with Miss Fiedler and Mr. Whelan, faculty advisers, will meet in the near future to select the can- didates for election.

The date of the January meeting is not definitely known as yet, because of other events scheduled for the same evening.

Philatelic Plans Party With Christmas Theme

A Christmas party has been planned for the next meeting of the Philatelic Club which will be held December 11 in the Voorhees Room. Games will be the main feature of the program, and at the close of the party refreshments will be served. Plans for a Christmas basket to be filled by the club will be discussed at the meeting.

Those in charge of this meeting are: Hazel Kuttler, Bob Gargett, Maxine Mariotte, Arlene Kreiser, LaVon Cook and Geraldine Valiton. Alumni mem- bers who were present are: Bob Long, Max Tricht, Dick Russell, Frank Montgomery, Helen Hickman, James Clapper, Violet Wittmer, Mildred Hoerner, and Clayton Kilpatrick.

Mrs. Whelan Confesses That She Finds Rocks Interesting

An acquired knowledge and a mutual interest in the study of physical geography is the knowledge professed by Mrs. Lloyd K. Whelan on the subject taught by her husband, Lloyd K. Whelan, our physical geography teacher.

Mrs. Whelan was educated in Grandview High School, Grandview, Indiana, and then took a two-year course in the Indiana State Normal School, at Terre Haute.

Her favorite subject, she declares, was English, but now she likes physical geography and considers it quite interesting. She especially likes the study of rocks and already she and her husband take quite a bit of time on hikes to explain the different kinds of rocks to their children. The result is this: both children are now always on the lookout for pretty rocks, and constantly are bringing in small piles.

Reading Views Differ

Mr. Whelan tries to point out to his children the outstanding geographical features of the rivers and lakes around Fort Wayne, and already pours into their young minds the sub- ject that takes all of his attention. Home life seems to be peaceful as Mr. Whelan just will not argue. He seems to be broad-minded in his views and will give in to other people's opinions.

Reading views do conflict, however. Mrs. Whelan enjoys fiction and books while Mr. Whelan considers them a waste of time and effort. He, there- fore, spends most of his time in sci- entific magazines, The National Geo- graphic Magazine, and they both unite in an interest for the Readers' Digest Athletes Of North Side, Cen- tral, Central Catholic At Dinner Here Tonight.

University, College Groups To Come

Prominent Coaches Will Be Present; Booster Club
Provides The Decorations.

For the first time in the history of South Side, a banquet, inviting the ettermen and outstanding athletes of Central, North Side, Central Catholic, and South Side, will be sponsored by the Lettermen's Club of South Side. It is being held to promote a better sense of sportsmanship and to create a better feeling toward each other. Fred Nye, president of the club, will act as toastmaster. Other officers of the club are: Bud Lee, vice-president, and Joe Close, secretary. Mr. A. Verne Flint is the adviser of the club. The event is to be held in the South Side cafeteria.

Some of the outstanding personages to be present are: Noble Kizer of Pur- due, who is bringing about six South Side graduates with him; E. C. Alumni Honored At Library Potluck

George Anna Martin, Miss Shoup
Welcome 1935 Members;
Dick Russell Gives Response.

Alumni members of the Library Club were entertained at a potluck held on Tuesday, November 26, in the Greeley Room.

After the dinner, the alumni were welcomed by George Anna Martin and Miss Emma Shoup, sponsor of the club. The response was then given by Dick Russell, who acted as the club president last year. Various songs were then sung, accompanied by Bob Gargett at the piano and capably led by Frank Montgomery.

The toastmistress in charge of the entertainment of the affair was Max- ine Mariotte, program chairman for the year. A short business meeting was conducted by Martha Franz, president, and a report was given by Vera El- linger, Inter-Club Congress representa- tive.

Those in charge of this meeting are: Hazel Kuttler, Bob Gargett, Maxine Mariotte, Arlene Kreiser, LaVon Cook and Geraldine Valiton. Alumni mem- bers who were present are: Bob Long, Max Tricht, Dick Russell, Frank Montgomery, Helen Hickman, James Clapper, Violet Wittmer, Mildred Hoerner, and Clayton Kilpatrick.

and Nation. They also seem to have quite a few telephone calls—mostly salesmen, Mrs. Whelan explains it.

Mrs. Whelan Is Satisfied

She also has a pet peeve, I learned, it seems that she particularly dislikes having to look through piles of old pa- pers to try and find a clipping which her husband so negligently forgot to cut out. But, too, Mr. Whelan ex- presses his extreme annoyance when people get up and leave a meeting be- fore it has been concluded and thus create a great disturbance.

Mrs. Whelan is expected by quite a few people to know a lot about her husband's subject and, of course, she politely tells them what she does know and then skips the rest. One thing, however, which does not irritate her is that lady friends expect her to give their favored sons or daughters a little push by way of a good word for the Na- tional Honor Society. Her response to this is "What I don't know; I can't tell" and she just drops the subject.

Mrs. Whelan, in the whole, is quite pleased in her role of teacher's wife, even though it does require much time and effort. She is of the opinion that Mr. Whelan is very well suited to his work and everything is quite satisfac- tory. That's the thing that counts.

Pursuit of Happiness

Surrounded as we are by many absorbing and interesting things, few of us think what would happen if we were suddenly deprived of them. We do not fully appreciate the happiness to be found in our families, for no one has ever forcibly taken us from them. We do not appreciate being able to move about as we please, for we have rarely been ordered about against our will. We do not appreciate the food we eat and the heat in our homes, for the government has never restricted them during our comparatively short lifetime.

But that is what happened, at least in part, to our own parents during the last war. Our own parents went without many types of food on different days of the war. Many of our own parents were literally yanked from their beginning careers and put in the army against their wills. They were not killed, for if they were, we would not be here today. It may have never occurred to us, but we might have had a few more friends but that those who would have been their parents were killed in the World War.

But we in the United States did not fully feel the horrors of the last war. We were not killed and tortured in groups like the Armenians. We were not slowly starved by famine like the Russians. We were not subjects to the absolute rules of dictators like Mussolini and Hitler. Our own prosperous cities and countryside were not destroyed by bombs, nor their soil fertilized by murdered men, as were those of the French.

Another war might do that to us. Then we could feel as old, and cultured as European nations.

Permanent Results

Since the safety campaign has been in full swing, we have come to notice more and more the excellent spirit of South Side students and teachers. Everyone is entering wholeheartedly into the campaign. Everyone has been aroused by the efforts of the Safety Council. Everyone has been educated as to the cause of accidents and as to the proper prevention of them.

However, the real purpose of the campaign is not to arouse enthusiasm for the cause of safety for the few days of the campaign, but to have a lasting influence on all of us. If in the future we forget all we have learned during the campaign, it will not have been a success. The work of the campaign is not to make the city safe only for the few days of its duration.

An accomplishment is measured by how long it stays accomplished and not by temporary achievement. If our town becomes safer in the future because of this campaign, it will really have accomplished something.

Thus far, we have done well, but the thing to be done is to form a permanent crusade for the cause of safety.

Will the efforts of the campaign be lost? Will the real purpose of it have failed? Will the work be only temporary?

The right answer to these questions depends on the spirit in which we finish the work that is being begun. If the campaign continues as well as it has started, it will be a big success.

Trend In Movies

Everything improves with age. Never has this been more true than in the moving picture industry. Fifteen years ago the flickering, jerky, disconnected bits of pantomiming accompanied by worded apologies were considered the height of an evening's entertainment. From the small home-made nickelodeon, the movies have grown to a gigantic industry reproducing highly interesting and educational classics on the screen. Nowadays through the aid of improved machinery, better lighting, expert filming, and efficient direction and supervision, we may enjoy a smooth, well-co-ordinated and interesting evening of diversion.

Critics no longer have occasion to condemn the movies for they are now clean, wholesome, educational, and entertaining; and it is a liberal education in itself to see and hear such great dramatists as Helen Hayes, George Arliss, Charles Laughton, and Katherine Hepburn.

More good movies make for culture and education. More poor ones make for vulgarity and ignorance. What is our choice?

Carrying On

With Kenny Scott

Since this column has previously been deluged with dirt only about pupils, I'm dedicating my contribution to pedagogical personalities. Yow suh!

It's refreshing to have a teacher who doesn't laugh at his own jokes. For aspiring teachers, his name is Wilburn Wilson.

Nomination for most vivacious teacher: Miss Dochtermann; for the most philanthropic: Miss Thorne; for the one with the biggest store of NEW jokes: Mr. Makey.

Short descriptions of knowledge disher-outers:

Should have been: Ward O. Gilbert—Master of ceremonies with that CUTE clowning. Miss Suter: Comienne. Greeley Room: Crepe paper factory.

You're a chubby little rascal, Mr. Murphy; I bet you drink milk.

Despiser of:
Crepe paper Miss Kiefer
Latin Miss Oppelt (Oh yeah!)
Me Now, the Teachers
Burke The whole English faculty, only they won't admit it.

Thoughts: I'll bet Mr. Briner was a healthy little brat. I wonder how Mr. Snider would look without his foliage? I'm sure no one could listen to the smooth rhythm of Guy Lombardo and then call jazz crazy.

Guess who says this:
"Them's my sentiments."
"We'll have manual labor today."
"Jump around like a flea on a hot pie pan."
"Absurd."

What teacher likes to: Give the kangaroo walk? Throw apples around? Kick the bucket?

My idea of the meanest teacher: One who springs a surprise test. One who springs dotes on partiality.

The Goddess of Discord left an apple in the Times room with the inscription, "To the fairest teacher of South Side. No hair pulling." Since we could not pick the winner, we decided to compose the perfect teacher. RESULT: Miss Peck's eyes. Miss Paxton's hair. Miss Patterson's mouth. Miss Ley's nose. Miss Van Gorder's personality. Miss McCloskey's memory. Greta Garbo's feet.

YELLOWSTONE

The First Of A Series Of Visits To Be Made To Our National Beauty Spots

Travel! See the world! Know your country! Let us take you on an all-expense tour. The price? A subscription to the South Side Times. Go places and see things in your easy chair! Pity the poor tourists who have to drive miles over bumpy roads to see the sights you will see! No expenses and all comfort. At last the really ideal way to travel.

Right now we are traveling through the nation's playground, Yellowstone National Park.

The dense pine forests partially hide the abrupt jagged sides of the surrounding mountains. Someone in our car points to a distant peak gradually rising into view in the sky in front of us. What is that small ribbon circling and winding up the mountainside? Yes, of course, that's our road, the one we will be traveling in a few minutes. What are those animals lumbering along the side of the road? Whew! They are bears! We thought those stories about bears roaming around in the park were fairy tales, but we have to believe them now for we have just passed three verifications.

By the other side of the road now runs a small mountain stream gurgling and jumping over the rocks in its rough bed. The thick foliage of the nearby pine forests hide most of the wild life, but occasionally we catch glimpses of the beautiful plumage of some of the species of birds. A small deer is now seen springing back into the cover of the forest because of its fear of our approaching car.

We see something resembling smoke, coming from another spot near the road. Perhaps it is a forest fire! We stop to gain a place for ourselves as heroes by putting out the fire only to find that the supposed fire is a large hot spring with steam issuing forth from it. As we watch the water pouring over its edge we decide to test whether the water is really hot or not. It is hot!

The car starts again and we travel along on our way once more. Now we come to the foot of another gigantic mountain and begin the long climb to its summit. The car pulls, strains, and coughs, but steadily grinds onward. We have accomplished it! We have succeeded! We have reached the top now and look back on the road. As we gaze downward we shudder upon seeing the danger of the spots we have just passed.

From there we continue on and record more thrills in the wonderful history of our trip through Yellowstone Park.

Good Shooting!

Down South

It is indeed surprising how winning a turkey gobble will affect a person. The chubby little lass who won the Thanksgiving morsel at the Senior Hi-Y party sat serenely on the floor and did a gracious fop for the entire audience, who rewarded her efforts with much laughter.

From quite reliable sources, it has been ascertained that two h-men of our great institution of learning are aspiring to displace Fred Astaire from his high place of eminence as a dancer. It seems that John Bex and Dick Gebhart are in training to learn the fundamentals of "tripping lightly on fantastic toe."

To the writer, it has always been evident that the only use for a telephone booth was for the purpose of conversation. However, after brushing away the dense fog in the booth at a Thanksgiving dance, it was very amazing to find Bob Gargett diligently reading the instructions for the use of a telephone.

Pity the life of the poor columnist who must turn out dirt about the activities of his dear friends and at the same time attempt to retain their friendship. But shower even more pity on the poor columnist who suddenly finds himself the object of murderous intentions because of certain articles which appear in his column without his knowledge.

Shoes and Ships

Awake! for dutied toil since fleeting dawn
Has flung all else from bed with hasty yawn
And Lo! the wrecker of sweet dreams blares out
The life of each night's death; to school be gone!

WE ARE REALLY quite disappointed in our elders, and, like our teachers, are convinced that they should never help us. It seems that once upon a time a student had the theme-writing jitters, so he asked his mother to write them. She being an obliging parent, he wrote few, if any, themes in high school. All fine and dandy, you may think, but he had a nasty habit of flunking composition.

Came the sad day he departed for college, but they wouldn't let him take his mother, so he had to write his own stuff. He did pretty well in college composition.

"NOTHING EVER happens" may be the motto of a few of us. In fact, days sometimes go by in which nothing DOES happen, but we can cheer up now; we have a potential movie star in our midst. Among the five hundred applicants claimed by a local paper to have entered their movie test, Johnnies-on-the-spot might have noticed our own Dick (Pug) Miller standing before the cameras in the rain.

And just think how much fun it will be to smile nonchalantly when you make fifty grand a year, Pug, and say, "South Side? Ah, yes. I went there once I believe."

A MAILBOXER writes, "Nathan Taymeyer is in love...with his mother. Hurrah for Nat." Which proves that the modern youth is really cynical, and not the patient little knowledge gleaner parents so fondly imagine. But cheer up; there's a bull market in political commentators.

POP! WENT ANOTHER of our fond illusions. We have just learned that Gerry Platt once steered a plow through the soil, and we can't reconcile that with our amateur torch singer. We had always thought that torch singers were glittery and glamorous, but that just goes to show.

THERE MAY HAVE been more than met the eye when Martha Zeit forgot to pay for an off-year leap-year date. We won't hazard to guess.

Our Gift From Rome

Ambition is composed of ambi-about and ire-to go. In Roman times ambition applied to going about to solicit votes for office. So we speak today of a man's being ambitious for office. Today we have extended the idea to mean aspiring to wealth, fame, learning or any other thing thought to be desirable. To attain these things we have to go about.

Secrets to Seventeens

LOOK AT YOURSELF—Yes, look at yourself. Not when you are all fixed up and ready for a dance, but at unexpected moments when you are not conscious of your appearance. After a study period, do you find a pencil mark on your face, your hair disheveled, or your tie hanging limp? If you were photographed walking down the street, would it show your arms and head swung forward, one foot turning outward, your hat at an unbecoming angle, and your coat flopping open?

Become appearance-conscious! Every once in a while, when you are lost in thought, stop to look at yourself. It is funny what messes we can get into. Don't take the well-if-they-don't-want-me-as-I-am-I-don't-care attitude, because strangers judge you from your appearance.

Size up your appearance as a whole, instead of just your hair or dress; watch your finger-nails and shoes, too. When you buy a garment, don't choose it on its own, but see that it matches the rest of your outfit.

CRITICIZE YOURSELF—Never think of yourself as a finished product, but as one which can always be improved. Regard yourself as material for constantly changing pictures; then your appearance will never get in a rut. Each time you glance into a mirror, regard yourself with a fresh and critical eye, and never miss a chance to improve what you see. It's fun to stand off and make yourself a work of art which can be fixed any way you like.

Experiment with your hair dress, see that the colors you wear are flattering, and above all, make sure that your make-up matches your natural coloring and your clothes.

Most people vaguely envy beauty, but do little to attain it. They fuss over the impossibilities like their height, features, and bone structure, while they could accent their good points until the bad ones are less noticeable. With a little thinking and concentration, they might become as attractive as anyone else—but remember Rome wasn't built in a day, and beauty can't be gained overnight.

Shiver My Timbers! Winter's Icy Breath Has Come To Stay

At last Winter is here to stay. As one goes down the street amidst the flurrying snow and biting winds, everything seems to prove this fact. People are running around wearing earmuffs and mittens (gloves to you), and little boys are chasing around in the streets trying to find a car or truck to catch hold of and slide gaily along.

With the advent of winter comes much work for both those who want to work and those who don't. There is snow to be shoveled, walks to be cleaned, and furnaces to fire.

Yet winter is dreaded by many. Some, who are more fortunate, take their winters in Florida or sunny California. But we who remain at home must grin and bear it.

Christmas displays are gradually making their appearances in the store windows, some even putting forth gaily trimmed Christmas trees.

Even now some traffic accidents have occurred because "the streets were so slippery that I just couldn't stop." And newspapers keep reminding us that there are just a few more shopping days till Christmas. Today there are seventeen more days; so get busy, you guys and gals.

History Ought To "Put People On The Bones Of Experience"

SOME REASONS FOR THE STUDY OF HISTORY

By Maurice E. Murphy

The statement that a social problem is half solved when its history has been truthfully written is more than a half truth. As often stated, one objective or reason for studying history is to establish a real connection between the present and the past and with material or facts in mind, "make a stab" at guessing, or at least anticipating, what the future has in store for us. In this sense, history is no more than things said and done in the past. Many things may be said to have been done but not done with. We have to remember many things said and done to live our lives intelligently. We can't shake off our relation to the past, even if we should try desperately hard to do so, because value is based upon what we think of things in terms of experience, judgment and decision.

Facts In History

It is the facts of history upon which such judgments and decisions are based. Facts and their necessary time element, dates, have been called "the dry bones" of history. As a student and teacher of history I have no quarrel with him who thinks in like manner, if outlines and their arrangement of facts and dates are in themselves the chief requirement of a history course. All too many students feel that they have completed their history work when they have built up such an outline from the reading of history texts or other sources of historical facts and dates. I like to compare such an outline thus made to the little sixth grade girl who was trying to define the human skeleton to her physiology teacher. She called it "the bones with the people off." Here is the excuse for the history teacher, to help the student place the "people on the bones," to make it a real live human subject showing how people have lived in the past and how their lives and their living have made the frame work of our social, political, industrial and constitutional national life.

Progress And History

History deals with man's progress. Such progress has not always been in a steady line. Should it be possible to view it closely, it would appear to be an uneven, perhaps a broken line or in a zigzag fashion. Man's progress has been slow and gradual, not blocked off in units or partitions. We organize the facts in this way because it may seem that they mark the broken places in what appears to be the zigzag line. James Truslow Adams remarks in his Epic of America, that in the continuous process which we call history, it is all too easy to point out specific dates and speak of turning points, when, in fact, all that happens flows from what has been into what is to be, with a lack of sharp divisions which is annoying to the chronicler but true to the living process.

This is also the problem of the teacher and the student as well as the writer of history. Viewed from a distance and in a general way, the brok-alignment given us in the curriculum to cover the facts and reading and teaching of World or sometimes called

American History Differs

In writing and teaching American history we have followed with some exceptions, the narrative style of history. We try to picture events in the lives of founders and builders of the nation. The American nation is democratic in its source and origin. The aim of history teaching is to appraise the people of history and their activities and the way they affected the average man and his institutions. Also the way this "average man" felt about the things that were done and the way his leaders influenced him to think and to act. This, I think, may be recognized as the democratic ideal in the teaching of American history. I ask in all sincerity, how can any teacher of American history, knowing the source, the ideals and price paid, teach anything contrary to such ideals?

Illustration Given

To illustrate the meaning of the above statement: Mark Sullivan remarked that during the World War he was passing through an Indiana city where the local G. A. R., all dressed in their faded blue uniforms, with what remained of their old life and Drum Corps had come to the railroad station to say "good bye" to their grandsons so soon to take their places at the front. With tearful eyes they played "Rally 'Round the Flag Boys." A traveling salesman from Chicago with an accent that indicated a rather recent Americanization was heard to remark naively, "Who were them old guys, anyway?" As one observes this unfamiliarity with our basic traditions and the apparent unresponsiveness to any sentiment concerning them, the need of emphasizing the place such things occupy in the building of our nation seems apparent. Knowledge of American history, if learned with some understanding of forces, facts, traditions and fine sentiments that have made and preserved us a nation can, if properly taught, contribute to the keeping of the fine ideals of the democratic social order of American life. The study of history should help the pupil who inherits all the benefits of our complex civilization to understand its bases and principles and to acquire the character that can support and keep it. Leadership is necessary in our democratic social order, but an equilibrium must be established by a basic understanding of the ordinary run of men that they may understand our social, political and industrial problems and with them, the historical background of such problems.

Red Revolt Quelled

Fifty-Two To One

Clipper To Outposts Of Empire

By Ann Abbett

There was fighting again in Brazil—this time in Rio De Janeiro. It was a reckless Red revolt, but was wiped out by big guns and bayonets. The aviation school was burned down; and sergeants and privates were forced to leave, driven away by bombs from planes and cannon fire. Rio Grande Do Norte, seaport capital which had been flying the Red flag for a week, was invaded by federal troops, and five hundred rebels escaped. Leaders of the revolt were held for court martial, and the government believes the uprising is over.

Il Duce now has a desperate plan of action. If an embargo is applied, he will withdraw all Italian ministers and ambassadors from countries applying oil sanctions; Italy will resign from the League of Nations; and the "death squad" air force of the navy will immediately attack the British fleet in the Mediterranean Sea. It will be a sudden attempt to break the fifty-two nations threatening the Italian nation.

The China Clipper, which sped toward Manila last week, landed there Friday. It flew at 180 miles an hour in front of a thirty-mile-an-hour tailwind at 7,000 feet. It left California November 22 with approximately 110 pieces of mail. The actual flying time over the 8,000-mile trip was sixty hours, but the ship stopped at Honolulu, Midway, and Wake Islands overnight, and spent one day in Guam.

Fifteen Archer Speakers Will Attend Debate

Annual Conference Will Be Held On Friday At Purdue; Tour Is Planned.

The annual debate conference which is always held at Purdue University in Lafayette, Indiana, will be this Friday and will be attended by fifteen persons from South Side High School. Those representatives from South Side are Maxine Mariotte, Maxine Borchert, JoAnne Smith, Hazel Kuttler, Ruth Adler, Sonia Velkoff, Georgianna Martin, Myron Jones, Bob Adams, Dick Helm, Manuel Rothberg, Morgan Harrison, Bernadette Dgyert, Miss Benner, and Mr. Noll.

The conference attendants will leave Friday morning and will return Saturday afternoon. At 2:30 Friday afternoon, there is to be a debate between Purdue and Indiana on the subject of "State Medicine." At 3:45, Professor A. Craig Baird, director of debate at the University of Iowa, will give a detailed criticism and analysis of the debating done by the two teams. At 5:30 the various high schools will attend a large banquet, the principal speaker of which is Major Norman Imrie of Columbus Post Dispatch, who will speak on "Victory by Surprise." Entertainment is planned for the students at 9 o'clock; a play called "Hearts of Gold," a melodrama, will be given. On Saturday at 8 o'clock is a coach's session led by L. S. Winch of Purdue, and Myron Phillips, from Wabash. At the same time, a tour of the campus is provided for the students. A general session, held at 10 o'clock, will include Dr. Morris Fishbein of Chicago, Illinois, editor of the "Journal of the American Medical Association," who will speak on "Case Against State Medicine," and Dr. Dudley Saul of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, professor of medicine at Hahnemann Medical College, who is to speak on "Case for State Medicine." At 2 o'clock the day's program will conclude with radio auditions for the debate teams.

Special Program Planned For Philo

Mrs. Ralph L. Feagle Will Give Christmas Reading; Yearbook Of Club Will Be Distributed.

Elaborate plans for the Philaethian Christmas meeting to be held Monday evening, December 8, at 3:25 in the Greeley Room have been completed. Features of this meeting will be a Christmas reading by Mrs. Ralph L. Feagle, singing by the quartet, a harp and song selection by Helen Flaig, and a piano selection by Reginald Gerig.

Mrs. Ralph L. Feagle's ability at giving readings has already been established in the Philo Club at previous meetings.

Quartet To Sing
Preceding Mrs. Feagle's reading the quartet, which is under the direction of Helen Flaig, will sing several selections. Other members of the quartet are Ruth Fritz, Sybil Knudson, and Harriet Yapp. The quartet, in addition to other songs, will sing The Cantique de Noel.

This will be followed by a piano selection by Reginald Gerig.

Following the Christmas reading by Mrs. Feagle, Helen Flaig will play the harp and sing Silent Night. The program will be concluded with the serving of refreshments. The chairman of the refreshment committee is Betty Rose Lehman, who will be assisted by Gwen Everson, Ina Claire Chappell, Eva Allison, Joan Kennedy, and Helen Anderson.

The decorations are in charge of Virginia Griener. She will be assisted by Margaret Dickmeyer, Marjorie Scheuman, Betty Muntzing, Dorothy Moore, and Sonia Velkoff.

The planning of the program itself was accomplished by the united efforts of Mary Martha Hobrock, program chairman, and other officers of the club.

Guests Are Permitted
The Philaethian yearbook which is under the direction of Mary Michaels, will be ready to distribute at this meeting. This book will contain the program for the rest of the year with valuable information regarding the annual alumni tea and the musicale. Also it will contain the songs and other things of interest to Philo members.

Each Philo member may, if they wish, bring a guest to this meeting. This may be anyone whom they choose, their mother, sister, girl friend, boy friend, or teacher. Quite a few people who were not Philo members have been heard to remark that they would like to attend this most impressive meeting and so it is for this reason that such arrangements have been made.

Those who are interested in taking part in a play called "No Men Wanted" should come to room 65 this evening after school where tryouts for the play will start. "No Men Wanted" is a one-act comedy that is unusually humorous. Those who did not get to take part in the last play will have their chance in this one.

Four New 1500 Club Members Announced
Just preceding a meeting which was held to announce new changes in the Times staff, Miss Rowena Harvey announced that four members of the staff had earned 1500 points.

These students who are now new members of the Times' 1500 Club are Violet Garton, Ruth Rose, Reginald Gerig, and Leslie Johnson.

If these students are seen with a broad smile on their faces, one may readily account it to the fact that they are now owners of bronze pins in addition to being members of 1500 Club.

Heads Delegates

Miss Dorothy Benner

Miss Dorothy Benner, public speaking instructor at South Side, will take a group of Archer students to the annual convention to be held at Purdue University tomorrow and Saturday.

cured from National Safety Headquarters, various insurance companies, the traffic sergeant, and local automobile agencies. After these lessons have been studied carefully, an examination will be given. Two prizes will be awarded for the highest grades.

As a climax to other contests a big contest will be conducted among all South Side clubs who wish to enter. The object will be to put on an assembly program demonstrating several rules of safety. The club putting on the best program will receive a cash prize of ten dollars.

Pebble Pups To Talk On "Our State Parks"

The program for the Pebble Pups Club today, will be on State Parks. Billy McNutt will be the chief speaker.

Mable Bevington, who will talk on the Dunes State Park, and Ruth Fowler, who will talk on the Turkey Run State Park, will be featured speakers.

This club was just recently reorganized, and many new members are needed, especially boys. Anyone who is at all interested in nature study, conservation, or topics relative to these are invited to join.

Six Sophomores Are Victors In Speech Contest

Finals To Be Held Soon In Freshman-Sophomore Divisions; Judges Listed.

Leslie Johnson, Allen Garrison, LaVerne De Keel, Kathleen Wittmer, Dalton McAllister and Oscar Eggers were judged winners in the Sophomore division of the Freshman-Sophomore speech contest, held Tuesday, November 26, before the public speaking classes. LaVerne De Keel and Alan Garrison tied for first place in the second period, while Dalton McAllister and Oscar Eggers were tied during the fourth event.

Judges for the contest, in addition to the members of the class, included Miss Dorothy Benner and Miss Virginia Kincaid. A complete list of the winners follows: First period, Leslie Johnson, first; Ruth Gerber and Joan Bonsh, tie for second place. Second period, Alan Garrison and LaVerne De Keel, tie for first; Robert Weil, second. Third period, first, Kathleen Wittmer; George DuWaldt and Mary Jane Klomp, tie for second. Fourth period, Dalton McAllister and Oscar Eggers tie for first; Ray Racine, second.

Finals in both the Freshman and Sophomore divisions will be held in the near future. Winners in the Freshman division were selected in the contests held Monday and are as follows: Carl Goebel, Joe Box, Janice Cross, and Frieda Schubert.

One freshman and one sophomore will finally be chosen. The winner in each division will have his name engraved on a plaque presented by the Psi Iota Xi sorority.

One Hundred Go To French Skate

Charles Lahrman, Elmer Webb, Bob Bauserman, Jack Kelly, Bob Martin Win Prizes.

Approximately one hundred people attended the annual French Club Skating Party which was given at Ball's Skating Rink on Saturday, November 30 at eight o'clock in the evening. Everyone present had a great time in spite of the many spills and tumbles.

Five attendance prizes were awarded at the party, the lucky ones being all boys. Charles Lahrman won the first prize which was a large box of fine Martha Washington candies. The other four prizes were won by Elmer Webb, Bob Bauserman, Jack Kelly, and Bob Martin.

The prizes which were given at the party were donated by Regal's Drug Store, Morrow Nut House, the Martha Washington Shop, Carroll Perfumers, and The South Side Pharmacy.

The chaperones for the affair were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Schurenberg, Miss Pearl Rehorst, Mr. Alvaro Ferlini, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haven. The officers of the club, the various committees, and Miss Olive Perkins, club adviser, were largely responsible for the great success of the Skating Party. The officers are president, Theo Schurenberg; vice-president, Lillian Gable; secretary, Anna Bremer, and point recorder, Violet Garton. Those on the attendance prize committee were Vivian Hickman, Nancy Newell, and Marian McAttee.

Another meeting of the club will be held today in the Voorhees Room. At this meeting a short story will be made at Lyons, one of the chief manufacturing cities of France. Earl Paxton and Max Goddard will conduct the members through the city by giving the historical facts concerning the town, the main manufactured products, and other important facts.

Music Assembly Will Be Tuesday

To Feature Seasonal Selections; Demonstration Is Scheduled; Tickets Will Be Five Cents.

The second in a series of monthly music assemblies will be held next Tuesday morning in the gymnasium, according to Mr. Jack Wainwright, director of music here.

Seasonal, classical and popular selections will be featured by the various musical organizations. Another demonstration of an instrument used in either the band or the orchestra will also be given. The demonstration will include a talk by Mr. Wainwright and a first-hand demonstration by the members of the organization.

An admission price of five cents will be charged for the program; the proceeds of which will go to the department's fund. Tickets will be on sale next week in the home rooms.

Times Announces New Column For Subscribers' Contributions

To provide a wider variety of reading on the editorial page, the staff announces a new weekly contributor's column, to begin next week. Subscribers are urged to submit topical, terse, brief essays, personal experiences, original humor, or any type of writing, subject to these restrictions: All verse must be in perfect metre. All writing must be an original development of an original theme. Due to insufficient space, no work submitted can exceed one and one-half typed double-spaced pages, and it is highly desirable that it be shorter. All work must be easily read. Work may be submitted, with the author's name, to the editor, or put in the west study hall mail box. The right of revision is reserved to the editorial staff. Themes are acceptable, provided they meet the other conditions. If contributions are insufficient, the Times must, of course, substitute staff articles. All dirt is destined for "Thru the Wringer."

Material must pass the approval of the editor, the general manager, Miss Harvey, and Mr. Snider to be published. If the project seems successful, the outstanding contributions of last month, passed on by the judges with the aid of school comment, will be announced in the Times.

Inter-Club Congress To Decorate Rooms

Instead of each club decorating the club rooms during the Christmas season, Inter-Club Congress has collected a nominal sum from each club and will decorate the rooms for everyone's use.

Of course, Christmas trees, both green and silver, will be the predominating factor of the decorations. Kenneth Scott, Margaret Crankshaw, and Lois Wyneken, the committee in charge of them, are making further plans for decorating with pine wreaths, candles with electric lighting, Paul Reynolds will be in charge of the latter.

Conference Meets To Adopt Program

Concerns Have Night Classes; Experts Serve As Teachers; Different Subjects Are Taught

"That the financing of the country's schools is a matter of paramount concern," is the assertion of the National Conference of the financing of education, which met two years ago in connection with the American Education Week. They adopted a program which, they believe, is essential to good education and a high plane of American culture.

The program recognizes the right of anyone, regardless of residence, race, or economic status to an adequate education and states that educational opportunities for every child and adult should be the obligation of local, state, and national government. A competent and fully trained teaching staff at all times so that effective teaching may be had. Taxation for the support of the schools should be justly shared by the public by an efficient tax system.

Reports should be made to the public that a better understanding may be had of the actions of the school board. The school board should be composed of fair, independent members who are responsive to the will of the people and free to adopt and carry out good policies for the system's betterment.

It is the responsibility of the local management to be capable of such services. It is the responsibility of the state administration to furnish sufficient financial support to carry out the program. A planned budget is necessary to provide the correct finances. It is the duty of the federal government to restore to people deprived of education by emergency conditions beyond their control the proper education facilities. If America is to recover prosperity and remain a democratic nation, it must preserve these essentials, it is asserted.

Posters Made By Four Art Students

Teach Various Safety Lessons; Are Displayed In Front Hall; Depict Dangers In Driving.

In observance of the safety campaign, four interesting posters which were made in the art classes are posted on one of the bulletin boards in the front hall.

The A B C's of safety are pictured in an interesting poster by Paul Boyer, a 12A. The inscription on the poster was "Always Be Careful—Save Life."

The warning, "Don't Duck Between Cars," was pictured with a duck painted on the poster. This poster was made by Mary Martha Hobrock.

Hubert Nichter, a 12A, portrayed "Death's Highway" in his poster. It is a picture of a speeding automobile with the "grim reaper" in the background.

Sue Wallace, 11B, drew her poster in the form of a question, "Are You Guilty of Speeding, Crowding, Turning in Short, Passing on Curves?" A number of automobiles were pictured with the questions drawn to impress the mind.

Green Initial Tilts To Be Against Butler, Michigan City

Archers Open Season Friday With Windmills

Play In South Side Gym Tomorrow Night, Go To Michigan City Saturday.

New Team, Coach To Show Wares

Green Wave May Be Able To Win From Butler, But M. C. Looks Formidable.

South Side's band of Archers will launch forth on their 1935-36 season Friday night when they meet Butler here. Saturday night they travel to Michigan City for their second game.

The reserve game here Friday night will start at 7:30 o'clock, and the varsity teams will meet an hour later.

The Archers start the new season with a new coach, a new system, and an almost new team. All eyes will be focused on the first team to be sent on the floor by Burl Friddle, inaugurating a new era in South Side basketball.

Try New Method

The Archers will receive a thorough testing next Friday and Saturday as they engage two fine teams, Butler and Michigan City, in the toughest pair of opening games scheduled by the Archers for a good many years. The Archers will probably not be so thoroughly schooled in the new method of play introduced by the new coach and a number of games should pass before they are able to exhibit the polished attack which takes time and experience to develop.

Butler will be South Side's initial opponent, and Mr. Friddle will probably have an opportunity to use his whole squad in order to get a line on the players when they are under fire. The Butler game was probably scheduled as a breather, but the Archers might have more trouble than is expected. The Windmills from Butler have six players returning from last year's varsity, and they will put a veteran aggregation on the floor this year against the Archers.

Butler Defeated Twice

Butler is boasting a none too enviable record this season, the Windmills having been twice defeated in five starts. Among the Butler victims are Angola and Albion, who were both defeated by top-heavy scores. Butler will sport new green and gold silk basketball suits.

On Saturday night the Archers take to the road to tangle with Michigan City, a proposition very different from the opener. Michigan City turned out one of the best quintets in the state last year, and it seems as if they are due to repeat. South Side will have to rise to heretofore unseen heights to take Michigan City into camp.

The tournament squad of last season was lost by graduation with one exception, forward Haughey. However, Coach Ellis had a strong reserve squad to fill up the holes left in his five.

The officials for the Butler tilt will be Somers and Chambers.

School Drops Football Football will be dropped next year at the John Hay High School, Cleveland, Ohio, because of $870 deficit this year.

Announce Schedule For C. C. Basketball

Nine Stars Lost To Team; Complete List Of Players, Games For Season Given.

Despite the loss of nine stars of the 1934-35 tournament squad, Coach Bill Barrett is quite optimistic about next season's basketball campaign. He has turned up some new material for the Irish that looks good but lacks the actual experience.

McArdle, first string center of last year, has been replaced by Jap Voirol, who has been out of school for a time and starting in C.Y.O. basketball. Jap is expected to be one of the best jumpers Central Catholic has had for a few years. He handles the ball well and is fairly fast. He stands out spectacularly at the pivot position. The guards and forwards who were lost by graduation last year are Schott, Hoch, Grout, Bobay, Morrison, Walsh, and Agenbrod.

Buzz Romary, the only 34-35 tournament man available this year, will hold down a guard position. He is five foot ten inches, a good shot, and plenty fast. Tony Barile and Jim Ballavin, both juniors, are having a lot of fight for the other guard position. Jack Boyd and Bob Disser are also contending for the center position against Jap Voirol. Cal Mudd, last colored lad, will probably hold down one of the forward posts and Phil Ball the other, although Paul Morris, Tom Pallone, and Jack Bobay are other possibilities.

Central Catholic will open their season next Saturday against Waterloo. Prior to entering the Catholic State Tournament, the Irish will have twenty tilts, including two with South Side and one with North Side and Central. Their schedule is as follows:

December 6—Waterloo, here.
December 7—Elmhurst, here.
December 13—New Haven, there.
December 19—Garrett, here.
December 20—Central.
December 27—South Side.
January 3—Butler, here.

Redskin, Tiger In City Series Conflict Friday

Will Be Second Game Of Season For Both Quintets; Meet At North Side Gym.

North Side's band of Redskins will renew their traditional rivalry with the Tigers of Central Friday night at the northern gymnasium. The tilt will be the initial city series tilt of the 1935-36 season.

It will be the second game for each team. In North Side's initial game against the scrappy Masonic Home five, they emerged with an easy victory of 25 to 14. Although they appeared a little green, they also appeared very promising. On the other hand the Central squad did not fare so well when they fell before the strong New Castle five by a score of 15-31.

Both teams have veteran material. Schollenberger, forward of North Side, led their scoring in the first game. Ryan, center, took a close second place. In the Tiger outfit, Kabisch, a guard, led the scoring, and Sitko, a veteran forward held the second place and Motter, a center, a close third.

Although too much importance cannot be placed on the results of the opening game, both teams appeared to be about equal in strength. Undoubtedly this game will prove to bear importance as to what each team can give and take.

Intramural Gossip

Intramural volleyball has gone over big this year. This is shown by the fact that there are twenty-seven teams entered. The team names and their captains are listed below:

Dukes, Cassidy; Yanks, Orr; Dopes, Schaff; Rinkydinks, Hosier; Stoges, Dent; Circulars, Ruppnow; Bombs, Blanks; Never Wins, Schmidt.

Scrubs, Kruse; Archers, Cochran; Cardinals, Roberts; Craiglets, Bennigan; Chumps, Faux; Anythings, Hall; Spartans, Garrison; Alvin Hooks, Pio; Potatoes, Bailey; Greenbacks, Lion Cubs, Gardner; Slugs, Tremper; Spikers, McKeeman; Sequoias, Kreider.

Cassady Wins Way To Handball Finals

Will Be One Of Candidates For Lightweight Title; Klotz, Roberts Go To Semi-finals.

Handball is rapidly progressing into the final stages of the annual tournament, with only 21 of the original 67 participants remaining in the race.

The lightweight league is nearest to the final games, as Cassidy has already battled his way through competition to play in the finals. The matches yet to be played off are those between Bollman and Bostick, and Aolman and Coen.

In the heavyweight division, Klotz defeated Griffin by scores of 15-2, 15-11, and Roberts won his match with Adams by scores of 15-4, 15-1. These two will play each other in the semi-finals. Other matches to be played next in the elimination schedule are Kelso-Lehman, Nichter-Craig, and Jackson-Kirtz.

Nussbaum vanquished Vogelsang by 15-4 and 15-11, and Trulock defeated Bennett with scores of 15-12 and 15-11 playing in the middleweight league. These two are scheduled to play in the semi-finals. Other matches to be decided in this division are those between Botz-McKeeman, Johnson-Perzson, and Keeler-Porter.

Name Kreider Ten-Pin Champ Of Intramurals

Clinches Title With 146 Average; Zelt Takes Second; Allway Wins Third Place.

Jack Kreider, a senior participant in intramural sports, won the bowling title in the annual championship tilt staged at Scott's Recreation Hall. His average score was 146. Warren Zelt, the bowler who had the highest scores in all of the three practice sessions, captured second place with an average of 129 2-3 points. Kenneth Allway followed with a very close third place, by averaging 123 points.

Kenneth Ross and Charles Zent played very close games, the former averaging 123 1-2 points for fourth place, and the latter making an average score of 124 2-3 for fifth. Some very good games were bowled: Kreider made the highest score of 204, and Zelt bowled two high scores, 160 and 161. The championship tilt reflected considerably the ability of the participants as displayed in the practice sessions, except in the case of Kreider, who bowled very mediocre games in his practices. Altogether, eight bowlers participated in the final tournament. The names of the players follow in the order of the places which they took:

Kreider	204	143	123	136	125	150
Zelt	160	110	161	103	124	119

Volleyball Is Still Wide-Open Race

No Teams As Yet Stand Out In Intramural Sport; Results Of Eleven Contests Are Listed.

Intramural volleyball games, being played in the gymnasium every day during the fifth period, are causing much excitement among the lunch hour spectators, because of the close rivalry between the various teams.

The outstanding teams cannot, as yet, be picked, but as a considerable number of games will be played within the coming week, we will be able to pick them within about a week. All teams have fought with determination and vigor. These two essentials are enough to make almost any team a winning team, thus we can account for the close scores in volleyball during the past week.

The scores of the games of the past week are as follows:

Potatoes over Spikers—15-6, 11-15, 15-1.
Chumps over Boilermakers—15-8, 15-4.
Anythings over Kochs—15-5, 15-7.
Lion Cubs over Kochs—16-14, 15-2.
Anythings over Sequoias—15-3, 15-5.
Boilermakers over Greenbacks—15-8, 15-10.
Archers over Cardinals—12-16, 15-14, 15-10.
Lion Cubs over Sequoias—15-8, 11-15, 15-13.
Spikers over Slugs—11-15, 5-4, 15-2.
Dopes over Ernes—15-3, 15-9.
Dukes over Yanks—9-15, 15-11, 17-15.

1936 Football Schedule For South Side Is Announced

Green To Play Nine Opponents During Season

Two Ohio Games Listed; Washington Of South Bend Is New Contender.

Archers To Meet Three City Teams

October 31 Open For Play; Complete List Of Games To Be Played Is Given.

South Side's 1936 football team will face a nine-game schedule according to the announcement made by Mr. Ora Davis, faculty athletic director, this week. Five of these nine tilts have been definitely scheduled to be played on the opponent's gridirons. An open date appears on the schedule for October 31. Definite decisions as to whether or not this date will be filled will be made in the near future.

The schedule contains one new opponent which has not appeared on the Archer pigskin schedule heretofore. The new opponent will be the eleven representing Washington of South Bend. This tilt with the Auto City eleven will be the concluding game of the season for the Archers.

Three City Tilts

Three city series games are being scheduled. Central Catholic will be the first opponent of the Archers with North Side attempting to defend its share of the 1935 city title on the following Saturday. The Archers will then wait for a period of two weeks before encountering the Tigers of Central who will also be defending their share of the city title.

The Archers will again oppose the two Buckeye state elevens they faced during the past season. Van Wert's aggregation of footballers appear as the initial opponent for the Green. Woodward of Toledo will offer the Green Wave opposition in its fourth tilt.

Mishawaka, Peru Scheduled

Games with Mishawaka and Peru complete the Archer season. These teams will be the second and third opponents of the Archer eleven. Both of these teams will have many veteran players and will give the Green plenty of opposition.

The 1936 schedule to date is as follows:

- Van Wert, Ohio, September 19—There.
- Mishawaka, September 26—There.
- Peru, October 2—There.
- Woodward (Toledo), October 10—Here.
- Central Catholic, October 17—Here.
- North Side, October 24—There.
- Open, October 31—
- Central, November 7—There.
- Washington (South Bend), November 14—Here.

Boosters Are To Sell At Basketball Games

At the coming basketball games the usual corps of workers from South Side will sell refreshments. They are as follows: Mildred Foellinger, Ann Abbott, and Ruth Garrison, who are in charge of the selling of candy at the stand. The Coca-Cola will be handled by Ray Ballweg, Bob Storm, and Don Sinish. Joe Bex, Jim Sweet, and Robert Martin will sell the lemon cream. Georgeanna Martin will sell popcorn. Nancy Quince, Betty Schultz, Ruth Kimmell, Evelyn Lehman, and Freda Schubert will sell candy among the crowd. The staff is managed by John Bex and Boyce Minier. This year the candy sellers will be provided with six new baskets in which to carry their wares. The coming season promises to be quite successful. At the football games this year, the Booster Club made a little over one hundred dollars which is to be used for charity throughout the school for needy students.

Girls' Basketball Will Begin Soon

Rule Changes In Game Given; Play Technique To Be Studied Before Actual Play Begins.

As the basketball season is truly here, Miss Patterson has announced that the gym classes would take up basketball this week. Their first assignment will be to study the technique of the game, and then they will take up games which employ the use of basketball technique. A tournament for the classes is scheduled after Christmas.

Volleyball will be completed in G. A. A. the Monday before Christmas, and basketball taken up the week following Christmas.

The rules which have changed and affect the girl's game are: A fumbled ball, or a bounced ball may be legally recovered after it has bounced more than once. There is also a further clarification of "charging." A forward fouled against is to take her own free throw. When a center or guard is fouled against, either forward may take the free throw. If two or more players on a team are disqualified, and there are no substitutes to replace them, the game shall be discontinued. If such team be ahead, the score shall be a 2-0 forfeit to the opponents. Otherwise the score shall stand.

Another change is that instead of having a "tip-off" the referee shall throw the ball to the center where a forward shall catch the ball and play it to her team. The next time the ball goes to the opposite side; also the forwards receiving the ball from the center may change and one of her team mates takes the ball. It is yet undecided as to whether this change will be used in the G. A. A. activities or not. One of the most important rules is that: On a free throw, players may not cross the free throw line or lanes until the ball has left the hands of the player taking the free throw.

Punish Vandalism

Carl Hall (left) and Jim Ellenwood (right) can be sure of seeing plenty of action this year on the Archers' net squad. Hall, only a sophomore, was a brilliant performer on the reserves last year, and is expected to hold down one of the forward positions on this year's varsity. Ellenwood, who has distinguished himself as an All-City grid star, will probably see much action at center or guard.

Skirts and Sports

Eldora Buesking was heard to say that she would rather play volleyball with the boys than the girls. Well, Eldora, we'll consult Miss Smith and Miss Patterson and Mr. Briner, and try to fix it up for you.

Mildred Close is one of the best hikers there are in the G. A. A. She has hiked quite a long distance. Her total so far this semester has mounted up to fifty-three miles!

The student leaders will have to begin brushing up on their basketball rules. Of all the sports they referee, basketball is the most intricate and hotly contested of all. Please remember, girls, the student leaders give their best decision at all times, and that they are the representatives of Miss Patterson and Miss Smith.

North Side Beats Masonic 25-14

Is First Basketball Victory Of Redskin Season; Game Played Fast; Competition Is Keen.

The North Side Redskins defeated the Masonic Home quintet by a score of 25 to 14 for the Redskins first game of the 1935-36 season. The game was played in North Side's gymnasium, which was filled nearly to capacity.

The small Masonic Home quintet presented a fast, clever team and forced the Redskins to fight for every point they scored. This small, fast team seemed to hold back the Redskins in the first part of the game, but towards the last few minutes of the half their defense failed and the Redskins taking advantage of this opportunity shot into the lead which they held for the rest of the game.

The Archers will be the last team in the city to inaugurate their 1935-36 basketball campaign, and a good deal of interest will be centered on the first game under the new coach. The football men on the squad, Ellenwood, Ostermeyer, Lee, and Hines, have hardly had enough time to get thoroughly accustomed to the new system. For this reason reason they will probably not be used as much in the early games as they will later in the season.

The New Castle game should not be used as a very dependable criterion of the strength of Central this year. Although the Tigers took it on the chin in their initial encounter, they were forced to use five football men who had stewed away the mole-skins only four days previous to the Newcastle game.

These men, Sitko, Kabisch, Standski, Riddle, and Paul, will be greatly improved when they have two or three weeks practice under their belt.

The Tigers were by no means at full strength when they opened their season, and this, coupled with the fact that Newcastle has a great ball club, tends to point out Central as one of the toughest teams on this year's South Side schedule.

Bourne, another Tiger net stand-out who was injured during the football season, will be ready to don a basketball suit soon, and he will further strengthen the Tigers.

Band Concert, Basketball Are Held Tuesday

Musical Organization Plays Five Selections; Profits From Candy Go To P.T.A.

New Winter Sport Regulations Shown

Maurice Tudor, Burl Friddle Demonstrate Changes In Rules; Prospects Play.

As a means of raising some money for the school relief fund, the South Side Parent-Teacher Association sponsored a concert and basketball game last Tuesday evening in South Side's gym.

The band, under the direction of Mr. Jack Wainwright, entertained the group with the following selections: Chocolate Soldier selections, Strauss; Over There, vocal solo by Bob Augspurger; Columbia, Rollerson, cornet solo by Bill Nickerson; Killies March; Athens the Beautiful, Delura.

Demonstrate Rules

After the musical portion of the program, Mr. Burl Friddle and Mr. Maurice Tudor demonstrated the following rules which are new in basketball this year.

When the center jumpers are ready for the toss they must have their feet inside the center circle and on their own side of the diameter. If they commit these violations after warning is given by the officials, a technical foul is called for delaying the game.

When there is a jump at the free throw line, players must remain outside the free throw area until the ball is tapped. The three-second rule has also been changed. The player on the offensive team is not allowed to remain within the free throw area with or without the ball more than three seconds.

Game Is Played

If a player is fouled when in the act of shooting for a goal, whether he releases the ball or not, a foul is called. When a member of one team completes a free throw, a member of the offensive team may take the ball out of bounds at any point on the end of the court where the free throw was made. It is not necessary for the official to handle the ball.

A change has also been made in the dribble rule. A player may receive a wild pass, knock it to the floor and continue dribbling. This is not considered a double dribble. Carl Hall, Ray Speaker, Joe Close, Don Reichert, Ed Miller, Don Lauer, Dale Hamilton, Bob Bolyard, Earl Cramer, Bud Lee, Jim Ellenwood, Fred Ostermeyer, John Hines, Vic Nussbaum, Bill Stuart, and Robert Budde, prospects of this year's net squad, played a game.

The Booster Club sold candy and the money from this will be given to P.T.A.

Various Things Help Make Thanksgiving Vacation Pleasant

Once more a gay Thanksgiving Day has passed, and fond memories of turkey, pie, gravy, cakes and other swell food are all that remain. A few of these fond memories which were gleaned from the student body of South Side High at large are as follows:

Mary Baker: I read about two books all afternoon on Thanksgiving. Helen Smith: I stayed out at the aviation field most of the time. I also went hunting.

Geneva Shearer: I ate a lot, and still feel the effects. I also went away practically every night. Mary Louise Lankenau: I typed, and slept until after ten every day and also went uptown.

Paula Gerding: Same as Mary Louise. Marcella Tieman: Ate, ate, and ate some more. I went away evenings, slept and studied.

Mildred Franz: I didn't do much of anything. Morris Boyce: Ha, ha. I went hunting with six other guys and I shot the only rabbit.

Marjory Paetz: Ate, slept, and was merry, even if I did study. Patty Pfeiffer: Boy, oh boy. I gained at least ten pounds. I also caught a cold.

Jinny Busse: Ate all day Thursday, slept all day Friday, and raised Cain all day Saturday and Sunday. Jeanette Braun: Same as Jinny.

Martha Franz: I stayed home part of the time. I had a good time generally and lots of eats.

Selma Liff: I really worked. I wrote an argumentative speech and material for three rebuttals. I got things done I'd neglected for two months.

Lillian Gable: Went to shows, and ate—umm. Betty Franklin: I didn't do much. I went to grandmother's Thursday.

Constance Haag: Mostly I caught up on work. Mary Ellen Blauvelt: I went to the show and took it easy.

Marjorie Crago: I stayed home.

Janitors Clean, Polish School During Vacation

Pupils may have had a vacation, but the janitors "slaved away" to make the school presentable when the students returned on Monday. They went through a general clean-up program. The south hall has been the scene of plastering, while the walls of the girls' lavatories have had a fresh coat of paint. New shelves have also been put up. The windows have felt the touch of water, as the janitors washed them. If you slide and fall just blame the janitors for they have waxed all the floors. The desks have also been polished.

Vote For Officials

Students at the Central High School, Detroit, Michigan, voted last week to show their choice for the city officials.

Herbert Voorhees Talks About Math

Teacher Stresses Value Of This Science; Miss Pittenger Also Speaks At Junior-Math Meet.

Mr. Herbert S. Voorhees gave a very interesting talk in which he stressed the value of mathematics, at the last meeting of the Junior Math Club. He stated that math is invaluable in sciences. He showed the club tricks and short cuts in addition, percentage, and multiplication. He said that there are three main points in correct study. The first is, cultivate an interest. The second, have a clear outline of the subject. The third point is practice and review. He stated that it was his belief that everyone should now some arithmetic, quite a bit of algebra, a little geometry, and a small amount of trigonometry.

Miss Pittenger then spoke on Club Courtesy. She stated the need of better attention, and expressed the advantages of belonging to a club.

For business, slips to be filled out were given to the members. The committee for the Christmas Party was announced. It is composed of Marion Roehrs, chairman, Allen Garrison, Sylvester Becker, Pauline Molin, Helen D. Meyer, Betty Wiebe, Ray Racine, Robert Weil, and Norman Budde.

Puzzles were presented by Eric Seibt and Patti Pfeiffer. Then the club was led in singing "School Days" by Ray Racine. Frances Craig played the piano for the singing.

Ruth Adler Serves As Personal Page To Mrs. Roosevelt

Ruth Adler, secretary of the senior class and a member of the Totem staff, was honored recently when she served as one of the personal pages to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., on her visit here.

Mrs. Roosevelt was brought here under the auspices of the North Side Alumni Mothers.

Included with Ruth in the personal escort of Mrs. Roosevelt were Virginia Heller of Central, Margaret Johnston of North Side High School, and Clementine Ley of St. Augustine's Academy.

When asked about her personal opinion of Mrs. Roosevelt, Ruth answered as follows: "She is a youthful, very interesting, and very peppy person. She is a very vivacious person, and carries on an excellent conversation."

One of Miss Adler's duties, along with the other delegates, was to introduce the many people at the reception for Mrs. Roosevelt. This reception was held after her lecture at the Shrine auditorium.

Mrs. Roosevelt's lecture dwelt for the most part with "Teddy's" visit to the Philippines. She showed colored pictures of the country and the people, and told of their colorful costumes. She also remarked about the fact that when they returned home, they brought along loads of gifts from the natives.

Betty Lee Wilson Is New Member Of 1500 Club

The Times 1500 Club recently welcomed another new member. Betty Lee Wilson who is a sophomore B, earned her points by reporting, Ruth Garrison and Georgianne Martin also won pins. Ruth Garrison won a silver pin which required 3000 points, and Georgianne won a gold pin for which 4000 points must be secured.

Totem Editor, Representative At Rotary Club

Supt. M. J. Abbett Presides; Judge Wood, Dr. Draper, J. Brown Were Speakers.

Louis Bonsib attended the weekly Rotary Club dinner meeting Monday as a representative for South Side.

Mr. Merle J. Abbett presided at the meeting. Speakers were Judge Sol Wood, Dr. Draper from the Ives Byron Sanatorium, and Mr. Brown from the Allen County Orphans' Home. The Rotary Club sponsors the Boy Scout troop at the home.

Several scouts attended the dinner and entertained the members in various ways. One scout told about his recent visit to Washington, D. C. and New York.

Each month a person is chosen to represent South Side at the club meeting. This week Louis Bonsib went as the guest of Jim and Clint Wilson. Next week he will go as the guest of Dr. Ernest Carlo.

Bryce Minier was the representative from South Side last month.

Dr. Alden Alley Is Assembly Speaker

Authority, Who Has Been Abroad Thirteen Times Since 1918, Speaks On Ethiopia.

Italo-Ethiopian trouble was discussed by Dr. Alden Alley at an assembly called Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Since the World War he has been in Europe thirteen times and is very well acquainted with foreign affairs.

"I have found Italian people very warm and friendly and I have no ill feeling against them. But every country has its black hour; Italy is having hers now."

Up to this time, Italy has broken many treaties which she has with other countries. Of course, peace organizations alone cannot bring about peace. The cooperation of the people is an important factor, he said.

Mussolini, leader of Italian forces, having invaded Ethiopia, has won many battles. Four years ago, Japan was successful in her encounter, and Mussolini thinks maybe he can do the same. If Italy succeeds, Hitler will follow with the same idea.

The League of Nations, composed of 50 nations, not including the United States, is trying to preserve Ethiopia by boycotting Italy.

When countries disobey treaties, Dr. Alley suggested that an International Police System be employed to settle such matters.

Term Ends January 17
January 17 will be the last day of this term. There will be twenty-four school days until then.

Pupils Must Observe Two Important Rules

Two very important regulations of South Side are being violated too often. One of these rules pertains to the interruptions that often occur during class time. No class can be interrupted without the office's definite approval of it. This applies to any and all types of interruptions. Each teacher should feel that it is his duty not to countenance interruptions of any kind without the approval of the office.

The second regulation deals with tardy pupils. A pupil is tardy if he is not in his seat when the bell begins to ring, not after it has finished ringing. No teacher should keep a pupil after class so long that the pupil will be late for his next period class. Also teachers should not accept slips from other teachers for such tardiness. In the future, all pupils who have been kept too long in a class must go direct to Mr. Snider to be admitted to their next class. Tardy slips will be issued to these pupils by Mr. Snider or Miss Alderdice.

General Manager Named At Potluck

Staff Holds Social Meeting On November 25; Eats, Program, And Dancing Are Featured.

The announcement that Ann Abbett is to succeed Bryce Minier as general manager of the Times staff was the feature of the semi-annual Times potluck, which was held on Monday evening, November 25. The new head of the staff begins her duties with the current issue. She has held the previous major positions of copy editor and managing editor.

The planning of the menu, which consisted of sandwiches, potato salad, scalloped potatoes, fruit salad, meat loaf, pickles, olives, potato chips, Coca Cola, cream puffs, and pie, was in charge of Helen Kelsey, Georgianna Martin, Ann Abbett, and Jo-Anne Smith. Approximately seventy-five members of the staff were present for the supper.

After the supper, Gwen Horn, chairman of the entertainment committee, and several major staff members, presented a drama with full sound effects. The cast was as follows: Lady Vera, Mary Martha Hobrock; the Earl of Suckingham-on-the-stairs, Dick Helm; the Duchess, Harriett Yapp; the Duke, John Bex; the situation, Bob Storm; and the sound effects, Louis Bonsib. After the play, Helen Gray presented a tap dance. The members of the entertainment committee besides the chairman are Lois Wyneken and Louis Bonsib.

At the end of the program, the new ly organized school orchestra played for dancing; the entire affair lasted until about 8:30. The members of the orchestra were guests of the staff at the potluck.

The clean-up committee was composed of Miss Rowena Harvey, Mildred Foellinger, Jim Sweet, John Bex, Bryce Minier, June Haeger, and Ruth Garrison. The arrangements committee members were Bob Storm, Myron Jones, Joan Bonis, Martha Zelt, and Marjorie Turner.

Plan School Revision
Plans have been made for the revision of the Meridian Senior High School, Meridian, Mississippi. Two main buildings are a feature of the school. The campus is to be beautified by numerous flower gardens.

Polar-Y's Guests

Of Our So-Si-Y's

Christmas Party Next Tuesday

In Greeley Room; To Feature

Stories, Music, And Singing.

Polar-Y, North Side High School's

Girl Reserve chapter, will be So-Si-Y's guest at its annual Christmas party, which will be held next Tuesday afternoon in the Greeley Room.

Virginia Griener, assisted by Marilyn

Smith, Betty Muntzing, Marjorie

Boerger, Dorothy Bucholz, Mary

Rose Gore, Helen Rarick, Marcela

Tieman, Constance Haag, Phyllis

Barrows, Marjorie Meyer, Ruth

Fowler, Ruth Goegelein, and Betty

Schultz, her committee members, is in charge of the arrangements for the party. The program will feature the reading of popular Christmas story by an outside speaker, several musical selections, choral singing, and refreshments.

Officers and cabinet members for the coming semester, the nominees for which have been named by the club's present cabinet, will be elected at the meeting. Another important feature of the meeting will be the announcement of the cast of the skit which is being planned as the club's contribution to the school-wide safety assembly which will be held in the future.

Helen Doenges, assisted by the officers, is in charge of coaching and arrangements for the skit.

Christmas Party

Suggestions Given

Home Rooms' Celebrations This

Semester Are Not To Include

Refreshments, But Programs.

This year the Christmas celebrations in the home rooms are not to include refreshments; this order came from the office along with the suggestion that the time formerly used in the home rooms for parties, at which refreshments are served, be spent in giving Christmas programs. It was suggested that these programs include such entertainment as Christmas stories, appropriate music, and an exchange of ideas pertinent to the Christmas season.

Mr. Snider voiced the opinion that it was a very worthwhile ruling, and that it is more in keeping with the season than the usual picnic variety of Christmas celebration. He also said that the expenditure of time and money on refreshments is needless and foolish at such an early hour of the day. It is far more appropriate and healthful for each of the home rooms to contribute a Christmas basket for the needy.

Lee, Find Ring

The lost is found! Anna Marie

Baumgartner has recovered her diamond ring. Friday, in the middle of an exciting volleyball game, she suddenly missed her ring. After she appealed to Miss Patterson, an interesting piece of strategy followed. Miss

Patterson had all the players line up the length of the gym, along the wall.

They then walked slowly to the other wall. This brought about the quick discovery of the piece of jewelry.

After a sigh of relief and a few chuckles, the games continued.

Committee Chooses Honorary Members

The faculty committee for choosing National Honor Society members met Tuesday. The members chosen at that time will be announced at some time before Christmas vacation.

Although there are forty-four students with eligible grades, only a small group will be tagged now in order to leave room for a larger group next spring.

All eligible students who were not chosen will be reconsidered in the spring.

The danger of choosing too large a group now lies in the fact that since only fifteen percent of the graduating class may be chosen, some more deserving student might be crowded out in the spring.

Radicals To Be Today's Topic In Math Meet

Mildred Foellinger Is High Scorer In Math Contest; Team Leaders Are Chosen

Radicals in the various forms is the subject which will be reviewed this evening at the fourth meeting of the newly organized Math group. The group will meet at 3:30 in Miss Fiedler's room. Following an explanation of the new subject there will be a contest drill at the board.

The three math captains chosen are: Mildred Foellinger, Norman Buck, and Richard Meyer. Beginning at today's meeting, the captains and their teams will compete each against the other for high points in contest drills.

Mildred Foellinger's team, which is composed of all girls, has as its members Betty Rayl, Hazel Kuttler, Dorothy Crabill, Ruth Adler, and Helen Anderson.

Richard Meyer's team has for its members John Will, Herman Rutkowski, Dalton McAllister, David Sherman, John Squire, and Robert Storm. Louis Squires, Morgan Harrison, Marion Bailey, Robert Harfurr, and Allen Faux are those who make up Norman Buck's team.

As the teams had not been selected at the first meeting held last week, two temporary teams were formed for the evening's drill. Team one, which was composed of all boys, defeated team two, which was mostly girls, by a score of 81-57. Three people from each group were sent to the board at the same time and given a problem. The first four done scored for their team providing their answer was correct. The first one done scored five, the second three, the third two, and the fourth one. The highest individual scores were made by Mildred Foellinger, John Will, Richard Meyer, and Norman Buck. Mildred Foellinger was the highest with a score of nineteen. The subject which was reviewed at this particular meeting was fractions and fractional equations.

In case any member cannot attend the meeting, he is required to meet with his captain or the faculty adviser and select a substitute who will meet with the approval of the rest of the team.

A special committee meeting was held Wednesday noon, December 11, to draw up a constitution, which will be put before the members for their approval at the meeting this evening. Also, at the same meeting, a name for the group was decided upon.

New School Orchestra Plays For Tea Dances

Once more the tea dance committee composed of Virginia Vesey, Bernadette Dygert, Harriet Yapp, and Rosemary Lehman, under the supervision of Miss Opperl, sponsored a Friday afternoon tea dance in the cafeteria. The newly organized South Side orchestra provided the music to which about one hundred and fifty persons danced. The special feature of the dance was a play given by Harriet Yapp, Richard Vogelsang, and Rosemary Lehman. Miss Pittenger and Mrs. Kiefer chaperoned the affair. Another tea dance is to be sponsored before the Christmas vacation.

Plaster Repaired

Over the Thanksgiving vacation, the plaster was repaired on the incline in the South Hall directly in front of Room 82. The repair work was done by the janitors.

Quill And Scroll Contest Awards Given To Pupils

Jo-Anne Smith, Ruth Garrison, Jim Sweet Recipients Of Annual Contest Award

Jo-Anne Smith, Ruth Garrison, and James Sweet received honors in the National Quill and Scroll contest, in which there were twenty thousand entries.

JoAnne Smith, managing editor of the Times, was a national winner in the copyreading section of the contest. There were ten national winners in this contest. Jo-Anne placed third in the United States. As a national winner, she will be awarded a gold Quill and Scroll Creative Writing Key. Jo-Anne's rating was almost 100 percent.

Ruth Garrison, news editor of the Times, was a sectional winner. She received first place in the East Central States division of the news judgment contest. The East Central States division is composed of Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Michigan.

James Sweet, editor of the Times, was also a sectional winner. He received second place in the East Central States division of the editorial contest.

Harry Smenner, copy editor of the Northern; Virginia Bell and Virginia Blakley of the Northern, also received honors in the contest. Harry Smenner was a national winner, receiving eighth place, in the news judgment contest. Virginia Bell received honorable mention in the East Central States division of the copyreading contest, and Virginia Blakley received honorable mention in the East Central States division of the newspaper terms contest.

The national contest was divided into four parts: the copyreading, editorial, newspaper terms, and news judgment. Winners below national ranking in each contest were divided into seven sections—the Pacific Coast States, Mountain States, North Central States, South Central States, East Central States, Eastern States, and Southeastern States.

Editorial writing was the most popular contest, with news judgment a close second. The Times and the Northern were represented in three of the contests. Every entry that was sent into the contest from either the Northern or the Times received some honor.

Houser Is Head Of Essay Judges

Contest Held By News-Sentinel On America Speaks Is Ended; Grand Winner To Receive $25.

Last Saturday, December 7, marked the close of the News-Sentinel essay contest for high school pupils. The paper announced the contest when it was learned that many high school teachers of civics and economics were using the weekly poll of public opinion for classroom discussion.

Due to the manner of handling the essays submitted, all entrants are assured careful consideration of their essays, and an impartial decision of the judges. The first page of each essay on which is written the writer's name and address was detached and numbered; the essays carried the corresponding numbers. The judges, therefore, will not know the identity of the winners until their names are announced.

The judges are as follows: Mrs. Donnelly P. McDonald, prominent in local study club activities and past chairman of the Fort Wayne Deane of the National Council of Catholic Women; the Rev. Charles M. Houser, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church; and Dan Flanagan, well known attorney. Rev. Houser will serve as chairman of the judging group.

The writers of the winning essays will share $100 in cash prizes featured by a grand prize of $25. Nineteen essays will be selected. The judges will select the essays which they believe best support the essay subject, "How does the News-Sentinel feature called 'America Speaks' help to advance the cause of a more representative government in the United States?" The essays will be judged on neatness, spelling, punctuation, construction, and content.

History Class Studies Causes Of Immigration To America

Interviewing Tom, the Chinaman who owns the Tom's Hand Laundry was a bit of a task for me, I mean it was difficult to understand his speech and his manner of expressing himself.

I told him that I wanted to interview him for an assignment in school work, but the blank look in his eyes told me that he did not understand; so after explaining, he heartily answered all questions I put to him.

Three Boys Lucky To Have Birthdays On Christmas Day

Santa Claus, Christmas trees, and many gifts come with Christmas. Along with these comes a table simply loaded with holiday delicacies, goose clothed in dressing, and snow-white mashed potatoes with delicious brown gravy. Now wouldn't it be fine if everyone of us could have a big birthday cake on Christmas? It wouldn't make so much difference how many candles there were on the cake if the presents were doubled.

There are only three people in this high school who have their birthdays on Christmas. These are: Howard Lake, Robert Lyman, and Stephen Shea. These young men may be glad their birthdays are on Christmas, but I don't know what the mothers would say.

You have all seen these pictures illustrating the coming of the New Year. Most of these show a young child bestowing on all about him a cheery and promising smile. Just imagine the delight of a mother to behold on New Year's morning her own happy child. I am sure all have heard of the god, Janus, who looked both forward and backward and for whom January was named. Well, none of the New Year's babies in South Side look backward and forward at the same time; but, nevertheless, they were born in January. South Side's New Year babies are: George Hammer, Mike Mettler, and Violet Porter.

Potluck Plans Made By Social Science

Members To Sign Up In Room 10; Play, Games Included In Program For Meeting.

Social Science Club will hold its regular meeting on Friday, December 13, in the Greeley Room. A potluck will be held. The potluck will begin promptly at 5:30, because of the South Side-Bluffton basketball game.

Most members have signed up already; however, those who have not signed up as yet must do so immediately in Mr. Wilson's room 10. The menu will consist of escalloped potatoes, meat-loaf, salad, pickles, olives, potato chips, cake, cookies, and ice cream.

On previous meetings Social Science has always had an outside speaker who talks on current events. Robert Adams, Social Science Club president, said that this meeting would consist of a Christmas program and games.

The program is in charge of Bob Storm, chairman, Thekla Leininger, and Helen Doenges. A humorous play acted out in pantomime will be given. The play is entitled "Where There's a Will There's a Way." The program will be concluded with the playing Christmas games, and various stunts.

Teacher Is Injured

Miss Adelaide Fiedler, mathematics instructor, hurt her ankle when she was tripped on the incline Monday afternoon. She was taken home soon after the accident but was able to be at school Tuesday.

Herbert Voorhees Is Well Acquainted In Various Fields

A sensitive nose could easily trace the whereabouts of the chemistry laboratory the seventh period wherein Mr. Herbert Voorhees presides over his chemistry classes. This our sensitive noses did, and we received our just reward. One of that teacher's gentlemanly students provided us with a chair; then Mr. Voorhees accommodately answered our various questions.

Our mission was to find out all about his teaching experience; we found there was a great deal to tell. In 1888 Mr. Voorhees taught in Belmont College, College Hill, Ohio; there he stayed for two and one-half years. Next, in a high school at Brookville, Indiana, beginning in 1893, he served as principal for eight years and as superintendent for one and one-half years.

Our fair city of Fort Wayne is the place which has kept him to this day. Mr. Voorhees taught first of all, in 1901, in the Fort Wayne High School on Wayne Street; in 1922, when South Side was built, Herbert Voorhees came here and here he remained. During all his teaching career, he has taught Latin, English literature, rhetoric, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, physical geography, botany, zoology, biology, general science, chemistry, physics, United States history, English history, and bookkeeping.

Today men are making a living from the bookkeeping taught them by Herbert Voorhees. His first love was botany; later, however, he was extremely interested in chemistry. His hobby is languages, and this hobby he pursues vigorously. French, Spanish, Latin, and German students have received tutoring from our beloved chemistry teacher.

Meterites Hear Christmas Story

Peggy Bacon And Helen Cox Give Talks; Committee Is Named For Farewell Party.

The Safety Drive was discussed at the last meeting of the Meterite Club. The club discussed whether or not they would participate in aiding the drive. The Meterites also decided to have a page picture taken for the 1936 Totem.

During the business meeting, various committees were appointed by the officers to help in making arrangements for the coming events on the Meterite Club calendar.

One of the committees, which was appointed for the purpose of arranging the Farewell Party honoring the 10's, is as follows: Phyllis Geller, chairman; Betty Daniels, Velda Opperl, Betty Neeb, and Gwendolyn DeWees.

The committee which is in charge of the nominations for Meterite officers next semester, includes the following: Lillian Gunzenhauser, chairman; Dorothy Hall, June Holzworth, Helen Banks, and Mildred Brett.

For the program, Peggy Bacon gave a story about Christmas. She told of how the very ancient people celebrated Christmas two hundred years before the birth of Christ. These people worshipped the sun. At the end of the year the sun would sink. The people, ignorant as they were, naturally thought the sun would sink to the underworld. At the beginning of the following year, when the sun started to rise higher in the sky, the people had new hope.

Peggy also told about the quaint customs of various foreign countries which have been handed down. Helen Cox told a story entitled "Beasley's Christmas Party."

Various Christmas games were played after the program. Prizes for these games were won by Phyllis Culver, Betty Lee Wilson, Helen Cox, and Dorothy Hall.

To conclude the meeting, the girls gathered around the piano and sang Christmas carols.

Third Grading Period Of Semester Is Ended

It's too late to make up your work for this grading period! Why? The third grading period of the current semester ends tomorrow evening after the seventh hour class period. Grades for the interval will be based on next Tuesday during regular classes. The cards contain the usual S and U marks.

Annual Dance By Lettermen Saturday Night

Decorations To Be In Theme Of Christmas; Plan Gifts To Be In Yuletide Manner

Engage Orchestra Of Lowell Meyer

Affair To Be A Sport Dance, Tickets On Sale At Price Of Fifty Cents A Couple.

The annual dance of South Side's Lettermen's Club, which will be carried out in the theme, "Lettermen's Prom," will be held on Saturday evening from 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock. The title, "Lettermen's Prom," will be used for all future dances sponsored by the club.

Decorations for the affair will be in the theme of the Christmas season and will be made by members of the Lettermen's Club. The affair will be assisted by the following Lettermen: Wayne Bennett, Charles Stone, and Paul Boyer. Favors in the Yuletide theme will also be presented to a boy and girl.

No Stags Permitted. Allen Faux, chairman of the committee on tickets, has announced that no stags will be admitted to the dance and that tickets will be on sale for fifty cents per couple. A limited number of tickets will go on sale. The affair will be a sport dance, and Lowell Meyer's orchestra will play.

The clean-up committee for the affair is composed of Earl Norris, Allen Faux, and Ed Leitz.

Officers Aid Committees

The club's faculty adviser, Mr. A. Verne Flint, and the officers who are Fred Nye, president; Bud Lee, vice-president; Joe Close, secretary-treasurer; and Charles Stone, Inter-Club Congress representative, are also assisting with the arrangements for the dance.

The members of the Lettermen's Club, who are sponsoring the dance are: Bud Lee, Fred Nye, Charles Stone, Jim Ellwood, Jim Dorn, Bill Wilson, Bud Feichter, Fred Ostermeyer, Gordon Parmelee, Allen Faux, Don Faux, John Hines, Wayne Bennett, Herman Makey, Ed Kruse, Paul Boyer, Fred Boyer, Fred Meyers, Joe Close, and Ed Leitz.

Date For Music Section Party Set

Program To Feature Christmas Party Friday; Martha Franz Is Chairman.

A delightful Christmas party is being planned by the music department for Friday, December 13. Tickets may be purchased by any member of the music department for ten cents. This party will be in the Greeley Room and last from 3:30 to 5 o'clock.

As usual a lovely program has been planned. A tap dance will be rendered by Jacqueline Hench. Since the members at this party will be those interested in music, there will be several selections on flutes and others on harps. The group will sing many beautiful songs, including Christmas carols. The boys' quartet will present some numbers. Of course there will be present the school orchestra to offer entertainment to those who do or do not desire to dance.

No party is ever complete without refreshments; therefore, juicy red apples and big bags of snow white popcorn will be served. Much of the success of this party will be due to the work of those on the various committees. Martha Franz is the general chairman. The tickets are in charge of Virginia Baumgartner and Billy Mae Mauk. The room committee consists of Betty Kreischer, chairman; Jack Beemer, and Marjorie Dancer.

The members of the food committee are Fred Sunsmal, Frances Van Buskirk, Virginia Baker, and Glen Gregory. The head of the orchestra is Vernon Gregory.

Latin Club To Hold "Saturnalia" Party

To Be Given Today In Room 65; R. Rose Chairman Of Affair; Minerva Is To Be Discussed.

The Societas Romana will hold a "Saturnalia" party today in the Voorhees Room. The Saturnalia in the days of the ancient Romans corresponded to our Christmas today.

Members of the committee, including Ruth Rose, chairman; Virginia Gardner, Marian Bailey, and Pat Russ, will give interesting facts and stories about the Roman Saturnalia. Minerva, the goddess chosen for this meeting, will also be discussed.

A harp solo will be played by Helen Flaig. Helen will also lead and play for the Latin Christmas carols. In addition to this, there will be games and refreshments.

Wranglers To Elect Coming Term Officers

At a short meeting of Wrangler's in the Greeley Room the Monday before Christmas, there is to be an election of officers. The present officers, who are, president, Dave Stegar; vice-president, Gwendolyn Horn; secretary, Doris Bennett; treasurer, Richard Strausser; sergeant-at-arms, Thomas Jaenicke and Clifford Schrom, have recently met and decided on nominations for the various offices. Refreshments in keeping with the Christmas season will be served. The annual Wrangler's play has been postponed until after Christmas vacation.

When He Opened His Mouth, Everyone Yelled—But He Expected That

A figure paces out on the floor before an excited audience. He signals for silence and the entire building immediately becomes as silent as a hungry lion, a thunder shower, or a jazz orchestra. In other words there is absolutely no silence. The audience is roaring its approval; but finally, after much feverish gesticulating, the speaker quiets the building. This time it is really quiet, for everyone sees that he is about to speak.

His loud rasping voice echoes and re-echoes with seeming effect on the audience for his words are followed by loud murmurs from everyone. He moves his hands and then his feet. Now he writhes on the floor and then he makes a well-executed leap into the air. In unison with the leader's actions, sharp, loud words are spoken in quick succession by the leader's entire following. The meeting resembles that of a Socialist gathering having their members repeat their creed.

Yes, that's what it must be because the leader is now haranguing the people and saying something about the poor co-operation they are giving to him. Now he tells them what is going to happen tomorrow. An uprising perhaps? The fury with which he speaks raises and raises until he is screaming. The people cheer madly in approval of his prophecy.

What is this now? A group of other figures comes out and starts acting a play. We see now. It is a plot. The radical group is planning to do some startling thing on the next day and are explaining it to their members in the form of a play. Now the play continues. A figure creeps stealthily up on another person who has his back turned. Bang! Bang! A couple of shots and the victim falls into a heap. My gosh! They are most likely plotting an assassination of the next day. Then the play ends with loud cheering from the assembled group.

What has this been? A radical group planning an assassination? It certainly is! We have just finished a pep session and we are radically certain that we will complete the assassination of the rival team tomorrow.

Robert Burns' Routine Musings Became Famous—After Others Saw Them

Our new contributor's column makes its initial appearance on this page today. Needless to say, we are well pleased with the interest evidenced by our first contributors, and hope it will spread sufficiently to make the column a permanent feature. It should be an excellent opportunity to discover and develop new literary talent in the school, talent which we are sure exists, though yet undiscovered.

We have always wanted to make the Times YOUR paper, the medium of expression for the whole school, not just of the editorial staff. But that requires an active participation in the contribution of material. The Times writers cannot possibly know just what you like to read; it is certainly suitable to everyone to read material close to himself. Whence the desirability of a literary column.

Whence also the new "Ear-Burners" column, also making its first appearance this week. We feel that "Ear-Burners" fills a very definite need for small personal items which may not seem important, but which bring us all closer together.

We would like to see everyone in school actively contributing to these two columns. There seems to be a little sheepishness on the part of all but the more buoyant souls about putting things in the Times box. That is because they were contributing dirt. We cannot see any earthly reason for being afraid to be seen contributing for these columns. In fact, we should think it a credit to really attempt something creative. Our only regret is that space will not permit us to publish everything submitted, but we wish to let everyone know that we thoroughly appreciate all the material we receive, although we may be unable to use it.

It seems that Dorothy Durbin likes Ream of the Spotlight.... And what's all this about "Jeannie" Ellinger liking waffles and Tom Hearn?

Alumni Hot Shots: Helen Hickman with the handsome Bob Salisbury from Carrington, Ohio—Incidentally, he has a twin brother back home.... Paul Geisenhof looking terribly tall, home for a vacation.... John Brown talking Ernie Williams' head off.... Clell Boerger being disloyal and going about with Jean Beersdorfer from Central.... Aletha Hatfield, poor girl, and Dick Mariotte.... Mark Gross not speaking to common people any more.... Frank Montgomery and Dick Russell throwing cream puffs.... Paul Randall and Betty Medaris celebrating the French Club skating party of last year—that's where it all began—by attending that event this year.... Pauline Crabill and Max Tricht still going strong.... Clayton Kilpatrick taking a vacation.... Johnny Brubaker singing his way through Purdue.... Bob Blomker in a midshipman's uniform.... You probably have had enough and so this loud speaker—Hi, Mr. Snider—will turn itself off and say au revoir.

YELLOWSTONE

The Never-Forgotten Canyon And Falls; Massed Color Of Valley Walls

We are still in Yellowstone Park and on our way to see the canyon and falls of the Yellowstone River, one of the marvels of this wonderland. The car climbs up and up the winding road to the edge of the canyon. The names of one stop after the other are Lookout Point, Artist's Point, and Suicide Point. We worry about the significance of their order. Now we make a final stop and excitedly jump out of the car, slam the door, and hurry along the footpath to the edge of the canyon.

The superb magnificence of the sight awes us. Artists have tried to bring out its beauty in paintings. Photographers have worked hours to get good shots of it. Writers have attempted to do it justice with words. All have failed and all who attempt it in the future probably also will. The sight is one of those things on which a writer must say, "Words fail me," when trying to describe it.

Therefore, unaccomplished as we are, we fear to attempt it. The canyon sides are painted in many hues of the yellow, brown, red, and black of the strata of stone and green of the struggling plant growth. A small appearing stream trickles down at the bottom of the canyon, but we know that it is really a large river made to appear small by the vastness of the canyon. The sides of the canyon also form amazing patterns composed of jutting rocks and crags.

On the top of one such craig, we see something that looks like a bird's nest. Later we find that is really the nest of an eagle.

In the center of all this beauty are the falls of the Yellowstone, sparkling like a white diamond in a golden setting. The spray of the falls can be felt near us. The roar can be heard at great distances. The beauty of the falls can be remembered and seen in our mind's eye anywhere we go.

Mental Vagabondage

As a lazy, slow, afternoon sunbeam slipped waveringly across my desk-top, battle-scarred but triumphant after years of combat with vandal pen knives, pencils, pens, and various other impedimenta of the student world, I seemed, like Tarkington's Penrod, to be two entities bound in one body. True, only one person sat in that seat, yet I was as entirely unconscious of the rapid bombardment of the instructor as though he might be in China.

A pleasant laxness seemed to control my mental machinery; for while I lingered momentarily on a memory of the previous evening, I wondered if I had the price of a candy bar in my pocket. I was filled, for the most part, with vacant speculation on whether or not the fly sunning himself on the seat before me could fly away before I had exterminated him. I made a few futile passes at him, only to give it up as a task not worthy of the effort.

I had gone far along the road to complete unconsciousness when a voice, speaking in a manner no one could have interpreted as other than irate, remarked sarcastically, "Really, Mr. Prociee, I should be greatly obliged if you would erase that blank stare from your countenance and answer my question."

—Luther Prociee.

Shylock's Last Exit

When Shylock, despised, destitute, and desolate, leaves the stage at the end of his last scene in "The Merchant of Venice," it is one of the most tragic exits ever seen by an audience. Robbed of money by his daughter, and robbed of his daughter by his worst enemy, a Christian, Shylock can be nothing but bitter and broken-hearted. Having been ripped of his fortune by the cruel law, he will now be more hated than ever. A Jew with money was not liked; a Jew without money was despised doubly. They were detested by the higher classes, spat upon by the middle classes, treated like dogs by even the serfs, and thoroughly abhorred by all for no other reason than that they were Jews. Now Shylock is sent away, broken in spirit, with no friend, no one to comfort him in his sudden destruction. Thus he leaves, stooped and broken, to go back to the now colder than ever world of hate. Then the crowd applauds.

Shoes and Ships

Take up the teacher's burden—Begin midst rural mud—Oh, stay there long in exile And work too hard per spud. And then at last you're offered A high school class to guide—Sophisticated smoothies Whose wants they can't decide.

MR NULL recently attended a conference of English teachers, at which it was suggested to teach pupils the art of telephone conversation. Things like social calls (etiquette for arranging dates) and such, y'know. Now don't you think party-liners wrangle enough without a lot of young couples doing social homework several hours per night?

WE ONCE SAT by a fellow who dozed off in class once in a while. The teacher just let him sleep, so one day he woke up after he had slept away twenty minutes of his lunch period.

DID YOU KNOW? That it takes two engineers, one custodian, five janitors, and one janitress to tend South Side? Well, it does, and they do everything from heating the school to prying our gum from the walls—That street shoes are not allowed on the gym, not because it hurts the floor, but to prevent infection from floor falls?—That we have a full-sized freight elevator running from the basement to the cafeteria kitchen?

HAVING ALWAYS wondered what sophistication meant, and following the unanimous advice of our English teachers, we have discovered that it is the "Act or process of sophisticating; specif.: a. The use of, or deception by, sophistry; a leading or going astray by or as by sophistic reasoning; also, a sophism. b. State of being involved or subtle; esp., state of being without directness, simplicity, or naturalness; artificiality. c. Adulteration or an adulterant; also, something adulterated."

We must conclude that the definition is a good example of section b. And that would make Webster sophisticated. Quite a gay old dog, in fact.

ONE OF OUR teachers must have thought Robert Shookman mentally absent, for she has put him on the sick-or-skipping slip three times thus far. Bob is up in arms; he hasn't missed a day this term.

WE ARE INDEED grateful to the teachers who didn't give us any vacation assignments, but who assigned work due Monday.

A CHICAGO TABLOID offers two dollars apiece for the best fictitious love letters each week. And so once more commercialism comes into sentiment. We'll bet Wordsworth would be very indignant.

Richard Keyser and Hilda Moore seem to be hitting it off pretty well these days.... Helen Rarick goes for Yoder's pals.... Dorothy Deedleum still has a warm spot for Noel Risk.... It's said that Eddie Reeves says sweet and sour words on the same subject. Is that nice?

Mary Straley has tripped for Jim Phelps.... Wilbur Schweizer has a new flame, and he's not burned up. She answers to Kathryn Cook.... And always remember, dear readers, that before you merge, you must first eliminate the competition. And so we must part.

Lost: one rubber doll. Please return to Beatrice Craig.... Betty Calkins likes Campbell, and don't think it's soup, either.... Has Virginia Walling given Clifford Welch the go-by for a more recent pitty-pat?... Dick Zeig is double trouble for Anita Cattlet.... Freida Bolinger is back, after an attack of flu. We've been wondering what happened to you, Freida.

Ear-Burners

Notice! Attention! To whom it may concern, this is the first appearance of our new personal items column—not dirt or scandal, but interesting things about interesting people. Someone has taken a trip, someone is ill, or someone has earned an award; things like these are of the greatest interest to all of us. Contributions to this column will be greatly appreciated. Merely write them out on a slip of paper headed "Ear-Burners" and put them in the mail box at the west entrance of the study hall, please!

Jim Phelps, whose chances for a berth on the grid squad this year were spoiled by a leg abscess, may move to Cleveland, where his father is now working. We hate to lose you, Jim, for you have always been a jolly good fellow and could go far on the team next year.

Dick Helm attended the recent Frankfort-Muncie game at Frankfort, and had the special privilege of talking with Coach Everett Case, the able tutor of the Red Devils. While there, he discovered that instead of following customs of wearing a business suit on the bench, Coach Case appears with his sleeves rolled high on his arms. A man after our own heart!

Mr. Voorhees has been a regular subscriber to the Literary Digest for over fifty years. They ought to send it free!

Sonia Velkoff is planning to leave in about a month for New York, where she will attend the Art Institute. All good wishes for a successful career, Sonia, and bon voyage!

Dorothy Crabill, circulation manager of the Totem, had appendicitis recently, but they couldn't keep her down.

Mr. Gilbert was showing how gun-cotton would not hurt when lit in the hand, because it burns so fast. He held some in his hand and lit it. "Now, you see, it doesn't hurt at all," he calmly said. Just then the match burnt his hand.

Miss Fiedler fell and hurt her head Monday. Our regrets and sympathy, Miss Fiedler.

Our Gift From Rome

If you are expeditious (quick) about doing anything, it is because your feet are not tied. Possibly you never thought of the word in that connection. Expeditious comes from the Latin words pes, which means foot, and ex, which means out of. When you expedite anything, you free its feet so it can move along.

—Robert Gruber.

Robin Hood's Barn

This marks the first appearance of this column, along with about a dozen other new features, so we can feel quite individual this week. However, we hope to give all the rest a good run for their money, so let's go, South Side! We'll tell the cross-eyed world.

There was a young lady named Banker,
Who slept while the ship lay at anchor.
She cried in dismay when she heard someone say,
"Hoist up her top sheet and then spanker."

Ronald Mommer is another one of Maxine Howard's fans. He refers to her as his "Blond Venus dream girl."

A lad of seventeen winters gazed wonderingly out of the frost-covered window at the snow-blanketed ground. Winter held the land in her cold embrace! The glassy trees nearby glittered in the grandeur of their new winter jewels of ice. The glossy surface of the old pond mirrored back the rays of the sun that was partially enveloped by the grim and grey clouds of late autumn. Gusts of wind wafted whirling masses of snow across the pond as if in the act of polishing the surface to an even more brilliant luster.

These sights were received with sighs from the boy and impelled him to speak. The youth turned from the window and exclaimed, with earnestness, "Hey Ma, I've got to get my ice skates sharpened."

After much consideration, meditation and premeditation, concentration, and consternation, we have found what America needs most:

An amateur amateur hour.
A few fighters who like fights as well as they do night life.

A republican candidate for President.

A comical comic strip.
A movie that doesn't have a mushy love story.

A politician who doesn't kiss babies.
A de-icing system for slippery sidewalks.

A pulp paper magazine without a picture of a gunman or a girl.

A car made of Buck Rogers' impervium.

Secrets to Seventeens

BE INDIVIDUAL—Sally Smart doesn't copy off of anyone, she makes up her own ideas. Sally is known all over the school for her individual hair dress, her clever clothes, and individuality. The day after her girl friend wears a braid, some extra curls, or a new trick collar she doesn't appear with an exact copy of her girl friend's addition. Miss Smart makes up her own ideas and uses them on herself. She is not individual to the point that she becomes absurd; everything she does makes her more attractive and outstanding. The changes are made in a subtle manner and thus do not become cheap and flashy. Her styles never talks about them. She never overworks her individuality to the extent that it looks out of place. She knows better than to wear anklets at a dance, a letter sweater to church, a very fancy dress to school, or high-top shoes to a dress affair.

In other words, she makes up her own ideas and uses them to the best advantage. Sally gets by and is talked about, but in the right way!

A Clerk, A King, And Christmas Seals

About two decades ago there lived in Denmark a young postal clerk who was interested in the troubles of the poor people. He realized that disease was common among them. Tuberculosis, especially, was prevalent throughout the land, and the poorer class of people had no means of combating it. In his imagination he pictured a hospital where these people could be relieved or partly relieved, of this menace. He thought for nearly a year and then laid his plan before the king and queen of Denmark.

They set about at once to start a sale of Christmas seals. They made enough in their first sale to build the hospital which had been the young Dane's ideal. Today in Denmark this hospital stands in plain view; the sun shines through the windows bringing joy to those within who are afflicted with the disease which slowly but surely sucks out their lives.

Later, seals were introduced into America, and are known in every village and town as the symbol of the drive of humanity against tuberculosis. There are tuberculosis hospitals in our own country. One of them is just in the outskirts of Fort Wayne, the Irene Byron Hospital.

Every year the sale of Christmas seals has increased. This increase means that more and more people suffering from this dread disease are being helped and cured, that more and more suffering is being alleviated. Each time we buy a Christmas seal we are helping in the great cause which had been neglected for so many years; every time we buy a Christmas seal we are killing small germs—germs that cause the sickness and death of millions of people. By buying Christmas seals we are doing our part in aiding science in its war against tuberculosis.

Music, The World-Wide Language; Many Good Recent Works

Jack W. Wainwright Quoted For Readers

Jack Wainwright, the man responsible for South Side's high musical standing, was busily engaged in painting the side of a kettle drum when interviewed; and, we might say, was probably getting results as excellent as he does with music. Reminding us that there might be a casualty in school if we raised any dust, he obliged us with a little talk on music.

"There is a great deal of fine music which has been written lately. The Finlandia and the Valse Triste are good examples. Some of the better modern composers are Charles Cadman, Si-bellius, Ferde Grofe, Busch, and Albert Stossel.

"Music is the universal language and is becoming better known all over the world. That is one reason music has come into prominence. Good performers are another cause.

"Students can learn to appreciate the good music of today by hearing more of it and by understanding how good music is made.

"There has been a very decided improvement in American music. The trend is both toward better classical and better popular music. However, there are many so-called classics that should be classed as junk. The school bands are playing a much better class of music in a more finished style than the big symphonies and bands were playing twenty years ago."

Jack Wainwright

Student Study Periods Used In Classrooms

Greater Results Obtained From Supervised Study; Subjects Affect Plan.

First Introduced To South Side In 1933

Detailed Assignments Possible; Recitations First; Students Then Study.

Supervised study was first introduced in South Side in the fall of 1933. Its fundamental purpose is not to make the work of the pupil easier, but to make the work more effective. It has been proved that since we have had supervised study there is no less studying to be done, but that the results obtained from this form of study are greater. This plan was not chosen because it would make the receiving of an education any easier, but because an education is received only as a result of untiring effort.

The plan varies in the different subjects studied. The same procedure is not used at the beginning of a unit of work as that used when reviewing the unit.

The pupil need not expect that the time should always be evenly divided between study and recitation, but generally speaking, there is a division of time.

As a usual thing the recitation comes the first part of the period. The studying can then be done while the subject is fresh in the pupil's mind. During the study period any point which is not understood can be worked out with the teacher. The teacher sometimes gives work sheets to find out how much one has received from the lesson.

Much of the value of supervised study comes from the opportunity afforded the teacher to give more detailed and explicit assignments. The work to be done will be more definite; the main parts of the lesson will be pointed out, and the lesson will consequently be made easier.

It is obvious that all pupils do not have the same knowledge on the same subject. Because of this, each pupil does not have to put the same amount of study on each subject; but more on some subjects and less on others. It is best if individual instructions can be given to each pupil, but the amount of time in each class does not permit this.

The supervised study period furnishes an opportunity for the teacher to discover what information the pupils possess on the subject. This enables the teacher to help the pupils on their weakest subjects.

Jim Dern Speaks To Leader's Club

Labrador Trip Is The Subject Of The Talk To Be Given On Next Sunday Night At 6:30.

James Dern, a junior at South Side, will speak to the Folsom Leaders' Club of the Plymouth Congregation Church Sunday evening, December 15, at 6:30. The subject of his talk will be his trip to Labrador which he made last summer in company with Miss Thorne, mathematics teacher; Charles Thorne, her nephew; and Emily Gardner, '35. Leaders' Club is open to all boys and girls who are in high school or who will be in high school next semester. The club meetings are held every Sunday evening with a social hour from 6:30 until 7:00. The regular program lasts from 7:00 until 8:00.

The president of the club is James Mullendore of North Side. The advisers are Rev. Charles M. Houser, minister of Plymouth Church; Miss Louise Waterson, who has had a good deal to do with boys and girls of high school age; and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Mr. Earle is a teacher at Franklin School and has come in contact with many boys and girls.

No one will want to miss the good times had at Leaders' Club or the interesting programs. Don't forget: the time 6:30 Sunday evening, December 15; place, Plymouth Hall on the corner of West Berry Street and Fairfield Avenue; the speaker, James Dern, who will talk on his trip to Labrador.

Society Committee Chairman

Herman Makey, English instructor at South Side, is chairman of the committee which selected the new members of the National Honor Society.

Faculty Honored At P.T.A. Party

Program Directed By Mrs. Horn; Refreshments Served In Cafe; Inter-Club Group Decorate.

About one hundred faculty and P. T. A. members were in attendance at a party held last Monday night, December 9, in the Greeley Room. The party was arranged by the executive board of the P. T. A., which is made up of the committee chairman and the officers of the association.

The interesting program for the evening was in charge of Mrs. Horace Horn. The program was begun by a series of games. Mrs. McKeeman then sang a few beautiful songs, accompanied by Mrs. Abram Jones. A boy and a girl from Harrison Hill entertained next with a clever dance. A playlet concluded the program. The members of the cast for this playlet were picked off-hand from the members of the crowd shortly before the party began, and although very little time could be used for rehearsing, a very pleasing performance was given. The crowd then proceeded to the cafeteria to partake of some delicious food. This closed the evening's activities.

The Greeley Room and the tables in the cafeteria were beautifully decorated by members of the Inter-Club Congress, and the executive board of the P. T. A. wishes to thank these members heartily.

All who attended the party had an excellent time.

many beautiful ornaments, candles on the tables and in the windows, small Christmas trees all lighted with blue bulbs and the walls were adorned with huge evergreen wreaths, tied with large silver bows. The serving table was covered with a lace table cloth and the centerpiece was a silver vase of red roses, on each side of which huge red candles burned. The decorating committee was composed of Virginia Greiner, chairman; Margaret Diekmeyer, Marjorie Scheuman, Betty Muntzinger, Dorothy Moore, and Sonia Vekoff.

Following the program refreshments were served. Candies, pretty cookies, and ice cream dainties made up the refreshments.

There was a meeting held Wednesday evening in Miss Demaree's room for all those who were interested in taking part in the next Philo play which will be given some time in January, most likely the first meeting of that month. This play is a comedy in one act called "No Men Wanted." Those who took part in the last play will not take a part in this one, but will be rather the property managers.

Many Entries Are Submitted By South Side

English, Art Departments Aid In Contest; Prizes Displayed In Front Hall.

The school-wide essay contest on safety, which is rapidly being ended, has resulted in a total of seventeen hundred entries to the school's English faculty, according to R. Nelson Snider, principal. One essay, the best in each class, is being submitted by the teachers to Mr. Benjamin Null, head of the English department, who is in charge of the contest. Poems and original stories, as well as essays, were submitted to the teachers.

Freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior superiors will be selected by Mr. Null, and a picked judging staff will, in turn, choose the class winners. A grand prize for the four groups will be awarded, and each division winner will be presented with a "South Side Safety" sign for automobile license plates.

The poster contest, which is under the direction of Miss Mary Helen Ley and Miss Erna Dochterman, art teachers, has also been evidencing success. The finest of the posters are already on display in the halls, and some of the newer entries will soon be posted. The titles of some of the later posters are "Are You Gully?", "Always Be Careful—Save Life," "Death's Highway," "Don't Duck Between Cars," "Plenty of Speed Don't Make Time, Take Time," "Safety Headlines," "Death Is So Permanent," "Now He's Asleep Forever," "Wine and Gas Don't Mix," and "Do You Race On To Your Death?"

Eight graphs, also submitted by art class students, are displayed in the front hall. The originators are Robert Rinkensmeier, Maxine Morrison, Dorothy Ellenwood, Maurice Cornell, Aletha Davis, Grace Killian, Mildred Franz, and Phyllis Short. The lighted bulletin board includes in its display a graph depicting the various distances at which cars going at various speeds can stop and a clever cartoon captioned, "Why Don'tcha Look Where You're Going?"

The front hall's covered show cases, besides displaying the new posters and the prizes for the contests, contain several convincing pictures of the horror of accidents. These are titled, "He Paid No Attention to the Stop Sign," "He Tried to Save Time by Going Fast," "Both Drivers Claimed They Had the Green Light," "The Train Won This Race," "He Thought 'Stop' Just Meant 'Slow Up,'" "The Result of Another's Reckless Driving," "The Result of Mixed Alcohol and Gasoline," and "Another Race Won by the Train."

The office force, which has charge of the scrapbook contest, has reported that but little interest has been shown in that division. Interested students are urged to inquire at the office for information regarding the competition.

Several clubs are advancing plans for the assembly contest, which will be held as soon as more organizations have completed their arrangements. Travel Club and So-Si-Y are the two clubs which have given the most evidence of their interest in the contest. Skits and playlets are being planned for the occasion.

Elected Club President
Elizabeth Evans, a South Side pupil of a few years back, has distinguished herself at Ward-Belmont school. Elizabeth was elected president of her social club at college. The Ward-Belmont school is at Belmont Heights, Nashville. Tennessee. Elizabeth, the daughter of a faculty, expressed the thought to our principal, R. Nelson Snider, that this is probably but the beginning of the development of her powers of leadership at the school.

Prominent '35 Grad Gets Good Position As Insurance Clerk

Another prominent South Side graduate, Anna Brumbaugh, has satisfactorily completed the commercial course in South Side with a job. Anna is a graduate of the class of 1935, and was well known in both curricular and extra-curricular activities during her four years in high school. She is now working at the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company and is quite pleased with her work.

Anna Brumbaugh

Anna is working in the statistical section of the actuarial department. Her hours are from 8 to 4:30 with one hour off for lunch. Her work is mainly on insurance cases and typing of the monthly reports. She started out as a messenger, which is taking the dictaphone records to the stenographic section, but already has been placed in her present position.

She remembers the first practical joke at work, which happened to be a fruitless search for a bee hive after she was sent all over the large building by willing jokers. Just the laughs of work. However, she likes her work so well that she has lost all desire to attend college, and would just rather work herself up in her present position. This seems to be her main ambition.

She considers her schooling in South Side as the main factor in acquiring a job so soon. At South Side, she considered her easiest subject, mathematics; her hardest subject, chemistry; and her favorite subject, shorthand. Anna was a member of South Side's shorthand team, which placed first in the state, and she also placed third in the state.

Her sensations at the state contest were a mixed feeling between scare and calm. She thought the only thing that saved her was Mr. Murch's constant assurance that everyone there was just as scared. Anna also said that she was surprised when the decisions were announced. Her activities in South Side included Math-Science, Philo, Student Players, Art, 1500, Times, Totem, and G. A. A.

"I enjoy my work now, and I am very glad that I took up secretarial work and carried it through," Mr. Murch remembers her as an outstanding student and an excellent mixer.

Film Is Displayed At German Meet

Christmas Party Is Planned; Club Congress Report Given; Business Meeting Is Held.

A Christmas film featured the meeting of the German Club Wednesday, December 4. It was divided into two parts, the first showing a Christmas of children who had a home, kind parents, and many beautiful presents. The second part pictured the Christmas of an orphan who had no home or parents. She stood in the deep snow outside the window of a comfortable home, envying the happy children. Verna Holtman, vice-president, took charge of the business meeting. June Haeger was appointed new Inter-Club Congress representative. A report from Inter-Club Congress was given by Verna Holtman, in which a bulletin from the congress was read.

The annual Christmas party was planned, and a committee was appointed to meet with the officers, who include Eric Beyer, Verna Holtman, Betty Muntzinger, June Haeger, and Lorraine Meyer, to make final plans for this party. This committee consists of Don Vetter, Katherine Simminger, and George Rogers.

Katherine Cornell To Appear Soon

American and British Actors To Appear In "Romeo And Juliet" On December 20.

Fort Wayne will receive an unusual treat, of particular interest to students of Shakespeare and members of drama classes, when Katherine Cornell and a company of distinguished British and American actors will present William Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," at the Shrine Auditorium Friday evening, December 20. Miss Cornell, generally considered to be America's "first lady of the theatre," won international fame as the star of the original legitimate stage production of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," subsequently presented in the United States in film form.

Cast Is Professional
Florence Red, who has been seen as Lady Macbeth in Shakespeare's Macbeth, will portray the part of the nurse in this production. Maurice Evans, who is making his American debut with Miss Cornell on this tour, will play opposite the famous star in the role of Romeo. Other members of the cast are Ralph Richardson, also making his American debut, as Mercutio; and Charles Waldron, as Friar Laurence. Every member of the cast, including "supers," is a professional actor or actress.

The play has been staged and directed by Miss Cornell's husband, Guthrie McClintic, the settings and costumes designed by Jo Mielzer; the music composed by Paul Nordoff; and the dances arranged by Martha Graham.

Miss Cornell's appearance as Juliet marks her first assumption of a Shakespearean role. Indeed, she has only once before played a role steeped in the tradition of other actresses when she played in Bernard Shaw's "Candida."

Play In Two Parts
Miss Cornell has risen to her present pre-eminence in the American theatre by her acting in a series of contrasting characters, by an intensive and thorough apprenticeship.

She chose "Romeo and Juliet," not as a vehicle for increasing her own fame, but as a drama stressing the story, rather than any individual character.

Shakespeare, according to all known records, did not divide his plays into numerous scenes or acts. Miss Cornell, therefore, has separated her production into only two parts. Her aim in her production of "Romeo and Juliet," has been to present the play to modern audiences in such fashion as to recall the thrill that was once the common heritage of theatre goers in this country. Miss Cornell's version has not been "bothered" by over-editing and is the most complete in this country.

The Shrine management has announced that the play will begin at eight o'clock. Playgoers are urged to be there promptly because there will be only one intermission which will begin at 9:15; and no one will be seated between the rise of the first curtain and the beginning of the intermission.

Conservation Club Is New Name Of Group

During the business meeting of the newly-organized Pebble Pups Club held Thursday, December 5, the name was changed to Conservation Club. The change was made because the new name signifies more clearly the purpose and activities of the organization.

The general theme of the meeting was Indiana State Parks. Interesting talks were given by a few members on this subject. Billy McNutt spoke on McCormick State Park; Mabel Bevington on the Sand Dunes State Park; and Ruth Fowler on Turkey Run State Park.

The next meeting, which is scheduled for December 19, will be a Christmas party. A gift exchange will be a feature of the program.

Here's A Faculty Wife Who Doesn't Like Mr's Subject

A total dislike of history has been confessed by Mrs. Maurice Tudor, wife of South Side's latest history teacher, Mr. Maurice Tudor. Yes, she can remember dates, but she still doesn't like history. She doesn't even like to read anything about history; it's just out of her line, so what can you do about it?

Mrs. Tudor does, however, very much approve of South Side, and Mr. Tudor agrees with her in this matter. Her hobby seems to be the enjoyment of all sorts of sports, while her husband devotes his spare time to the perfection of his already very good game of golf. Supper table discussion at the present time is taken up by basketball talk.

Mrs. Tudor's education did not include college, but her favorite subject was mathematics. They have one child, who seems to be following in his father's steps in an appreciation of history. Mr. Tudor also teaches citizenship, but it is hard to say just what views his young son has formed on that subject.

To have the car sputter, choke, and then stop dead, or else have some vague something interfere with the proper mechanism of the car and its manipulation is probably the chief source of irritation for Mrs. Tudor. Mr. Tudor's pet peeve is to have to wait for supper or for his wife to be late.

Reading matter includes mostly fiction for her and subscriptions to magazines like the Woman's Home Companion and Collier's; while he likes some fiction and a good deal of the heavier reading. A great deal of his spare time is spent in reading up on outside references for history and citizenship.

Mrs. Tudor's final comment was "I think my husband is much better pleased at South Side High School than at the grade school. I also am more pleased and like it very much."

Math Club Plans Christmas Party

Santa Claus Will Take Part In "Carollers Of Christmas;" Ray Racine Also To Give Talk.

On Tuesday, December 17, at 3:30 o'clock in the Voorhees room, the Junior-Math Club will hold a Christmas party for all paid members. The program will include a play, entitled "Carollers of Christmas," in which Bernadette Shearer will take the part of Betty Smith and Edward Wallace will take the part of that jovial old fellow, Santa Claus. The party will also include a band of carollers.

Ray Racine will give an interesting talk on "Christmas in Foreign Lands." Also a white elephant gift exchange will be held under the direction of the committee.

S.S. Reserves Defeat Butler Seconds 24-14

Budde, Nussbaum, Lauer, And Hamilton Star In Victory Over Invaders.

By Ruth Berning South Side's reserves successfully opened their first net season under Coach Burl Friddle, last Friday, by defeating Butler's reserves, 24-14. South Side's five was out in front the whole game with the exception of the first few moments of play. Butler staged a half-hearted rally in the second half which fell short of its goal.

Norman Budde showed up good, doing well on both offense and defense. Nussbaum, leading the scoring pace with ten points, and Lauer, center, also played fast games. Knox and Scott, high scorers for Butler, were deciding factors in keeping South Side's margin from being higher than it was.

The Wavelets maintained a small lead throughout the first quarter, but were pressed hard by a fast and scrappy Butler team. The second quarter saw Nussbaum playing a nearly one-man game by sinking three baskets to put the Archers on the long end of a 14-3 score at the end of the half. The Windmills were kept scoreless the second quarter largely due to the fine defensive playing of Hamilton and Budde.

South Side found the opposition much tougher in the third and final quarters when Butler's offense began to click. Scott, Kepler, Knox, and Ullm each contributed to the scoring rally which fell short. Nussbaum and Budde each made two goals to make the final score 24-14.

Four of the Butler's twelve attempted free throws were made good, while South Side made two of its four free throws.

Skirts and Sports

Gwen Roberts went on a hike recently and wore pajamas under her pants! At that, they were sleeping pajamas! P.S. Gwen, Frieda Schubert told us that.

The gym classes had their posture tests this week. Congratulations to those who lasted through the whole process to the deep knee-bending. They're really going some!

The volleyball game between Leona Menze's and Edna Disler's teams was one of the closest and most exciting played this season. The lead was continually shifted from one team to the other, and the victors were decided in the very last moments of play.

Ice skating was enjoyed by many of our members last week. Maxine Morrison and Hazel Perry were among those who turned in points for this sport.

One of the most popular games that are played in the gym office is "Hangman." Marjorie Hower is greatly responsible for having gotten everyone, even Miss Patterson and Miss Smith, interested in this game. Xyst is one of the words that Marjorie tries on everyone.

It seems that Gwen Roberts also wore high top boots on the same hike as mentioned above. As a result of her wearing these heavy shoes on the hike, her ankles have been bound up, and we've also noticed the smell of liniment.

"Six in the first row; seven in the second; five in the third. No, that's not right. Let's see..." Anyway, that's the way Ruth Seifert gets mixed up when she tries to place her team on the court for a volleyball game.

Betty Jo Wilkinson's performances in the swimming meet were really outstanding, which accounts for the fact that she came in second place. We surely hope you'll be outstanding in other phases of the gym activities, Betty.

Well, the basketballs are being blown up. That means that the king of winter sports is coming into his own again for a while. Better start practicing, girls. Remember, the honor tourney takes place immediately after the end of the G. A. A. season.

One girl who really deserves honor for her hard work and hardly ever gets it, is Betty Burhenn. She referees games right around the year for her points, and hard earned points they are.

Going Good At Purdue

Courtesy Journal-Gazette Don Powell

Don Powell, who graduated from South Side in '34, is making a name for himself at Purdue University by his athletic prowess. At the halves of the Iowa-Purdue football game this fall, Don was awarded a watch valued at $100 for being the most improved sophomore on the squad. He saw much action this fall, earned his letter, and is a sure bet to hold down one of the end positions on next year's first-string eleven. Don also won a $100 watch during his freshman year for being the outstanding first year man, and is now being considered as material for the basketball squad.

While at South Side Powell was outstanding in football, basketball, and track, being named All-State end on the gridiron, being selected as All-Sectional forward on the hardwood squad, and winning many races on the cinders for South Side, having specialized in the high and low hurdles.

INTRA-MURAL INSIGHTS

Why aren't intramural sports on more of a sportsmanship basis than they are? That is the question which has been asked many times by the pupils of the school who are interested in intramural sports. By this they mean that there is too much fighting and squabbling among the teams that enter the various sports.

I would like to relate here an incident that happened a few weeks ago, which would go along very appropriately with what has been written above. The Archers won over the Chumps in the championship game of tag-football, which was fairly fought and fairly won. Yet when the game was over and the Archers had won, the Chumps became very angry and said the Archers were "yellow" because they would not play them a game of tackle football.

The incident which I related above is only one among taboos who have taken place on the football field. Perhaps it seems impossible to do anything about this, but I believe that if several of the individuals who lead in such doings were punished, the whole thing would soon be forgotten.

The general trend in volleyball, however, is to be rather of the sporting nature. The majority of the teams do not shout and complain if they lose a point. (The teams that do not shout and yell are the ones which win the most games and gain the most respect.) Hereafter space will be reserved in this column to mention those, both teams and individuals, which show the most sportsmanship during each week.

Majority Like New Basketball Rules, But Many Oppose Them

A number of radical changes made in the basketball rules this year has resulted in many people disliking the new and preferring the old, while a majority do favor the changes, a survey made by the South Side Times reveals. Probably the best liked rule is the one which enables a team to take the ball out of bounds after their opponents have scored a foul shot. This rule tends to speed up the game, as it is not necessary to go back to center for the jump. Probably the rule that is disliked the most, is the one that prohibits a player from remaining in the foul circle more than three seconds. Another rule that is proving favorable, is the one that, if a player is fouled while shooting or attempting to shoot, receives two shots. Because the new rules tend to speed the game up and the fans like a fast brand of ball, it is believed the rules will go over big.

The opinions of officials and students are: Mr. Davis: "I favor the majority of the rules, as they speed up the game, but from an official's standpoint, the rule keeping a player from being in the foul circle more than three seconds, is practically impossible to watch."

Mr. Welborn: "I like the new rules very much, as they speed up the game and make the job of officiating much easier."

Mr. Briner: "I do not like the new rules very well. Although they speed up the game, I have noticed that the game is much rougher. This may be due to the early season, but I think the rules have something to do with it."

Myron Jones: "The new rules will speed the game up very much. The only rule that I do not like is the rule that prohibits a player from remaining in the foul circle more than three seconds."

Bob Noe: "The only objection that I have is that the officials will have a hard time keeping track of the players. This will be especially true in the foul circle ruling."

Jack Birkenbeul: "I think that the new rules are fine, except for the foul circle ruling."

Dick Snook: "I think that the new rules are swell. I like the one that prohibits a player from remaining in the foul circle more than three seconds, as it partially does away with the tall man."

Bob Locke: "The new rules will speed up the game. The only rule that I don't like, is the one that, after a foul is scored, and his team mate catches the ball, the opposite team is given a technical foul."

Ruth Berning: "I don't see any point to the three-second foul circle rule. The rest are all o.k."

Court Capers

Last Friday, Jim Ellenwood was the victim of a basketball occurrence that was singularly unusual. Ellenwood had five personal fouls on him before he finally left the court. Due to some remarkably close calling, Ellenwood had three personals chalked up against him in the second quarter. Late in the final period the fourth personal was called on Ellenwood but as he left the floor, the Butler man whom he had fouled tossed his free throw and missed, all this happening long before a substitute could be sent in for Ellenwood.

Butler then took the ball off the backboard when the foul was missed, and the Windmills put the ball in play, South Side being handicapped since they had only four men on the floor. Ellenwood, seeing what was happening, rushed back in the game and promptly fouled another Butler man, thus committing his fifth infraction of the rules. This time the ball was held until a substitute could be sent in.

Mr. Glaub is well known in musical circles and was for some time a member of the choir of Plymouth Congregational Church.

Reserved Seat Section In Gym Is Increased

Mr. Ora Davis, faculty athletic manager, has announced that Section J in the northeast corner of the gym is being opened up for reserved ticket holders during the present basketball season. This action was made necessary because both sections G and H, which have been reserved for adult season ticket bearers, are now being taxed to capacity.

Tigers Defeat Redskins 33-25 In Hard Battle

Central Takes Lead In City Series Race By Victory Over North Side Friday.

In the first city series battle of the season last Friday night at the North-Side gymnasium, the Central Tigers defeated the North Side Redskins by the score of 33-25. Although Central won by a big margin, they were hard pressed by the Redskins, and kept the crowd on their feet most of the time.

Plays Are Given Central was the first to score, but North Side forged into a 7-3 lead at the end of the first quarter. At the start of the second quarter, the Blue rallied and went ahead of the Redskins, but permitted North Side to tie the score. Only a last second field goal enabled the Tigers to take a 14-12 lead at the end of the half.

The Tigers started fast and built up a big lead in the third quarter, but the game Redskins rallied to within one point, to make it 22-21 at the end of the third quarter.

The start of the last period showed the Tigers putting on the pressure and slowly drawing away until they had built up a lead of 32-21. This was too much for the Redskins, but again they showed their gameness, adding four more points to their score. The Redskins pulled a surprise on the Blue team by using a zone defense. In the early stages of the game, the Tigers were kept away from the basket, but Murray Mendenhall substituted until he found a combination that would work. The Tigers used a man-to-man defense.

Redskin Reserves Win

The Tigers heaved fifty-six shots at the hoop and connected on thirteen. They made seven of their eleven foul shots, while North Side made good on five of their twelve foul shots. The Redskins connected ten times out of forty-three shots at the basket. The Tigers were called for nine personals and one technical, while North Side was called for eleven personals. There were two Tigers and one Redskin that left the game with three personals.

The Redskins were somewhat consoled by the fact that their reserve team defeated the Central seconds by the score of 24-18. They held a lead of 13-6 at the half.

Lettermen Of School To Hold Big Potluck

At a meeting of the Intramural Lettermen's Club last Thursday, arrangements were made for a potluck to be held in the gym tonight. The boys will play basketball in the gym until time to eat. The menu will consist of olives, pickles, sandwiches, meat, potato salad, cakes and cookies. After completing plans for the potluck, John Allen, president, brought up further business.

The boys who attended the meeting are: John Allen, Norman Buck, Gaylord Stalter, Aaron Schoenfeld, Carl Brandt, Robert Feichter, and Robert Tapping. Norman Buck is the newest member in the club, as he received his letter last Wednesday.

Archer Netmen Break Even On First Two Tilts Of Year

South Side's Archers opened their 1935-36 basketball campaign last Friday and Saturday evenings by splitting even in their initial pair of contests of the season. Friday night South Side recorded an impressive victory over Butler by the score of 38-17;

Saturday it was a different story, the Archer's falling before a strong Michigan City quintet to the tune of 27-17.

The Butler victory left little to be desired. South Side exhibited some remarkably polished ball-handling, and they constantly worked the ball in for short shots at the hoop from the vicinity of the foul line. The forwards, Speaker and Hall, led the attack, being consistently worked free by a stationary block play which allowed the shooter to lose his man long enough to drop in a shot from the foul line. The Archers had little trouble with the Windmills, and after jumping into an early lead, South Side coasted in, mounting the score each quarter.

Boys Play Well The first line-up to be sent on the floor by Coach Friddle contained one member of last year's varsity, two new men who played with the reserves last season, and two players altogether without previous experience at South Side. Close, Hall, Reichert, Speaker and Miller, respectively. Even though the line-up varied so, the boys played together remarkably well and they showed amazing aptitude in the system of play introduced by Coach Friddle this season.

The Archers jumped into an early lead when Miller tossed in a free throw and Hall and Speaker connected on field goals. The Windmills then pulled up within one point of the Archers when Bercaw and Ault each slipped in fielders. This was as close as Butler was ever destined to come. The Archers pulled away to a 10-6 lead at the quarter as Hall and Speaker again obliged with field goals.

As the second period got under way, Coach Friddle sent the rest of the varsity, Lee, Ostermeyer, Ellenwood, and Hines, the football men, on the floor. They amassed a 20-8 lead at the half, holding Butler to two free throws while they stepped out to ring up ten points. Jim Ellenwood led the second quarter offensive by dropping in three field goals, but in doing so had three personal fouls called against him. The officials called them close all evening and many decisions were quite evidently adverse to the opinions of the fans and the players.

Archers Have Setback The starting five, sent back for the third quarter, again bottled up the Windmill attack, the Archers outscoring their opponents 8-3 to take a 28-11 lead at the conclusion of the third period. The football men were again pressed into service in the fourth and final quarter, and they coasted in to an easy victory. Hall and Speaker, through their accurate sniping from the foul circle, shared the high-point honors with nine apiece.

Lettergirls Discuss Constitution Of Club

A number of lettergirls held a meeting in the gym office Wednesday to discuss a proposed constitution for a lettergirls' club. Membership, eligibility, dues, officers, and activities were among the things discussed. Miss Smith and Miss Patterson will be the advisers. This constitution must be approved by Miss Pittenger and Mr. Snider before the group is actually named as a club. A called meeting of the lettergirls will be held as soon as this decision is made known.

Archers Meet Strong Tigers For Third Tilt

After Even Break Of First Two Contests, Green To Play First N.E.I.C. Game.

Green Opponent Has Good Team

Bluffton Has Record Of Four Victories, And One Close Defeat This Season.

After breaking even in its first two tilts of the season, South Side's band of netmen will attempt to chalk up their second win when they oppose the strong Bluffton Tiger squad this Friday evening on the southern hardwood. This tilt will mark the initial effort of the Green to retain the N. E. I. C. championship which they shared with Central for last season.

The Tigers are recognized as one of the outstanding fives in this region this season and this tilt will afford the Archer fans an opportunity to judge the strength of the Green netters as compared to that of the better teams in this district.

Tigers Show Strength

The Parlor City squad, under the tutelage of Coach L. E. Templin has shown plenty of strength in its five games thus far this season. With a near-veteran five, the Templin hetties have mowed down four of their opponents by overwhelming counts. Among their victims have been the Portland Panthers on whom the Tigers doubled the score, and the Ossian Bears on whom the Tigers tripled the count.

Likewise, in the tilt with the Columbia City Eagles, the Bluffton quintet doubled the scoring activities of their opponents. Liberty Center also bowed before the Tiger scoring attack by a large margin. In their latest game of the season, the Tigers battled every inch of the way before bowing in defeat to the Hartford City Airdales by a score of 20 to 18. The Tigers held a 16 to 8 lead at the end of the third period but succumbed to a last-quarter rally of the Airdales featured by a winning field goal in the last thirty seconds of play.

High Scorers Listed

The Bluffton lineup includes three high-scoring players in McCray, Ludwig, and Templin. McCray, a forward, led the Tiger scoring last season and is second only to Ludwig for high scoring honors so far this season. Ludwig, who also cavorts in the forward position, has scored over thirty points already this season. Templin, the Bluffton center, likewise does more than his share of the scoring in addition to doing a swell job of holding his opponent almost scoreless.

The Archers will go into the fray in good condition. With two games under their belts they have had the experience of working together under fire. Coach Friddle plans to give his charges plenty of hard practice this week. In these practice sessions Burl hopes to iron out the rough spots in the Archer play and to improve their basket eyes. If afforded the opportunity, Burl plans to give as many players as possible an opportunity to get in the game against Bluffton so that he can pick out a probable starting five and definitely determine the strength of his reserve power.

Officials for the games will be Rolla Chambers and Merv Somers.

Tigers To Meet Eagles, Comets

Play Columbia City, Kendallville Friday And Saturday At Their Home Gymnasium.

Central's Fighting Tigers will take on the Columbia City Eagles tomorrow night and the Kendallville Comets on Saturday night, both games to be played at the Tiger gym. The Tigers looked good last week when they defeated North Side and probably will emerge victorious in both games, but they will have to fight for every point they score.

The Tigers had a successful week-end last week when they defeated North Side 33-25, and Laporte by the score of 29-21. The first quarter of the Laporte game the teams fighting on fairly even terms, as the score was tied at 6-6. In the second quarter the Bengals held the Slicers to one point, while they scored eight points. This gave them a 14-7 lead at half time.

In the last half the Slicers threatened once when they came within four points at 19-15, but weakened when Central increased their lead. The Bengals then pressed their advantage until they lead 29-21 at the final gun.

Play Four G.A.A. Volleyball Games

Sophomore Team 3, Juniors 1 And 2, And Senior 1 Named Victors In Weekly Games.

Several more exciting games were played last Friday in the upper-classman volleyball tournament. Sophomore team 3, headed by Eleanor Rarick; junior team 1, led by Margaret Ruhl; junior 2, captained by Leona Menze; and senior team 1, led by Marjorie Hower, are the teams which came out on top.

On the north court at 3:30, Eleanor Rarick's team 3 defeated Helen Meese's team 2 by a large margin, 59 to 17. Margaret Ruhl's junior 1 team took Winnie Locker's junior 4's by the score of 33 to 23 on the south court.

At 4 o'clock the two most exciting games of the day were played. On the north court, Leona Menze led her junior 2 team to victory by defeating Edna Disler's junior 3 team. The score was see-saw all the way through, but the junior 2's moved ahead during the last few minutes and won by the score of 32 to 25. Another thrilling game took place on the south court between Marjorie Hower's senior 1's and the junior 2's, led by Betty Rison. Both teams fought hard to keep their score up, but the senior 1's came out on top with the score of 36 to 30.

Dancing Club Begins Folk Dance Practice

The Dancing Club's weekly meeting began last Thursday with routine work at the bars to the accompaniment of music ably played by Velma Laymon. They went through several brush-kick positions.

Under Miss Patterson's direction they learned some new steps on a very intricate Russian Cossack dance. This is the second number in the Nutcracker Suite by Tachikowsky. This dance is a typical Russian dance, and the girls make a very picturesque sight. Sometimes there is a choice on steps, and then the girls take a vote to decide it, as they did tonight.

They took time out for a while and Miss Patterson described a scene that she had seen and which she thought would fit into their dance perfectly. The clothing was also typically Russian, and should help a great deal when they have to choose their costumes. They attempted to decide on their color combinations, but finally decided to postpone it until next time. The costumes will be made by the girls under the direction of Dorothy Scheele.

One of the interesting facts about this club is that the girls are not all the same size. The two Scheele girls, Dorothy and Dolly, are about the tallest and Bernadette Shearer is the smallest in stature.

Walking Race Victors Win Intramural Points

Speedy walkers of South Side entered the annual walking contest sponsored by the News-Sentinel, and several of them took places in the tourney. Mr. Briner awarded these with points toward their intra-mural letters.

Earl Shideler was awarded eight points for the second place he captured in his division. Alison Arnold received seven points for his seventh place. Don Bazzenett earned ten points by taking sixth place in his section. Bob Miller added six points to his total of intramural points by taking fourteenth position. Robert Ferguson received five points for walking into sixteenth place. Fred Ostermeyer also won one of the first places in the contest.

North Side To Meet Yellow-Jackets At Home Friday; Play At Circus City On Saturday.

North Side's Redskins will engage in two basketball tilts over the coming week-end. On Friday night the Redskins will take on the Decatur Yellow Jackets at the northern gym, and on Saturday the Redskins will be on the road, traveling to Peru. North Side will have all it can take care of in these two contests, but should gain at least an even break in the two games.

Last week the Redskins engaged in a city series tilt with the Central Tigers, the Northerners going down to defeat to the present city champs by the tune of 33-25. It was a hard fought game all the way but the Tigers pulled away in the final quarter for the initial city series victory.

Thirteen Squads In I-M Volleyball

All Others Of Original Twenty-Seven Intramural Entries Are Eliminated During Past Week.

After three weeks of hard playing, only thirteen teams out of the original twenty-seven remain in the elimination tournament of the intramural volleyball leagues.

The scores of the past week, which are listed below, were close and show what earnest and furious fighting was done before the final teams were picked.

The thirteen teams that will continue to thrill the lunch-hour spectators are as follows: Never Wins, Boilermakers, Archers, Chumps, Anythings, Stooges, Cardinals, Lion Cubs, Bombs, Dukes, Dopes, Spartans, and Potatoes.

The scores of the games played last week are as follows:

Yanks over Ernie's—15-6, 15-3.
Spartans over Potatoes—15-6, 9-15, 15-7.
Never Wins over Craiglets—15-3, 15-5.
Stooges over Circulars—15-9, 15-11.
Boilermakers over Bombs—11-15, 15-3, 15-7.
Chumps over Greenbacks—16-14, 15-6.
Kochs over Sequois—15-8, 2-15, 15-13.
Anythings over Lion Cubs—15-4, 15-13.
Bombs over Greenbacks—15-10, 15-5.
Dukes over Ernie's—15-8, 15-5.

Teams 6, 4, And 2 Defeat 5, 1, And 3 Respectively In Hard-Fought G.A.A. Games Monday

Freshman G. A. A. volleyball teams 6, 4, and 2 defeated teams 5, 1, and 3 respectively in hard fought games on Monday evening in the gym. The first game, between team 6, captained by Gwendolyn Roberts, and team 5 headed by Marjorie Wallace, was a tough battle and with the help of Ruth Luyben and some very good work on her own part, Gwendolyn Roberts' team won the game with a score of 29-21.

Under the capable leadership of Dorothy Blomker team 4 won over Virginia Menze's team by a 33-21 score. Virginia Menze played a good game for her team, but she was not able to overcome the opposition of Dorothy Blomker's team.

Two teams that were evenly matched played a see-saw game. Virginia Porter's team 2 aided by Velma Connett and Mary Snively, beat Beatrice Craig's team 3 by 4 points, the final score being 30-26. Beatrice Craig must be commended for her playing as she was all over the court retrieving balls and aiding her team mates.

Club Pictures Can Be Taken At Lower Cost

Price Is Reduced From $15 To $10; Underclassmen's Photos Can Be Taken Now

Ten dollars will be the price for the club pictures in the Totem this year instead of fifteen-dollar rates announced formerly. This price entitles the club to one full page, with one picture and one story describing the club. Many clubs have expressed a desire to change the price originally ordered because of this reduction.

"It will be possible for any such clubs to alter their plans for their picture if they wish," stated Louis Bonsib, Totem editor, recently.

This reduction in price has been made possible by an animal show recently given in the gymnasium by Dr. William Harwood, interesting animal trapper and hunter who has spent more than thirty-six years in the heart of Africa's jungles. Pictures for these clubs may be taken immediately or at the will of the respective organizations. Faculty advisers and club officers are asked to co-operate with the Totem staff, so that the pictures may be taken as soon as possible. Arrangements may be made for the picture with the editor.

Underclassmen pictures may be paid to any of the home room agents who have been appointed and were recently announced under the direction of Mary Martha Hobrook. A meeting was held last Wednesday to instruct the agents and to urge them to speed up collections for these pictures. Picture-taking has been delayed several times because a sufficient number of underclassmen had not signed up. The pictures will be taken in the school during study periods by a photographer from the Jefferson Studio, the official photographer for the Totem 1935. Any underclassman who wishes to have his picture taken for Christmas may have it taken at the studio downtown, and the same picture will be used in the Totem. In either case the twenty-five cents must be paid direct to the home room agent who will, in turn, settle with the Totem.

Faculty pictures have been nearly completed for the book, with the last of the pictures being taken this week. Plans for the book are progressing rapidly and many sections of the book are already nearing completion.

"Schoolmen" Elect R. Nelson Snider

Is Organization Of Principals And School Executives; Hold Four Meetings Every Year.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal of South Side High School, has been elected president of the Indiana Schoolmen's Club, which is an organization for school executives, superintendents, and principals.

The club meets four times a year at Indianapolis to consider school problems, programs, and to discuss affairs relating to schools.

Mr. I. J. Good, president of Central Normal College in Danville, Indiana, was elected vice-president of the club. Mr. O. J. Greist of Indianapolis was elected secretary-treasurer. Harold E. Moore, Vigo County school superintendent, and Custer Baker, Johnson County school superintendent, were elected to the executive board.

The club consists of about four hundred superintendents and principals of the state of Indiana. Dr. L. A. Pittenger, president of Ball State Teachers' College, is the retiring president.

Ten Scouts Here Receive Awards

Robert Hirschy Is Given Eagle Scout Award At Honor Court Held Last Thursday Night.

At a Court of Honor held Thursday night at the Chamber of Commerce, out of approximately seventy-five boys ten were South Siders. The presentations were made by Glenn V. Fuller, Allan McMahan, J. Earl Shea, Judge Harry Muller, J. D. Fressler, J. P. Doody, Ersel Walley, and R. Nelson Snider, our principal. Andrew G. Barry presided at the meeting.

Those from South Side receiving awards and the awards received are as follows: Eagle Badge to Robert Hirschy; senior patrol leader warrant to Robert Weil; star badges to Robert Peterson, Alan Muller, and Robert Galbreath; second class badges to James Roth and Howard Ensley; and merit badges to John Brown, Robert Peterson, Alan Muller, Robert Weil, and Robert Galbreath.

Furniture Changes Made
Those students who have had opportunity to visit the waiting room of Miss Pittenger's office recently, will have noticed quite an improvement because the room has been refurnished. In place of the former wicker furniture, the room has been furnished with the latest style chairs. This furniture is chrome, trimmed with green and red cushions.

Three Delegates At Press Confab

Times Represented At N. S. P. A. Convention At Milwaukee; Miss Harvey Given Honor.

Ann Abbott, present general manager, Bryce Minier, student adviser, John Rex, business manager and president of Indiana High School Press Association, accompanied by Miss Rowena Harvey, faculty adviser, were the representatives of the South Side Times at the National Scholastic Press Association and National Association of Journalism Directors at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on December 5, 6, and 7.

Our delegates, who arrived in Milwaukee Thursday night, missed Thursday's program, which was devoted mainly to sight-seeing.

Orville Schalen, from the editorial staff of the Milwaukee Journal, spoke at the Friday morning convocation. His topic, "Five Thousand Miles for a Story," dealt with his experiences in trying to get a story while living with the Matanuska Valley Pioneers.

In the absence of Grant M. Hyde, Rose Helen Hauer acted as chairman for the afternoon session. She introduced Daniel Hoan, mayor of Milwaukee for the past eleven years, who explained how Milwaukee is different from other cities, what it has to offer, and how it is qualified for this convention. Later in this same session, Mitchell V. Charnley, department of Journalism, University of Minnesota, with his subject of "Bagging Ideas on the Writing Trail," related many of his experiences in writing stories.

Sight-seeing trips through the residential districts, parks, and harbor of Milwaukee, were made by the visiting delegates late Friday afternoon.

Miss Harvey, given a distinctive honor, that of Pioneer in the field of Journalism, was one of the directors who received a gold key or medal at the banquet held on Friday evening. Miss Frances Terry, toastmistress, introduced Mr. Fred Kildow of the department of Journalism, University of Minnesota, and director of the N. S. P. A. The banquet was followed by a dance in the ball room. Entertainment for the banquet and dance was furnished by the students of the Milwaukee schools. Some of the round table programs which are attended by our delegates were make-up and typography from a type designer's point of view, led by Douglas C. McMurtree; a Better Editorial Page, Miss Rose Helen Hauer; Editing the Copy, Hassal Sullivan; The Staff at Work, a demonstration in salable leads by members of the staff of the Washington High School, Milwaukee, Wisconsin; and New Projects for Experienced Staffs, which brought out some of the worthwhile projects, was led by Mrs. Margaret Zittleman.

Student Player Group Are To Hold Initiation

Ceremony Will Be Held Monday, January 20; N.S., Central To Participate.

Student Players' Club will hold rough initiation services for its new members on Monday, January 20, at 2 o'clock. South Side's new members will be initiated along with Central's and North Side's new Student Players. After the initiation in the auditorium, a dance will be held in the cafeteria.

Serious or formal initiation will be held the following Sunday, January 26, at 2 o'clock at Central's auditorium. South Side's part of the initiation services is being taken care of by a committee. This committee is composed of Margaret Crankshaw, chairman; Bon Silene Craig, Robert Harraf, Luther Prociase, and Theo Schuerenberg.

Miss Suter also announced the committees for the February and March meetings. The February meeting will feature a potluck at which there will be election of officers. The committee is: Helen Anderson, chairman; Marjorie Myers, Doris Rindchen, and Helen Flaig. The March committee is: Marjorie Decker, chairman; Constance Schultz, Dalton McAlister, Jim Hargon, Rosemary Chappell, Luther Prociase, and Don Sparkman.

Miss Suter also announced that anyone who does not have his dues paid by the end of the semester, will be dropped from the club.

The meeting of last Friday, December 6, was featured by a play given by the committee. The title of the play was "It's An Ill Wind." The characters were: Mr. and Mrs. Rosenbaum, Kenneth Scott, and Virginia Shiflet; Mae, Sally Rea; and Tom, Cliff Schrom. After the play, Helen Kriescher played the harp and refreshments were served.

Ruth Rose, vice-president, presided over the business meeting since Dick Helm, the president, was absent.

States without knowing how to read and write in any language. This poor Greek farmer became one of the wealthiest manufacturers in the United States. He would write letters to his friends in Greece, telling them of the beauty, wealth, and freedom of his country. These letters so inspired many Greeks that they, too, decided to come here and earn a fortune, and many did. Many stories of adventure were related to the Greeks and they were eager to go to the United States. Mr. Vaice had a brother living in New York with whom he intended to stay. His brother came to Ohio to engage in business and he also came. They visited Fort Wayne and Mr. Vaice decided to go into the candy business here. He owned a candy store on the corner of Jefferson and Calhoun streets, now occupied by Meyer's Drug Store.

When he came to New York he was required to stay on Ellis Island for only two hours. He was detained for such a short time because he had relatives in business in New York. He has lived in the United States for thirty-five years, in which time he has picked up the language and customs of the Americans. He did not attend one day of school in Greece, as it was not compulsory. When he was twenty-one years of age, he became a citizen, so he could take part in the different affairs of the country. Mr. Vaice married a German, he is a Greek, and his four children were born in the United States. "Now," said Mr. Vaice, joyfully, "tell me what my kids are."

When I asked Mr. Vaice if he would return to his country and fight if it entered war, he replied, "No! I am a citizen of America now. This is my country, Greece is a mere vision to me."

Mr. Vaice is now fifty-three years of age, and his ambition is to do everything he possibly can do to appear on Major Bowe's Amateur Hour.

An Italian was interviewed by Beatrice Craig in the following article.
As a special assignment for citizenship I paid a visit to the house of a nearby neighbor. This person lives by himself and is an Italian. Although he has lived in the United States for many years he does not mingle with other people, therefore he can speak practically no English. I did make out what he said, though. I interviewed him and I'll try to tell you what I understood him to say. This was partly in English and partly in Italian.
I went to his house and when he opened the door I said: "Hello Tony, may I speak with you for a few moments?"
"Sure, come in."
I slowly explained to him that I would like to ask him a few questions in regard to his migration to the United States. Reluctantly, he consented to answer a few.

Tells Full Name
First, I asked: "May I have your full name?"
"Tony Grazzini."

"Is that your full name?" I asked.
"I have lots names. Too many names," was the reply.
"Do you mind telling them to me?"
"Anthony Berni Francesco Redro Grazzini." He said them so rapidly that I had him to slowly repeat them for me. He started rattling off in Italian and I had to stop him and tell him to speak in English. I asked him his nationality and his occupation.
The reply was, "Italian and I sell fruit. I peddle it."
"Are you a naturalized citizen?"
"No I'm no naturalize," he replied, "and am no gonna be."

"Because we no wanna be. Maybe I wanna go back to my Italy someday. Then I go."

"How long have you been in the United States?"
"Too long," was the reply. "Twenty years."

Likes Native Country
"Do you like America better than Italy?"
"No! No! No! Me no like."
"Why don't you like it?"
"I just don't like it. I like my Italy. I wish I was there."
"Why don't you go back to your beloved home country then?"
"Me have good trade. Me sell fruit. Get lots money. No job in Italy."
"Why don't you go and fight for your country?"
"Too old, too old. Can fight no more. I fight once. I was young."
"Do you ever intend to go back?"
"Sure I go back some day. When I get lots of money. Five thousand dollars."
"Why did you come in the first place?"
"Because I like adventure. Me and my brother come to America. His name is Bruno Girolamo Leon Grazzini. He sell fruit too."
"What was your ambition when you came to America?"
"I want to be or do nothing when I come, so I sell fruit."

Receiving the information that I came for, I told him that that was all the information I wanted. I thanked him and made my exit.

Miss Paxton Speaks To Math-Science

Discusses History Of Calendar; Ruth Fowler Talks On Fossils; Potluck Precedes Meeting.

Why do we have New Year's Day in the middle of winter; why do we divide the year into months; why do we have thirty days in some months and thirty-one days in others, and just what religion and history is there wrapped up in our calendar, were some of the questions which Miss Mary Paxton sought to answer in her talk before the Math-Science Club at a meeting held Friday evening, December 6, in the Greeley Room. Another speaker on the evening program was Ruth Fowler, whose subject was "Fossils."

Due to the basketball game which was scheduled for the same evening, the meeting began at 5:30 and was preceded by a potluck. The potluck was followed by a short business meeting at which Richard Meyer presided in the absence of the president, John Rex.

Ruth Fowler's very interesting talk on the subject of fossils immediately followed the business meeting. To add to the interest of her subject she had illustrations and some real fossils to show.

Miss Paxton stated that her interest in calendars was aroused after having visited in Mexico during the summer where she saw at first hand the calendar used by the Aztec Indians. Since that time she has done much research work upon the subject and is therefore, well qualified to speak upon the early history and the present calendar itself.

Egyptians Used 365 Days
In order to furnish a background for her talk, Miss Paxton first told of the Egyptians and their calendar because they laid the foundation for the present one. Even in those early days she stated the Egyptians used 365 days, the period of one year in their calendar.

From the Egyptians we come to calendar making in America, particularly in Mexico and Central America. It is here we find the Aztec Indians and their calendar. Miss Paxton in her travels there during the summer brought back a small cast of the Aztec calendar which she showed at the meeting. It took 5,000 men to make the real Aztec calendar; and, after it was completed, the story goes 700 men were offered up in sacrifice.

The exact date of the next Math-Science meeting has not as yet been decided upon by other things which are to be on the same evening. The meeting however will be sometime during the first two weeks of January. The date will be announced at a later time. At this meeting election of new officers for the club will be held.

Present Operetta
Friday, November 22, the Mikado, a Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, was presented by the North Side High School music department. This production was the finest ever presented by the school. The costumes worn were real imports from Japan. The cast was a very excellent one, most of the players having had previous experience in operettas.

New Inking Machine Is Installed For Use Of Writing Students

A new innovation, something we've read about but never seen, has come to South Side. Introducing Oscar, friend of the Archers, the new ink disher-outer!

Oscar will take his place on the desk of that blonde of blondes, Miss Montgomery, and will divide his attention between the beautiful mistress of the study hall and the hungry fountain pens owned by two thousand and plus South Siders.

For one cent, Oscar will give your fountain pen all the ink it can carry; (don't be gluttonous) and your pen will be a much healthier, working thingamajig for his efforts. All that is necessary is to insert a penny into Oscar's slot-like mouth, (it isn't rosebud—it's green) and stick your fountain pen into a little well. Oscar, bless him, will do the rest with a refreshing drink of Shaeffer's (or is it Carter's) ink.

The ink Oscar is selling is midnight blue and of very high quality. Oscar's brothers have been very popular in other schools all over the country, and it is to be hoped that his popularity will be just as great at South Side.

Tuba Is Explained At Music Concert

Work Of Schools Shows Increase

High School Attendance Has Increased From Half Million To Total Of Seven Million.

The job of the public schools has almost doubled since 1900. Children enrolled in elementary schools have increased from about fifteen million to more than twenty million; those in high schools from one-half million to almost seven million.

Students in public higher institutions increased from 91,000 to 496,000. Thus, the elementary school enrollment has increased one and one third times; the high school enrollment thirteen times; and that of other educational institutions more than five times.

Equally important is the great gain shown in the number of children attending school regularly. In 1900 only 69 percent of the children enrolled were attending school daily. By 1929, this figure rose to 75 percent and by 1932, to 85 percent.

Not only have more children entered the schools but more children have stayed in school for a longer period. Thus the high school, with its more extensive program, has been growing much faster than the elementary school. Reasons for this trend are found in social, economic and educational changes. Among these are the force of public opinion favoring education rather than work for children, a greater need for adequate and complete schooling, better enforcement of school attendance and child labor laws, provisions within the schools for special classes, programs of health education, and, in rural areas, better transportation facilities.

Wolf And Dessauer To Hold Style Show

The Wolf and Dessauer department store will sponsor a style show, which will be held Friday, December 13, at 4 o'clock in the Shop of Youth on the third floor. The formal and other holiday wearing apparel will be featured. Projects Give Pupils Outlets For Interests

Many Teachers Provide Extra Opportunities For Those Craving Learning.

Interest in certain subjects of their course of study prompts some students to want to do extra projects. Therefore most of the teachers have a tentative list of things which may be done for extra credit.

Mr. Whelan, science teacher, has quite a few extra exercises to be worked out. All students are required to make rock collections but if more than a minimum is collected, extra credit is given. Special voluntary reports, weather graphs, topographic maps, salt and flower model maps of Allen County and United States, and trips to weather bureau are included in his extra projects list.

Economic Notebooks Made
If a student is interested in anything related to social science, he may carry out extra work in Mr. Murphy's classes. Economics clippings from papers and magazines are accepted. Notebooks and biographies are usually turned in in his history classes.

The Latin department has collected about 100 outside reading books for its students to peruse for extra work. Mr. Rothert also said that many students make notebooks, posters for the exhibit, and reports of Latin expressions found outside of class.

Collections of fashions (modern and periodic) and materials, together with voluntary reports on clothing are some of the things which Miss Rehner's pupils do for outside work.

Botany Reports Given
Mr. Gould has a list of reports which can be made by his classes. He also said that John Bex, who is in the advanced botany class now, has done more outside work than any other student. Following is a list of some of the more interesting topics which may be written on: Weeds Used in Medicine; Weeds: How To Control Them; Our American Forests; Bridge Grafting; Story of Rubber; Life of Johnny Appleseed; Fuel; Plants Poisonous To Eat; class excursions, pressing and mounting weeds, and seed collections. Miss Mary Crowe keeps her students well supplied with ideas for extra work. They may read recommended or approved books, write reports, give floor talks, make cartoons of text book work or newspapers, clip cartoons and explain them, collect pictures, write editorials on problems, compile a history of his own family, make charts and graphs of suitable subject matter, do limited amount of copying of costumes and maps, and carry out any original idea.

With all these ideas students can be kept busy in any subject that they are interested in.

Mathematical Safety Problem Is Worked By Make-Up Editor

An amazing bit of arithmetic has been worked out by Norman Buck, make-up editor of the Times, in connection with the present safety campaign.

Two people living in the year 1395 A. D., which was almost a century before America was discovered by Columbus, have a family of four children. Each of these four has a family of eight children. After this, the descendants continue to multiply at the rate of four children for each family. Thus, a new generation would arise approximately every thirty years. The total number of descendants then, today, would number 262,144.

The total number of fatalities in automobile accidents in America during the last ten years is 293,733. So the number of deaths incurred in accidents is 31,589, more than the descendants of a family which began back in 1395.

9. How can the world become more tolerant? Ans. By more and better education of her youth along these lines.

10. How can the injustices of dictators be abolished? Ans. Either by establishing a World Assembly or establishing a democratic government like that of the United States.

Dave Parrish Elected To College Fraternity

David Parrish, '31, was recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national college scholastic fraternity, at Indiana University. Although all of his college scholastic record was high, he was chosen mainly because of his work in the history department. He was an assistant in the history department of Indiana University, an unusual honor for an undergraduate.

While in South Side, David was general manager of the Times, editor of the Totem, and editor of the Green Book. He was also elected to National Honor Society and Quill and Scroll.

In one of the typing classes at Murphy High School in Mobile, Alabama, the students were given typing pointers by Miss Remo Paulsen, champion typist. She emphasized rhythmic typing and good posture. She typed 133 words per minute to set a new record while she was there.

French Club Stops At Lyons, France

Earle Paxton And Max Goddard Lead Tour; Report On Recent Skating Party Is Presented.

A very brief but pleasant stop was made at Lyons, France, during the French Club meeting which was held on Thursday, December 5, in the Voorhees Room. The members were conducted on a tour of the city by Earle Paxton and Max Goddard.

Lyons is located in the department of the Rhone, at the junction of the Rhone and the Saone Rivers. It is the third city in France with respect to population and industry. Lyons has at the present time a population of over 575,000. The chief business of Lyons is the silk industry, there being millions of hand and power looms in operation every hour of the day. Lyons also has many old, beautiful buildings which are of great interest. All these important facts were given by Earle Paxton in his part of the program.

Max Goddard gave the history of the city and also in connection with it a brief history of France. He said that the Franks lived in the northern part of the country and the Bourbons inhabited the southern part of France. The people of Bourgne had three aims which they tried hard to accomplish. They were (1) to learn as much as possible about civilization from the natives, (2) to advance their boundaries as much as possible, (3) to protect their country from outside invasion. The Franks later gave their name to the country, and the Bourbons gave their name to a province.

A report of the results of the recent skating party was given during the business meeting. Vivian Hickman gave the Inter-Club Congress report. Plans were made for the Christmas party to which each member may bring a guest. A refreshment and entertainment committee, which is composed of Maria Haven, Earle Paxton, and Dale Burgener, was appointed by the president. Temporary plans for the showing of a travel film the early part of the new semester were also made.

All members are urged to check with the point recorder on the number of points to be recorded from the sale of tickets.

Don McAleece To Be New Council President

The Senior Hi-Y council was formed on December 4, 1935, at the Y. M. C. A. Don McAleece was chosen as the president, and Miller Makey as the acting secretary. At the meeting plans were completed for a basketball tournament that will be held during the Christmas vacation. Each Hi-Y team is to be represented by seven or less teams, and the games will be played the Young Men's Christian Association's basketball floor.

Plans were also laid for a series of entertainments which are to be called "Hi-Y show digs." These promise to be very entertaining, and they will be held at the Y. M. C. A. It is hoped that dancing may be included in the program. If these entertainments are successful, they will be continued as a part of the Hi-Y outside program. The affairs will be ended with a "Splash Party."

Teacher's Name Omitted
In the Times issue of November 27, the name of Miss Margaret Fish was inadvertently omitted from the list of Latin teachers, who were on the faculty at the beginning of South Side's history. Miss Fish taught Latin five years in South Side. She occupied room 34, in which Mrs. Welty now teaches.

Fanciful Journalist Imagines Our Archerland Of Dreams

Is there anyone here who knows what Utopian means? In case of a negative reply, the word means imaginary, fanciful, chimerical. In addition to those two-bit words, Utopian is just plain "too good to be true." Utopia was an imaginary island

Animals Feature Assembly Friday

Dr. William Harwood Gives Talk On Jungle Beasts; Described Every Animal As They Came.

In the assembly held Friday morning in the gymnasium, Dr. William Harwood told of the chills and shivers he experienced upon his first meeting with a wild animal in the jungles of Africa. In his humorous manner, this interesting wild-animal trapper told of his many other unusual experiences which took place in the twenty-five years he spent animal-catching. Dr. Harwood then brought his animals into the gymnasium floor and told about each one.

Among the animals he displayed were the orang-outang, various species of monkeys, one monkey which was silver breasted and the smallest in existence. He also exhibited a lion caught in Ethiopia on the Fourth of July; for the lion, he used a club, although the animal behaved like a playful, overgrown puppy. Most of Dr. Harwood's examples of wild animals are very young and will sometime weigh as much as 165 pounds.

Archer Statuettes Can Be Secured For Gifts

The annual sale of Archer statuettes has begun. These were originated by John Baker, one of Miss Ley's pupils, and have been accepted as the official symbol of South Side High School. These models, available in bronze, ivory, or green and white, make lovely gifts to schoolmates or to friends, brothers, and sisters who are home from college for the holidays. They may also be used as ornaments on bookcases, mantels, or tables.

The statuettes will be on sale from now until Christmas. The price is fifty cents apiece, and they may be purchased in room 61. If the purchaser prefers, he may give his order to his home room teacher.

Wo-Ho-Ma Will Hold Christmas Party Soon

The next meeting of the Wo-Ho-Ma Club will be the Christmas party. As usual this meeting will be held in the Voorhees Room. Of course there will be a business meeting. Also there will be a 10-cent gift exchange. Since this club has been studying the lives of famous women this year, Ruth Reitz will talk on Martha Berry, the woman who founded schools in the mountain districts for poor children. Plans will be made concerning the annual Wo-Ho-Ma Christmas basket. Interesting Christmas games will be played.

State Medicine Debate Subject Of Conference

Purdue Team Wins Decision Over Indiana; Director Of Forensic At Iowa Judges.

South Side Sends Thirteen Delegates

Principal Banquet Speaker Is Major Norman Imrie; Singing By Concert Choir.

At the sixth annual Indiana High School Debaters' Conference held at Purdue University on December 6 and 7, the subject of State Medicine was discussed at the various sessions.

The conference was opened by a debate between an Indiana University team, consisting of Earl Rose and Lynville Miles, and a Purdue team, made up of Charles Pettigrew and Robert Royster. The Purdue team took the affirmative side of the question which was, "Resolved, that medical care should be made available to all citizens at public expense," while the Indiana debaters voiced the negative side.

Each participant delivered a ten-minute constructive speech and a five-minute rebuttal. Professor A. Craig Baird, director of debate at Iowa University, acted as critic and awarded the decision to the Purdue team.

Elliott Gives Welcome

At 5:30 o'clock the conference banquet was held with Professor P. E. Lull, director of Forensics at Purdue, as the presiding officer. Group singing of Hail Purdue, Indiana, Let Me Call You Sweetheart, Auld Lang Syne, Jingle Bells, Smiles, and Home On the Range were led by the Purdue director of music, Albert P. Stewart.

After this singing, the high school debaters were welcomed by Dr. E. C. Elliott, president of the University. The response was given by Richey Sims, a Frankfort High School student. A musical program then followed by the Purdue Concert Choir, a group consisting of about twenty-five. John Brubaker, a South Side graduate, represents Fort Wayne in this renowned group. They sang "Morning," by Oley Speaks; "The Sleigh," a Russian song by Kountz; "Shortnin' Bread," by Wolf; and the "Italian Street Song," by Victor Herbert.

Imrie Is Speaker

Major Norman Imrie, associate editor of the Columbus Post-Dispatch and former captain in the Canadian army, was the principal speaker of the evening. His subject was "Victory by Surprise" and the thought he tried to leave with his audience was a slogan of Theodore Roosevelt, "Do the best you can with what you've got wherever you are." Major Imrie missed his train and was about ten minutes late. This lapse of time was filled by the schools giving their various yells.

After the banquet a play, "Hearts of Gold" or "Virtue Triumphant" was presented by Purdue Playshop, the campus dramatic organization at Eliza Fowler Hall. It was directed by Gilbert Dunbar Williams and staged by H. Kenn Carmichael.

On Saturday morning, a campus tour through all the places of interest was directed by W. H. Maxon, varsity debate manager. At the same time a coaches' session was in progress in the Faculty Lounge of the Union Building. At this meeting, Paul Carmack, coach of debate at Rushville High School, was presiding officer. "Debate Ethics" were discussed by Professor Myron Phillips, director of debate of Wabash College. Leland S. Winch, coach of co-ed debate at Purdue, discussed "Debate and Decisions." These talks were followed by an open forum of other problems coaches presented.

Chairman Is Hall

At 8 o'clock, Professor Oakel F. Hall, department of education head at Purdue, acted as chairman of a general session. Dr. Charles Dudley Saul, professor of medicine, Hahnemann Medical College of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, presented the case for State Medicine and Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and Hygiene and an associate professor of medicine at Chicago University, presented the case against State Medicine.

After luncheon in the Union Building cafeteria, the South Side representatives started home. Those attending this conference from South Side are: Maxine Borchert, Jo Anne Smith, Maxine Mariotte, George Anna Martin, Sonia Velkoff, Ruth Adler, Miss Dorothy Benner, Manuel Rothberg, Bob Adams, Myron Jones, Dick Helm, Morgan Harrison, and Mr. Benjamin Null.

A Correct Method Of Walking Helps You To Get Ahead

By Maxine Rippe

Did you ever see a dream walking (correctly)? You have often heard boys make a remark that goes something like this, "Gee, look at that dream going there." Do they look at how she walks? Of course they do. One can have a very pretty face, but her walk will often spoil her.

Come, let us stand in the front hall for a little while. One of the things that we might hear is, "There goes a good-looking girl; but I would hate to walk down the street with her, her posture is terrible. If I ever thought that I looked like that." But nine out of ten don't realize that they do walk that very way. You know, even your best friend won't tell you. Did you ever notice the "streamline strut"? Maybe the name is new, but the walk is not. It's a knockout. That's what you think.

One of the major factors determining the manner in which one walks is shoes. Low heeled shoes are favored for walking. One of our teachers expressed her opinion in this way. "The incoming of low heeled shoes is one of the best things that has happened to promote good posture and walk. Girls who try to walk in spike heels are comical."

Girls, why don't you buy shoes to fit your feet instead of your heads; and also try to correct your walk. It isn't becoming nor does it give you poise. One really ought to have poise. This so-called "streamline strut" is only one of the many walks that many girls have acquired, or have tried to acquire. I mention girls because they seem to "put it on" more than the boys. Do something about your walk. If more of you would "do something" about your walk, we would hear more fellows say, "There goes a dream that really is walking."

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

In a recent test which Mr. Gould gave to his beginning botany classes, the following pupils made grades of 95 or above: Charlotte Bell, Rowena Bevington, Earl Englebrecht, Jeanette Hardesty, Marie Mitchell, Elizabeth Simpson, LaVon Cook, Ruth Fritz, Constance Haag, Evelyn Lehman, David Rindelman, Marjorie Scheuman, Ruth Stoner, Elinor White, Aldena Disler, Mary Ann Fark, Betty Muntzinger, Marian Patterson, Marjorie Funderberg, Paula Gerding, Grace Nelson, and Dorothy Volz.

Those who made above 90 in a recent French 1 test, period 3, in Miss Perkins' room, are: Eileen Hauck, Dorothy Herbst, June Holzworth, George Obringer, and Jerry Zehr.

In a series of contests in which both speed and accuracy were necessary, the following students in Miss Fiedler's algebra 1 class were winners: Dorothea Koonz, Morton Wahrwald, Roger Neff, Murray Squires, David Slattery, and Frances Van Buskirk.

Three boys were able to go on correcting themes with Mr. Makey in the Greeley Room while a tap dance for the art tea was being practiced. That's concentration!

In Miss Kelly's English 7 class Earl Hoy gave a special report on "Quality Street" by Barrie.

Have you ever heard of the "Pebico" Indians? That's strange, I haven't either. It seems that Madge Rothchild thinks they live in Mexico. Just ask someone in her history class.

Is Mr. Gilbert ever getting generous to his third period health class! He even wanted to give the Panama Canal to someone the other day. But he really meant it to be as a class term report. Honest!

Mr. Whelan's physical geography 2 classes have been studying weather maps for some time. They have also kept a weather record. His physical geography 1 classes are study the different types of soil as to how they are formed and where they are found.

Many pupils in Miss Ley's art classes have been doing unusual and outstanding work. Among those are Frank Glusenkamp, Paul Kennedy, Ralph Jones, and Eleanor Kirkpatrick.

In Miss Miller's general history 2 class the following people gave reports: LaVerne Keel, Alice Karn, and Betty Gross on Livingston; Mary Jane Wagoner, Catherine Hause, and Junior Ellinger on Cecil Rhodes; Betty Burhen, Mae Persing, and Marjorie Glass on Henry Stanley.

Miss Perkins' French 4 classes handed in their maps of France which illustrate Sans Fanille.

The French 4 classes of Miss Perkins are now reading the play, "Le Voyage de M. Perrichon."

Miss Van Gorder and her occupation classes are very fortunate for Eugene Ayres has brought a radio to class which enables them to hear the Vocational Guidance series over the Columbia Broadcasting System from 1:30 to 2:15.

The third period occupation classes of Miss Van Gorder will go to the police station Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Van Gorder has taken two different groups to the police station where they have been con-

Yule Decorations In Two Club Rooms Express Good Cheer

"Look at this Christmas tree ornament bounce off the davenport! It bounces high enough that I could catch it!" Yes, it really did—but only once—after the second time, we set out to look for a dust pan. "Do you think some heavy wire would make those wreaths hang better? What makes those drapes move? Oh, that is Kenny Scott behind them, trying to make them hang straight."

If ever you happened to peep into the Greeley or Voorhees Room last week or if you were there with a Crowsley, you would probably have seen and heard many amusing things.

For the first time in the history of our school, Inter-Club Congress decorated the two club rooms in place of the other clubs. A nominal sum was given by each club so that new decorations could be purchased.

A committee composed of Kenneth Scott, Margaret Crankshaw, and Lois Wyneken assisted by other members, spent many hours of hard labor in the Greeley and Voorhees rooms. Combined with hard labor, there were some asks which were greatly enjoyed, such as sitting on two pieces of cardboard until the glue would finally hold and climbing on the roof to recover some evergreen that fell out of the window.

Large decorated trees, wreaths, silver candles, small silver trees, large blue flood lights, and an indirect lighting system was the plan of decoration for the Greeley Room. In the Voorhees Room there were a large tree, wreaths, candles, and black and silver screens.

Those who worked faithfully in assisting the committee are Paul Reynolds and Norm Miller for lighting; Jim Ellenwood, Joe Close, Wayne Bennett, Charles Stone, Fred Nye, Dick Dochterman, Delbert Leininger, and Bryce Minier for other decorations.

Let's wish the hope of getting them finished for Christmas.

"The Unwilling Vestal" and "The Perilous Seat" have proved to be the most popular collateral reading books from reports given by Miss Woodward's pupils recently.

The highest record in all vocabulary tests and grammar tests in German 1 was attained by Walter Prange, who made 100 each time. Rosemary Lehman and James Dern are next with 100 in all but one test, and on that one they both made 99.

Gift Wrapping Paper On Sale In Front Hall

Christmas Designs Worked Out By Pupils In Miss Dochterman's Classes.

The annual sale of Christmas wrapping paper began officially Thursday morning, and will continue until it is all sold out, which it is rumored will be very soon. All of those students who have planned to buy some paper had better be getting it soon.

As usual the paper was made from linoleum blocks and then printed by the School Press.

Best Designs Chosen

This year the designs were worked out by Miss Dochterman's art classes. The best designs were then chosen. Those who helped with most of the work are Louis Bonsib, Sonia Velkoff, Marjorie White, William Scott, Mary Martha Hobrock, Margaret Ream, and Marjorie Dancer.

This Christmas the wrapping paper is said to be the best ever printed in Miss Dochterman's six years' experience at designing paper. The paper is of better quality than of former years, and will wrap much easier. The color scheme is being carried out in two shades of green.

Sales Contest Held

Miss Dochterman announced that a contest was being carried on by the salesmen of the paper. A prize is offered to the person selling the most rolls. The one leading at the present time is Deliah Schaffer, who has sold sixty rolls.

This paper is sponsored by the Art Club and is being sold two sheets for five cents. The money is used by the Art Club in furthering some of their activities.

Miss Dochterman received the idea for printing Christmas paper while visiting the University of Minnesota. She discovered the art classes making this paper and thought it a fine idea to introduce at South Side.

The paper is being sold in the main hall and room 77. The blocks are also displayed in the hall.

Ray Racine Talks At Math Meeting

Speaks About Foreign Christmas Celebrations At Junior-Math; Santa Claus Reads Letters.

Ray Racine told of Christmas celebrations in various foreign countries at Junior Math Club's Christmas party. Games were played, directed by Robert Weil.

Bernadette Shearer gave a tap dance. She was accompanied at the piano by Darwin Leitz.

Santa Claus appeared and read several letters from members of the club. These were quite amusing. He then awarded a prize to Helen E. Meyer for winning a game.

The club then sang some Christmas songs, among which were "Silent Night" and "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town."

Prizes were awarded to several others who had won various games. Refreshments of oranges and candy were served. A "White Elephant" gift exchange was held at the close of the meeting.

Philatelic Club To Hold Election At Meeting

On Wednesday, January 8, in the Voorhees Room, the Philatelic Society will hold an open meeting and an election of officers for the coming semester. The nominating committee, which consists of the officers of the club, namely: Homer Miller, president; John Thackery, vice-president; Dalton McAlister, secretary; and John Jackson, sergeant-at-arms, will hold a meeting tonight to make the nominations. These will be voted upon by secret ballot.

The committee for the Christmas basket of the club has been chosen by Homer Miller. It is Marion Bell, Margery Crago, Allison Arnold, and Fred Rapp. This committee will give a report at the forthcoming meeting.

We'll Be Seeing You Next Year, Familiar Form Of Goodbyes

As Friday, December 20, approaches more than one highly elated person is saying, "I'll be seeing you next year." At this remark someone is sure to turn around and say, "What in the—," then suddenly, remembering, break off in a delighted giggle. This phrase refers to school in general.

Just think a year will have elapsed before we again enter the portals of our South Side High School. Small children say, "No more pencils, no more books," but since we are far too dignified to express our feelings thus, we simply say, "I'll be seeing you." Friendly as our pencils and books have proven to be, we gladly say goodbye to them until another year.

We, of course, say "I'll be seeing you" to our teachers. We must in honesty say that we will truly miss our teachers even if they do remind us of pencils and books.

Now don't start crying at the dark prospect of leaving so many familiar faces until another year because, after all, that year of 1936 is really not so far away. In fact only a matter of a few days and we'll awaken to find that another year is ready to unroll.

Travel Presents Skit In Assembly

Nineteen Boys Awarded Either Sweaters, Letters By Davis; Basketball Squad Performs.

The Travel Club staged a skit during the pep session held Friday morning. Manuel Rothberg, Virginia Greiner and Don Hickman were the main participants in the skit which portrayed several states.

Mr. Ora Davis presented nineteen boys with either sweaters or letters. Mr. Davis explained that two of these awards, which are given after the football season, were honorary letters. Those letters went to Dick Dochterman and Morgan Harrison. Fred Ostermeyer, his fourth letter; Bud Lee, his third and fourth; Carl Morris, his second; and Fred Nye, his second.

Although there were twelve boys who deserved sweaters, only eight received them because of a delayed shipment. The boys who earned sweaters are Wayne Bennett, Don Faux, James Derr, Allan Faux, Ed Kruse, Bud Victor, Herman Makey, Fred Meyers, Bill Wilson, Gordon Parmelee, John Hines, and Paul Boyer.

Miss Virginia Montgomery gave a short speech on how to act at games. Mr. Tudor gave a talk on "Educated Citizens" and the new rules for basketball. The team also illustrated these rules under the direction of Mr. Tudor and Coach Burl Fiddle.

Many Studes Rushing Projects To Be Gifts

With the advance of Christmas many of the various classes about South Side are rushing their semester's projects in order to have them ready to use as seasonal gifts. The manual training department under the direction of Mr. J. H. Chappell, is hurrying its work along so as to get as much as possible done before the holidays. Mr. Chappell stated that many of the projects were nearly completed at present, and that about half of them would be finished by Christmas.

Some of the articles which are being made by the pupils in the manual training department are hanging book shelves, foot stools, bridge lamps, reading lamps, small boudoir lamps, candle holders, tilt top tables, what-nots, book cases, and small tables.

The domestic science classes are also rushing their work so as to get as much as possible done before Christmas. The classes of Miss Rehorth and Miss Mott are feverishly working to get their projects finished in time for Christmas wear. Last-minute stitches are being taken on many of the articles, and it is hoped that most of them will be completed by vacation time.

The work which the girls in the sewing classes are now rushing to complete is the wool dress project.

X,Y,Z, To Meet This Afternoon For Discussion

Bionomial Theory Will Be Subject; Constitution Drill And Election Of Officers.

Today's meeting of the X. Y. Z's will consist of a study of the binomial theorem and also a review of the work which has already been studied in the previous meetings of the group. The meeting will be held at 3:30 in room 16.

Preceding the explanation and drill there will be a short business meeting at which the officers of the group will be elected. These will be a president, vice-president, and secretary. There will be no treasurer as there are no dues charged. Candidates for election have already been selected by the three captains who are Mildred Foellinger, Norman Buck, and Richard Meyer. Also at this meeting the constitution will be submitted to the group for their approval. This has been drawn up by four of the charter members.

At the last meeting of the group, definite terms were formed. They are, team X, Mildred Foellinger, captain; Ruth Adler, Dorothy Crabill, Hazel Kuttler, Betty Rayl, and Helen Anderson.

Team Y consists of Norman Buck, captain; Allen Faux, Morgan Harrison, Robert Haruff, Marion Bailey, and Louis Squires.

The Z team has for its members Richard Meyer, captain; Dalton McAlister, David Sherman, John Staley, Herman Rutkowski, and John Will. In the meeting held last Thursday evening the girls' team defeated the boys' by a large majority. The two highest scores being made by Dorothy Crabill and Ruth Adler.

In case of absence, the members of the group are required to send a substitute. Doris Osgood, Max Goddard, and Robert Storm have consented to be permanent substitutes for the group.

A record of the scores made at every meeting by the teams and by the individuals will be kept by each captain. These will be placed upon a permanent score card. A method of honoring the people having high score will be arranged and announced at a later date.

A correction is to be made as to who made the high score of the meeting before last. The highest score of that meeting and of any meeting held so far this year, was made by John Will that evening.

Helen Anderson Head Of So-Si-Y

Norma Clauser, Helen Doenges, Mary Ann Fark, Martha Franz Elected For Semester Term.

Helen Anderson was elected head of So-Si-Y for the coming semester at the club's regular meeting which was held on Tuesday evening in the Greeley Room.

Other officers chosen are Norma Clauser, vice-president; Helen Doenges, secretary; Mary Anne Fark, treasurer; and Martha Franz, Inter-Club Congress representative.

The theme of the meeting, which was "Following the Star," was carried out as a Christmas party with Polar-Y, North Side's Girl Reserves chapter, as guests of the club.

Virginia Greiner, chairman of the committee for the program, presided. She introduced Betty Muntzinger, who read "The Legend of the Christmas Rose." Miriam Lickart played several selections on her harp, including "Silent Night."

Mrs. Susan Simminger, prominent Fort Wayne business woman, gave a talk and showed several reels of motion pictures on Alaska. Pictures pertaining to Montana and Fort Wayne's north side were also shown.

Norma Clauser is the program chairman for the next meeting. Her committee is composed of the following members: Beatrice Schieber, Dorothy Volz, Dorothy Young, Barbara Von Ganten, Gertrude Dannenfeldt, Harriet Basford, Gladys Shiflet, Genevieve Shearer, Clarissa Coburn, Lorraine Meyer, Ruth Berning, Lois Wyneken, Forrester Valentine, and Virginia Shiflet.

Autos Are Needed To Deliver Baskets

Cars are needed to help distribute the baskets furnished by the home rooms under the direction of Inter-Club Congress. The groceries will be delivered on Tuesday, December 24. Anyone who will furnish a car is asked to report to Mr. Flint as soon as possible.

"And the glory of the Lord shone around them"; and the glorious Christmas spirit united the people of all the nations of the world. All the Christian nations of the world are filled with the holy spirit, and men are happily worshipping the Christ child who was born in the manger in Bethlehem of Judah on that first Christmas eve nearly two thousand years ago. Even as the three wise men saw the star in the east and brought unto the young child their treasures, and offered unto him gifts, gold and frankincense and myrrh; everyone is giving and receiving gifts from their friends and loved ones. If only this Christmas spirit which is great and powerful enough to make all nations joyful and unified could be preserved all through the year and all thoughts of war and destruction be put aside. Indeed this would be a Merry Christmas for the whole world.

Presents To Be Given At Christmas Dance

Wish your friends a very "Merry Christmas" at the Christmas tea dance to be held this Friday at 3:20 in the cafeteria. "Santa Claus Is Comin' To Town" and other inviting musical pieces will be offered by the South Side orchestra. The special feature will be a tap dance given by Helen Gray. Christmas favors will be given to every person attending the dance. The committee serving for this week's tea dance is composed of Virginia Vesey, Rosemary Lehman, Harriet Yapp, and Joan Lohman, who will substitute at this time for Bernadette Dygert. Miss Pittenger and Miss McCloskey will chaperone the affair.

Math-Science Club To Be Entertained

Social Science Club Will Hold Joint Meeting On January 10; Recognition Will Be Given.

At the invitation of the Social Science Club, the Math-Science Club and the Social Science Club will have a joint meeting on Friday, January 10, at 7:30 in the Greeley Room. Each club will hold their business meeting separate, and then afterward meet for the joint program.

The Math-Science Club business meeting will consist of an election of officers and the annual Recognition Service. This meeting marks the last one for the fall semester and also the last meeting under the direction of the present officers.

The nominating committee, which consisted of Mildred Foellinger, Selma Liff, Jim Derr, and Jim Sweet, met during the week to make final selections for the various offices. These candidates have been selected upon their regularity in attendance, character, and scholarship.

The Recognition Service has always been a high point in the Math-Science Club. It is at this service that outstanding pupils in the subjects of mathematics and science are given awards for their scholarship. To receive recognition for work in the field of science and mathematics one must have been a member of the club for one year at least. Mr. Snider has in the past awarded these honors to the qualified members. He will also do the same this year. Last year Garland Eickmeyer carried the honor of the highest average in mathematics and science; it remains to be seen as to who will be the one this year.

The Social Science Club will also have an election of officers at their business meeting. Following the business meeting of both the clubs, all will meet in the Greeley Room for the program. This part of the evening's entertainment is under the direction of the Social Science Club. They have secured Mr. A. J. Dier of the Melroy Picture Production Company, who is going to show two or three reels of governmental and social science interest.

Clifford Schrom was elected the new president of Wranglers'. Sally Rea, vice-president; Maxine Roth, secretary; Thomas Jaenicke, treasurer; Dick Strausser and Philip Green, sergeant and assistant sergeant-at-arms, at a meeting of the club Monday in the Greeley Room. After the day's business was carried out by the old officers with David Stegar once more presiding, with Gwendolyn Horn serving as vice-president and program chairman, Doris Bennett as secretary, Dick Strausser as treasurer, Thomas Jaenicke and Clifford Schrom as sergeant and assistant sergeant-at-arms, refreshments were served to the Wrangler members present by this week's refreshment committee.

One-Act Play Will Be Given By Thespians

Members Will Elect Officers; At Philo Meet January 6; Date For Musicales Is Set.

"Men Not Wanted" is the play to be given by the Philaethian Thespians at their next regular meeting to be held Monday, January 6, at 3:30 in the Greeley Room. Also at this meeting there will be an election of new officers for the next semester.

The play "Men Not Wanted," is a comedy in one act. The characters are a Mrs. Richard D. Kellogg, hostess; Grace Kellogg, her daughter; Margaret Branson, Laura Fitzsimmons, Emma Summers, Helen Stoddard, and Frances Ayers, all guests at the Kellogg home; and Mary Castle, the maid who is convinced of the tyranny of men.

Nominees Are Named
At a meeting held Wednesday evening in Miss Demaree, the faculty adviser's room, final tryouts for the play were made. Announcement as to who will take the various parts will not be made until Monday, when the play is given. Maxine Mariotte has charge of all the properties for the play.

The nominating committee, which consisted of Maxine Mariotte, chairman; Ruth Roadcap, and Peggy Kilpatrick, met with Miss Demaree Monday evening to select the candidates for the various offices. The president, however, will remain the same, as she is elected for a term of one year. The candidates are: Vice-president, Maxine Borchert and Mary Martha Hobrock; secretary, Ruth Roadcap and Virginia Fathauer; treasurer, Ina Claire Chappell and Joan Kennedy; and for sergeant-at-arms, Geneva Shearer and Helen Anderson; Inter-Club Congress, Peggy Kilpatrick and Helen Doenges; and program chairman, Mary Michaels and Selma Liff.

Musicales Date Set
The date for the annual Philo musicale has been set for Sunday, January 26. This year the musicale will be held at the home of Miriam Lickert which is located at 2335 South Webster Street. All arrangements for the program are in charge of Helen Flaig, who is the music director of the club. Helen Flaig announced that among the features of the program there will be organ, harp, and violin music. Also the quartet will sing and there will be perhaps a trio of the harp, cello, and the organ.

Mary Michaels, who had charge of the yearbook announced that all who did not receive their book at the last meeting may get them at the meeting on January 6.

In addition to the other things on this program there will be a continuance of the Colonial Literature Topic. This will be in charge of Mary Martha Hobrock.

Music Department Party Given Friday

One of the features on the program at the Christmas party given by the music department of South Side on Friday, December 13, was the music provided by the school orchestra, which played for dancing.

During the party the guests all joined in singing Christmas carols, accompanied by Ruth Baade. The carols which were sung are: "Come All Ye Faithful," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "The First Noel," and "Silent Night."

Further entertainment was provided by a tap dance by Jacqueline Hench to the tune "Top Hat," and several piano selections by Virginia Baker.

Later big sacks of buttered popcorn and large red apples were served as refreshments.

The chaperones for the affair were Mr. Winwright, R. Nelson Snider, Miss Pittenger, Miss Montgomery, and Miss Benner.

Martha Franz was the general head of all the committees. The committees are as follows:

Ticket committee: Virginia Baumgartner, chairman; Billie Mae Mauk, room committee; Helen Kreischer, chairman; Jack Beemer, Marjorie Dancer, food committee; Fred Sunamono, chairman; Van Buskirk, Glen Gregory, orchestra, Vernon Gregory.

More Candy Sellers Needed For Games

Some more candy sellers are needed at the basketball games. Any student who wishes to sell candy among the crowd should report to Miss Covatt at once. Free admission to the games is given to all candy sellers.

Many Give Views On What Christmas Will Be To Them

Now that Christmas will soon be here and the school pupils will be getting out of school for a nice long vacation, the real thought behind the celebration of Christmas comes to our minds. Everyone knows just why Christmas is celebrated, and everyone has an individual idea of what Christmas means to them. When a number of students and teachers were persuaded to tell the inquiring reporter their opinions, the following answers were given to the question, "What does Christmas mean to you?"

Lorraine Meyer: It is the time for early church services and for taking long walks over the city in order to view the scenery.

Miss Olive Perkins: To me Christmas means an opportunity to be with my family more than I am at any other time of the year. I think also, that I enjoy the Christmas church service more than any other part of the celebration.

Ruth Roadcap: Christmas to me is a day set aside to celebrate the birth of the Christ child, and a day in which to be thankful for all of our blessings.

Betty Garton: I think Christmas is a time when we should stop and realize the true significance of the birth of the Christ child and the true meaning of our Christian religion.

Helen Doenges: To me Christmas means the time for great joyfulness and the giving and receiving of gifts. Most important of all, however, it celebrates the birth of the Christ child.

LaVerne Deekel: Christmas to me means not so much the giving and receiving of gifts, but a period of joy—the time when others receive from me joy and happiness, not presents.

Virginia Baumgartner: Christmas is the time for joy and happiness to fill everyone's heart. It is a time when the birth of the Christ child should be remembered.

Key West, Florida Next Travel Topic

Mrs. I. W. Langford Is To Speak; Music, Refreshments Planned For January 8 Program.

A visit to Key West, Florida, is planned for the next Travel Club meeting on January 8, 1936. The program is in charge of Martha Franz, who has arranged for an excellent speaker. The speaker is to be Mrs. I. W. Langford, who spent several years recently in Florida.

Mrs. Langford is somewhat of an invalid, and takes delight in going around to various clubs and meetings to give talks on her frequent and interesting travels. She will tell all about her experiences and interests in Florida and Key West, especially.

Some piano music by Arthur Pontius and Dick Miller will furnish the entertainment for the program. Refreshments depicting Florida to mind will be served after the program. They will be prepared by the members of the committee.

The committee in charge is Martha Franz, chairman; Gordon Emrick, Morris Boyce, Arthur Pontius, Fay Smith, Mary Jane Rison, Mary K. Smith, Dick Miller, and Helen Doenges. Travel Club presented its safety kit to the school Friday morning, December 13, after having practiced it on the gymnasium floor after the December 12 meeting and December 14, after supper.

Christmas Party Held By Art Club

Mrs. C. Lane Reads One-Act Play; Helen Flaig Plays Harp Solo; Refreshments Feature.

The December meeting of the Art Club was held in the form of a Christmas party. Mrs. C. Lane, supervisor of the English department at Central High School, read the one-act play by John Golden, "Lost Princess." Marjorie Glass opened the meeting with a piano selection and Helen Flaig played a harp solo "Silent Night, Holy Night." Later all joined in singing favorite Christmas carols. The Christmas paper sale, which is an annual feature of the art club, was reported going fine, and some was passed out at the meeting. Refreshments were served. Sonia Velkoff was chairman of the party.

Yuletide Party Is To Feature Fantasy Friday

School Orchestra To Assist; Glee Club Is To Deliver Handel Hallelujah Chorus.

Play Is In Charge Of Alice Patterson

Students To Sing Christmas Carols; Faculty Member Will Act As Santa Claus.

A "Christmas Fantasy," under the supervision of Miss Alice J. Patterson, girls' physical education director, will be the feature of the school-wide Christmas party which will be held in the form of an assembly at 2:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The "Christmas Fantasy" will be a musical and pantomime interpretation of the story of the Christ child and will be enacted by a group of girls who have been under the tutelage of Miss Patterson. The musical accompaniment will be "Reve Angelique," by Kammer-Ostrow, and will be played by the school orchestra, assisted by the music department's harp ensemble. J. W. Winwright, school music director, is in charge of all the music for the program.

As another feature of the program, the Glee Club, accompanied by the orchestra, will sing the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah." Some of the selections which the orchestra will play include "Christmas Echoes," by E. Brooks, and "The Voice of Chimes," by A. Luigini.

During the home room period mimeographed slips containing the words of Christmas carols will be given to everyone in school. These selections which every student is requested to sing, include "Holy Night," "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," "Joy to the World," and others.

Santa Claus, in the person of one of South Side's faculty members, will also attend the program for a very special reason. A faculty committee, assisted by the entire music department, has arranged the program.

Club Congress To Make Up Baskets

Group Has Charge Of Gathering And Distributing Of All Bas- kets For Christmas Charity.

Distribution and gathering of all Christmas baskets this year is being done by Inter-Club Congress, after all home rooms agreed that more would be collected and those students belonging to several clubs would not be overtaxed by having to give to each one. Definite plans for this were made at the meeting of Inter-Club Congress last Monday in room 138.

A financial report about the Christmas decorations in the Greeley and Voorhees rooms was read by the secretary. All clubs owing money for their part of the decoration should pay 35 cents to Mr. Flint immediately.

Today is the last day that food for the donations may be turned in. Home rooms should send their baskets to the west window of the book room. Money for perishables should be turned in to your home room teacher. At least sixty large boxes or baskets are also needed; anyone having some extra ones in his home may bring them to the book store or home room. Some students have already donated the use of their car for next Tuesday, when this distribution will take place, but more are needed. Pupils with cars which can be used for this purpose should report to Mr. Flint.

Inter-Club Congress members who gave talks in the home room on Tuesday and Wednesday are: Kenneth Scott, Lois Wyneken, Katherine Alendord, Verna Holtman, Eldora Bueckling, John Thackery, Margaret Crankshaw, Roy Roadcap, Margaret Ruckel, Betty Snider, Lorraine Meyer, Jane Loomis, Ruth Reitz, Morgan Harrison, June Haeger, Miles Frisinger, and Ruth Garrison.

To The Lettermen!

We were pleased to learn that stags were prohibited at the Lettermen's dance last Saturday. Stags have their places, of course, but we think a few affairs each year ought to be for couples only. It's not much fun for fellows to dig up dates, pay for them, and then be cut in on by an over-supply of unattached males.

X. Y. Z.'s

Formation of the new X. Y. Z. Club devoted to advanced mathematics is a creditable reflection upon Miss Fiedler and its members. We are glad to know that there are enough people in school who are sufficiently interested in good hard work to undertake such a hobby. Such earnestness of interest speaks well for the self-education to which we must all revert after graduation.

Best Off!

Recent interviews with emigres to this country made by Helen Wiehe, Beatrice Craig, Mary Lee Hines, and Artafoe Roach, published in last week's Times, and also those not published, must have impressed the interviewers with our great heritage. The mere fact that so many people want to come to America should make us appreciate that we are probably the best off nation in the world.

Dean Brahm

We so rarely come across a work of real genius that we are doubly thrilled when one appears in our school. And the travel article by Dean Brahm this week is undoubtedly genius. We have never in all our high school career read such a forceful, emotional piece of student literature. With all due consideration, we would not hesitate to say that he has great possibilities as a professional writer.

Honor Society

All our admiration goes to those students who were chosen the fall members of the National Honor Society. To work four long years; to gradually advance in the scholarship, leadership, and character as necessary in real life as in school; this honor seems to us fitting tribute for these achievements, especially near Christmas.

But, since these elections denote past achievement, and not future possibilities, they will make or break no one. They merely show the real character so necessary for life.

"Tomorrow's Tangles To The Winds Resign"

America today is speed mad. We rush and dash pointlessly about and race frantically to get nowhere. The Declaration of Independence mentions "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Our worst fault is that in our frantic pursuing, we often outrun and lose totally that same happiness so dear to us.

Why don't we stop occasionally; look for happiness where we are, not at some far future point? After all, isn't one of the greatest sources of human happiness our doing the best we can every day?

Omar Khayam, the ancient Persian poet, says, "Tomorrow's tangles to the winds resign."

Pursuit of happiness! We all seek it. In that pursuit, however, "attack is the best defense."

"The Great American Wilderness."—Junk?

The present series of travel articles has been initiated because we feel that we who live our lives surrounded by ever-present walls are not well acquainted with the beauty about us.

Our country is blessed with some of the greatest scenery in the world, but we are damned by 'he urge to build cities, erect billboards, stack junk, and tear about in our country side.

Dead souls! The beauty in our lives is all that makes them worth the living. As Browning says,

The year's at the spring
And day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven;
The hillsides dew-pearled;
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn;
God's in his heaven—
All's right with the world!

GHOST TOWN

Long Departed Days Of Romance Return In A Haunted Old Boom Town

Okay, young America, often dreaming of mystery, adventure, and romance. We're going one step better and taking you right into the heart of it. So hop in our car and we're off for the ghost towns of California!

We pass through treeless and sun-bleached barrens bounding the vast valleys of central California. Searched foothills, merging into deep black gorges, and the jagged heights of timber ranges appear. And at last, the great Sierra Nevadas flash into view.

Driving over the Sierras and into the valley, we bring our car to a stop before a line of long-abandoned camps and a sleepy, sloppily town of crumbling adobe bricks. We wonder what ever brought men into this terrifying land of lonely and tangled trails.

The answer was John Marshall's cry of "Gold!" First the Spaniards, Mexicans, and Chinese; and at last, the Yankees, came. All added color to the gold diggings.

At first you might see nothing startling as you enter the ghost city. Block after block of deserted houses—saloons, shops, stables, dance halls, gambling houses, and eating houses standing tomb-empty meet our eyes. But think of the fights over almost nothing fought back in the 50's.

We enter one of the houses amidst tangled gardens of hollyhock, lilac, and Castilian roses growing through the gaps of the fence. The dishes on the shelf; pots on the stove; chairs still ranged around a table; beds ready to climb into. It seems as if the miner folk left only yesterday.

We go back into the street and for the first time find ourselves mocked by the loneliness of it. The silent street, where in the twilight stranded cowboys cling like clutching hands. The sounds our feet made in those echoing rooms—almost as if some one was with us.

For a moment more, the sun hangs, garish above the saw-toothed range, lighting in harsh relief the rutted, littered street, the crumbling buildings. For a long minute the tall peaks float free, wrought amber in the pearly afterglow. There—it is gone. And through the tall pines, the moon rises—green as ice. And at night the miners and their girls came to the town, to the saloons and dance halls.

Bedlam breaks loose when some miner's girl winks at the handsome fellow coming through the door. The rip-roaring miner starts a fight, and the young man is thrown through the bat-windings. This was the kind of night a miner led and lived.

—Dean Brahm.

The title "She Married Her Boss" is rather misleading, although perhaps he might have been her boss before he got married.

The only circulation the owner of a crusading newspaper need have fear of being diminished is that of his blood.

A new playwright has been discovered by Hollywood, and they think he is pretty good. The gentleman is one William Shakespeare.

Immortal Writer

Five years ago, a world-wide celebration was held commemorating the bimillennium of the birth of the Roman poet Virgil. Now, in 1935, a similar and perhaps even greater celebration is taking place in honor of the 2,000th anniversary of another classical poet, Quintus Horatius Flaccus, better known as Horace.

Horace was born December 2, 65 B. C., in Venusia, a provincial town in the Apennines. His father had considerable wealth and wished to give his son a good education. After an elementary education in Venusia, Horace was taken to Rome and put in a select school under a severe master. After completing this course, he went to Athens where he studied Greek literature and philosophy.

When Brutus and Cassius came a few years later to Greece, Horace enlisted in the army and advanced to the position of tribune. While in the army, he lost all his money and had to resort to writing poetry and working as secretary in the Quaestor's office for a living.

Through the influence of his patron and best friend, Maecenas, Horace became acquainted with many influential people, among them Vergil and the Emperor Augustus. The latter presented him with a Sabine villa in a beautiful setting not far from Rome. He spent many happy days in his woodlands and by his well-loved brook. He preferred the simple, carefree life of the country to the noisy, wrangling life in Rome.

Horace also spent a great deal of time in the Roman Forum. Here men of all professions gathered to hear speeches, to talk over current topics, or to discuss literature.

The works of Horace are loved by all the world because they seem so human. Since he made an extensive study of psychology, we owe to him much of our knowledge of Roman life. His works lack neither philosophy nor humor. His poems often show an upright sense of courage and honor. Indeed, there is hardly a virtue which cannot be attached rightly to Horace.

Is not literature which has outlived the splendor of the Forum and has survived through the rise and fall of many nations worthy of more study and renewed interest? Certainly, the prophecy of Horace himself has come true, that prophecy in which he exclaimed,

"I shall not wholly die; my bones shall be interred, but my name and my song will live on and will ever increase in the praises of men."

Now comes the season when all the gay young lads dig out of the dusty trunks their father's ancient tuxedos to wear to the coming Christmas parties. Do you realize that people are dying this year that have never died before? Anyone might get killed while crossing a street. An airplane might crash into your bedroom tonight and snatch away your life. To combat all these horrible evils, the Safe and Sane Insurance Corporation has been organized.

It is a well known fact that nothing happens to whatever is insured, but non-insured objects may be destroyed at any time.

Citizenship, Government, Economics, And History Make One Family

Relationship Of Social Sciences Is Explained

Let's quote Mr. Wilburn Wilson of the social science department: "What are the social sciences? We should include geography, sociology, history, citizenship, government, and economics." "What is the relation between these subjects? Geography is fundamental. It is a study of the stage upon which the game of life is played with man as the principal actor. The stage and the stage settings to a very considerable extent determine the type of play which can be produced."

"History is the record of how the play has been produced, and with what results, in the past. The lamp of experience is a good guide, and the broader the knowledge of history, the brighter the light that shines from it."

"Sociology is a study of human companionship. It enables the person who penetrates to understand the institutions which have grown up as men have attempted to adjust themselves to their surroundings. If studied rightly, it should aid the young individualist in adjusting himself to society with as few shocks as possible."

"Citizenship deals more largely with the individual than the aforementioned subjects. That is, it starts with the individual and attempts to fix his place in the state."

"Government also is a study of the state, its philosophy, forms, and functions. A study of the

The expression, "He isn't worth his salt," is very common. Salt comes from the Latin sal. In ancient times the Romans furnished their soldiers with money for buying salt, and this was called salarium from sal. In the course of time salarium came to mean payment given to any person for services, just as salary is used by us today.

Sickness, accidents, absence and quarantine have given a vacation to some who otherwise would be slaving in school. But look how much they have had happen during their vacations:

Jack Beemer—Diphtheria, no less.
Ruth Eysenberg—Home two weeks as a result of an accident.

Waldemar Fortreide—Hospital because of an accident.

Rosalie Houston—Bunked in a hospital minus a troublesome appendix.
Max Wagner—Ill for six weeks.
Marjorie Moore—Quarantine because of scarlet fever.

Anniversary of Humorist's Birth Recalls Satirical Remarks

This year marks the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Mark Twain. If you are good at figures, you will probably have already figured out that the man was born in 1835, which is correct according to the files in the library.

In the early part of his life, he worked on "Old Man River" as a steamboat pilot, and thus provided himself with story and joke material for the rest of his life. In fact, he even took the trouble to write up the story of his life on the Mississippi, called, strange as it may seem, "Life On the Mississippi." Later on, the courts of Europe rolled in the aisles to these stories by America's "ambassador at large."

The way this supreme humorist gained his fame was by looking at things in a different way than anyone else. He believed in being different. So do we.

He greatly enjoyed knocking everyone else's humor. The cracks he made about the attempted wit of others are some of the gems of his works. "Golden Rule" Can Be Applied To Modern Rules In Driving

Golden rule! Golden rule! Everyone is talking about the golden rule. Half of these people don't even know what the golden rule is, and the other half don't obey it. Just what is this often quoted rule? The answer is exceedingly simple. The golden rule is a statement of exactly fifteen words which, if obeyed, would bring peace and happiness to the entire world. Now, you want to know what the golden rule says? This likewise is simple: Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them. Who said it? The answer is that great master of men, Jesus.

This rule should be applied to everything and everyone, motorists included. Almost every accident which occurs today is due to the fact that someone has violated this rule. Since we are now having a safety drive, and since many people are now interested in saving their lives, perhaps it would be fitting to give some ways in which the golden rule can be applied to driving. The initial letters in the following rules spell Golden Rule. Now you may rest assured that these rules are modern and applicable because President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University has given his consent to the reculating of them.

Rules Are Listed

1. Give the other fellow the benefit of the doubt. If the pedestrian has any doubt about his ability to cross the street before the automobile reaches him, he had better wait. Watchful waiting on the sidewalk is better than watchful waiting in the hospital.
2. Obey traffic rules. Traffic rules often appear to be silly. Nevertheless, our traffic rules are the latest result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the safety of us all. Let us remember that social liberty is more important than personal liberty.
3. Look! The pedestrian who starts to cross a street or a road without looking both ways is solely responsible if he is struck by an automobile. In religion "we walk by faith, and not by sight;" but on our modern highways we walk by sight; not by faith.

Most Drive Discreetly

4. Drive discreetly. Let your actions, whether on foot or in the motor car, be dictated by judgment rather than impulse. Act according to a shrewd appraisal of what the situation involves. Long ago, Isaiah declared that the Lord would smite certain haughty daughters of Zion who "walk with stretched-forth necks and wanton eyes, walking and mincing as they go, and making a tinkling with their feet."

5. Envy not the person whose car goes faster than yours. Conquer the feeling of chagrin or mortification that wells up within you when another machine passes yours or cuts in ahead of you. Racing awakens a radical memory, a relic of savagery when capture or escape from capture was the principal thing.

Never be presumptuous on the highway. The pedestrian has no right to take for granted that the highway belongs to him; or that the automobile driver will see him as he ducks out from behind or in front of a street car; or that the approaching machine will not skid, or anything else. The motorist likewise has no right to proceed with overwhelming confidence in his own ability or in either the fear or the politeness of others to let him get by.

Should Use Head

7. Rivet attention upon what you are doing. It was all right for a character in Homer's Iliad "to walk on wings and tread on air," but the modern pedestrian had better keep his feet on the ground.

8. Use your head. It is better to use it than lose it. Our old school readers contained a poem about a mouse that was caught in a trap because he didn't think; a robin that was seized by a cat because it didn't think; a turkey that was killed because it didn't think. If the author were composing his poem today, he might describe many, many motorists who were killed because they didn't think.

9. Love your fellow men. Jesus summed up one-half of all the law of God in the words: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Thus the heart teaches the head the rules of the road.

Miss Pittenger Wishes Pupils Happy Vacation

We all look forward to a holiday, and the Christmas holidays are the best of all. It is a time to escape from the everyday tasks and to rest and play. To me good books, interesting friends, some gaiety, and sharing with friends and loved ones makes an ideal vacation. The true Christmas spirit helps us to share good things generously with others and to dwell on the deeper meanings of life. I wish for you all the joys of the season.

MARTHA M. PITTENGER.

Yuletide Season Grand For Parties Of Various Kinds

"Merry Christmas" has been flung out joyously to near friends and casual acquaintances ever since the days of the grandmothers. In those old days, the Christmas Holiday, Christmas Eve particularly, was celebrated with hearty feasts, popcorn stringing, the decorating of trees, gay sleigh rides and other wholesome, light-hearted amusements for young and old.

Modern emotions concerning good cheer and happiness at Christmas time actually differ very little from those of many, many years ago. The spirit of giving and wanting to make others happy still fills everyone's hearts. Today, as long ago, people desire gay times in celebration of this delightful season. To many aspiring high school hosts and hostesses comes the question, "How shall I entertain my friends?" There are many enjoyable and original themes which one might use for Christmas parties.

At one's church or home one might go back to the days of old and have a tree-trimming supper. The menu might, for instance, consist of cream of mushroom soup, chicken mold, buttered peas, apricot and prune whip, cookies, and coffee. "A little child shall lead them" for surely, like a child, most of us would get a real joy from hanging tinsel and lights on the fresh pine branches of a Christmas tree. A jolly, rolling Santa to ahnd out a few gifts would liven up the evening and give it just the right spirit.

For those sport-loving persons, ice-skating in the refreshingly crisp evening air, followed by an informal lunch of hot chili and cocoa, snacks, and perhaps a dessert of fruit cake served buffet style and eaten around the Christmas tree, would provide an ideal evening. Bob-sled parties instead of ice-skating would give your guests a real treat. After that, too, they would relish a hot lunch and perhaps dancing and games.

If you wish to do something really clever, send mysterious invitations with directions as to how to get to various places according to the signs that you have previously posted. People go wild over scavenger hunts at Halloween time, so why wouldn't they enjoy one at Christmas time? The theme might be carried out by having a hunt for Christmas presents as well as for small packages having individual refreshments for each guest. Create gay air in your home by sprigs of mistletoe and holly here and there.

A carolling with about twenty of your friends would be enjoyable to them as well to those hearing them; it would also be in keeping with the night before Christmas. A hearty menu would be very appropriate, and perhaps some of them would enjoy the informality of popping and stringing popcorn. Have some clever games in mind and plan to take in some of the radio programs which you have previously learned will be enjoyable. Never be afraid of using your own originality in planning parties; just remember that informal Christmas parties are in order and would be greatly enjoyed due to the contrast to the many formal holiday affairs which your friends will be attending.

If He Has His Way, Each Student Plans One Swell Vacation

Christmas vacation, usually one of the busiest times of school year, affords a splendid opportunity for students to temporarily forget about their classwork and spend their time in such a way that will prepare them for those last two weeks of the present semester which will no doubt be full of tests. Some students just can't get out of the habit of studying while others are going out of the city or else just "mess around."

The knitting bug has stung Barbara Lee Scheele, for she plans to spend her vacation learning to knit. If you see Evelyn Lehman in a new dress after Christmas, maybe it is the one she is going to make at that time. Although most students are wishing for snow, Billie Bichacoff is hoping for nice weather so that she can hike.

Gwen Horn, one of the more studious (?) pupils, will spend part of the time catching up on her studies, while Helen Doenges is going to reserve some time for reading. Our athletic-minded Ruth Berning, is going to talk to "Mr. Weatherman" so that she will be able to use her ice skates.

Dorothy Herbst is preparing for an extensive tour. Her destination is the big city of Puckerhuddle. Bernadette Dygert and Ruth Fritz are going to Purdue for a few days. Besides this, Bernadette is going ice skating—if it is cold enough. Irene Marshall is an other who is not satisfied with our fair city; she is visiting in Chicago. Margaret Crankshaw, Hilda Margaret Spangle, and Mary Edwards are going to be in a pageant. They are taking the part of angels.

Catch up on her sleep and do some outside botany work are the only things which Mary Anne Park is sure to do. Earl Paxton is another who isn't sure about his activities other than just "mess around." Myron Jones is going to Ohio and maybe will go on to Pittsburgh. Running an ice boat around on the lake will occupy part of the time of Bob Haruff, while Wade Theye and John Edwards are going to John's lake cottage for part of the vacation.

Pupils Rejoice Over Two Full Weeks Of Christmas Vacation

Last Fall when the vacation schedule was announced, students and teachers were wondering about the two days between Christmas and New Year's, when they were to come back to school. But don't let that bother you anymore, because Mr. Abbott has given you a very nice Christmas present—those two days, December 30 and 31, as vacation.

As would be expected, most students rejoiced when the good news was revealed. This is what we heard some of them saying:

Grace Nelson: It's grand; Now I will have two more days to get ready for New Year's Eve.

Jewel Wilson: Hidi, ho!

Sylvester Jones: Give me more rest. (What did you do to deserve that?)

Marjorie Schueman: Oh, good! I'll have more time to play with my Christmas toys.

Eugene McKay: Swell.

Eileen Fueling: It fits me to a T.

Kenny Miller: It's good enough for me. (For anybody as far as that's concerned.)

Ruth Fritz: Right smart! I can get in two extra days' sleep.

Bob Hensley: It's really okay.

Mary Louise Lankenau: Just because everybody wants vacation, I want to go to school. (We know better, Mary Louise!)

Ken Hershey: More sleep, more fun!

Maxine Rippe: Grand idea. The school board is very considerate in giving all us chillen that many more days.

Arlen Grieser: Ha! Cha!

Leslie Johnson: It's all right if they don't make us go longer next June. That's what I'm afraid of.

Frederick Meyers: You won't hear me complain.

John Edwards: I don't think much of it, because we will have to go one week longer next spring. We get hooked either way.

Bernadette Dygert: Mighty fine! We are getting right up there with the colleges now—two weeks Christmas vacation. (Purdue students don't have to go back for those two days, do they, Bernadette?)

Special Mapparium Constructed For Appreciation Of Globe

That all the vast lands of the world may be appreciated more fully than ever before is due to the mapparium, which has been constructed in the Christian Science Publishing House in Boston, Massachusetts.

It is a sphere thirty feet in diameter, the framework of which is bronze, so constructed as to form ten-degree latitudinal and longitudinal divisions, within which are fixed sections of glass painted on the concave side which represents exactly the whole surface of the earth as it appears in its whole spherical shape on the outside of the great ball which we know as the earth. Through this translucent sphere there extends a glass platform or runway which permits visitors to pass through the spherical room and gaze about at a world from pole to pole which is a true projection of the world's outer face.

Drawings Are Prepared

First drawings of the map were prepared; then the map data was drawn on cartoons made to fit the size of the glass sections; these were placed on the plain glass sections, and the details of the cartoons were then traced on the surface of the glass. Next especially prepared colors were sprayed onto the glass between the boundary lines marking the political divisions and land and water. The glass was then placed in a kiln and baked until the colors were fused into the glass. A separate baking was required for each color tone, thus making the colors permanent and giving the effect of European glass of the fourteenth century. Eight months' work is represented in the 608 sections.

Has Three Openings

There are three openings into the globe: an entrance from the main stair hall, another from the reception room, and a window aperture from the main lobby. The entrances from hall and reception room are connected by a glass bridge, the framework of which is made of aluminum and stainless steel, the floor and sides being of structural glass from one to one and a half inches thick. Ventilation is arranged by a current of air which comes in under the bridge and is drawn out at the north pole. Clocks placed about on the equatorial line, where meridians mark the changes of time zones, make it possible to know the time at any moment in any section of the world. The illumination is provided for by about three hundred electric lights placed outside the sphere. Their effect, beside flooding the room with a colorful glow, is to give the sense that the land masses stand out, the mountains have height, the waters have depth.

As the fame of the mapparium grows, and more and more people of various nationalities find their way to the entrance of the mapparium, and many languages mingle together and rise from the crystal bridge.

"South Side Students, Teachers Give Best," States Mr. Abbott

"South Side has a fine list of achievements on the part of its graduates, and I am very happy about it," Mr. Merle J. Abbott, superintendent of Fort Wayne schools, emphatically stated. "South Side has a well-trained faculty. The members give their very best, and I truly appreciate the efforts they are making to advance the interests of South Side. As schools are maintained at a great cost, nothing must be wasted."

Although Mr. Abbott is a very busy man, he is always in a good humor and is a very happy person. He is inclined to talk to, has a congenial personality, and is keenly interested in his work.

When asked what one day of routine is like, Mr. Abbott replied, "My work starts the evening before it is to be executed. The work of the different clerks must be set up so as to start immediately."

"Many Contacts Involved" "The next day, an immediate conference is held with supervisors. Correspondence must be attended to; minutes for the Board of Education must be prepared, and details of the county must be written. National and state reports, budget-making, interviews, and teacher placing must also be attended to."

"Finances must be provided for carrying on the school program," Mr. Abbott continued, "and provision for paying off bonds due on school buildings must be made."

The knitting bug has stung Barbara Lee Scheele, for she plans to spend her vacation learning to knit. If you see Evelyn Lehman in a new dress after Christmas, maybe it is the one she is going to make at that time. Semester Will End Friday, January 24

Because of the length of Christmas vacation, it has been announced that the school term will end January 24, instead of January 17, as was originally planned. Grades will be issued Wednesday, January 22, during seven short periods in the morning.

History Class Sends Letters To Injured Youth In Hospital

Waldemar Fortriede, a member of Miss Smeltz's fourth period general history class who was seriously injured while returning home two weeks ago Sunday, will be compelled to spend his holiday season in a hospital. Now a hospital is a nice place out home is so much better. Miss Smeltz realized that this boy was very lonely and, therefore, set about to bring him consolation. Finally she decided that the very best way to cheer him up was by writing a letter to him.

In accordance with this plan she gave each pupil of her fourth period class a piece of paper on which each pupil, twenty-five in all, wrote words of encouragement, cheer, and friendliness to their comrade. Each pupil realized that in doing this he was, by very little effort, bringing comfort to a sick friend. When the letters were written, Miss Smeltz added her own, and put them all in an envelope. Phil Schopman offered his services and carried these letters to the designated place.

Here's a chance for the rest of us to follow a good example. Many times we have not the means to send flowers but we can send something just as beautiful, letters. If anyone has a chance to visit the Lutheran Hospital, he is cordially invited to drop in and see Waldemar. A visit from you would be greatly appreciated.

Janitors Empty Box Of Waste Material By Taking Off Top

On a bright, sunny day, nary a cloud in the sky, I was about to wend my weary way homeward and was passing the waste container at the west entrance of the old alma mater, when out of the clear blue sky above, there came piercing into my brain this most important question. How, O how, do the janitors ever get the paper out of that box? Maybe they open that little wheatear-your-til into which the scraps are put, and then turn the big heavy box over and dump out the paper that way. No, reasoned I, they don't have the powers of Hercules. Perhaps, I thought with sudden inspiration, they have a machine like a vacuum sweeper which sucks the waste out of the box. Still, that would be a little impractical.

Being unable to think of a better answer to this so important question, I decided to hide behind a glass door and wait until a janitor came to empty the big green thing. After about half an hour he came. With abated breath, with knees knocking and teeth chattering, I waited the solution to my problem. And lo and behold! What did he do? He simply lifted off the top of the box, then took the middle part, which contained the waste paper, and dumped its contents into a wheelbarrow. Then, replacing the parts of the waste container to their respective places, he picked up the paper and walked off.

My, this present generation! What will they think of next!

Want To Prevent Face Being Messed Up? 11 Ways Given

These rules for safe driving have been issued by "The Indiana Teacher" and are called to the attention of all South Siders in connection with the safety drive.

1. Keep your car under control at all times.
2. Give full protection to pedestrians.
3. Correctly regard all light signals and stop signs.
4. Slow down when road conditions require slow speed or where roads are so marked for safety.
5. Do not double park. Avoid getting out of your car on the left side.
6. Never pass a car on a curve, near the crest of a hill, or any place where visibility is obscured.
7. Always signal before making turns, pulling away from curbs, or any other unusual movement.
8. Keep to the right side of the center of the road, and do not cut in and out of traffic unsafely.
9. Know that your car is mechanically safe—that your brakes, tires, and other features of the running mechanism are in good condition.
10. The operation of fast-moving vehicles requires good judgment as to safe speed. Consider the roadway, the travel, light, and weather conditions—for safety.
11. Look, listen, AND LIVE—at railroad crossings.

Artistic Animals Cleverly Created For Sale To Pupils

"Oh! How Clever!" "Cutest ever!" "Some animals!" These are a few remarks which one might hear while he is walking through the front hall of South Side during the fifth period. After a little observation one might discover that the objects of these sighs and exclamations are a number of clever clay and cork animals which have been made by the art students at South Side. These animals, which are sold by various Art Club members during the fifth period, are sold for ten cents apiece.

These animals have been made through the originality of the art students. Among the materials used in making these creatures are pipe cleaners, clay, shells, and corks of all sizes. After they are made they are ingeniously painted and decorated.

These animals will make excellent gifts for your friends on Christmas. They're selling fast, so be sure to bring your money tomorrow.

Graduate Now Has Secretarial Position At Duemling Clinic

A general secretarial position in the Duemling Clinic is now occupied by Martha Chasey, prominent South Side graduate of 1935. Her work is interesting, though estimating, though a day's program might include checking up on accounts, taking dictation, typing letters, filing some patients' records, and perhaps preparing a somewhat statement.

She works from 8:30 to 12:30 o'clock and has the afternoon free. She seems to be quite satisfied with working in a doctor's office, as her ambition is to further herself in her present position, or else get a higher position in the same field. Any ambitions that she ever had for college have now completely vanished.

This probably proves her complete satisfaction with her position. In fact, says Martha, "I have always wanted to do secretarial work, and I guess I finally am." She believes that the fact that she can get along quite well in the clinic is due to careful work habits in learning commercial work at South Side.

While at South Side, she was quite active in school work. Her favorite subject was shorthand, she considered her easiest subject, physical geography, and her hardest subject, English. She made the Big Ten in typing several times and was also among the group that went to Muncie to take the shorthand test.

Extra-curricular activities in South Side included G. A. A. and the girls' varsity letter, Philo, and Latin. She earned bookkeeping awards and had her first degree in So-Si-Y. At the state shorthand contest, she went along as alternate and took the test, in which her grade would have placed her second in the state.

Martha made the following statement, "The commercial course at South Side is a very difficult course, but I think the good derived from it surpasses the effort demanded by it, a thousand times. I enjoy my work, and I am sure that it is a result of my commercial training at South Side."

But It's Not What To Do After; It's What To Do Before

What do you think you would do if you were driving a car and saw that you were about to have a wreck? Did you ever stop and consider what you might do? Sometime you might be in the position that you would have to do something. Most accidents occur because of carelessness on the part of the driver. If people kept cool and did not get all excited, they would be able to avoid many accidents.

In 1933 there were 1,090,340 automobile accidents in the United States and apparently 1,007,590 of the cars were in good condition. This shows that having a car that is in good condition does not keep one from having wrecks. Some people think that if they have a car that is in good condition they do not have to be so careful. They should be more careful than people who have cars that are in bad condition, because they are inclined to go at a higher rate of speed and endanger their lives more often.

Students Give Opinions Listed below is what some people of South Side think they would do if they were about to have a wreck.

R. Nelson Snider: I would brace myself and try to keep from being thrown through the windshield.

Wayne Bennett: Try to keep my head and avoid it if possible.

Maria Haven: I don't know, I never was in a wreck when I was driving.

Alice Karn: Scream.

Ralph Spayde: Keep cool.

George Kempf: Stop.

Herbert Kramer: Take the easiest way out.

Helen Kelsey: Do the best I could to avoid it.

Clarence Helmsing: Go straight ahead and brace myself to try to keep from being hurt.

Sonia Velkoff: It is according to what kind of accident it was.

Virginia Gross: I don't know.

Bob Haruff: Try to slow up the car.

Ray Ballweg: Put on the brakes.

Warren Zelt: Let the other guy do the thinking.

Louis Bonsib: My spirit would rise to cope with the occasion.

Myron Jones: Yell for help.

Earl Paxton: Do the best I could.

Mary Kay Connell: Put on the brakes hard.

Diagram Points Out Distance Required For Stopping Cars

Do you realize that if you are traveling at a rate of sixty miles per hour in an automobile and suddenly see a short distance ahead, you cannot come to a complete stop until you have covered a distance of 122 feet? Sixty-six feet are covered while a person thinks about stopping; then fifty-six feet are covered while using the brakes.

These and other interesting scientific facts were disclosed in a recent diagram given each home room teacher last Thursday, and are now on most bulletin boards in those rooms. Another interesting fact brought out was that if one travels at a rate of thirty miles per hour, and then increases his speed to twice that much, he increases the time required for stopping more than three times; and hence, increases his danger more than three times.

If a person travels at forty miles per hour, he needs forty-five feet in which to think about stopping and then seventy more to really stop, making a total of 115 feet, which is approximately the length of our gym floor. It also may be noted that if one drives at forty miles per hour, his chances of having an accident are almost three times less than if he drives at seventy miles per hour, for it requires 319 feet to stop while going at that speed.

So, you see it really does make a difference whether or not one drives slowly.

Mrs. Chappell Finds Husband Handy As Home Repair Man

By Leona Menze

Buzzing buzz saws, twisted nails, and clanging hammers are total mysteries to Mrs. J. Henry Chappell, wife of South Side's manual training teacher, J. Henry Chappell. She is the mother of Rosemary and Ina Claire, two of South Side's prominent students.

But even though the source of information is quite adequate for Mrs. Chappell, she declares that the only way she knows anything about the more important affairs at school, is through Parent-Teacher Association work and the mothers' gym class.

Mrs. Chappell is quite prominent in school activities, and takes quite an interest in all affairs. Such an interest has she in basketball that she has missed probably only three games since South Side started. She does not take such a great interest in football, however. She was educated in Fort Wayne and had one year in Normal School; her favorite subject was mathematics.

Hobby Is Insurance

Mr. Chappell's hobby seems to be insurance, and a great deal of his reading time is taken up with such material. However, he reads everything he can about his subject and also a good deal of heavier reading, but does not have much use for fiction or frivolous stuff. His wife declares herself unable to find much time for reading, although she does try to keep up with most of the current magazines.

Supper table discussion seems to be carried on mostly by the three daughters with mother and father inserted.

Many Students Like "Carrying On" Best Of All In The Times

What do you like best in the Times? After bothering several people at the last game and several more in the halls, we discovered the preferences of quite a few Archers. "Carrying On" takes first place. Dirt columns are way down the line with only three voters.

Beatrice Fudge: I think I like "Carrying On" the best.

Betty Pugh: Same as Fudge.

John Jackson: The editorial page.

Reginald Gerig: Same.

Ruth Gerber: Oh, I'll have to think about it. I like the funny things about the teachers.

June Enoch: Oh, I like the dirt columns. (All the freshmen do, June.)

Rosemary Lehman: The front page, editorials, etc.

Violet Garton: The new column, "Tip-Top Topics."

Dorothy Aldridge: I guess I like the dirt.

Bob Haruff: The articles.

Joan Bonsib: Bryce Miner.

Ruth Berning: "Secrets to Seventeens."

Joe Bex: Limer and editorials.

Martha Ann Bacon: "Carrying On."

Margaret Crankshaw: Cartoons and "Carrying On."

Elmer White: Editorial and sports page.

I hate the dirt columns.

Marjorie Turner: I guess I like "Carrying On."

Ruth Goeglein: I like Leona Menze's stories.

Students Believe That Drive For Safety Is Very Successful

Now that the South Side Safety Campaign is rapidly coming to a close, the thought comes to our minds as to whether or not it has accomplished anything. The following answers to the question, "Do you think the Safety Campaign has accomplished anything?" were given by various members of the student body and faculty.

Martha Morgan: Yes, I think it has. It calls for the use of the brain, and some of us need something like that to help wipe away the cobwebs.

Ruth Adler: Yes, it has accomplished something in that it has caused some people that I know of to be more careful. I for one, but it would accomplish a great deal more if students would take it seriously instead of just regarding it as an opportunity to get out of class for assemblies. (Ruth is chairman of the South Side Safety Council.)

Miss Oppelt: It has made us safety conscious. I suppose that is the first step toward being more careful.

Helen Walbert: The campaign has done much to increase carefulness on the part of students, but whether or not this will continue is doubtful.

Mary Michaels: I believe that the rules which have been given to us in our home rooms will make us especially safety-conscious.

Lorraine Meyer: The poster and essay contests, as well as the home room bulletins, have succeeded very well in bringing

Archers Subs Lose 25 to 22 To Tiger Cubs

Wavelets Barely Nosed By Bluffton Seconds; Budde, Nussbaum, Frazell Star.

South Side's reserves fell before Bluffton's strong second string in a hard fought battle by the close score of 25 to 22 in the southern gym Friday night. Bluffton held the lead by a narrow margin most of the time. Both teams displayed an outstanding defensive game, for most of the points were scored by long shots. Budde and Frazell kept the Archers in the running with their spectacular shots and excellent defensive playing. Beatty made practically all the points for Bluffton.

In the initial period both teams played a slow game and continually tried to work the ball in under the basket. After they found this impossible, they began to take long shots. Budde and Nussbaum divided the Archer's points by a field goal each. Beatty made three points for Bluffton and C. Smith made one point, thus tying up the score at the end of the first period with four points apiece.

In the second period Budde of South Side and Beatty of Bluffton had a shooting duel that ended with Beatty slightly in the lead. C. Smith was the only other player able to score.

The results of the game might have been different if Budde had not left the game on personals early in the last half. Frazell came into the same at this time and continued where Budde left off. South Side started a rally in the third quarter which fell short one point when Frazell leading the scoring. Both teams began playing a fast game in the last half of the tilt. They passed the ball like veterans and in their pressing drives many fouls were committed.

With only seconds to play, Bluffton held a one-point lead. South Side tried desperately to get the ball as Bluffton wisely stalled.

Playlet Is Feature Of Social Science

Election Of Club Officers And Initiation Of New Members Will Be Held On January 10.

Social Science Club's Christmas party was held in the form of a potluck in the Greeley room last Friday. The meeting began promptly at 5:30 o'clock because of the basketball game.

The potluck was followed by the business meeting. It was decided that the club should accept the new constitution which was drawn up by Jim Sweet, chairman; Catherine Allen-dorff, and Bryce Minier. Ruth Road-cap, Inter-Club Congress representative, gave a report.

The program was then turned over to Bob Storm, program chairman. A humorous skit entitled, "The Supreme Sacrifice," was given in pantomime. The characters were as follows: Lady Clara Vere de Vere, a dear young heiress who was visiting her uncle on the Plains of Kansas, played by Thekla Leininger; Alkali Ike, the star cow-puncher at the Cross Bar Ranch, who is in love with Lady Clara, played by John Bex; Darling Nell, a real cowgirl of the plains, played by Helen Doenges; Indians, Mud in the Face and Hole in the Breeches, were played by Bob Locke and Bob Haruff. The playlet was read by Bob Storm. After the playlet Helen Doenges read a Christmas story entitled "Merry Christmas—By Accident," written by Rose Heylbert. Christmas carols were sung.

The next meeting will be held on January 10. At this time officers for the next semester will be elected. Initiation of new members will also be held. Math-Science members will be guests of Social Science at this meeting.

Hi-Y Club Will Play Group Of Ball Games

During Christmas vacation the Hi-Y clubs from all three high schools will play a series of basketball games at the Y. M. C. A. The last games will be played on New Year's Day. The captains from the South Side club will be Morgan Harrison, Richard Snook, Bob Dicke, Doyle Springer, and Marvin Sowers. Each captain is to have his team picked and registered by Saturday, December 14.

The speaker at the last meeting was Mr. Davis, one of the boys' workers at the Y. M. C. A. He was pinch-hitting for Mr. Walters, who was previously scheduled to speak, but was unable to do so. His talk was on Boy and Girl Relations. By vote of the members, the meeting night was changed from Thursday to Wednesday.

The athletic officials of Central Catholic are to be commended for the promptness of their action in obtaining a decision concerning the eligibility of their star player, Jap Voirel. Such action on the part of officials, doubting the eligibility of their players, will lead to a finer athletic relationship between competing teams.

Central's Tigers seem to be right out after their second N. E. I. C. championship in a row. The Bengals have already rung up triumphs over Kendallville and Columbia City, accomplishing these tasks with such thoroughness that many fans predict that the Tigers will continue to hold on to the N. E. I. C. trophy.

Two sets of Tigers promise to give South Side's Archers all the competition they want when tournament time comes around. Bluffton's Tigers have already given the Archers a taste of their thunder and Central's band of Bengals has served notice to all its future opponents that it is going to put up a swell battle.

Columbia City's Eagles have almost infinitely stepped out of the N. E. I. C. race with two defeats gracing their in and lost chart. The Eagles have owed to both Bluffton and Central.

Bluffton really gave an excellent exhibition of sharpshooting last Friday night. McCray, Templin, and McAdams were the mainstays of the Parlor City sniping.

Hines looked good Friday night and shows promise of being one of the best performers for the coming season. Despite their lack of height, both Hall and Speaker seem to get away from their guards long enough to sink the leather through the hoop occasionally.

With most of the teams in the north-eastern section of the state having played five games or more, several very strong aggregations are making their prowess known by the victories they are ringing up. Among the leaders are Central, Hartford City, Bluffton and Berne.

Intramural Lettermen Eat, Play Court Game

The Intramural Lettermen's Club held a potluck in Mr. Briner's office Thursday, followed by the boys playing basketball in the gymnasium. The menu consisted of olives, pickles, cake, baked beans, cookies, sandwiches, and potato salad. After playing for two hours and a half, the boys called it a day, and went home.

Those present were: John Allen, president; Gaylord Stalter, Norman Buck, Lelja Cunningham, Robert Tapping, Lewis Squires, Richard Dent, Stuart Trulock, and Robert Feichter. The boys were divided into two teams, the We's and the Reds. The We team was victor by virtue of their 25-20 score. Buck was high scorer for the winners, and Tapping was the one to commit the most personals.

G.A.A. Basketball Is Next On List

Upperclassmen To Organize At Meeting On Wednesday; Freshmen To Practice Friday.

"G. A. A. basketball will receive its inauguration shortly after Christmas vacation," states Miss Gretchen Smith. She also stated that the freshmen would have a number of practices before they began playing tournament games.

The upperclassmen will have an organization meeting the Wednesday after vacation, while practice games will probably be played on the Friday following this meeting. The upperclassmen will not spend as much time on the practice games because they are acquainted with the game.

The change in basketball which will affect the upperclassmen and the umpires the most is the center toss instead of the center jump. This is coming into more popularity because it gives equality to the small as well as the tall girl at the beginning of play. However, the freshmen will use the accustomed center throw-up.

The student leaders are well prepared for the coming basketball season. They already have had discussions on the game, have copied rules and regulations, and have turned in their notebooks for grading.

Kendallville, Columbia City Lose To Tigers

Columbia City and Kendallville fell before the onslaught of Central's rampaging Tigers last Friday and Saturday as the Blue and White enjoyed a successful week-end, increasing their string of consecutive victories to four and their N. E. I. C. victories to two. Both games were easily won, the former 40-16, the latter 39-13. At the half of the Columbia City game, Central led 23-10, scoring seventeen more points and holding the Parlor City squad to six points in the second half; at the halves of the Kendallville game the Tigers were ahead 21-8, after leading by the slim margin of 10-7 at the beginning of the second quarter.

The Centralites will meet the C. C. Irish tomorrow night in the annual game, with the Tigers getting the nod for two reasons; first, they have won four straight and are rapidly getting better, and second, Central Catholic has lost through indigibility Jap Voirel, star center, and it is unlikely that their reserve strength can stop the Tigers.

Miss Magley's Pupils To Give Class Plays

Plays will be given Friday morning in Miss Magley's English 6 classes. These classes have been studying plays in their English work, and decided that they would like to put on some themselves. The plays will be presented as a surprise to Miss Magley.

In the fourth period class Ruth Garrison is the chairman in charge of the play. She is assisted by William Mitchell, Warren Zelt, Dorothy Golden, and Donna Lyman.

In the third period class, Eleanor Crosby is chairman. She is assisted by Hazel Noll, Charles Thorne, Don Simish, and Edward Archer.

Kolkman Wins I-M Handball Championship

Defeats Cassidy To Take Intramural Light Weight Title; Middle, Heavy Soon

Bob Kolkman won the Intramural Lightweight Handball Championship in the singles tourney last week by defeating Gene Cassidy, the other lightweight finalist, in three out of three games with scores of 15-10, 15-8, and 15-4. Victor Nussbaum will play Bob McKeeman in the finals of the middleweight contest, and the heavyweight champ will be discovered in the final tilt between Albert Kelso and Harold Roberts.

In the lightweight section, Kolkman won his way to the finals by an easy victory over Bostick by scores of 15-3 and 15-7. Gene Cassidy defeated a more difficult competitor, Knight, in two of three games, 15-13, 10-15, and 15-3. These finalists won their way through playing 14 other light contestants. Kolkman had rather easy competition on his rise to final place except for his rather hard tilt with Robert Ferguson in the first round, whom he overcame by games of 15-14, 15-11, and 15-4. Cassidy vanquished his opponents, rather easily in the beginning of the series.

McKeeman won his way to the finals of the middleweights by defeating Eugene Ferguson for forfeit. Nussbaum vanquished Stewart Trulock two games, 15-13, and 16-14. In the heavyweight division, Roberts defeated Klotz, 15-11, 15-13, and 16-14, and Kelso vanquished Lonnie Kirtz, 15-14, 15-8. These two victors will play this week to decide the heavy champ.

Handball doubles entries are now coming in rapidly, with 34 teams already signed up and matched. Those who wish to participate in this tourney may sign up now in the intramural office with Mr. Briner.

Sportlights

Football fans are focusing their attention on the New Year's Day Tournament of Roses football game. This game will mark the twentieth anniversary of the Rose Bowl encounters. This tilt is expected to draw about 75,000 fans.

Few people, after seeing one of these games, can realize that in its youth the Rose Bowl drew only seven or eight thousand people. Many in mortal stars of football have played in these games. Knute Rockne and his four horsemen and the famous Nevres, one of the greatest players of the past.

The Adams County Basketball tournament will be held at Hartford Township gym this year. It has been previously held at Berne. Next year plans have been made to hold it in the new gym at Geneva. All Adams county high schools have been invited to participate at Hartford.

The Associated Press recently announced its All-American football team for 1935. Riley Smith, Alabama, was placed at the quarterback position. Jay Berwanger, Chicago, and Bob Wilson, Southern Methodist, were at the halves. Bob Grayson, Stanford, at fullback. The All-American line is composed of Lester of Texas Christian; center; Walker of Princeton and Tangora of Northwestern at guards; Smith of Minnesota and Lutz of California at tackles; Shuler of Army and Tinsley of Louisiana State at ends.

Bluffton Scores 28-16 Victory Over Archer Basketball Squad

South Side's Archers suffered their second setback of the current season when a great Bluffton quintet rolled up a 28-16 score over the Archers last Friday at the local gymnasium. The South Siders solved the Bluffton defense in the second half; but the damage had been done. Although the Archers outscored the Tigers 12-10 in the concluding half, South Side's belated rally was not strong enough to overcome the 14-point lead Bluffton had rolled up in the initial period. Bluffton displayed an oiled attack which worked with the precision of machinery, and which was seldom, if ever, ruffled. The Tigers were evidently prepared for the type of attack used by the Archers, for the Bluffton defense proved well-nigh insoluble to the Archers during the first half. Between halves Coach Fridde evidently diagnosed the Bluffton defense and the Archers displayed a new type of offense in the second half which enabled them to outscore Bluffton in the final frame.

Tigers Score First
The Tigers gave early evidence of their strength as they rang up eight points before the Archers were able to break into the scoring column, and at the conclusion of the initial quarter, Bluffton led 10-2. Zoll led off the scoring when he connected from mid-floor for his only points of the evening. McCray then tossed a field goal and two charity tosses and Templin followed with a fielder before Ellenwood broke the ice for South Side by connecting on a rebound shot. McAdams then connected on a long toss as the quarter ended.

In the second the Archers could do little better and the only bright spot in the South Side horizon was Hall's field goal which came just before the half ended. Hall's fielder was preceded by a pair of two-pointers by McAdams and a field goal apiece from the hands of Templin and McCray putting Bluffton into a 18-4 lead at the half.

Archers Use Attack
In the third period, the Archers sported their new attack, and in addition to holding the Tigers to two field goals, the Archers manufactured twice as many points as they had chalked up in the first two quarters. South Siders were constantly breaking loose under the basket for easy shots and most of their points this quarter were scored under the basket.

Field goals by Templin and McAdams of Bluffton were sandwiched between two-pointers by Ellenwood, Speaker, and Hines, and a foul toss by Hines. The final quarter was a sea-saw affair with the outcome never in doubt. Bluffton holding a commanding lead all the way.

Hines Is High Scorer
The outstanding man on the floor was a little Bluffton forward named McCray, who had the whole Tiger attack centered around him and who played coolly and flawlessly all the way. McCray took not one shot from the floor, yet he shared high point honors, with Templin, scoring all his points on dribble-under shots on which he worked away beautifully. For the Archers, Ellenwood and Hines, who both played all the way, stood out.

Hines was high-scorer for the Archers with two field goals and two fouls for six points.

It certainly is too bad that Frieda Schubert can't duck, too! At the game last Friday evening, two boys were having quite a brawl, with fists flying around quite freely. One of the boys ducked, and Frieda received the blow. Result: she has a very black eye.

Click! Click! What have we here? A knitting circle? Yes, quite a circle, made up of Miss Patterson and Miss Smith as the knitters, and an ever-growing group of admirers (or are they envious?).

Girls, some of the best items in this column come from the little green box directly inside the gym office door. Please keep on contributing, so that new names and new happenings appear in this column.

Come on, freshmen, sign up for basketball as soon as possible and start practicing! Your class has been unusually active in sports, so we expect a larger number of people than ever out for basketball.

The volleyball game last Friday between Junior teams 2 and 4 was one of the "hottest" games this season, which is shown by the final score of 33 to 36, with Junior 2 on the long end of the score. Leona Menze played an excellent game for the victors, while Winnie Locker was outstanding for the losers.

Flash! Scoop! Edna Disler was seen carrying home three books! Since when have you taken up studying, Edna?

Maxine Morrison must eat a lot of spinach. At least, that is the opinion of her opponents in volleyball. When she serves that ball, her opponents seem to curl up.

Archers Favored To Trim Pierceton Quintet, Most Stars Having Graduated.

Auburn's quintet will be decked out in crimson shirts and black pants with the following numbers: Williams 10, Mason 7, Roadcap 9, Reader 1, Meyers 6, Stebing 5, DeWitt 4, Ferguson 2.

After making a rather disappointing showing against the Bluffton Tigers last Friday night South Side's band of Archers will attempt to even up their wins and losses over the coming week-end. On Friday evening the Green will make their second bid to chalk up a win in the N. E. I. C. race when they oppose the Auburn Red Devils on the Archer stamping grounds. On the following evening the Friddlemen will make their second invasion on foreign hardwoods when they will travel to Pierceton to oppose the Tiger aggregation of that city.

Auburn Victories Listed

Coach Zeke Young of Auburn, will lead a team of seniors on the hardwood against the Archer aggregation Friday evening. The Red Devils undoubtedly will offer the Green netters all the competition they will want. With the experience of six tilts behind them the Youngmen are rapidly developing into a good hardwood team. The Auburnites hold victories over the fives of Ashley, Albion, Butler, Riley of South Bend, and Kendallville. Their only setback was suffered in the hands of the scarlet and green quintet of Ligonier. This tilt went into an overtime period before the Ligonier outfit managed to eke out a win over the Auto City five. The wins over Butler and Riley of South Bend were by seven and eight point margins respectively. The Red Devils went on a scoring spree against Albion and almost tripled the scoring of the Red Devils in the tilt with Ashley. The Crimson clad netmen barely eked out a victory by a single point margin.

Pierceton Team Named

Coach Young has a fairly rangy outfit with the average height of his quintet being about five feet eleven inches. Sam Williams, playing his first season on the varsity, has been doing very good work at the center position, where he utilizes his two yards of height to a good advantage. At the forward posts Coach Young has been using Mason and Roadcap. Roadcap, who towers one-half inch over the six-foot mark, has been on the varsity one year already and has been doing more than his share of the scoring. Mason is also around the two-yard mark and possesses the same experience as his running mate, Roadcap. In the guard positions Reader and Stebing team up together to tight-rope the Red Devil defense. Reader is the only returning player of last year's first string varsity. While quite small he manages to give a good exhibition of his defensive powers in every tilt. Stebing is very fast and always shows plenty of fight. He is about one inch under the six-foot mark.

The Green should not experience great trouble in handling the Pierce? ton team on Saturday evening. With much of the Tiger team of last season having graduated, Coach Reed faced the task of rebuilding his five for this season. As was the case last year, the Pierceton team will face a tough game with Beaver Dam on the night preceding their encounter against the Archers, and they will in all probability feel the same degree of weariness they experienced last year. This weariness caused them to succumb to a dismal defeat, administered to them by the Archers. However, the Pierceton netmen are at an advantage in that they will be playing on their own hardwood.

Favorite Programs To Be Voted Upon

A volunteer vote of South Side students will be taken each week to determine the favorites in South Side. A question will be asked each week and the results will be posted in a story the following week. The question this week is "What is your favorite radio program?" Anyone who wishes to support their favorite program should cast their vote in the Times mailbox.

G.A.A. Volleyball Draws To Close

Soph Team 1, Junior Teams 3 And 2 Are Victorious In Hard-Fought Games Friday.

With the end of the volleyball season very close, the players have so excelled in their tactics that the volleyball games are for the most part very close. In the games played last Friday, Junior team 3, led by Edna Disler, Leona Menze's Junior team 2, and Betty Eisenacher's sophomore team 1 won over their opponents. Marjorie Hower's Senior team 1, and Margaret Ruhl's Junior team 1 played to a tie.

Marjorie Hower and Mary Jane Redding were outstanding for the Seniors, while the Ruhl twins and Ada Schuelke were the mainstays of Junior 1. This game, which was so exciting that shouts and screams were heard all over the gym, ended with the score of 33 to 33. Betty Eisenacher's team 1 defeated Helen Meese's sophomore team 2 by the score of 38 to 13. Madeline Kern was one of the girls who ably assisted Betty toward the victory.

At 4:00 o'clock, Leona Menze's team 2 defeated Winnie Locker's team 4 by the very close score of 36 to 33. This game was see-saw throughout, with the victors being decided only on the final blast of the whistle. At the same time, Edna Disler's Junior 3 team did some very good playing to defeat Betty Rison's Senior 2 team to the score of 45 to 32.

Nine Boys Usher At Basketball Tilt

Volunteer Courtesy For Guests; Show Adults To Reserved Section Places At Games.

At the next basketball game, if one is very curious, he may wonder what nine boys are doing walking about in the reserved sections. Yes, these students are our new ushers who volunteered for this work.

The names of these boys who are willing to aid the school in this way are: Morgan Harrison, Thomas Mackey, Nelson Miller, Luther Proise, Jack Birkenbehl, Kenton Dickey, Dick Dochterman, Andy Bremer, and Bill Corwin.

At every basketball game, these boys will show the adults attending the game who have a reserved seat where they should sit. A record which is kept in the office shows exactly where each adult is to sit. The ushers do not use this record to seat the people, but instead use the information which is written out on the adult's ticket. This information includes the row, seat, and section.

Announce Start Of Four More Boys' Athletics

Intramural Boxing, Foul Throw, Basketball, And Tumbling Next Sports.

Foul-throwing, basketball, boxing, and tumbling are the intramural sports to be started soon. The annual foul-throwing tourney is scheduled to start January 7. Those who wish to participate have the opportunity to sign up until January 8.

Intramural basketball will be played this year during the 5th period only. The regular schedule will begin on January 15. Teams may now be registered with the department. Those who desire to work out in tumbling for next semester may practice now in the boxing room.

Boxers Start Practice
Boxers are already working on technique in general. The names of these participants are as follows: Roy Orr, Antoine, John Anderson, Bud Feichter, Bosserman, Miller, Jerry Zehr, Griffin, George Lahrman, Hoffstetter, Klotz, Velkoff, Kreider, Blanks, P. Hermann, Richard Abbott, Durbin, C. Helmsing, G. Hohnhaus, Allermeyer, Fred Knight, and John Abbott.

The rules for the popular contest follow: Anyone out for basketball, either varsity or reserves will be ineligible to compete in this tournament. Each entry must have an intramural physical card.

Each entry must be completely dressed in a gym suit.

Those who have 5th period classes should see the instructor about shooting after school.

Under 115 pounds is the lightweight class.

Over 115 pounds is the heavyweight class.

Tournament Is Divided

The tournament is divided into three parts, namely: qualifying round, semi-final round, and final round.

In the first round 20 throws are allotted to each participant. The 15 best scores entitle the winners to the next round.

In the second round 30 throws are given. The ten highest (including the first round) are eligible to enter the final round.

In the final round 30 throws are given. The final winner is determined by adding the totals made in all three rounds.

First round will continue until notice appears on bulletin board in gym indicating last day.

All further information can be had on bulletin board in gym.

Dancing Class Drills On Cossack Number

The Dancing Club began activities Thursday with several difficult exercises. Later they went to the handball court where they practiced their Russian Cossack dance.

A discussion was held over what type of clothing they should wear and the colors. Many suggestions were offered among which was the suggestion that the tunic should be white, with black trousers. It was finally decided to leave the matter to a committee which should be picked by Barbara Scheide, chairman of the decoration committee, and by Miss Patterson. The club is to abide by their decision. This committee is to meet next Monday to complete their work.

Players Voice Their Confidence For Bright Basketball Future

Because of South Side's new coach and lack of material, many persons have been wondering what the players think of the team. The team, composed almost entirely of reserves, and working under a new coach, has won one game and lost two. There has been much criticism directed at the team, because of the defeat which was handed to them by Bluffton. This should not be, for the team played hard, even though they were beaten.

The players have expressed themselves by the following:
Jim Ellenwood: By the time the Sectionals come around, the team will be in tip-top shape. The team is composed mostly of last year's reserves, making the team very inexperienced. There is a good deal of nervousness before a game.

Carl Hall: The team is very inexperienced and is also under a new coach, which makes it hard; but by the time the Sectionals roll around, South Side should present a very tough team.

Ray Speaker: The team is young yet, but as time goes on, I think the team will be up there with the best.

Don Reichert: I think that the team will go a lot better after Christmas vacation.

INTRAMURAL INSIGHTS

ABOUT FOUL SHOOTING

Within the next three weeks we will be able to tell you who is the most consistent in making foul shots. The request has been made by the participants that every one in the gymnasium during the fifth period please refrain from yelling and shouting at these athletes who are trying their best to make all of their foul shots. Everyone knows (or should know) that yelling at a person when he is trying to make a foul is about the lowest thing a person can do. If you yell at those who are shooting baskets just remember that those about you are classing you as a very poor sport.

FOR BETTER SPORTSMANSHIP

Here is what the intramural writers have to say about sportsmanship for the past week. Kenneth Allway was considered the best all around sport of the week. His actions on the floor are to be complimented. If everyone would just forget his personal revenge and play the game, as Kenneth did the past week, there would be no worries for the intramural department. The best team, as a whole, was considered the Stooges. They played a good game of ball and did not do much arguing. The members of the team are as follows: Dent, Feichter, Pequinot, Miller, Collichio, and Davies. Please remember that all votes put in the Times Mail Box will be considered when the team of the week is picked.

BURSLEY'S
Little Elf Products

Ed Miller: I think the team's chances on the coming season are very good.

John Hines: After the Christmas vacation, we should go very good. The team is young as yet; but a few more practices and games, is all we need.

Joe Close: I think after a few more games, South Side should become a very worthy opponent for any team.

Red, Blue, Netmen Best In Scoring

Schollenberg, North Side, Leads In City School Race; Hall, Speaker Archers High Scorers

With about one-quarter of the season completed for the majority of the teams in Fort Wayne, North Side and Central players are ranking highest in the race for individual scoring in the city. Schollenberger of North Side leads the pack with thirty-five markers collected in four tilts.

Braden, Armstrong, and Schafer, Central sharpshooters, are not far behind with thirty-two, thirty-one, and thirty points respectively. Barile of Central Catholic is also in the heat of the battle, having scored thirty-one points.

Carl Hall and Ray Speaker of South Side are in eighth and tenth places respectively, scoring twenty and sixteen points respectively.

The eleven highest individual scorers in the city, and number of games played is as follows:

Players	G.P.	Pts.
Schollenberger, North Side	4	35
Braden, Central	6	32
Armstrong, Central	6	31
Barile, Cent. Catholic	3	31
Schafer, Central	4	30

Helps In Getting Gifts For Those Who Have Everything Listed

Mother and father should be the first names on your shopping list. And you should buy them something very special. But with all the new gift ideas and the tempting arrays in the stores, this should not be hard.

Your mother will enjoy a gift for the home, or she may rather have some personal gift. For the home there is a beautiful chromium coffee service. The service consists of three sections—the coffee, the cream, and the sugar. But each section may be placed on top of the other, and it becomes an individual service of very modern design.

Other Gifts Listed

If your mother likes maple furniture or antiques, you would please her with a miniature model of an old spinning wheel, which may be used on a mantel or some decorative spot in a Colonial room. Also for this purpose, she would be pleased with a reproduction of an old maple mantel clock.

If she has many visitors, she would be relieved to receive a chromium buffet server. It has three compartments which keep foods piping hot throughout the serving of a buffet meal.

Perhaps your mother would rather have some very personal gift—like Eau de Cologne, which soothes away weariness and inspires a festive mood. Or, she may like to receive a miniature coffret containing all the requisites of a complete manure. Then, too, mother would be pleased with a luxurious perfume, a white-flower sweetness for her. Or she may prefer a smart vanity case of satin gold finish with three sparkling sapphirine stones across the top. A pair of fleur-de-lis clips with rose cut and marquise rhinestones are smart also.

Gifts For Fathers

Father would like something different and unusual this year. Something else than the conventional shirt, tie, or socks, although he still likes to get them. He would certainly like some personal stationery with his name and address in blue on white paper. A genuine leather desk set would please him immensely.

Father would undoubtedly be glad to get some of the new airplane cuff links in sardonyx or onyx, in a triple gold filled case. He would also be pleased with an auto compass of black composition with a glass top. Scarfs, this year, are noted for their brightness; and you could get father a silk one in any color with white polka dots.

If your father is always forgetting his engagements or too busy to remember them, why don't you get him a desk pad of chromium with a brown simulated wood finish? His initials can be burnt into the "wood."

Something very new for men are Irish hand-knit string gloves. Father would like them because they're different.

Knitwear Is Latest Vogue This Season For All Occasions

Higher education is not essential for smartness. In fact, it is the "knit" wit who is eligible for the honor list this season. Knit two and purl two has become a national anthem among the gentler sex who have hailed the current knitwear vogue as the most pleasing form of attire.

Knitwear, as everything else, has undergone a metamorphosis during the past few years. Formerly devised for strictly sportswear, it now finds cordial reception on more dressy occasions depending on the character of the yarn and the lacyness of the knit.

Prove Most Wearable

The essence of knitted-wear's popularity lies in the fact that it is the most wearable garment in millady's wardrobe. It requires a minimum amount of care and never shows the traces of a busy day. A knitted suit of authentic quality can be worn indefinitely without the usual signs of premature old age as apparent in other types of garments.

The new chenille yarn takes honors for its soft texture and its adaptability to the lacy patterns by which this season's styles may be distinguished. A two-piece suit may be either a sport or a dressy style, depending on the individuality of its knitted pattern, while the three-piece style (skirt, blouse, and jacket) finds itself generally confined to tailored wear.

Are Many Details

There are many details, devised by the ingenious experts, which add sparkle to the garments. One is the ruff-neckline finished with a perky bow which was designed with an eye for coyness. Wooden buttons, brilliant clips as colorful as a rainbow, carved ivory, antiqued metal fastenings and many other details are used in knitted style with the simple smartness these style-stars have established, namely, the Bradley style-stars. For more details visit the Town and Country Shop.

Christmas Style Are Youthful, Enchanting For School Girls

Along with gay holly wreaths, bright tinsel, and various colored lights, adornments for the Christmas season, come adornments for those high school girls who plan to attend the holiday's social affairs. Some very lovely things which would very well answer this purpose were modelled by high school students at a style show Friday afternoon at The Shop of Youth in Wolf and Desserger's.

Virginia Garman, a student of St. Catherine's, wore a black net dinner dress of shirtdress style, a skirt fitted over the hips and flared full to the floor, with ruffled short sleeves. A black slip and gold accessories make the frock complete, as the belt is of gold metal.

Virginia Tucker of Central modelled several dresses. One of the most striking was of pink hammered satin; a gold nail-head girdle four inches wide made it a perfect fit at the hips. The front of the dress is draped in Grecian style as is the soft-lined draping skirt; the material crosses effectively at the neckline. A gold tiara and slippers with other gold accessories are worn with the garment.

Vera Crise, a South-Sider, wore an appealing black crepe dinner semi-formal dress with heart-shaped stitched lapels at the neckline and extending over the shoulders. Three rhinestone ornaments of graduated sizes are in front at the neckline. At the back of the dress, a wide girdle fastens at the waist with tiny covered buttons; the neck in back is "V" shaped.

Norma Rae Woolever, a student of North Side, modeled a royal blue crepe dinner dress having a round neckline with pleated collar and pleated short sleeves around the shoulders. The skirt is straight-lined featuring a pencil line silhouette; the bottom of it is pleated. The belt is gold studded and admits of gold accessories such as shoes and jewelry.

Mary Martha Rabus of Central wore a red crepe dinner dress with a rhinestone solid collar and zipper at the neck. The entire garment is straight-lined with sleeves puffed at the shoulders; it flares below the knees, however.

Margaret Geyer displayed a pink lace jacket-affair which is very simple and has three straps from the neckline to the waist; a large clip is at the neck. Below the fitted jacket the dress flares and has a peplum of stiff lapels.

Anne Wheatley featured a white hammered satin formal with a ruffled stitched trail at the neck and shoulders. A cluster of red velvet flowers is worn at the neck. The full skirt completes the charming effect of the dress.

Rita Bunting modeled a pale green morie taffeta formal with a full stiff skirt, a square neckline in front and back, and folds of material over the shoulders forming lapels in back.

Kathleen Closs wore a lovely black velvet semi-formal with short puffed sleeves and shirring at the neck and waist, thus making a very full bodice. A cluster of red flowers at the neck brighten up the dress, and the straight-lined skirt complete it.

Accessories Alter Appearances Of Hi-School Misses' Outfits

By Mary Ann Fark

Accessories, all kinds of them, brighten any sort of a dress, no matter whether the dress happens to be a sport affair, a dress-up frock, or a luscious evening creation.

Any sweet young thing who looks well in brown could go for a plain brown knitted dress. But the dress alone, however smart, will not look well unless accompanied by fitting accessories. "The sauce to meat is ceremony," says Lady Macbeth; and so the accessories are the gravy for a brown wool knitted dress. A soft slouch hat of hunter's green felt with a bright quill could top a new Christmas permanent with the greatest ease. Shoes, bag, and gloves, all of brown suede, may form a triplicate smart enough for any outfit. For a touch of variety now and then, a color of plaid or bright, plain wool may be added.

Now take a dress-up frock of a subdued red. Metal-shot looks well with red, and it will also be appropriate with black accessories. A black jockey cap, very likely of felt velvet; a big kid handbag also of black; black kid gloves with turn-down novelty cuffs complete the outfit.

Youthful Allure

Every high school girl needs a black frock in her wardrobe because they are suitable for many occasions. Instead of wearing the conventional black crepe, Wendy Barrie selects a sheer fagotted material for her dress. White pique at the neck and sleeves, and a cluster of white flowers add a distinctive and youthful touch to this frock.

Beautiful Origin Of Christmas Retold As Holiday Approaches

Once again we are in the joyous Christmas season, the happiest of all of the seasons of the year. We again are in the midst of the hustle and bustle of Christmas shopping; we are again giving and receiving gifts.

With all these signs, we must again be reminded of the real meaning of Christmas; Christmas, not Xmas, not the day for Santa Claus, not the gift-giving day; but the celebration of the most important birthday of all time, the birthday of Christ. "And she brought forth her first born Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes and laid Him in a manger"—that is the real Christmas.

On the first Christmas Eve, the angels came to shepherds on the lonely field near Bethlehem and announced for the first time the joyous message of Christmas time. They sang "Glory to God in the Highest, and on earth, peace, good will toward men." These words fittingly describe true Christmas spirit. In the present time, with nations at war and all Europe in turmoil, it is hoped that the peace, good will, and happiness of Christmas time will, in a small way at least, appease the enmity and strife now encircling the world.

To Have Christmas, A Store Of Sweets Is Very Necessary

By Dorothy Reese

Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without a generous supply of sweets to eat and to offer to one's guests who drop in casually with their seasonal supply of good wishes. But all the fun is not in eating! The pre-cheer period is celebrated by high jinks in the kitchen, armed with double boiler, recipes, and ingredients.

An assortment of dainty sweets, packed in festive holiday trappings, makes an acceptable present for the most difficult subject on your gift list. And don't forget your friends who are on a diet. They have already forgotten their diets—temporarily—and will enjoy these denied sweets all the more on account of their usual abstinence.

Here are a few extra good recipes:

Marshmallow Chews
1/4 cup evaporated milk.
20 marshmallows.
1/2 cup chocolate.
3/4 cup shredded cocoanut.
Place the milk and eight marshmallows in the top of a double boiler over boiling water and heat, stirring constantly until marshmallows are dissolved. Remove boiler from heat and keep mixture standing over hot water. Dip marshmallows one half at a time in mixture and roll in cocoanut or decorating chocolate. Place on wax paper until cool.

Candy Potatoes

1/2 cup sugar.
1/2 cup evaporated milk.
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar.
1/4 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
2 teaspoons cinnamon.
1 tablespoon butter.
Small pieces of walnuts.
Place sugar, milk, butter, cream of tartar, and salt in a saucepan and heat, stirring constantly to boiling point. Cook, stirring occasionally to 238 degrees F. Remove from heat and cool until lukewarm. Add vanilla and beat until stiff and creamy. Shape with finger in small pieces to resemble potatoes and roll in cinnamon. Insert small pieces of walnuts for eyes of potatoes.

Chocolate Cakes
2 squares chocolate.
11-3 cups sweetened condensed milk.
4 cups corn flakes.

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler over boiling water and heat. Add condensed milk and cook over boiling water for five minutes, or until mixture thickens. Remove from fire, cool, add corn flakes, and mix well. Drop mixture by spoonfuls on a greased baking sheet. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for 10 minutes. Remove from pan at once. Makes 30.

Unusual Variety Of Styles Worn At Semi-Formal Affairs

The Thanksgiving season marked the appearance of many smart and unusual styles in semi-formals. Lame, sequins, and brilliant ornaments predominate in the trimming of the now popular crepes and velvets.

Sally Rea chooses a wine colored crepe. The skirt has the new front fullness beginning with gores at the waist, which are finished at the bottom in pleats. The split waist is fastened with small brilliant crosses. The dress is completed with a fitted jacket of the same material.

Silver and gold lame are among the most popular contrasts to crepe. Ruth Fritz wears a black crepe semi-formal. The fitted skirt is bias cut. The top of the dress is of brilliant silver lame, which is cut in shirt waist style. The front of the waist is trimmed in black pyramid buttons. The back is very low. The jacket of the dress is of the black crepe. Silver lame is used for cuffs on the three-quarter length sleeves.

Vera Crise is also gowned smartly in a black crepe semi-formal. The skirt is gathered in front at the waist. The bottom of the dress is slit to the knee. A white stitched satin collar stands up high in front and forms a deep V at the back. The long sleeves are trimmed with the stitched satin cuffs.

Pink crepe is chosen by Bernadette Dygett. The gown is very simple. Contrast is made by the jacket which is made entirely of silver lame. The sleeves are full-length with stiff cuffs.

Dorothy Crabill wears the ever-popular white satin. The dress is unusual by a red chiffon velvet shoulder packet. The jacket has no front or back but merely lies across the shoulders. The three-quarter length sleeves are tucked at the shoulder.

Late Comers Are Problem To Miss Montgomery, Principal

The assignment book says "chronic late-comers!" For gracious sake, what is a chronic late-comer? To that dumb question, the answer was "Go down and see Miss Montgomery." And so we did, but what we wanted to know and what the replies were are horses of different colors. The question originally was, "Who are the chronic late-comers?" But, oh well, we guess no one wanted to know anyway!

Many Late-Comers

"There are lots of chronic late-comers, though," said the ruler of that super-quiet place, Room 8. "Just because there are no eighth periods, a number of persons seem to think they can come to school anywhere from 8 to 9 o'clock in the morning. They're soon discovered, however, and rapidly find themselves upstairs in an office trying to evade the questions of a well-known man named R. Nelson Snider."

After being sent to the principal's office, there is a decided change in the time certain people come to school. Miss Montgomery says; and quoting that young lady, "What's he got in the way of punishment that I haven't?" No matter what the method of attack is, however, it has its effect and that's all that matters.

May Mean Eightths

"One funny thing that happens nearly every semester when no eighth periods are assigned," Miss Montgomery states, "is that many pupils don't know that there is no punishment in that form." Imagine some peoples' complexions on discovering that they have been sitting quietly for one hour in the study hall, only to be asked, "What on earth are you doing in here; don't you know you're not supposed to be in here after school hours?"

The serious side of anything chronic, whether it be tardiness or general bad behavior, is that unless the infractions become less, next semester may see a lot of bewildered people seated forcibly for weeks on end in Z-25, or whatever the number may be.

Christmas Presents And Several Ideas To Fit Your Purse

Now, dear stude, comes the age-old struggle of making a budget and a Christmas list meet. However limited a list may be, it is a laudable idea to make the most of the sum available and to make every cent of it go for something worthwhile. We want our smallest gift to be a perfect gift—and that requires figuring! Sometimes the simplest solution to many a gift problem needs only to be suggested. So here is a collection of scattered suggestions, one of which might possibly bring an inspiration to you.

Feminine Gifts

Stationery in new colors, and monogrammed with three initials is a dependable idea. The newest stationery colors are: bois de rose (a lovely dull rose shade), deep blue, and the deeper yellows and tans. If you want your stationery gift to be a success, choose one of these.

A bed jacket—lovely and frilly, or soft and warm—is another idea. There is no gift more entirely feminine.

Monogrammed handkerchiefs are among a lady's most prized possessions. Or you may choose linen handkerchiefs in solid colors with her first name written out in machine embroidery.

broodery. Choose these colored handkerchiefs in the deeper shades of red, green, wine, blue, or beige. Very modern!

Big boxes of fragrant dusting powder, bottles of bath essence or cologne, or after-bathing creams and lotions. Carefully chosen perfume or fine cosmetics are usually dependable gifts.

Many a feminine heart would be overjoyed on Christmas morning to behold a lovely evening bag, bracelet, ring, or compact.

Gifts for Men

Luggage, so interesting now in all its modern designs, is ideal for gift purposes. A man might like one of the small zipper bags in calf or pigskin. It is just right for overnight or for carrying such things as golf clothes.

Fleece or fur-lined gloves for driving on near-zero days are as sensible as they are good-looking.

Masculine hearts would take a leap for joy if they were to receive a cigarette lighter or leather billfold with his initials engraved on it.

A delightful shaving set would be a practical gift. Also a set of black ebony hair brushes.

Many Phases Of Art Taught At South Side

Department Organized In 1922; Started With Eight Pupils; Many Take Course

Perhaps the growth of no other department in South Side High School has been so great as the growth of the art department. This is largely due to the fact that not only students but the people of the whole world today, are realizing the importance of art in one's life. The use of art enters into practically every profession of the present world.

The first art department in South Side High School, which was started in 1922, consisted of eight students who were divided into three classes. Each class was one hour and a half in length. There was one teacher to teach these classes; this teacher was Miss Mary Helen Ley.

Many Art Students

At the present time there are more than three hundred seventy-five students in the art department. There are two teachers of art, who are Miss Ley and Miss Emma Doehrmann. These teachers together have twelve classes each day. Each of the classes is absolutely full, having thirty to thirty-five students.

In the art department at the present time, every phase of art is taught. The students have a wide opportunity in the development of their skill in this field because of the flexibility of the art course.

Formerly Three Teachers

Miss Helen Pape Rump, Miss Evelyn Bales, and Miss Marion White are teachers who have taught in the department during the past at South Side. There was a time, five or six years ago when there were three teachers of art at South Side. However, due to the effects of the depression, the number was lowered to two.

Today the art students do an immense amount of class work. These students are always very willing to do various services concerning art work about the school. When students are selecting art for their programs, they don't have to think of whether or not they have talent. They realize that they can absorb a great deal from the study of art which will help them in making a success of their future lives.

Robert Herschey Is Given High Honor

Awarded Scout Eagle Badge; Is Highest Medal Presented; Boy Is Sophomore In School.

Thursday, December 5, was a red-letter day in the life of one of our foremost students. Robert E. Herschey, sophomore student in South Side, was awarded the Eagle badge, the highest award ever presented to a Boy Scout. Robert received the badge at the Anthony Wayne Area court of honor last Thursday evening, and is the only member of Scout troop 25 to receive this award. As a matter of fact, he is the only scout in his troop to receive the Star and Life badges.

Started As Tenderfoot

Robert started his career of scouting over two and one-half years ago as a Tenderfoot. Since then he has worked hard and made steady advancement, and to his credit he has added the following honors: Second Class Scout, First Class Scout, Star and Life Scout.

To receive the Eagle badge, Robert had to excel in many things. The most important of these are: First aid, life saving, cooking, camping, safety, pathfinding, bird study, swimming, personal and public health, pioneering, physical development, and civic. Twenty-one merit badges are required to receive the Eagle badge, but Robert was industrious and ambitious and received thirty-two merits. Another requirement is that a scout has to be a Life Scout six months before he can become an Eagle Scout.

Interested In Sports

The Eagle badge is the most beautiful of all medals received by the scouts, as the entire model is silver, and the one ambition of a scout is to attain this medal. The clasp is of silver with the scout motto, "Be Prepared," inscribed upon it. A red, white and blue ribbon connects the clasp and the medal proper. A silver eagle adorns this beautiful medal.

Robert is a member of the South Side band, and is a News-Sentinel carrier. He is interested in basketball and scholastic sports. His hobby is stamp collecting and airplane building.

A "national bloc" for future Spanish elections has been planned by monarchists in Spain, who are now of united interests since the Greek monarchial restoration. They will support whichever monarchist candidate looks the best. A directorate will be formed, and since Alfonso refuses to abdicate in favor of the monarchist pretender, it has been decided that the matter of the present ruler be forgotten for the present.

Times Wanted By Instructor

Wilson H. Snyder, a former student of South Side and now assistant educational adviser of a CCC camp at Hanson, Idaho, wrote a letter to Mr. Snyder requesting a copy of the Times. He wishes to get ideas from the Times for a paper to be published by the camp.

Mr. Snider Sends Greetings Of Yuletide Season To Pupils

The vacation season just approaching is one of the happiest of the year. Almost everyone in the country contemplates its coming with the keenest joy, for during this period there seems to exist more unselfishness and service than during any other time of the year. Family reunions, parties, presents, rest, and good times—all of these are part of our Christmas tradition.

But, there is a deeper significance to the Christmas vacation than is indicated in any of the above events. This is the celebration of the birth of an individual whose life was devoted to the welfare of His people, and of all people who came after Him. From the example of unselfishness, devotion to duty, service for others, and courage, displayed by the Christ, all of us can derive inspiration which will make our lives more useful and worthwhile.

I hope that this season of rest will be pleasant for you, and that your most cherished wishes and dreams may come true.

R. NELSON SNIDER.

Posters For Safety Displayed In Hall

Many Types Of Project Shown; Deal With Various Phases Of Campaign For Safety.

Many interesting posters on safety adorn the lattices in the front hall. They are of varied colors and symbolize many different phases of safety.

A poster of various colors with the title, "These Signs Help Protect You. Obey Them," was made by Willard Rise. "It Is Dangerous To Jay-Walk" was painted by Roy Stanger. Ned Klotz made another plain, but very attractive poster, entitled, "A Hot Tip, Drive Carefully."

"You Drive Safely or You Will Be Here," shows a ghost pointing to a grave. Fred Ostermeyer was the creator of this one. "Halt, the Harvester, Drive Carefully," and "Needless Agony From Headless Driving" were painted by Ralph Jones. The former has the figure of a ghost, painted in drab colors, and the latter is the head of a man dripping blood.

"Hideous Results, Always" by Doris Line and Harry Wittwer, shows a skull looking down on all law-breakers with glee. "Wipe the Slate Clean," by Hubert McEwen, is represented by a slate with statistics of deaths.

"Maelstrom of Death," by Bob Miller, shows a ghost of any careless driver, being swallowed up in a whirlpool of carelessness. "Wearing This Crown Means Death," is by Norman Miller. The crown of this poster is "Speed."

If some of the warnings from these posters would be heeded by drivers, we would not have so many accidents.

Abusing Your Health Defeats Chances For A Successful Life

The Greatest Thing in Life

The truth about health involves no element of mystery, but is merely a simple application of Nature's laws to the human body. When we have once trained ourselves into natural ways of living, we rise to our greatest power of usefulness. This is truth as practical as walking on our feet with head up.

The fact of the matter is, we usually defeat our own quest for health. Common sense should teach us to consider more properly the uses to which we subject this body of ours. Common sense should indicate to us that the application of chiropractic principles in setting our house in order, after abnormal abuse, is merely close cooperation with natural laws.

The greatest thing in life is good health, and chiropractic is the natural and reasonable way of getting and keeping good health. Dr. Charles J. Costner, 2102 South Calhoun Street, is equipped with the most modern facilities for treatment of injuries and disease; this is especially true in the case of skin and blood disorders. He is at all times willing to listen to and discuss your health problems without cost. Telephone H-2300.

Education Now Dependent On National Help

Ed. P. Costigan, Senator Of Colorado, States Opinion, 'Education Helps Success.'

In an address before the National Education Association in July, 1935, the Honorable Edward P. Costigan, United States Senator from Colorado, stated that America today finds herself with a system of education, widely supported, yet increasingly dependent on scientific and material help from the national government. Science and invention go through the nation without consciousness of obstacles, and our nation is becoming more than ever the unit of our common life.

Power, Expansion Grow

He further said that national power grows with national expansion, even though it does get its strength from local and private sources. He said that at the beginning of his senatorial experiences he discovered that the Red Cross and the community chests were not fully able to meet unforeseen national emergencies. National economic crises often spread rapidly, and if national disaster is to be avoided, national powers and resources must be enlisted.

It should be easy to agree on a program of national aid to state and local educational agencies as the schools are a very important factor in America's well-being. He also assures the people that many progressive leaders are ready to assist in any good program of education that a local unit recommends.

He thinks that all should agree to these first few steps:

First, that the federal government should give aid to states, if necessary, for free public education to equalize opportunities for teachers and pupils.

Second, that the length of the school year should be eight or nine months.

Third, that the teachers in all schools should be adequately trained for their positions.

Fourth, that the schools should be safe, healthful and modern, with suitable textbooks for all the pupils.

Experiments To Be Made

If these experiments are to be undertaken, they must be done at a sane and naturally. The modern world, through education, must try to omit such mistakes as former government experiments have resulted in. This can be done by widely distributing educational and scientific achievements that can be obtained only through education.

He also stated that he has heard it remarked that the economic, social, and political failures of the modern world have been produced by a defective education. Everyone knows that when civilization succeeds, education succeeds. When sound political and industrial self-government is established, American education will come into its own.

He also remembered that we have, under state and federal control, institutions, both state and national citizenship. Therefore each new generation must be educated to meet new responsibilities as the nation and state can exist only through harmony.

Sunshiners To Elect Officers At Next Meet

Election of officers will be the main feature of the next meeting of the Sunshine Club to be held January 7. The nominating committee held a meeting December 17. Also tickets for the skating party to be held in February will be distributed. Songs will be sung from the new song books that were introduced at the last meeting by the recording committee comprised of Francine Shepler, Eileen Fuelling, and Josephine Carrier. The books contain words for fifteen songs and are bound with a bright yellow cover. Joan Hildebrand has charge of this meeting.

Mercy Killings: Pro And Con

An Old Family Custom For Careful Driving

By Bob Storm

Mercy killings is defined as the painless putting to death of those afflicted with so-called incurable diseases, those with bodies hopelessly crushed in an accident or those with permanently ruined minds and bodies from any other cause. This subject has been much discussed by leading doctors and surgeons of America and Europe, brought up recently when a British doctor confessed killing five humans he considered incurable, to put them out of their misery or to prevent them from becoming social burdens.

So far the sides are about even for and against, with an imposing lineup of medical talent to be found on both sides of the mercy killing fence. A prominent national medical society goes on record as opposing the idea, while many prominent doctors favor it. Each side has strong arguments. Each has names touching examples to prove its case. And each is fighting for what it considers right: one for a human and humane right, the other for a moral and a social right.

Those favoring mercy killing argue, perhaps selfishly from a social standpoint, that if the person can never get well and is suffering much pain, his doctor at the mutual desire of the patient and his family should be allowed to painlessly put him out of the way and end the agony.

Those opposing mercy killing argue that if everyone, since the beginning of time, had been painlessly killed when thought incurably afflicted, our present cures for tuberculosis, typhoid, diphtheria, pneumonia, malaria, and other diseases would have never been discovered.

A bit cold-bloodedly some of these opponents claim the life of an incurable as belonging to society, to be a human guinea pig for experiments that may result in a cure to benefit society generally. They point to William Livingston Trudeau, who, after being told by the best doctors in the country that he would soon die of tuberculosis, lived to a ripe old age after building himself up by life in the open, thus starting the idea now used to prevent and cure that disease.

Then, too, the opponents of mercy killing proclaim it to be, like suicide, a moral evil; furthermore they believe that if legally adopted, the mercy killing plan would be abused by corrupt practices.

Where the solution lies, what the answer is—nobody can safely prophesy; but there are two things certain: that the change to the mercy killing plan, if it comes, will come only after a terrific battle, and if it doesn't come, we can be sure that we won't hear the last of the argument for a long, long time.

Winning the Nobel Prize is becoming a family affair with the Curies. In 1903 Pierre and Marie Curie, famous as the co-discoverers of radium and solodum, were awarded the Nobel Prize for the outstanding work of the year in Physics. Then in 1911 Madame Curie won her second award, the Nobel Prize for her outstanding work in chemistry.

Now, over thirty years after the Curies got their first award, a famous daughter of famous parents is named the recipient for this year's Nobel

Friday The 13th Does Bring Bad Fortune To Several

"I was unlucky, because today is Friday, the thirteenth." That was the excuse most of us superstitious people gave when some unlucky incident occurred on that Friday of Fridays—the thirteenth.

As a whole, the school was rather lucky. The pep session in the morning shortened morning periods to such an extent that tests originally scheduled for the morning periods, were postponed.

When asked for the unlucky happenings of the day, most students had to think twice for something.

Kenny Scott: I lost my voice in the assembly (good riddance) and got an icy stare for talking so much.

Bud Feichter: I dropped my dinner all over my new letter—(If he had cranberries, he'll be decorated for Christmas—green and red.)

Jean Bollman: I asked Benny to walk home with me and he refused.

Betty Rose Lehman: I just found out today that Bill and I weren't going steady.

Benny Woodhull: I just had to ask "red head" to Lettermen's dance.

Betty Kayser: Ran out of money.

Phyllis Hayner: My lucky day.

Martha Yost: An unexpected history test in a shortened period. (How could you be so cruel, Mr. Tudor?)

Margaret Gross: Lucky day, I got out of Latin class.

Prize for outstanding work in physics. Mrs. Irene Joliot Curie and her husband, Dr. Frederick Joliot of Paris, won together the Physics Prize this year for their success in making ordinary simple elements artificially radio-active. Radium is very costly and the work of this famous husband-wife team should result in the manufacture of artificial radium from ordinary table salt on a commercial scale.

An idea of recent origin on how to reduce the enormous toll of automobile fatalities and injuries is that of using vivid posters showing blood slowly oozing from wounds, of z-twists broken limbs, and other visual horrors that the average American scarcely realizes he may cause if he exceeds a law or drives recklessly. Together with the poster plan comes the idea of printing the details of actual accidents in language that makes a person recoil, but which still is not exaggeration.

Several months ago in the Readers' Digest appeared an article entitled "And Sudden Death," which just fills the bill; and this month another appeared, this actually written by an undertaker who tells of going to accidents and finding "ragged bones stick through torn coat sleeves, heads crushed to pulp . . . his arm hanging on the latch of the car door, the mangled body lay in the ditch at the side of the road." Does it horrify you? I hope so.

Remember this the next time you are tempted to pass a car on a curve, or the next time you want to show your girl friend how fast you can go on a city street. The motto expressed by Eddie Cantor is a good one: "Drive Carefully. We Love Our Children."

Joan Bonsib: Had a test and I know I missed a couple answers.

Merle Norris: I was lucky because I had a test in business English and passed it.

John Staley: I was born on the 13th. (Unlucky for the rest of us).

Eleanor White—(The thirteenth person to be asked): I once had my horoscope read and it was revealed that all Fridays were lucky and that the ones falling on the thirteenth would be unusually lucky.

Jacqueline Hensch: Lost my heart but not my head.

Jimmy Greiner: Lost two books that didn't belong to me.

Miss Mellen: I had a terrible nightmare that started my day wrong.

French Christmas Party Is Arranged

Will Be Held This Afternoon In Voorhees Room; Entertainment Will Be Varied.

All members of the French Club and their guests are invited to attend the annual Christmas party to be held in the Voorhees Room at 3:30 o'clock today. A very interesting treat is in store for all those who are present.

There will be a white elephant exchange somewhat in the form of the musical chair game, which promises to offer much amusement to the guests. Several French Christmas stories given in English are to be told by Maria Haven, Theo Schurenburg, and Mildred Rudig. Some very beautiful stories which tell of the Christmas customs in France will be given by Vivian Hickman. Various contests will be staged to see who knows the most about French Christmas customs. Prizes will be awarded the winners. Among the contests to be played are a French cross-word puzzle and a guessing game.

Refreshments consisting of cookies, candy, and ice cream will be served.

Those who are on the committee in charge of the program and the refreshments are Maria Haven, Dale Burgener, and Earle Paxton.

Twelve Named To Membership In Quill, Scroll

Graduating Seniors Selected By Miss Harvey, Adviser; Announced At Potluck.

Twelve prominent members of the January graduating class were announced by Miss Rowena Harvey, publications adviser, as members of Quill and Scroll, national honorary journalistic society, at the semi-annual 1500 potluck, which was held on Thursday evening in the Times room.

The students, who were cited on the basis of at least one year's outstanding work on the publications, are as follows: Ann Abbott, Helen Anderson, Louis Bonisb, Dorothy Crabbill, Bernadette Dygert, Mildred Foellinger, Dick Helm, Maxine Mariotte, George Anna Martin, Bryce Minier, Jo-Anne Smith, and Jim Sweet.

Amateur Hour Held

The potluck supper, at which Mary Anne Park acted as toastmistress, was featured, besides Miss Harvey's announcements, by a Christmas reading, "Emmy Jane's Christmas," by Leona Menze. The new members of the club, as part of their initiation, presented an impromptu amateur hour. Joan Bonisb and Leslie Johnson acted as co-chairmen for that part of the program. The members who took part in the amateur hour were Joe Bex, who acted as Major Boos; Leslie Johnson, the song; Lois Wyneken and Leona Menze, the Smithsonian sisters, Twiddle and Twaddle, who sang "Old Black Joe"; Joan Bonisb, who sang "Isn't It a Lovely Day?"; Violet Garton, who recited "The Night Before Christmas"; and Betty Pugh and Betty Lee Wilson, who gave a tap dance. The program committee was composed of Mary Anne Park, chairman, and Ruth Garrison and Maxine Mariotte.

Society Members Announced

The menu, which consisted of meat loaf, potato salad, fruit salad, baked beans, pickles and olives, ice cream, potato chips, cream puffs, pie, and Coca-Cola, was in charge of Leslie Johnson, George Anna Martin, Jim Sweet, and Bryce Minier. Arrangements for the affair were in charge of Mildred Foellinger, Lois Wyneken, and Norman Buck; and the clean-up committee was composed of June Haeger, Virginia Greiner, Dick Helm, Bob Storm, Jim Sweet, and Louis Bonisb.

All of the pupils who were chosen to Quill and Scroll membership are prominent in extra-curricular activities besides publications work; however, their journalistic ability is the basis for the selection.

Ann Abbott, besides her other extra-curricular work, has served as a reporter, classroom news editor, make-up editor, copy reader, proof reader, ad solicitor, managing editor, and general manager.

Helen Anderson, who is at present co-activities editor of the Totem, has served as room agent, assistant circulation manager, and reporter on the Times staff.

Louis Bonisb, present editor of the Totem, has served as advertising manager, business manager, managing editor, and general manager of the Times. Dorothy Crabbill, circulation manager of the Totem, has previously been assistant circulation manager, room agent, and reporter for the Times.

Many Are Named

Bernadette Dygert has held the positions of reporter, room agent, and editorial writer on the Times staff and also is a member of the Totem staff. Mildred Foellinger has held the positions of assistant make-up editor, mailing manager, and auditor on the Times staff. Dick Helm has served as sports editor, make-up editor, ad solicitor, and sports writer. Maxine Mariotte has been a proof reader, an assistant make-up editor, assistant managing editor, and reporter.

George Anna Martin has served as advertising manager, ad solicitor, and reporter. Bryce Minier, present student adviser of the Times and business manager of the Totem, has been general manager, advertising manager, tie-up editor, assistant managing editor, business manager, and ad solicitor for the Times.

JoAnne Smith, who is the present managing editor of the Times, was formerly copy editor, and copy reader. She also holds a position on the Totem staff.

Jim Sweet, Times editor, has served as reporter, editorial writer, and news editor.

Two Weeks' Vacation

Begins December 20

The students of South Side High School will soon have the pleasure of a nice long Christmas vacation. The vacation will be two weeks in length. School closes at 3:15 o'clock on Friday, December 20, and reopens again on Monday, January 6. This is the longest vacation that the students of South Side have had at Christmas for a long time.

The next vacation will be a two-day dismissal at mid-term, which will occur the latter part of January.

Plan Christmas Assembly

Miss Alice Patterson

Jack Wainwright

Miss Alice Patterson, gym and dancing instructor, is in charge of the "Christmas Fantasy," a musical pantomime, which will be a feature of the assembly to be held tomorrow afternoon. Jack Wainwright, music director, is in general charge of the assembly. He will also direct the musical accompaniment for the skit.

A Worthy Christmas Celebration Includes The Birth Of Christ

"I want a train, a box of blocks, a ryele, and—I just can't think of all the rest, Santa Claus." Words like these remind us of our own early childhood days when we believed dear old Santa came to every little boy and girl's home with his sleigh, reindeer, and best of all, his big bag of toys, containing everything from jicycles to little tin soldiers, and left each little boy and girl just everything they had wanted. Those were happy days! How our faces must have shone with joy upon seeing all the delights of Christmas time, and how happy our parents were to see our joy! Then came the fatal day when we decided we just couldn't resist; we must see Santa Claus in our own homes. We got out of bed especially early on Christmas morn, stole softly down the steps, and looked timidly into the next room. Then in a flash all our dreams were put to naught, for there was not Santa Claus, but our own mother placing gifts under and around the beautiful Christmas tree. Oh, how we cried when we learned the dreadful truth, no Santa Claus! But then mother told us on that quiet morning the real story of Christmas, how Jesus was born and how the angels came and told the shepherds about it, and how they went and worshipped Him. We'd heard the story before, but now it took on a new, real meaning which we never forgot.

And now (although teachers still call us boys and girls) we think we are almost grown up, but still we remember that story of Christmas. It no longer means Santa Claus and toys, although our gifts still are an important part, but it means "peace on earth, good will to men," and we celebrate the birth of the Wonderful Child of Bethlehem.

Lollipop Hop Planned By City Girl Reserves

To close their all-day Mid-Year Conference, the Girl Reserves of Fort Wayne will sponsor a Lollipop Hop on Thursday, January 23. The price of admission will be fifteen cents. The dance will be held at the Y. W. C. A. building.

The hop is under the general direction of the officers of the Inter-Club Council, who are Mary Belle Gallwey, president; Ann Tucker, vice-president; Alice Coleman, secretary; and Verna Holtman, treasurer. They are being assisted by other Girl Reserves. The program committee consists of Lillian Hartman, Marian Caber, Victoria Hartman, Ida Mae Dager, and Dorothy Prange. Serving on the program committee are Barbara Ashley, Betty Boone, Vivian Walorn, Jeannette Welker, and Charlotte Reamer. Julia Crabbill has charge of the publicity for the Times, Bonnie BenDure for the Northern Star, Jean Patrick for the Spotlight, and Virginia Greiner for the News-Sentinel. South Side girls are making the posters. Central girls are fixing the decorations. and North Side girls have charge of the sale of tickets. The Y. W. C. A. is furnishing the orchestra for the evening.

The chaperones will include the parents of the officers.

Students Hold Exhibit
The pupils of Passaic High School, New Jersey, recently held an Educational Week exhibit in the gym. The exhibit proved a big success as many parents attended.

Juniors Sponsor Show
In order to secure money for the junior-senior banquet, the junior class of Crane High, Crane, Texas, sponsored a show at a theater. They received a fifty dollar profit.

Library Features Many Magazines

School Has Collection To Suit Different Students; Debate Articles Are Now Popular.

Our library at South Side has a large collection of magazines that hold an interest for nearly every student. Not every student cares for the same thing as his fellow student; therefore, our library has magazines to suit the different students' tastes.

Some of the magazines that are liked the best are the following: American Boy, Popular Mechanics, Radio News, and National Geographic. These magazines are held at the desk in the library on reserve, and have to be signed for to receive them.

The magazines that the library keeps for the use of the students are the following: American Boy, American City, American Home, Atlantic Monthly, Aviation, Better Homes and Gardens, Business Week, Christian Science Monitor, Commerce and Finance, Congressional Digest, Congressional Record, Current History, Design, Deutsche Echo, Forum, Harper's Magazine, Hygeia, Industrial Education Magazine, Junior Red Cross, Mathematics Teacher, Nation, National Geographic, Nature, Outdoor Indiana, Popular Mechanics, Radio News, Readers' Guide, Scholastic, Scientific American, Scribner's, Survey, and World Affairs.

At the present time the debate books and magazines are in constant use.

Phyllis Miller Writes And Directs Own Play

Miss Phyllis Miller, a former student at South Side, and now a freshman at Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio, recently wrote and directed the presentation of a one-act play entitled, "Love at First Fight."

The plot of the play centers about a secretary who has just been given notice. In a vain attempt to prevent a male applicant from interviewing her employer, she finds herself attracted to the young man. The story of a man and a maid is given a new twist in the surprise ending.

Miss Miller is a member of the Footlighters' Club, dramatic organization, and was placed on the freshman honor roll following mid-semester examinations.

Small Children At Irene Byron Will Get Gifts

Sixth Period Art Students Making Novel Animals Especially For Children.

The little animals which are being made by Miss Dochterman's art students at South Side, have won the admiration of many teachers and students. These animals are sold for ten cents a piece. Various members of the art club are selling these animals in the front hall each day during the entire fifth period.

Many of these creatures are made from pipe cleaners and clay, as well as from corks of all sizes and sea-shells. The animals are very clever and many show much originality in the expressions of the art students.

The sixth period art students of room 77 are making a number of these little animals for gifts to be given to the children at Irene Byron Sanatorium at Christmas. This idea, which was suggested by the sixth period class, will bring much happiness to these kiddies, it is believed.

The gifts will be delivered in a box which will be decorated by the members of this class. Each of the thirty students of the class will make at least one animal for this box.

Marionette Plans For Play Finished

Name Of Annual Presentation By Club To Be "Chu Chin Chow;" Name Committees.

The puppet bodies for the annual club production, "Chu Chin Chow," were completed at the regular meeting of the Marionette Club.

The date of presentation, which was tentatively scheduled for this week, has been postponed until sometime in January. Conflicting dates made the change necessary.

During the business meeting it was announced that any member who has been absent for three successive meetings will be dropped from membership. Members are also requested to pay their dues for this semester and the next semester in order that enough money for staging the play may be obtained.

Laverne Boyce and Violet Garton were appointed as a costume committee for the play. They will have charge of the entire wardrobe for the cast. A stage committee, consisting of Norman Budd, Tom Sellers, and John Bex, was also chosen; work on the painting of the stage was begun immediately following the business session.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Thursday, January 8, in the workshop. All the members of the cast of "Chu Chin Chow" must have learned their parts by that time.

Teacher, Graduate Honored
Miss Mary Pocock, who has been with South Side as an English teacher since school opened in September, was elected secretary of the Oberlin Alumni Association at their December meeting. Miss Pocock was graduated from Oberlin in 1930. Ralph Burry, '28, was elected president of the association.

Miss Dochterman

The art pupils of Miss Erma Dochterman designed and cut the lineoleum blocks for the Christmas wrapping paper now on sale.

Christmas Basket Change Is Made

Home Rooms Are Encouraged To Pool Contributions To Be Arranged By Club Congress.

Because in former years a person had been asked by several clubs to contribute to Christmas baskets, this year home rooms, when given the suggestion that they supervise contributions, voted almost unanimously for the idea. In order to have baskets which will suit the needs which Miss Pittenger will know of ahead of time, it seems advisable to pool contributions and have baskets made up well. Nevertheless, if some home rooms desire to plan, pack and deliver their own, they need not enter into the pooling; however, they should notify the office and get information from Miss Pittenger.

Meat and other materials are needed, but as they cannot be collected ahead of time, it is suggested that some in each home room should be encouraged to make small cash contributions which will be used for the purchase of these perishable materials on Tuesday, December 24. Starting Monday students brought such contributions to their home rooms; this evening will be the last chance to turn them in.

The delivery of all the things to be made the day before Christmas: just how this is to be arranged will be worked out by the Inter-Club Congress. Bushel baskets or large cartons can be used for packing; it would be a great help if students were to bring such things as these to home rooms. Christmas trees may be turned in through tomorrow.

It is desirable for home rooms to collect such items as: fruit, jello, sugar, canned vegetables, canned fruit, jellies, and nuts. Articles to be purchased with contributions will include butter, lard, milk, and meat.

Plays Leading Role

Robert Klopfenstein, who graduated from South Side with the class of 1935, and now a member of the freshman class at Lake Forest College, recently played the leading role in two successful performances of his class play.

Pedagogues Plan Pleasures For A Very Merry Vacation

The merry jingle of sleigh bells, the call of the "wild," and simple, plain, every day tasks, commonly known as work, seem to summarize the methods to be employed by South Side's teachers in spending a well-earned vacation. This vacation, planned on so ardently by both faculty and students, pleasantly stretches out into two weeks of respite, December 23, 1935, to January 6, 1936.

The year that passes in figures so easily, will probably just as easily pave the way for new hopes, ambitions, and the traditional "new leaf." But vacation seems to be the thing we are most interested in, and rightly, too. Though vacations are meant for rest and are defined as meaning rest from a set duty, some of the following chosen ones may set us to wondering.

Miss Eleanor Smeltzley—I plan to spend my Christmas vacation in the city. I will read a great deal and attend some concerts, if possible.

Mr. C. A. Bex—My family and I are going to be in the southern part of the state where we will visit our parents at Bedford and Bloomington.

Miss Dorothy Benner—Stay at home. I usually spend said vacation working on the extemporaneous contest and the freshman-sophomore speech contest.

More Fun Planned

Miss Dorothy Alderdice—Get all rested up for the new term. We may take some short trips but nothing very long or strenuous.

Mr. A. Verne Flint—I have a course of study that I intend to put some work on. However, if there is any ice, I will go ice fishing. I would also like to repair a few of the broken down pieces of furniture around the house. Incidentally, I'll probably get about half this done.

Miss Emma Shoup—Just be in Fort Wayne. I'm going to come over to school part of the time and catalogue some new books. Also try to get caught up some work at home.

Mr. E. S. Gould—I'm planning to eat and sleep first of all. But then there is some book reading that I must do, too.

Miss George Ann Hodgson—I am going to get a lot of sleep, and maybe see some shows if my kind comes along.

Mr. Maurice Tudor—Going to do a little golfing, a little hunting, a little reading, and I won't forget the eating.

Miss Gretchen Smith—It's rather undecided, but I expect to take a trip to Nebraska, besides enjoying lots of the activities here in Fort Wayne.

Travel, Work Included

Mr. Jack Wainwright—I'm going to spend my vacation transplanting trees and doing a bit of landscaping up at the lake. Then my spare time will be spent in getting out a catalogue for camp next summer. There is going to be five guards at each end of the camp with shot guns, so I expect to be left undisturbed, but I will be glad to see any of my friends.

Mr. Ora Davis—I have two games to take care of during vacation, and also we will be in Grand Rapids either the week before or after games. The rest of the time I will be at home either eating or sleeping—I don't know which I'll do more of.

Edith and Mary Crowe—We will be in Chicago part of the time. Else we will be sleeping, eating, resting, or reading.

Miss Mary McCloskey—I'm going to rest, so that I will be feeling fit after holidays. I also plan to spend some time in housekeeping and maybe be in Indianapolis part of the time.

Miss Mabel Thorne—Spend first part in Chicago, then I'll come back and play.

Mr. Paul Sidell—If there's any ice, I am going fishing.

Miss Gertrude Oppelt—If there is any snow, I'm going sleigh-riding.

Miss Emma Kiefer—Stay at home in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Miss Elizabeth Kelley—I'm going up to Montpelier, Indiana, to see my mother during my vacation.

Mr. E. H. Murch—It depends on the weather, if there's any ice, I'll be ice fishing.

Home Is Popular

Mr. Ward O. Gilbert—Stay at home.

Miss Clara Schmidt—Stay at home.

Miss Alda Jane Woodward—I hope to attend two or three holiday dances. I have about a dozen nieces and nephews who are always glad to have their aunt entertain them at Christmas time.

Mr. Benjamin Null—Probably stay at home. My daughter, Katherine, and my son, Robert, will be home. I may decide to work on an old Irish harp which is sadly in need of mending, refinishing, and restringing.

Mr. Maurice Murphy—Stay at home and read.

Mr. Russell Furst—I have no special plans, but we will go down to Muncie, where both my wife's and my own folks live. In all, we will probably be there about a week, which will be spent in visiting relatives and renewing old acquaintances. Then we will return home and keep the home fires burning. I also intend to visit the library for some reading in the business field.

Miss Pearl Rehorst—Stay at home.

Mr. Martin Rothert—Fort Wayne seems to be as good a place as any in which to spend Christmas, but I may take some motor trips and visits to places about fifty or one hundred miles from the city.

Miss Rose Mary DeLancey—Go home to North Manchester. I hope to both knit and rest.

Miss Olive Perkins—Go home to Cleveland. Nothing exciting, I don't believe.

Miss Pauline VanGorder—Just stay home at 1157 Kinnaird, meanwhile doing practically nothing.

Miss Rowena Harvey—I'm going to Florida and absorb plenty of sun and drink lots of orange juice. I'll be at The Breakers, Miami Beach, Florida, from December 23 to January 2.

After all, the teachers are a great deal like students—at least in spending vacations and making resolutions. We will both probably end up the same way—more tired than before vacation in body but after all, just glad to come back.

Referee: Foul!
Spectator: Where are the feathers?
Referee: This is a picked team.

Mother: Son, do I smell tobacco on your breath?
Jack: Yes, Mother.
Mother: Then you'll have to stop going with those girls.

Two sophomore girls, walking to school, were discussing gym. One was taking gym and the other was in a nutrition class.
First girl: We have medicine balls in gym today.
Second girl: Do you eat 'em or drink 'em?

Two men were arguing. I was born in Canada and I'm a Scotchman, the first man exclaimed.
But that can't be, the second man protested. If you were born in Canada you would be a Canadian.
No, I'm not, the first replied, I'm a Scotchman.
They argued back and forth until the first man became disgusted.
Well, he said, if the old cat crawled in the oven and had kittens, would they be biscuits?

Minister: I'm glad to see you on your way to Sunday school, David. What do you expect to learn today?
David: I expect to learn the date of the party.

Slow Waiter: This coffee is imported from Brazil.
Tired Customer: Oh, so that's where you have been!
And then there's the girl who thinks noodle soup is a kind of shampoo.

Billy: Where do jelly-fish get their jelly?
Elizabeth: From the ocean currents, I guess.

Ralph: Every time I look at you it sets my brain on fire.
Margaret: Funny, I thought I smelled wood burning.

Father: Son, did you pass everything?
Raymond: Yes, sir, everything except a Chrysler and a Buick.

Senator: How much are those tennis balls?
Clerk: Two for a quarter.
Senator: How much for one?
Clerk: Fifteen cents.
Senator: Give me the other one.

Teacher: So, sir, you said that I was a learned jackass, did you?
Mickey: No, sir, I merely remarked that you were a burro of information.

Charles: I found a splinter in my cottage cheese.
Alice: What do you want for a dime, a whole cottage?

Mary: Do you know what a magician is?
Louise: No.
Mary: A person who can change a salesman's joke so that it can be told at an old ladies' party.

Zeak: Why is your car painted blue on one side and red on the other?
Hubert: It's a great scheme. You should hear the witnesses contradicting each other.

Doris: If you didn't have any brains would you be crazy.
Louise: Do I act crazy?

A sign on a wayside stand read: "We don't know what mom is worth, but we sell pop for a nickel."

Jack: Just look at that mast. Ain't it a whopper?
Wallace: Do those boats like that sink very often?
Jack: No, only once.

She: That taxi is going to hit us.
He: No it won't. It's yellow.

Give me a quotation from the Bible.
Judas went and hanged himself.
And another one.
Go thou and do likewise.

Exchanges
Several men were discussing the impending marriage of their pal.

That's an accomplished girl Ben is going to marry, observed one of them. She can ride, dance, drive a car, and pilot a plane; a real all-around girl.
They should get along fine, replied another. You know Ben is a good cook.

Have you heard of—
The fellow who got pyorrhea in his Elk's tooth?
The bride that went home to her mother and found that her mother had gone home to her grandmother?
The fire-eater who starved to death trying to live on a cigarette lighter?
The fellow who didn't know whether to wash his hands or keep them in his pocket?
The deep sea diver who wouldn't go to work because it was raining?
The re-incarnationist's son who wanted to come back to earth as a giraffe, so that he could look over the fence at ball parks?
The fellow who tried to write an original joke?

And then there is—
The freshe who asked a senior for the location of a room and got the right answer.
The girl called Flo because she talked in a steady stream.
An up-to-date Little Boy Blue who blows his horn at anything but a corner.
The absent-minded college student who took notes on the commencement lecture.

Willie and his mother were at a clothing store buying pants for Willie.
Choose whatever kind you want, dear, said his mother.
I like these, said Willie. See, the card says these pants can't be beaten.

Proverbs A La Good Humor
A friend in need is likely to borrow your best fountain pen.
Beauty is only skin deep,—which is as far as we can see anyway.
He that laughs last has just caught on to the joke.

He's Got Rhythm
Manager: Are you sure you're qualified to lead a jazz orchestra?
Applicant: Absolutely,—I've had two nervous breakdowns, was shell-shocked in the war, and live in a room below a family with twelve kids.

Mother: Why are you going to all that trouble to open that letter so carefully, Retha?
Retha: Oh, I had a quarrel with Cliff and intend to send his letter back unopened. I thought I would just see what he said before I returned it.

Dumb: English land owners are certainly polished gentlemen.
Dora: Yes, they have such wonderful manors.
Good heavens, where'd you get that scratch?
Gym.
Huh? Jim who?

Many a geologist has gone on the rocks.
Why is it that fast colors won't run?

Mistress to Mover: Please be careful of my waxed floors.
Mover: That's all right, lady. 've got spikes in my boots.

Oh! gee! I wish that I could see
All the things that there must be Spread o'er this world everywhere
All sorts of things, I do declare
All sorts of tribes, homes and lands
All sorts of trees, men, and bands
I only wish that they could be Brought to me, so I could see.

Mistress: I notice you have been taking our empty grapefruit hulls home with you. What do you do with them?
Negro Maid: Yes'm, she admitted, I've been carryin' 'em home. I see think they make my garbage look so stylish.

Miss: What did Scott do in the later part of his life?
Joe: He died.

Aileen: If wishes come true, what would be your first?
Curt: I would wish—ah, if I only dared to tell you.
Aileen: Go on, go on. What do you think I brought up wishing for?

Buy a truck, said the dealer.
What for? said Pat.
To put your clothes in, said the dealer.
And go naked? said Pat. Not on your life.

Father fell upon the ice,
Because he could not stand;
Father saw the Stars and Stripes,
We saw our Father land.

A little boy who was very much puzzled over the theory of evolution, questioned his mother thus: "Mamma, am I descended from a monkey?"
"I don't know," replied the mother. "I never knew any of your father's people."

"Quick, Watson, the needle," chuckled Sherlock Holmes, as he slowly wound up the Victrola again.

We editors may dig and toil
Till our fingertips are sore,
But some poor fish is sure to say,
"I've heard that joke before."

"How are you getting along at home since your folks went away?"
"Fine. I've reached the highest point of efficiency. I can put on my socks from either end."

Low Soph: Why, oh why, have I so much homework? I have six books and at binder to carry home every night. But I must not complain. Mother would not like it. Ah, how I long for the time when I shall be a high and mighty senior!

High Soph: Ah, I have advanced one step higher on the ladder of education. They can no longer call me a scrub. I now carry only four books and some loose paper. Mother is getting terribly worried about me, I cut once a month. Tch, Tch, Tch! What will become of me?

Low Junior: Ho hum, I just can't get to school in time for first period anymore. But heck, what's the difference, all excuses are valid now anyway. Maybe my report cards aren't so hot but I carry two books home every night even if I don't study them. Say, when I'm a senior all the teachers will want me in their classes.

High Junior: No more books and hard studying for me when I'm a high and mighty senior. I'll take two study periods, two periods of cooking, and one clothing class. Boy, am I going to have fun!
Low Senior: At last! I'm now on my last bend on the road to education, but I know I've earned it. I sure studied that first term. And how! Gee, that seems so long ago.

High Senior: After all is said and done, those years of struggle somehow don't seem so bad after all. I don't feel like graduating and leaving the old school after all. Somehow I realize that the best years are those spent in high school.

Teacher: Joe, use Egypt in a sentence.
Joe: See that fruit dealer? Egypt me.

Billy, aged three, was making his first trip to the barber.
How do you want your hair cut, Billy?
Like Daddy's, with a hole in the top.

"What became of the man who stole the calendar?"
"He got twelve months."

Farmer Fred: I have a freak on my farm—a two-legged calf.
Farmer Ned: Yes, I know he came over to see my daughter last night.

Definition: A caterpillar is an upholstered worm.

2 L8 4 T8
There was a lad named Wilber T8,
Who loved a girl whose name was K8,
He asked if she would be his M8,
But K8 said, "W8."

His love for her was very Gr8,
He determined to know his F8,
Up to her house he trod quite L8,
But K8 said, "W8."

The years rolled on for Wilber T8,
He still wished K8 to be his M8,
But K8 said, "T8, it's you I M8, Besides, I have another D8."

Pilgrim's Progress
Ray: And why do you call me pilgrim?
Fay: Well, every time you call on me, you make a little progress.

Platinum Blondes
In explaining the uses of different metals to his students, Mr. Snearlum asked the question, "What is platinum used for?" A very bright student answered "In making platinum blondes."

Peanuts
Senior: If you had a pound bag of peanuts and I ate the mall, how would I increase and how would I decrease?
Seniorette: Well, your money would decrease, but your stomach would increase.
Spearmint? Nope. Peppermint!
A girl was chewing her gum vigorously in study hall, when she noticed the teacher looking at her. She quickly took it from her mouth and stuck it underneath her desk. After the teacher had looked the other way she took the gum from its place and put it back in her mouth. All of a sudden a sickening look came over her face, and the girl sitting beside her asked what was the matter. "Oh! my gosh! It's a different flavor!"

Necks and Necking
When Sidney Kay was asked to give the disadvantage of giraffe necks in Miss Smith's biology class, he replied, "They have a hard time picking food off the ground, as well as other necking difficulties."

Silly Rhymes
A canner, exceedingly canny,
One morning remarked to his granny:
"A canner can can
Anything that he can,
But a canner can't can a can can!"

Lady: Did you notice that wood pile out there?
Hobo: Sure, I see it.
Lady: You should be more careful about your grammar. You mean you saw it.
Hobo: No, ma'am, you saw me see it, but you ain't seen me saw it.

She: Are you in favor of women taking part in public affairs?
He: It's all right if you want them public.

"Have you heard the story of the stained glass window?"
"No."
"Oh, well, what's the use? You couldn't see through it, anyway."

Yes, I Have No Pencil
The bell rings! The teacher says: "Tomorrow's assignment." I start to write but much to my chagrin I have no pencil! I ask the boy in back of me to loan me one. He does not have an extra one. I try the girl on the right of me. No luck! I kick the girl in front of me. She says, "Better luck next time." I punch the boy on the left of me. No good! Frantically I catch a girl's attention on the other side of the room. Much to my dismay, she shakes her head. The teacher by this time has given part of the assignment. She sees my disturbance and wonders why. I tell her I have no pencil. She very politely hands me one. Why did I not ask her for one in the beginning?

The lightning flashed, the lightning crashed,
The skies were rent asunder,
With shriek and wail, loud blew the gale,
And then it rained like thunder.

All things may come to those who wait.
But when they do, they're out of date.

Visitor: How far is it to Washington?
Native: Wa-al, I don't rightly know, but I'll call Eph. Eph'll know. He's traveled all over. He's got shoes.

"Do you recognize this fountain pen?" asked the judge.
"Surely, Your Honor," said the defendant.
"Ah, at last we are getting somewhere!"
"That's the same one you have been showing me every day for a week, Your Honor."

Owen Moore left town today
Owen Moore then he could pay.
Owen Moore came back today
Owen Moore.

"Don't cry, sonny, Grandpa will play Indian with you."
"But that won't do any good. You're scalped already."

During the dry spell a few months ago, a shower having come up, Mr. Blank remarked to his gardener, "This rain will do a lot of good, Patrick."
"Ye may well say that, sor," returned Pat. "Shure an hour of it now will do more good in five minutes than a month of it would do in a week at any other time."

"Here boy," exclaimed the excited little man, as he rushed up to a page in a big hotel. "Run up to my room and see if my umbrella is there. Hurry now, because I've just got five minutes to catch a train."
Three minutes later the boy came tripping down the stairs.
"Yes, sir," he said. "It's there all right."

Small boy: Can't I have a ride on a donkey, mother?
Mother: "No, darling, father says not."

Small boy: And why can't I have a ride on a donkey, mother?
Mother (aside to father): Oh, for goodness' sake, Fred, give him a ride on your back and keep him quiet.
"Mose, can you explain wireless telegraphy to me?"
"Yessuh; it's like dis. Ef you all had a long, long, houn' dawg, an' he stretched from Cincinnati to Cleveland, and you stept on his tail in Cincinnati he would howl in Cleveland. Dat am telegraphy. Only in wiahless you does de same thing without de dawg."

Teacher, trying to impress upon her pupils the virtue of kindness to all animals took them for a walk to bring the lesson home to them. Hearing a cry from little Johnny, she asked, "What's the matter, Johnny?"
"I've been sitting on a hornet," was the tearful reply, "and I'm afraid I've hurt the poor thing."

A British tourist journeyed from Cairo to the Yramids. Fired by romantic tales, he felt sure he had reached the land where nothing swerving of western civilization would be allowed to disturb the Arabian Nights atmosphere.
When he reached the Yramids and was hoisted to a camel by a picturesque Arab, he quivered with delight. But he had a rude awakening.
"What's your camel's name?" he asked the Arab.
"Greta Garbo," was the answer.

The mistress of the house took a friendly interest in her maid's love affair. One day she asked about it. "Oh! I've given that fellow up now," said the girl coolly.

The mistress expressed her regret; but two days after, she saw her maid out with the same young man.
"Mary," she said in tones of surprise when the girl returned, "I thought you told me you had given up that young man?"

"That's right, ma'am, I have," said the girl airily. "But, you see what it is; I had to give him a week's notice."

Teacher, trying to explain endurance: What is it that takes men up hills and down dales, through jungles of the tropics, and the ice-clad slopes of the Arctic regions, up the slopes of Mt. Everest, and down the craters of mighty volcanoes?
Stude: Aw, shucks, there's no such car.

Gal: Did you know that John talks in his sleep?
Guy: No, does he?
Gal: Yes, he recited in class this morning.
Girl: Don't you think sheep are dumb animals?
Boy: Yes, my lamb.

Patient: What is your charge for extracting a tooth?
Dentist: Five dollars.
Patient: My goodness! Five dollars for three seconds' work.
Dentist: I can extract it very slowly if you wish.

Teacher: Susabelle, give a sentence with the word coincide.
Susabelle: My little brudder was freezin' so I told him to coincide.

Frank: Have you ever seen a fly cry?
Charles: No, but I've seen a moth ball.

Collegian: Father, I've decided to settle down and start raising chickens.
Father: Better take my advice and try owls, son. Their hours will suit you better.

Sam: Oscar, what kept you out so late last night?
Oscar: I've been out with a chiffonier.

Sam: Chiffonier! Why, you don't know what you are talking about. A chiffonier is a swell little dresser.
Oscar: Yep, that's her.

The Halfback and the Maiden
The football game was over;
Before the parlor grate,
A maiden and a halfback
Were lingering rather late.
They talked of punts and passes,
Matters rather tame.
Till cupid donned the noseguard
And broke into the game.
He quickly lined the couple up and made them toe the mark,
And soon he had them going with a Scrimmage in the dark.
The halfback tried to kiss her, an amateur affair,
But he lost it on a fumble and only hit the air.
The next one caught her on the cheek;
The maid did shyly say,
You're penalized for holding,
Likewise for outside play,
And as they sat in silence, cooing soul from soul,
The parlor door flew open and father
Kicked a goal.

A little group of country folks had been watching the band play for several minutes. They had never seen a trombone before, and the play of that instrument received particular interest. Finally one little hick nudged another with his elbow. "Come on," he said, "it's a fake. He don't swallow it every time."

What kind of car have you?
Oh, a runabout. You know—run about a mile, then stop.

She: In what position do you play on the team?
He: Bent over.

Oh, Mister, what dirty underwear.
Shush, little girl. Them's my new spats.

Math Teacher: Now we find that x is equal to zero.
Student: Gee! All that work for nothing.

Teacher: Johnny, can you define nonsense?
Johnny: Yes, mam—An elephant hanging over a cliff with his tail tied to a daisy.

Careful Housewife
Little Mary was left to fix lunch, and when the mother returned with a friend she noticed Mary had the tea strained. "Did you find the lost strainer?" Mother asked.
"No, Mother, I couldn't, so I used the fly-swatter," Mary replied.
Mother nearly swooned, so Mary hastily added: "Don't get excited, Mother, I used the old one."

"Hey, there, feller! What you'll runnin' for?"
"I've gwine t'stop a big fight."
"Who all's fightin'?"
"Jes me an' another feller."
"Clarence," she called. He stopped the car and looked around.
"I am not accustomed to call my chauffeurs by their first name, Clarence. What is your surname?"
"Darling, madam."
"Drive on, Clarence."

He did not heed the traffic cop,
But raced ahead pell-mell;
The doctor told the sexton,
And the sexton tolled the bell.

Willie and his mother were looking into a dentist's showcase.
Willie: If I had to have false teeth, ma, I'd take that pair.
Ma: Hush, William! It's very bad form to pick your teeth on the street!

What is your occupation?
I make up jokes.
What magazine do you work for?
I'm a beauty parlor operator.

Tom Cardinet: Dad, are caterpillars good to eat?
Mrs. Cardinet: Tom, don't speak of such things at the table.

(Later) Mrs. Cardinet: Tom, what made you ask a question like that, my son?
Tom: Well, there was one on dad's salad, but it's gone now.

Hits of the Week
Chemist's Song: "I Believe in Molecules."
Baker's song: "You're All I Knead."
Desert song: "Shiek to Shiek."
One with a Hebrew accent: "Psalm of These Days."
Deaf and dumb song: "I'm in the Mute for Love."

"How does your cheering section make so much noise?"
"We gave them all a cheering drink."
"What?"
"Root beer."

All was silent. Only the cooing of pigeons was heard.

Suitor: I wish to marry your daughter, sir.
Dad: Young man, do you drink?
Suitor: Thanks a lot, sir, but let's settle this other thing first.

Papa: Eat your spinach, son! Don't I always put a quarter in your bank when you do?
Sonny: You can't fool me. That's the gas meter.

The turkey strutted all around
Until his day of doom,
But now he's dead—the poor, poor fowl
With bones to mark his tomb.

One fine day in the middle of the night,
Two dead men began to fight.
Back to back they faced each other,
Drew their swords and shot each other.

A deaf policeman heard the noise,
So he came up and pinched the boys.

Little Miss Muffett
Sat on a tuft,
Looking winsome and gay.
Along came a grid star,
Saying, "How sweet you are!"
Which didn't scare Miss Muffett away.

I need some pay,
This bright sunny day,
Declared little Ray
As he went his way.

When dear little Ray
Had his little say
His papa said, Nay!
So Ray isn't gay.

Nit: I won't stand for anything!
Wit: I bet I know one thing you'll stand for.
Nit: What?
Wit: The Star Spangled Banner.

The rector had invited the village boys to the rectory for a strawberry tea. After they had finished, seeking to point out the moral, he said: "Now, boys, wasn't that nicer than breaking into my garden and helping yourselves?"
"Oh, yes," chorused the boys.
"And why was it nicer?" he asked a chubby-faced boy.
"Because, sir," was the reply, "we shouldn't have had any sugar and cream with them."

Epitaph
Holding a Violet in his arms
He drove a car poor silly
Where once he held a Violet,
He now does grasp a Lily!

In Study Hall
She placed the book in front of her,
And faked a studious look;
She glanced up at the teacher in charge,
Then opened her pocketbook.

She patted her nose, her chin and cheek,
With powder, oh so nice;
Then a dab of rouge and lipstick red,
Which surely did suffice.

Then to her hair she did give heed,
And combed it all in place;
A ringlet here and a small curl there,
All whisked about her face.

Now to the teacher she gave response,
And greeted a face so sour;
Which sternly commanded that she might stay,
And spend an extra hour.

Teacher: What kind of thermometer do scientists use?
Frosh: A glass stick.

The sad news came by postal: "Dear Ma and pa," wrote he, "I've tried out for the football team and they've had an end of me."

Humpty-Dumpty sat on a wall, Humpty-Dumpty had a great fall. All the King's horses and all the King's men.
He scrambled eggs that night.

Teacher: How do you punctuate the sentence, "I saw a five-dollar bill on the street?"
Student: Make a dash after it!

Willie Attacks Father
Little Willie (William to you)
Put some tacks in father's shoe,
Said Willie's mother, "Ain't he sweet?
That will cure his aching feet."

Short Story
Blue eyes—Bona fide.
Blond hair—Peroxide.

Q. and A. Department
Dear Aunt Minnie:
I have been going with a certain young man for a long, long time, but have now found someone that I like better. What shall I do with the old boy-friend?

Ans.—Send me his name and telephone number. A. ("Make it right") Minnie.

Teacher: Vincent, why were you absent yesterday?
Pupil: My grandmother died.
Teacher: Funny, that's the third time your grandmother has died.
Pupil: Yes, my grandfather is a Mormon.

An old-timer is a guy that can remember a kiss that didn't remind him of a drugstore.

The Modern Mother Goose
Little Miss Muffet,
Sat on a tuffet,
Eating her curds and whey;
Down came a spider,
Sat down beside her,
And said, "Move over, Toots."

Hello, hello, operator, give me Columbus 1402.
"Just a minute, here's your party."
"Hello, I want to order a box for tomorrow night."

"What size?"
"A big one, there will be six in the party."
"But they only come in single sizes; we'll have to have it made special. It will take us a couple of days."
"But why should it? I don't want to wait that long."
"Well, you had better try—"
"Isn't this the Ford Theatre?"
"No, sir, this is the undertaker."

Mun: "I'm mad at you, Hank."
Hank: "What's the matter now?"
Mun: "You went right past me the other night and didn't speak."
Hank: "I'm sorry. When was it?"
Mun: "When you were running for that touchdown in the McDonald game."

"Will you please sweep out the room?"
"Well, madam," said the Back Bay maid, "I'll sweep out the dirt."

"Where did you learn that new piece?"
"It's not a new piece. The piano has been tuned."

Jack: This linament makes my arm smart.
Joan: Why not rub some on your head?

"I understand that you are in the market for a new maid."
"Yes, our last one handled china like Japan."

Young Senator: When anybody comes around talking about some new theory, you always indorse it.
Old Senator: Yes, I'd rather indorse it than have it explained to me.

"We're going to sweep the state!"
wearily exulted the feminine politician on election eve.
"Why not begin with the living room?" asked the patient husband, with a look around him.

MacDonald and his wife stopped in front of a restaurant window in which hung a card bearing the words: "Luncheon from 1 to 3 P. M., 40 cents."

"We'll have our dinner here, Jassie," said Mac. "Two hours' steady eating for forty cents is no sea bad."

Famous last words—But I've still got young ideas.

The mechanics' lesson was in progress at the university, and the professor was demonstrating a piece of apparatus. "You will have noticed," he spouted, "that this smachine is operated by a crank." Then he wondered why the students laughed.

Teacher: To what does "54-40" refer?
Student: United States and England had a dispute over the boundary line of Oregon territory.

Teacher: Very good; and how was the matter settled?
Student: Forty-fifty.

Little Mollie sat down to write a letter to her father, who had been absent about three months, and this was what she finally sent:

"Dear Father, we are all well and happy. The baby has grown ever so much and has a great deal more sense than he used to have. Hoping the same of you, I remain, your daughter, Mollie."

I once lived for three years on a desert island.
How did you keep from starving?
There were enough provisions in my life insurance policy to keep me alive.

"Now you must be very careful how you answer," said the lawyer, "and not say anything that is not strictly true. You drive a delivery wagon, don't you?"

"No, sir."
"But, I thought you did. What do you do for a living, then?"
"I drive the boss that pulls the delivery wagon, sir."

The family was seated at the table with a guest, who was a business acquaintance of Dad's all ready to enjoy the meal when the five-year-old son blurted out: "Why mother, this is roast beef."

"Yes," answered the mother, "what of it?"
"Well, Pop said this morning that he was going to bring a big fish home for dinner tonight."

Who wrote these jokes?
I did.
You must be older than you look.

"It's raining cats and dogs outside."
"I know it. I just stepped into a poodle."

It was the end of the scene and the heroine was starving. "Give me bread!" she cried. And the curtain came down with a roll.

Seth: Silas, do you like bananas?
Silas (who is hard of hearing): No indeed, I stick to the old-fashioned night shirts.

A western store ran the following advertisement: "Apples and imported nuts. Come early and avoid the rush. The early bird gets the worm."

"Dear Miss," wrote a particular mother to the teacher, "don't whip our Tommy. He isn't used to it. We never hit him at home except in self-defense."

A little boy, after his first day at school, was questioned as to what happened at his first day.
"Nothing much," he said, "except that a lady there who didn't know how to spell 'cat' asked me how, and I told her."

Small Boy (reading paper): Do you have to have a license for a bicycle now, dad?
Dad: No, why?
Small Boy: Well, it says here a man was fined for peddling without a license.

With the sharp upturn in prices clothes will not only make the man, but will very likely break him, too.

As we observe some of the girls in school this semester we are reminded of the fact that the good dye young.

We are continually stumbling on answers to all sorts of puzzling questions. No doubt the reason people cry at the death scene in a play is because they know the actor isn't really dead.

"I want you to teach my son a foreign language."
"Certainly, madam; French, German, Russian, Italian, Spanish—"
"Which is the most foreign?"

Her Wealthy Father: How can you have the cheek to ask for my daughter when you are earning such a small salary?
Suitor: Well, you see, I didn't like to turn down my job until I was sure of your consent.

It was the fourth inning when the couple reached the ball park.
"What's the score?" the boy friend asked of a fan.
"Nothing to nothing."
"Oh, goody-goody!" exclaimed the girl friend. "We haven't missed a thing, have we?"

Rock-a-bye-baby in the tree-top
Darling, you're up there because of your Pop,

The boy had been fishing for four hours when the inquisitive man came along and inquired what he was doing.
"Fishing!" was the boy's terse reply.
"Got anything?" asked the man.
"Yes," came the reply.
"What?"
"Patience," said the boy, still more tersely.

Wilcox: It says in the newspaper that a man in the West bartered his wife for a cow.
Mrs. Wilcox: You wouldn't swap me for a cow, would you, darling?

Wilcox: Of course not. But I'd hate to have someone tempt me with a good second-hand car.

"Halt!" yelled the sergeant to a new squad of recruits. But one of them marched on.
"Here, Jones, what were you doing before you joined the army?" yelled the sergeant.

"A horse driver, sir," replied Jones. When the squad was marching again the sergeant cried: "Squad, halt! Jones, whoa!"

Chester: Do you think our fraternity boys will go to heaven?
Gerald: Maybe, but they won't like it.

One shipwrecked man on a raft to another: Look, we're nearing civilization at last—there's a couple of warships.

Did you enjoy your dinner, sir?
The solicitous restaurant hostess.
Yes, except the dessert—it was terrible.

Did you have plum pudding or lemon pie?
I don't know, it tasted like glue!
Ah! It was the plum pudding. The lemon pie tastes like paste.

A science teacher says he once walked 11 miles to see a girl, and wasn't worn out when he arrived. Nowadays, the poor boy's arm would be so tired from hitch-hiking, he would barely be able to shake hands.

Boy: Hello, beautiful!
Girl:
Boy: Don't give me a dirty look!
Girl: I'll admit you have one, but I didn't give it to you!

Greetings! We want you to know the man who was stopped by a swollen stream while rushing home. He sat in his car and thought it over.

Bud: You look sweet enough to eat.
Martha: I do eat. Where shall we go?

What are those three fellows?
Radio sound-effects men.
I know it does. But what are they?

A "Billet Doux"
She was a winsome country lass,
So William on a brief vacation,
The time more pleasantly to pass,
Essayed flirtation.

And while they strolled in twilight dim,
As near the time for parting drew,
Asked if she would have from him
A "billet-doux."

Now this simple maid of French knew naught,
But doubting not 'twas something nice,
Shyly she lifted her pretty head,
Her rosy lips together drew, and coyly said,
"Yes, Billy—do."

And William—did.

Dear Ella:
When "Romeo and Juliet" settled in a "Hamlet," "King Lear" and "Julius Caesar" were contesting for the throne. So, "Macbeth" went to the "Merchant of Venice" and they conquered both of the warriors. Now everything is running as happily as a "Midsummer Night's Dream" and you can enjoy life "As You Like It."

But if it wasn't for powder and paint,
What would they look like?

Stepping Out
Teacher: Johnny, what does your father do when he comes home after a hard day's work?
Johnny: That's what my mother would like to know.

Stakes and Steaks
At Old Forge field last Friday night Walt Hobart and Lew Daniels fell over some of the wooden stakes in the ground. Lew arose with a disgusted look and said, "Why do they have these stakes here anyhow?" Walt answered, still lying on the ground, "Oh, they didn't have any pork chops so they used steaks."

Well, I got a letter from my girl friend but I can't read, so Sam is reading it to me. I don't want him to know what it says so I'm holding my hands over his ears.

Diner: Do you serve crabs here?
Waiter: We serve anyone, so sit down.

If you sneeze once, someone is praising you.
If you sneeze twice, someone is blaming you.
If you sneeze three times, someone is loving you.

If you sneeze four times, then you must have a cold.

Did you know:
That muslin is a follower of Mohammed?
That King Arthur's knights did not keep their vows?
That an uproar is a play set to music?

That the most certain thing about the past is its goneness?
That the stranger traveled under a consumed name?

Elmer Says
A parasite is a thing you jump out of airplanes with.
A conjunction is a place where the railroad ends.

A man named Atlas was the world's first gangster. He held up the world.
A colt is something that makes your voice horse.

Said a clergyman: Couples should marry younger.
Said Elmer: And not so often.

Have you ever heard of the mechanical engineer who wanted to take his nose apart to see what made it run?

Say, Dad, did you go to Sunday school when you were a boy?
Yes, I never missed a Sunday.
Well, said the lad, I'll bet it won't help we either!

And did you know that two Scotch basketball players turned in their suits because they couldn't shoot all the free throws.

The fellows make fun of the girls for powdering their noses, but not one of them would go with one who didn't.

Money talks—but all it says to most of us is thus—"Hello" and "Good-bye."

This isn't a small school—it's some of the "kids" here that make it seem so.

I SHOT AN ARROW in the air,
It fell to earth I know not where,
The farmer said I killed his calf
I had to pay him six and a half.

This week I kept my mind fixed on what I was doing. We had a vacation.

Jimmy: I knocked 'em cold in English today.
Johnny: How's that?
Jimmy: I got zero.

Greetings! And then there's the man who thought a millennium is the same as a centennial, only it has more legs.

Hard work never killed anybody, said Mr. Hoover.

That's just the trouble, Dad, replied Bits; I want to engage in something that has the spice of danger in it.

After three weeks on the radio a popular song is dead, says a music publisher. Our complaint is that the people who kill them go unpunished.

Mr. Brown: And remember, politeness costs nothing.

Jack: Doesn't it? Just try putting 'I remain your obedient servant' at the end of a telegram!

He told the shy maid of his love, The color left her cheeks, But on the shoulder of his coat, It showed for several weeks.

The girl who speaks volumes always end up on the shelf.

Bride's version: Wherever there's smoke, there's a kitchen.

Aren't people funny! If you tell a man that there are 270,678,934,341 stars in the universe, he'll believe it.

Fly-Bys
Student aviators should be careful which classes they drop out of.

Pete didn't know whether there was a Santa Claus or not. Just to make up his mind he hung up a very holey sock over what was supposed to be a fireplace.

The next morning he felt he had been justified. There was a Santa Claus. Someone had patched his sock.

Several men were discussing the impending marriage of their pal.

"That's an accomplished girl Ben is going to marry," observed one of them. "She can ride, dance, drive a car, and pilot a plane; a real all-around girl."

"They should get along fine," replied another. "You know Ben is a good cook."

A Queer Santa Claus
There was a big, fat Santa Claus, Who could not laugh, nor talk. He could not smile, nor moan, nor sigh. He couldn't even walk.

He couldn't dance, nor breathe, nor sleep; He couldn't even hear; He couldn't see, nor move a bit, He couldn't shed a tear.

He was not tall, nor normal, Like you, nor you, nor me. You see, he was an ornament Upon the Christmas tree.

Son: Say, Dad, that apple I ate had a worm in it, and I ate that, too.

Parent: What? Here, drink this water so it will wash it down.

But Jr. shook his head. "Aw, let him walk down."

Hostess: Oh, dear what shall I do? I've dropped an egg."

Cheerful Idiot: Cackle, madam, cackle.

Marvin: What do you think of the community drive?

Joan: Oh, let's go out in the country where it's dark.

Mr.: Young man, why do I find you kissing my daughter?

Ed: I guess, sir, it is just because you wear rubber heels.

Taxi driving is very boring because the drivers go through life just missing everything.

Martha: Is that a dray horse over there?

Stewy: No, that's a brown horse over there and stop your baby talk.

Dan: Someone said you were next to a fool.

Gerald: Aw, nobody can see me standing by you.

Cheese only a Dairyman's daughter butter calves won her fame.

Bum: Hey, buddy, could you let me have a dime for a cup of coffee?

Frank Oliver: Why a dime? I thought coffee was only a nickel.

Bum: I know, but I gotta date!

Miss: Why haven't I your examination paper?

Joe: It happened this way. I wrote it all right but neglected to fill my fountain pen.

Mr.: Well now, what do you think of my room as a whole?

Jack: As a hole it's fine, but for a room—not so hot!

Street Car Conductor: How old are you little girl?

Little girl: If you don't object, I'd rather pay full fare and keep my own statistics.

Customer: And where is that ham you promised to bring me?

Farmer: Well, the hog went and got better.

First Student: There goes the girl of my dreams.

Second Stude: No wonder you overslept this morning.

Senior: I heard you were caught cheating in a hygiene exam. What did you do?

Freshman: I was counting my ribs.

Repartee Plus
Pupil: Did you hear the one about the peanut?

Other pupil: No. What about it?

Pupil: It's in the bag.—Did you hear the one about the loaded pistol?

Other pupil: No.

Pupil: It'll kill you.—Did you hear the one about the ocean?

Other pupil: No.

Pupil: It's too deep for you.—Did you hear the one about the ceiling?

Other pupil: No.

Pupil: It's way above you.

Baa, baa, students. Have you more gum?

Yes, sir, yes, mam Does teacher want some?

If you ever dream you're eating shredded wheat, don't wake up in the morning expecting to find your mattress under you.

He traded in his old car and when he brought it in, the used car salesman asked him what was wrong with it.

He replied that ever part of it made a noise except the horn.

Nitche's dad returned home one day to see a big bandage on his son's hand.

What's the matter, Bill, cut your hand?

No, Dad, was the reply. I picked up a pretty little fly and one end wasn't insulated.
